COOLIDGE PRAISES AMERICAN PRESS AS WORLD'S BEST

President Talks of Journalistic Policies and Aims to Society of Newspaper Editors.

HE WARNS AGAINST PROPAGANDA EVIL

Defends Publication of Income Tax Reports as Evidence of Desire to Give News.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The pathway to success in American journalism lies in the avoidance of propaganda, the separation of news policies from business motives, and continued appeal to the idealism of the American people, President Coolidge declared tonight in speaking to the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Avoiding for the most part reference to governmental problems, Mr. Coolidge "talked shop" with the editors, speaking from the viewpoint of one not in the newspaper business as was his predecessor, but as one who has watched the growth and development of the American press. This growth, he declared, had given the United States "the best newspapers in the world."

Mr. Coolidge made it plain that he entertains no fears as to the influences of what is sometimes called a "capitalistic press."

"Some people feel concerned about the commercialism of the press," he said. "They note that great newspapers are great enterprises earning large profits and controlled by men of wealth. So they fear that, in such control the press may tend to support the private interests of those who own the papers, rather than the general interest of the whole people. It seems to me, however, that the real test is not whether the newspapers are controlled by men of wealth, but whether they are sincerely trying to serve the public interests. There will be little occasion to worry about who owns a newspaper so long as its attitudes on public questions are such as to promote the general welfare. A press which is actuated by the purpose of genuine usefulness to the public interest can never be too strong financially so long as its strength is used for the support of popular government."

The "Greatest Opportunity."

Advising the editors as to their greatest opportunity for aiding the Government, the President said he hesitatingly placed it in the direction of keeping alive American idealism.

"It is only those who do not understand our people who believe that our national life is entirely absorbed by material motives," he added. "We make no concealment of the fact that we want wealth, but there are many other things that we want very much more. We want peace and honor, and that charity which is so strong an element of all civilization. The chief ideal of the American people is idealism. I cannot repeat too often that America is a nation of ideals. That is the only motive to which they ever give any strong and lasting reaction. No newspaper can be a success which fails to appeal to that element of our national life. It is in this direction that the public press can lend its strongest support to our Government. I could not truly criticize the vast importance of the counting room, but my ultimate faith I would place in the high idealism of the editorial room of the American newspaper."

A public press unhampered is a true instrument under a republic for true representatation and sound and logical interpretation of the truth, Mr. Coolidge contended.

"The public press under an autocracy is necessarily a true agency of propaganda," he continued. "Under a free government it must be the very reverse. The propaganda seeks to present a part of the facts, to distort their relations, and to force conclusions which could not be drawn from a complete and candid survey of all the facts. This has become one of the dangers of the present day. The great difficulty in combatting unfair propaganda, or even in recognizing it, arises from the fact that, at the present time, we confront so many new and technical problems that it is an enormous task to keep ourselves accurately informed concerning them. In this respect you gentlemen of the press face the same perplexities that are encountered by legislators and Government administrators. Whoever deals with current public questions is compelled to rely greatly upon the information and judgments of experts and specialists. Unfortunately, not all experts are to be trusted as entirely disinterested. Not all specialists are completely without guile. In our increasing dependence on specialized authority we tend to become easier victims for the propagandists and need to cultivate sedulously the habit of the open mind. Of education and of real information we cannot get too much. But of propaganda, which is tainted or perverted information we cannot have too little."

Discusses "What Is News?"

Discussing the old question of "what is news?" the President said it seemed to him that quite obviously, the news-giving function of a newspaper cannot possibly require that it give a photographic presentation of everything that happens in the community. The proper presentation of the news, on the other hand, he said, "bears about the same relation to the whole field of happenings that a painting does to a protograph," explaining that a photograph might give the more accurate presentation of details, but in so doing, it might sacrifice the opportunity to delineate character.

Touching on the adjustments of business and editorial policy in American newspapers, Mr. Coolidge said it was another evidence that American newspapers were peculiarly representative of the country's practical idealism.

"Quite recently the construction of a revenue statute resulted in giving publicity to some highly interesting facts about incomes," he remarked: "It must have been observed that nearly all the newspapers published these interrsting facts in their news columns, while very many of them protested in their editorial columns that such publicity was a bad policy. Yet this was not inconsistent. As practical news men they printed the facts. As editorial idealists they protested that there ought to be no such facts available."

The President after describing American newspapers as the best in the world, continued his commendation by saying:

"I believe that they print more real news and more reliable and characteristic news than any other newspapers. I believe their editorial opinions are less colored in influence by mere partisanship or selfish interest than are those of any other country. Moreover, I believe that our American press is more independent, more reliable and less partisan today than at any other time in its history."

The "Administration spokesman" method of testing out public opinion through the newspapers was criticized by Karl A. Bickel, general manager of the United Press Associations, in an address before the editors.

Against "Trial Balloons."

Press associations and newspapers, Bickel said, should no longer tolerate those who, on "High authority," send out ideas in the form of trial balloons and then repudiate the story if their expectations are not realized.

Censorships and propaganda in foreign governments was discussed at length by the speaker, who said that foreign governments generally color the news they give to the newspaper correspondents. England alone, he said, left the press free of censorship.

Propaganda by commercial organizations in this country, he said, is often very helpful to newspapers, giving them many times the truth about matters of business policy, which newspapers must adapt to their own use, without seeing through the eye of the propagandist.

Other speakers were Wills Abbot, managing editor of the Christian Science Monitor; Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the New York World; Thomas Wallace of the Louisville Times; and Edmund Booth of the Grand Rapids Press.

Abbot, announcing that it was the policy of the Christian Science newspaper to print no crime news, advanced the view that publication of crimes was to be avoided.

Swope took an opposite view.

"The reporting of crime," he said, "is not only a reflection of life without censorship but an aid to Government."

He said that if crime were not publicly exposed the pretense that we are a crimeless people easily would be maintained and corrective measures never would be applied. The fear of devastating publicity has often more to do with the effort to unravel crimes than the desire to see the law enforced, especially when wealth is affected.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNER CAME TO U. S. ONLY 3 YEARS AGO

Albert Mueller, 19, Heads McKinley Class After Attending Only Two and a Half Years—Two Girls Get Awards.

MILDRED HELMHOLT — YEATMAN
HAZELMAE COLESTOCK — CLEVELAND
ALBERT MUELLER — McKINLEY
ROBERT YOUNG — SOLDAN
RICHARD LEDGEWOOD CENTRAL

Albert Mueller, 19-year-old son of August Mueller, an interior decorator living at 3909 Flad avenue, arrived in this country from Germany three years ago. He enrolled in McKinley High School, and for several months had difficulty in making himself understood. Now, after having attended the school only two and a half years he has completed the course with the ranking grade in his class, and will receive the Washington University scholarship given the student in each school attaining the highest class average, at the graduation exercises to be held this week.

Although he was taking extra work, and attending summer school, he found time to join the school's chess club, German Society, and literary club. At the university he will specialize in mining engineering.

Miss Hazelmae Colestock, the 16-year-old scholarship winner from Cleveland High School, has also completed her studies in less than the customary four years, making it in three and a half. She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Colestock, 3302 Ohio avenue. Miss Colestock studied the classical course, including eight semesters of Latin. She was a member of the Girls' Literary Society and was on the staff of the "Beacon," the school year book.

The scholarships for both Soldan and Central High Schools were won by 16-year-old boys. Robert Martin Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Young, 4010A North Newstead avenue, ranked his class at the West End school. He will study law at the university. Robert was president of the Rostrum Debating Club, and was on the staff of the "Scrippage" and the "Scrip," the weekly and term magazines of the school. Richard Ledgerwood, the winner from Central High, specialized in the sciences at high school and will continue this at Washington University. He, too, completed the course in three and a half years. Richard was a member of the Writers' Club, and was on the staff of "The News," the school year book.

The Yeatman representative is Miss Mildred Helmholt, 17, of 2919 North Thirteenth street. Miss Helmholt took the general course, specializing in languages and mathematics. She intends to teach the latter. She was vice president of the Science Club, and like the other four winners, is a member of the National High School Honor Society, elected on the basis of scholarship, service, leadership and character. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Helmholt.

Of the 646 pupils to be graduated, 441 are girls. Cleveland has the largest senior class with 177, closely seconded by Soldan with 170. Central follows with 100, McKinley with 82 and Yeatman with 81. Sumner, the negro high school, has 54 in the graduating class and Harris Teachers' College will graduate 24 teachers, and Sumner Teachers' College 19.

BORIS HALTS FIGHT AT PARTY IN HIS HONOR ON LINER

ACTOR STRUCK IN HEAD WITH BOTTLE

Second in Line of Succession of Romanoffs Says Visit to America Is on "His Own Hook."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Boris Vladimirovitch, Grand Duke of Russia and second in line of succession to the Russian throne should the Ramonoffs ever regain the Government, arrived on the Olympic today for a "jolly good time" in the United States.

The Duke entered port with a reputation among his fellow passengers as a "good mixer" and a "regular fellow," largely as a result of his part as peacemaker in an altercation which closed a party given aboard ship in his honor last Thursday night New Year's eve by the Russian calendar.

At least two other male guests got discolored eyes and other visible evidences of the fray. The story gathered piecemeal, was that the party, organized by Col. L. J. O'Connor, D. S. O., who was coming here for British oil interests on a mission to Mexico, and William H. Halligan, an actor and vaudeville booker, started at 10 o'clock Thursday night and broke up at 5 o'clock in the morning. The Duke and the Grand Duchess were guests of honor. Much champagne was reported consumed before the dinner ended at 1 a. m., when several of the guests left, leaving 30 men and women to continue the celebration.

Grand Duke Quells Fight.

A toast was proposed to Halligan, and the party, with one exception, rose to drink it. The exception, who said he was Alexander Grows of Miami, Fla., but who appeared on the passenger list as "A. Gross," remained seated. He was said to have remained in his chair despite continued shouts to rise. Finally Halligan and Grows engaged in an altercation, which ended when the actor was struck by a champagne bottle across his forehead. The Grand Duke intervened, quelled the trouble and sent Halligan to the ship's doctor.

The Grand Duke this morning held an informal reception for newspaper men in his cabin, a small one and plainly furnished, in contrast to the quarters occupied by his sister-in-law, the Grand Duchess Cyril, wife of the man who recently proclaimed himself heir to the Romanoff throne, when she came here a few weeks ago. Also in marked contrast was Boris' entry into the country. Whereas the Grand Duchess Cyril had been the object of much attention by society folk, her brother-in-law and his wife were met by no one at the ship, and proceeded to the Ritz-Carlton unescorted.

Recalls Visit 24 Years Ago.

The Grand Duke flashed ready and witty answers to an avalanche of questions. There was no financial or political significance to his visit, he said. "Just here on my own hook," he said. The phrase was a cut-back to his American visit of 24 years ago, he said, a visit which brought him much publicity, notably on the occasion when he drank champagne from a chorus girl's slipper in Chicago.

He personally had no aspirations to the Russian throne, he said, adding that he supported the claim of his brother, his elder by more than a year. The "thinking Russians," he thought, desired the return of monarchial government. He added that he believed recent events in Russia were signs favorable to his party. He spoke with obvious distress of the plight of many of his noble fellow countrymen in Europe, many of them in menial tasks—street sweepers, cooks, chauffeurs.

His mother-in-law, his titled secretary and his wife's niece, Natalie, eight years old, who accompanied them, arriced second class for "purposes of economy." When told of Representative La Guardia's recent statement in Congress that the Grand Duke should be questioned as to whether he intended to attempt an overthrow of the American Government, the Grand Duke replied:

"Ah, then I would be Emperor of this great America! How charming!"

Wants Some Good Shooting.

"I'm here for a good time, that's all," he concluded. "I hope I get invited to some good shooting, some golf, and, oh, many other things. I love fun. I shall see the Follies, too, where they 'glorify the American girl.' She needs no glorification; she is beautiful."

JOHNSON OPENS SENATE FIGHT ON PARIS PACT

Californian Demands Hughes Submit Copy of Agreement Whereby U. S. Gets Reparations.

'NATION INVOLVED IN TANGLE ABROAD'

Borah Seeks Interpretation of American Diplomats' Action—Reed of Missouri Approves Resolution.

20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, aroused by the reports from France that America is now a partner in making Berlin pay up, is demanding the facts from the State Department. He today introduced a resolution requesting the Secretary of State, "if not incomptatible with the public interest, to transmit to the Senate a copy with the agreement signed by Messrs. Kellog, Herrick and Logan during the last week at the conference of the Allied and associate powers in the World War relating to the Dawes plan and the payment of reparations by Germany."

Senator Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said he intended to offer a similar resolution, but when he found that Johnson had presented one, he decided to withhold his own. Borah declared he would have gone further and asked the State Department for an interpretation of the action of Ambassadors Kellog and Herrick and John A. Logan Jr., unofficial representative of the United States with the Reparations Commission.

May Offer an Amendment.

The Johnson resolution was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, where it will be given prompt consideration. It was suggested that an effort to amend it, by requesting Secretary Hughes to interpret the action of the United States representative at the conference, will be made.

Johnson made no comment in the Senate on the presentation of his resolution, but talked to friends about it later.

"My purpose," he said, "in making this move is to get the facts regarding the part we are playing in European politics. From statements made by Churchill, Clementel, the United States and other European diplomats, we are irrevocably involved in the European turmoil."

Statement by Johnson.

"I have not changed in five years on this subject," Johnson added. "I stand just where I was in the League of Nations controversy, but I seem to be alone; all my former associates have become international statesmen. I except Senator Reed of Missouri whom I have not seen. I am not acting for anybody else—any group—but for myself and in the interest of the American people. I will first get the facts, and then do what I can to inform the citizens of this country. I have but little influence here, and the conceit has been knocked out of me, yet I must do my duty. It would seem that I can do little to remedy the situation."

There was no rush to join the Johnson movement, but his resolution may be adopted. Borah's attitude indicates it will be reported favorably from the Foreign Relations Committee. Senator Reed of Missouri, who just returned from a visit to his State, said he approved the Johnson action, and would support the resolution.

Kellogg's Action Under Fire.

It was suggested by Senators that Ambassador Kellogg, in signing the agreement, exceeded his authority. This may cause him trouble when his nomination for Secretary of States goes to the Senate. A number of Senators are very much interested in the news stories from abroad.

Johnson in introducing his resolution today, took his first aggressive step in the Senate since the Republican primary last year. He is very much in earnest on this proposition.

There is no sign of a general upheaval among the old so-called "irreconcilables," but a desire to know just what the State Department thinks of the Paris understanding.

State Department officials declined to make any official formal comment on the Paris agreement or reports from allied capitals giving it a different interpretation than that promulgated by the Coolidge administration.

It was denied that at the last moment Ambassador Kellogg sought to have a "reservation" written into the agreement, definitely stating that the United States, by becoming a party, made no commitments, but lost out. No such incident took place, according to the advices received here. The only important last-minute change, so far as Washington is officially advised, was the elimination of the limiation of $350,000,000 originally placed upon the amount the United States might receive on account of adjusted claims.

Agreement Approved by U. S.

No comment was forthcoming on the statement of M. Clementel, French Finance Minister, in the Chamber of Deputies, that America's action in signing the agreement constituted an insurance policy for France, so far as payment by Germany is concerned.

State Department officials stand on their original declaration that the Paris agreement is in accordance with the wishes of the United States and, this being the case, there is no good reason for American spokesmen to become stentorian in analyzing or criticising any statements made by allied Ministers to their people when they are not embarrassing to us, especially when our Government finds itself entirely free and under no obligation or commitment and simply has arranged for appropriate participation in the annuities received from Germany under the Dawes plan.

In connection with a published report that Kellogg had exceeded his instructions at Paris, it was indicated that the State Department was well pleased with the work of the Ambassador and no misunderstanding of any kind had occurred.

House Debate on French Debt.

The Senate went on record during the Wilson administration as opposed to official American participation on the Reparations Commission or on the reparations settlement.

The action in the Senate was preceded by a short debate in the House centering about the French war debt. Representative Garrett, the Democratic leader, said France should not be in the dark as to the position of the American Government opposing cancellation. Representative Fish (Rep.), New York, declared France should realize it was time to enter into a refunding understanding.

$15,000,000 Lent by France.

Since 1920, the New York member said, France has loaned 3,000,000,000 francs ($15,000,000) to other nations. In reply, Representative Andrew (Rep.), Massachusetts, suggested that Paris had rendered a service to the world by making loans to new and weak nations after the war.

Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian, declared in a statement today that the Paris agreement on American war claims "should open the way for an early determination by Congress as to the ultimate disposition of the alien property now held by this Government."

The agreement, however, Miller added, has no direct bearing upon the disposition by the United States of alien property seized during the war. A similar view has been expressed by the State Department.

COMMITTEE TO DECIDE TROTZKY'S FATE IN SESSION

Observers Think Nothing Short of Retraction of Views by War Minister Will Satisfy His Opponents.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Jan. 17.—The fate of Leon Trotzky, soviet Minister of War, is expected to be decided within a few days by the Central Committee of the communist party, which began its sittings in Moscow today. There is much speculation as to whether Trotzky himself, although one of the Central Committee, will participate in the sessions. He is regarded by every one as out of active politics and unless he decides to appear in his own defense or is invited by his adversaries to do so, his presence at the sittings of the committee is scarcely expected.

In the face of the bitter and unprecedented campaign against him in and out of the communist party and the communist Internationale, it is believed it would be futile for him to attempt to allay the storm which has all but engulfed him.

Move to Censure Likely.

Political observers believe that nothing short of unequivocal retraction of the views expressed by the War Minister in his book, "Lessons of the 1917 Revolution," followed by his promise to abstain in the future from factional discussions, will satisfy his opponents. As Trotzky is hardly ready at this moment to adopt either of the alternatives, it is thought he will seek refuge in complete silence awaiting the abatement of the present political ferment to speak his mind.

There is, however, not the slightest doubt that whether the war Minister is present at the meetings of the committee or not, a resolution of censure will be passed against him.

Meanwhile the military leader has retired to his estate at Archangelskoye, 25 miles from Moscow. This estate, which prior to the revolution belonged to Prince Youssopoff, is noted for its splendid scenery and salubrious climate. It now serves as a place of rest for tired members of the Government.

Caring for His Health.

In this quiet spot in the midst of soothing natural surroundings, far removed from political strife and party squabbles, Trotzky is now nursing his bronchial trouble and at the same time engaging in fresh literary work. It is problematical whether he will go to the Caucusus health resort, as originally planned, even after the meeting of the Central Committee, which is expected to decide his future.

It is believed that a formal vote of censure by the committee, which frames the internal and external policies of the Soviet Government, will be accepted by the war chief's adversaries as sufficient punishment for the alleged heretical views expressed by him in his recent book and within the councils of the Communist party.

APARTMENTS OWNED BY SLAIN LAWYER SOLD FOR $65,000

Were Part of Estate of Jacob H. Mackler, Hogan Gang Lawyer, Who Was Assassinated.

The Congress Apartments at 5605-07 Etzel avenue and 5604-06 Julian avenue, which were owned by Jacob H. Mackler, lawyer for the "Jelly Roll" Hogan gang, who was assassinated by enemy gangsters two years ago, were sold yesterday for the Mackler estate to an unnamed client for $65,000.

Mackler's estate consisted mainly of real estate and insurance, valued at about $140,000, and his will left the bulk of it to his widow, Mrs. Lena Mackler. The property sold yesterday comprises 17 apartments of from four to six rooms each, fronting on two streets and a parkway.

Mackler, who was 35 years old, was shot down Feb. 21, 1923, after detectives had warned him he was marked for death by enemies of the Hogan gang.

NEW PARIS FROCKS ARE SHORT

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Communism has made its way into the world of fashion. Dress designers may not have adopted its principles, but they have its hue, and various shades of brilliant red have displaced the drab tints prevalent in the fall styles.

The half-season models now being displayed are simple one-piece dresses, buttoned all the way down the front, and very narrow. As a relief for the severe lines of the costumes elaborate machine stitching in tones of yellow, green and black, is introduced down the front. The new frocks are short—even shorter than their predecessors—ending at least 15 inches above the ground, a feature which is not displeasing to the manufacturers of high-grade silk stockings.

UDGE HALL TO SEEK NOMINATION FOR MAYORALTY

urist Announces Decision to File—Says He Has Been Petitioned by Several Thousand Persons.

UDDIES THE WATERS, G.O.P. CHAIRMAN SAYS

There Is No Demand for His Candidacy and He Won't Get Any Committee Support, Becker Says.

The race for the Republican nomination for Mayor in the spring primaries, which has been a battle of slogans with a deal of quiet inside maneuvering thus far, developed into an open war of words yesterday when Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall definitely announced that he would be a candidate.

For the last two weeks the Republican City Central Committee has been striving to restrict the race to Victor J. Miller, former president of the Police Board, and one other candidate on whom the organization proposed to center its strength. The Committee believes that divided political support may make it possible for Miller to win the nomination whereas a centering of organization strength will definitely assure his defeat. Thus Judge Hall, twice supported by the Committee for the Circuit bench, is a candidate who might defeat this purpose.

Becker's View of Hall.

"Judge Hall's entry into the race will only muddy the waters," Louis J. Becker, chairman of the committee, said. "He has no place in the race and has served only one month of a six-year term on the bench to which the people elected him. The committee twice supported him but this latest move is entirely unwarranted. There is no demand for his candidacy and he certainly will get no support from the committee."

Judge Hall, who asserted his friends had shown him petitions for his candidacy containing several thousand names, takes a different view of the matter and in a dictated statement declared that he would file for Mayor if "I am alive on Monday, Jan. 26." His statement follows:

"I have been requested by a great many responsible people of all walks of life to become a candidate. I have given the matter serious consideration. I know full well what it means to be Mayor, with all the responsibilities attaching to that office at this time, particularly when the interests of the people demand a careful, prudent, progressive and fearless administration.

Not Afraid of Job.

"I am not afraid to tackle the job. I know my experience in the business world as well as in the legal field as Judge of the Circuit Court has qualified me for the office. If I am elected I shall try to conserve the interests of all of the people at all times and meet the problems arising from the growing needs and demands of a progressive municipality.

"As for my platform I haven't any at this time. I will say, however, that I will honestly enforce all laws that have any connection with the administration of administrative duties, and if I am alive on Monday, Jan. 26, I will file for the office, and now ask for the support of all broad-minded, liberty-loving people who despise oppression and want an honest, fearless administration of the office of Mayor of this great city."

Judge Hall was one of four Circuit Judges who ran for re-election in November. Judge Moses Hartmann and Judge Frank Landwehr each received more votes than he did.

Aloe's Reply Awaited.

Politicians and business and professional men are waiting for the reply of Louis P. Aloe, former president of the Board of Aldermen, to a petition of 250 persons pledging their support to him if he will agree to seek the nomination. Aloe will leave for a business trip east tomorrow or Monday and will be gone 10 days. He said yesterday that he would in all likelihood defer a response until he returned.

Aloe has a strong following in business circles, an independent following and material strength within the political organization.

Louis Nolte, City Comptroller has been in conference with persons who desire him to run on the ground that he could consolidat the divergent political factions his behalf. Nolte has given no in dication of a decision this far.

The candidacy of Circuit Jud J. Hugo Grimm is still largely de pendent upon the manner in whic the support of Edmond Koeln, Cit Collector, goes. Grimm's friend are working earnestly in his beha and have adopted a slogan "Grimm and Grit."

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 17.—lice, chemists, the Coroner, and ate pathologist have joined in an empt to solve the mystery surunding the sudden death of Roy ufschild, 3 years old, who died esday from what has been diagsed as a case of poisoning.

The child was an heir to property lued at approximately $15,000, vestigators learned. The property s left in trust for him by his ther, who died in October, 1923.

Dr. Edgar Habeck, who attended e child, asserted that a sulphurs odor about the boy's bedside s marked, and Dr. E. L. Tharinr, who was in charge of two of e three post mortem examinans that have been made, said t he would sign a certificate ting death was due to phosphors poisoning.

Referred to Coroner.

Dr. Habeck, dissatisfied with a ntative diagnosis of ptomaine poining referred the case to Coror Henry Grundman. Coroner undman was dissatisfied with at finding and on his advice exmations were made by Dr. Tharger and physicians who were esent at the first autopsy. A ore careful examination disclosed e presence of phosphorous, it s said at the Coroner's office.

Vital organs were removed and careful analysis was made. The esence of phosphorous in a quany so large that it had been abrbed by all vital organs, was conded, but it was supposed that it uld be able to determine whetht there was a sufficient quantity it to be the sole cause of death. the same time bacteriological aminations were being made to certain whether any organ was seased.

Father Aiding in Case.

Haufschild is assisting in the sotion of the case.

Interest of the chemists and thologists centered today about a x of salve. Examination of this lve showed it contained a large mount of poison and Dr. Tharinr declared the same poison was und in the vital organs of the hild in large quantities.

Haufschild declared the box of lve was part of his first aid kit, rried in his automobile and had een placed in the basement. "The lve was in the basement Monay," the father said. "When I saw again, it appeared to have been mpered with. I recall that Roy as in the basement Monday and may be he got into it and ate me of it. I am just as anxious clear up any mystery in connecon with my son's death as the auhorities are."

The company manufacturing the alve contained in the box said the oison which Dr. Tharinger delares caused the child's death is ot used in the manufacture of heir preparation.

JUDGE HALL TO SEEK NOMINATION FOR MAYORALTY

Jurist Announces Decision to File—Says He Has Been Petitioned by Several Thousand Persons.

MUDDIES THE WATERS, G.O.P. CHAIRMAN SAYS

There Is No Demand for His Candidacy and He Won't Get Any Committee Support, Becker Says.

The race for the Republican nomination for Mayor in the spring primaries, which has been a battle of slogans with a deal of quiet inside maneuvering thus far, developed into an open war of words yesterday when Circuit Judge Robert W. Hall definitely announced that he would be a candidate.

For the last two weeks the Republican City Central Committee has been striving to restrict the race to Victor J. Miller, former president of the Police Board, and one other candidate on whom the organization proposed to center its strength. The Committee believes that divided political support may make it possible for Miller to win the nomination whereas a centering of organization strength will definitely assure his defeat. Thus Judge Hall, twice supported by the Committee for the Circuit bench, is a candidate who might defeat this purpose.

Becker's View of Hall.

"Judge Hall's entry into the race will only muddy the waters," Louis J. Becker, chairman of the committee, said. "He has no place in the race and has served only one month of a six-year term on the bench to which the people elected him. The committee twice supported him but this latest move is entirely unwarranted. There is no demand for his candidacy and he certainly will get no support from the committee."

Judge Hall, who asserted his friends had shown him petitions for his candidacy containing several thousand names, takes a different view of the matter and in a dictated statement declared that he would file for Mayor if "I am alive on Monday, Jan. 26." His statement follows:

"I have been requested by a great many responsible people of all walks of life to become a candidate. I have given the matter serious consideration. I know full well what it means to be Mayor, with all the responsibilities attaching to that office at this time, particularly when the interests of the people demand a careful, prudent, progressive and fearless administration.

Not Afraid of Job.

"I am not afraid to tackle the job. I know my experience in the business world as well as in the legal field as Judge of the Circuit Court has qualified me for the office. If I am elected I shall try to conserve the interests of all of the people at all times and meet the problems arising from the growing needs and demands of a progressive municipality.

"As for my platform I haven't any at this time. I will say, however, that I will honestly enforce all laws that have any connection with the administration of administrative duties, and if I am alive on Monday, Jan. 26, I will file for the office, and now ask for the support of all broad-minded, liberty-loving people who despise oppression and want an honest, fearless administration of the office of Mayor of this great city."

Judge Hall was one of four Circuit Judges who ran for re-election in November. Judge Moses Hartmann and Judge Frank Landwehr each received more votes than he did.

Aloe's Reply Awaited.

Politicians and business and professional men are waiting for the reply of Louis P. Aloe, former president of the Board of Aldermen, to a petition of 250 persons pledging their support to him if he will agree to seek the nomination. Aloe will leave for a business trip east tomorrow or Monday and will be gone 10 days. He said yesterday that he would in all likelihood defer a response until he returned.

Aloe has a strong following in business circles, an independent following and material strength within the political organization.

Louis Nolte, City Comptroller, has been in conference with persons who desire him to run on the ground that he could consolidate the divergent political factions in his behalf. Nolte has given no indication of a decision this far.

The candidacy of Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm is still largely dependent upon the manner in which the support of Edmond Koeln, City Collector, goes. Grimm's friends are working earnestly in his behalf and have adopted a slogan of "Grimm and Grit."

QUAIL SHOT BY HUNTER LANDS IN BED WITH BABY

Intrepid Sportsman Violates Both State and City Laws, Then Loses His Bird.

The quail hunting season in Missouri closed last Dec. 31. Persons are not allowed to shoot quail within the city limits. But neither of these facts disturbed some intrepid hunter who shot a quail in the 5700 block of Elward avenue yesterday.

Unfortunately for the hunter, all he got out of the chase was the pleasure of having brought down his bird. For after the quail was struck it flew into a window in the home of Martin Bergfeld, 5711 Elward avenue, dropped, dying, on Bergfeld's 18-month-old son, who was asleep in his bed. The baby refused to be awakened by the affair.

Residents of the neighborhood say that promiscuous quail hunting has been going on in the vicinity for several years. A few years ago a boy was shot by one of the city quail hunters, and seriously injured. It is believed that the Elward avenue hunters are boys.

HERO, WHO BALKED GERMANS WITH FLOOD AT YSER, DIES

Lock-Keeper Opened Dikes on Belgian Battlefield During Enemy Advance in 1914.

By the Associated Press.
BRUGES, Belgium, Jan. 17.—Henri Geeraert, lock-keeper of the sluices of Nieuport and hero of the first battle of the Yser, died in a hospital here today after a long illness. One Christmas day he was given the Cross of Knight of the Order of Leopold in recognition of his action for the opening of the dikes in November, 1914, flooding the Yser battlefield and stopping the German advance.

It was after the surrender of Antwerp, when the German troops were advancing victoriously across Belgium, that Geeraert's knowledge of the workings of the Belgian sluice system came into play to save not only the Belgian army from complete destruction, but bring about the definite blocking of the road to Calais to the Germans.

When the sluices were opened, the water began flowing into the flat country along the eastern side of the railroad bank from Nieuport to Dixmude. At first its progress was not noticeable, the water being absorbed by the ground. Within 48 hours the ground became juicy and a few hours later the whole country was transformed into a muddy plain. The flood completely paralyzed the invader. Many guns had to be abandoned and the German troops, caught by the rising waters, were either drowned in their trenches or had to surrender.

RUM RUNNERS' ICE BOAT TOO SWIFT FOR PURSUERS

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., Jan. 17.—The ice boat has glided across the rum running panorama, bringing contraband liquor from the Canadian shore.

Hundreds of cases of whisky and beer have come across Lake St. Clair on the ice yachts. Twelve minutes is the average time required for the trip, members of the State police and Federal "dry navy" say—a speed greater than any pursuit machine at the authorities' command.

For several nights the ice boat smugglers baffled the dry agents. Within the past few nights, however, the officers have attempted to check the traffic by using automobiles.

COLISEUM HERE TO BE SOLD TO NEW YORK SYNDICATE

Structure to Be Remodeled at Cost of $300,000—Salt Water Swimming Pool to Be Installed.

The St. Louis Coliseum will be purchased by a New York syndicate at an early date and remodeled as a sports arena and natatorium, at a cost of $300,000. R. King Kauffman, secretary-treasurer of the Coliseum Co., said last night that the final papers had not yet been signed, but that purchasers have put up earnest money, and the transaction will be completed as soon as the final papers can be prepared.

He declined to reveal the purchase price, but said the corporation's combined capital and surplus total $250,000, and intimated the figure would exceed that amount.

A New York dispatch, which named Jefferson Seligman, Wall street banker, as being interested in the deal, stated that the $300,000 reconstr[illegible] program would start in Ap[illegible] that the natatorium would [illegible]ned in June. The project [illegible]es other cities besides St. Louis, the plan being to establish a chain of such arenas and natatoriums in various parts of the country.

Salt Water for Bathers.

Besides a natatorium, the remodeling program calls for enlargement of the seating capacity to provide for conventions and sports events on a large scale. Seligman, in telling of the plan, said that the natatorium would differ from other swimming pools in the city in that it would provide salt water, similar in composition to sea water, for bathers.

The Coliseum was opened early in 1909, and has been the scene of the annual Veiled Prophet ball, of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival, of grand opera and concert performances, horse shows and indoor circuses. The Democratic National Convention of 1916 was held there.

With the present seating arrangement, the Coliseum seats 9046 persons, when chairs are placed in the arena. When the arena is not available for seating, the capacity is 2600 less, but the standing space is considerable, and in the case of children's gatherings, the seating facilities are quite elastic.

Attitude of Owners.

Kauffman said that the owners of the coliseum felt this was a good opportunity to boost a desirable project for St. Louis by selling, as the building is centrally located and it would be cheaper to convert it into a sports arena and natatorium than to build entirely anew. There are 12 stockholders in the company, T. P. Bates, president, owning a majority of the stock.

you. We'll get into debt to help you. We'll do everything that man can do to help you," he told her over and over again.

The father came in. He took her from Earl, and father and daughter clung to each other for minutes, silent save for the soft crying of the girl.

"You may have the best attorney in the city," the father finally said.

Selects Public Defender.

The girl shook her head. "I only want Mr. Egan, the public defender. eH stood by me this morning—teh only person in all the world who was with me."

She refused to accept the services of any other. Alexander Mooslin, who had been tentatively retained by the father, withdrew from the case.

Defense Dismissed.

Late today Dorothy, her brother and father and Egan were conferring over the conduct of the case.

"My first step," said Egan, "will be to have the case put before the proper tribunal—the Juvenile Court. There is no alternative in this matter—a mandatory statute leaves no other course than to lay the case there, and not in the Police Courts.

"My plan of defense I cannot now, of course, announce. That will come later. But remember—at the inquest this morning it was brought out by her brother, in the midst of his other evidence, which was against the girl, that all her life she has been sullen, morose at times, moody. She would talk to herself when chided. She was impulsive and flew into violent rages. She has a nasty temper. She frequently ran away from home. This proves conclusively, I feel, that she is irresponsible mentally, has been so since childhood, and has been probably in the last four years, according to her relatives."

J. R. DREXEL JR., DIVORCED IN DECEMBER, WEDS ARTIST

Scion of Philadelphia Banker's Family and Louisville (Ky.) Girl Married in New York.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.— John R. Drexel Jr., son of John R. Drexel of New York and Philadelphia, was married today to Miss Jane Barbour of Louisville, Ky., a magazine writer and artist. The ceremony was performed at the home of Albert Sterner, a friend of the bride, by the Rev. Minot Simons, pastor of the All Souls Unitarian Church. Only members of the two families and a few intimate friends were present.

Drexel's first wife, Elizabeth Thompson Drexel, obtained a final decree of divorce in Reno in December.

REFORMATORY FOR YOUNG MEN IS PLANNED IN BILL

Representative Maxey Will Introduce Measure for Intermediate Institution for Offenders.

Establishment of a State Intermediate Reformatory for young men, to relieve criticised conditions at the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City and the State Reformatory at Boonville, is proposed in a bill to be introduced in the Legislature this week.

The bill is now in Jefferson City in charge of Representative H. O. Maxey of Butler, who was majority floor leader of the House during the last ssesion. It was prepared by the Missouri Welfare League with the assistance of Dr. Hastings H. Hart, Consultant in Delinquency and Penology of the Russell Sage Foundation.

Paroles Start Move.

Impetus toward establishment of such an institution was given by the publicity attendant on recent escapades of Boonville inmates. One 17-year-old inmate, George Roloff, who had been sent to Boonville last June for five years after he had confessed nine holdups, was permitted by Supt. Harrison to return to St. Louis last December on a month's furlough. Within the month he committed seven more holdups and was lodged in jail at Clayton, where he led an unsuccessful attempt at jail-break last week, one of his companions being shot by the jailer.

Pointing out the urgency of the need for an intermediate reformatory, the Missouri Welfare League states:

"Missouri boys adjudged delinquent are sent to the reformatory at Boonville. Some of these lads are troublesome without being seriously dlinquent. Some are only 8, 9 or 10 years of age.

"Young men between 21 and 30 years of age found guilty of felonies and sentenced to the penitentiary are, by commutation of sentence, sent to this same institution.

"Over-crowding makes segregation impossible. A tall boy of 14, inexperienced in evil ways, may stand, in drill and in marching to and from meals, school and shop, shoulder to shoulder with a man of 29 who is experienced in crime. He may sit next to him at table; sleep in the bed next to him; exercise in the same yard. This is unfair to the younger boys.

No Separation of Types.

"At the same time, hundreds of young men under 21 are in the penitentiary. Most of the prisoners now being sent to that institution are under 23 years of age. Here, too, is little or no separation of types. Young first offenders are locked into cells with older men, some of whom are experts in crime, or insane, feeble-minded or degenerate.

"The penitentiary also is seriously crowded. Three, four and five men are housed in cells with insufficient air space for these numbers.

"A new institution for the care and training of young men of the more hopeful type, too old for Boonville and too young for the penitentiary, is needed. Twenty states have such reformatories. Industrial training and moral and physical up-building are essential parts of the treatment. The present methods are destroying boys and young men who could be made into useful citizens. The establishment of an intermediate reformatory is a necessity."

It is estimated that an appropriation of $268,964 would be required to erect and maintain such an institution in 1925-26. This sum includes $75,000 for a site, $75,000 for buildings and equipment, and $10,000 for medical and educational supplies.

GOVERNMENT AT WORK TO AID IN CHECKING TYPHOID

Advises Cooking of Foods of All Kinds—California Vegetables Carry Few Germs.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—Studies which have been conducted from the first of the recent outbreak of typhoid fever in various sections of the country by investigators assigned to the task by the Public Health Service are expected to throw light on the situation so that State and local authorities will be better prepared to meet such a condition, Surgeon-General Cumming announced tonight.

Reports of an investiagtion in the Imperial Valley of California, made by an experienced officer, indicate, he said, "that typhoid fever is not prevailing in that section and that the methods of culture and handling of lettuce and celery, of which there are large quantities shipped from that area at this season of the year, may be considered a negligible factor in the spread of disease."

A safe water supply, the pasteurization of market milk and the use of anti-typhoid medicine were stressed by Dr. Cumming as means of checking the typhoid. The danger also can be eliminated, he added, with the cooking of foods of all kinds in families where the infection existed, "provided the cooking and subsequent handling of food is not done by a 'typhoid carrier.'"

THOMAS RESIGNS 7 JOBS GIVEN HIM BY JUDGE ENGLISH

Ex-Referee in Bankruptcy in East St. Louis Quits Positions as Receiver and Attorneyships.

Charles B. Thomas, lately referee in bankruptcy in the Federal Court for the Eastern District of Illinois, yesterday sent to Federal Judge English his resignation of five receiverships and two attorneyships which he held as an appointee of the Court.

The receiverships which Thomas resigned were those of the Southern Gem Coal Corporation, Southern Gem Coal Co., in both of which he had a co-receiver, W. S. Wilson of Pinckneyville; and the Egyptian Coal and Mining Co., Chicago Fuel Co. and Shedd Coal Co.

He resigned also as attorney for the receiver of the Dodds Coal Co., as special counsel for the receiver of the Alton, Granite & St. Louis Traction Co.

Letters of Resignation.

A separate letter was addressed to Judge English by Thomas in relation to each case, and the letters were all similar, each being headed with the name of the company in quetsion. The text of the letter was:

I, the undersigned, hereby tender to you my resignation as receiver (or counsel for receiver) in the above cause, to be accepted at your pleasure and as your good judgment may dictate.

Thomas was not at his home last night when a Post-Dispatch reporter sought to inquire as to the reason for his action.

Would Avoid Censure of Court.

The East St. Louis Daily Journal, in announcing his action, quoted Thomas as having said:

"There seems to be some criticism from certain quarters about me holding these positions, and I didn't want the court to be censured on my account; therefore, I have tendered by resignation, to be dealt with as the court sees fit. I did this on my own initiative and after mature deliberation."

Thomas figured in the charges against Judge English, on which a resolution calling for an investigation into the Judge's conduct was based by Congressman Hawes of St. Louis.

The fact that Thomas, who was referee in bankruptcyfl also held lucrative receiverships by the Court's appointment, was made a subject of considerable discussion among East St. Louis attorneys.

$7500 From One Job.

In his letter of resignation as referee, which was made public Jan. 8, Thomas said, "I now feel that my private law practice and business interests are such that I will not have time to do jutsice to the office (of referee) without neglecting my other interests which are worth, as you know, much more money to me than the earnings of the office. I have a growing law practice, several big receiverships, and have just opened the trust company (Metropolitan Truts Co.) all of which require my earnest attention."

By his resignations of yesterday, Thomas relieves himself of the receivership work to which he referred in his former communication.

$60,000 IN STOLEN JEWELS RECOVERED ON A SHIP

One of Two Men Arrested at Havre Tries to Throw Case Through Porthole But Misses.

By the Associated Press.
HAVRE, France, Jan. 17.—Poor control by an alleged thief in missing an open porthole with a wild toss of a small jewell case is the only reason why 300,000 francs' (normally $60,000) worth of jewelry, is now resting in the safe of the Havre Chief of Police, instead of lying at the bottom of the harbor.

A few minutes before the "all ashore" cry sounded on board the liner Paris as she was about to sail for New York today, detectives rushed into the cabin occupied by a Mexican calling himself Beromen, and a Frenchman sailing under the name of Quarante. Emphasizing the order with drawn revolvers, the detectives shouted "Hands up!" Both mey obeyed but Beromen's movement was preparatory to flinging out of the porthole the case he held in his hand.

The jewel receptacle struck the side of the cabin and was recovered by the police, who say it held jewels stolen from the Princess [illegible]rooglie in Paris some days ago. alleged thieves intended disposi[illegible] of them in the United States, Police say.

TAXES INCREASE 198 PCT. IN U. S. IN TEN YEARS

$6,349,120,000 Total for 1922—$38.82 Per Capita, Federal Levy Excepted.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—In 1922 residents of the United States paid a total of taxes to national, State and subdivision of the Government totaling $6,349,120,000, the Bureau of the Census reported today, an increase of 198 per cent over the figures for 1912, which were $2,131,402,000.

The Federal Government's proportion of the increased levy was the greatest and the difference between its takings of 1912, which were $667,038,000 and those of 1922, which were $3,204,133,000, amounted to 38[illegible] per cent. There was likewise a sharp increase in the rate of State and county taxation, but a lesser one in the rate for incorporated cities.

State governments in 1922 collected $867,552,000 in taxes, against $306,521,000 in 1912, an increase of 183 per cent. Counties collected $745,000,000 in 1922 and $307,87[illegible],000 in 1912, an increase of 142 per cent. The collections of incorporated towns and cities in 1912 was $849,971,000, while in 1922 the total was $1,532,435,000 making the increase 80 per cent. The figures did not deal with the income of governmental bodies from licenses, permits and services but only with tax collections.

The average per capita tax collected in the United State for the support of all government other than Federal, the bureau estimated at $38.82. The town and city proportion of this total was $24.57 while the average cost to the individual of State Government was $8.01 and of county $7.61.

The cost of State local government was highest on the citizen of Nevada in 1922, working out to a per capita of $82.09. It was lowest in South Carolina, where it amounted to only $14.13.

case to connect the eight men with the actual attack on the armored mail truck, which was made early in the morning at Fourth and Locust streets. The testimony of accomplices was as to the sale of the stolen bonds, not as to the actual robbery, and Ray Renard, who testified that he heard the plans discussed in advance, but did not witness the robbery. In the Staunton robbery case, in which Renard was the most important witness, he took part himself and named most of the others as having taken part in the actual robbery.

In the present case, one of the defense attorneys, P. H. Cullen, argued that the actual robbers were "Whitey" Doering, now dead, David Weisman, now serving a 25-year term at Atlanta, and "Dizzy" Daniels, under a prison term imposed by the local courts in another case. This argument appears to have made an impression on the jury, judging from the verdict.

Jury Out Six Hours.

The verdict was returned at 5:37 p. m., almost six hours after the jury had begun consideration of the case, but an hour and a half of its time had been given to lunch.

Judge Faris, in imposing the sentences, said:

"The jury has seen fit to find you guilty on the last three counts of the indictment, and not guilty on the first three. Whatever regret the Court has in now performing the duty devolving upon it to impose sentence on you, arises from the fact that you are all young men. I feel that you are victims of mis-spent lives."

The arguments in the case, begun Friday afternoon, were completed yesterday morning, when Special Prosecutor Horace L. Dyer summed up the Government's case. He alluded to the charge laid upon him by his father, the late Judge D. P. Dyer, when on his deathbed, to bring the mail robbers to justice.

Instructions to the Jury.

Judge Faris, in his instructions to the jury, said that the testimony of accomplices must be received with caution. He referred particularly to George V. Halliday, John Dummeyer and John H. Niedringhaus, who admitted that they helped in selling the stolen bonds. Ray Renard, though not directly an accomplice, professed a guilty knowledge of the plans and of the movements after the robbery.

The Court instructed the jury that Halliday was a competent witness, despite the fact that he is an inmate of the city sanitarium. As to his credibility, the jury was the judge, and in arriving at an estimate of his value as a witness might take into consideration the fact that he had been adjudged of unsound mind, the Court said.

OFFERS BILL TO DENY BOND IN APPEAL CASES

Kansas City Legislator Seeks to Remedy Defect in Present Criminal Law.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17.—A bill to give Circuit Judges in Missouri discretionary power to refuse appeal bond to a defendant after conviction on a criminal charge, pending appeal to the Supreme Court, will be introduced in the Legislature by H. M. Griffith of Kansas City.

Under the present law, as construed by the Supreme Court, any defendant in a criminal case is entitled to bond after conviction, pending disposition of an appeal in the Supreme Court, except in cases where a sentence of death or life imprisonment was imposed.

The Griffith measure is designed to curb the practice of criminals, particularly in the larger cities, of taking an appeal to the Supreme Court following a conviction, demanding and receiving an appeal bond, and then going free to commit other crimes during the year or more that elapses before the higher court passes on the appeal.

A convicted criminal now is enabled to delay his punishment for a year or more, regardless of the merits of his appeal, by payment of fees to his lawyers to carry on the case, and payment of a $10 docket fee for filing his appeal in Supreme Court. The law gives him a year in which to perfect his appeal, from the date sentence is passed. Then there is opportunity for additional delays through time for docketing, argument of the case, and time elapsing before a decision is handed down by the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court has adhered to its ruling that a convicted criminal is entitled to appeal bond after conviction, except in capital cases, for the last 32 years. In two recent test cases the precedent was sustained by the Supreme Court in an opinion by Judge Ragland, which pointed out that any change was a matter for the Legislature. He stated that the rightt of appeal, and of bond pending appeal, was provided by statute and not by the Constitution.

The Griffith bill seeks to remedy the defects by repealing one section which permits the convicted defendant to obtain bail by an application for a writ of habeas corpus, and amending another section which provides for the trial court or Supreme Court admitting the defendant to bail, upon an examination of the trial record and discovery there of probable cause for an appeal.

Assistant Attorney-General W. L. Vandeventer, who presented the recent test cases to the Supreme Court for the State, today said the Griffith bill, if passed by the Legislature, would do much toward eliminating frivolous appeals, and would not prejudice a defendant's rights if there was cause for an appeal.

CATHOLIC WOMEN HEAR ADDRESSES ON SOCIAL SERVICE

Archbishop Glennon Outlines the Attitude of the Church on the Work.

The attitude of the Catholic Church toward social service work was presented at the annual meeting of the Catholic Women's League at Hotel Statler yesterday in the course of three addresses, one of them by Archbishop John J. Glennon.

Archbishop Glennon spoke briefly and directed his audience to set a goal which they hoped to accomplish.

Mrs. J. C. Muckerman was elected president; Mrs. Marquard Forster, first vice president; Mrs. E. J. Scott, second vice president; Mrs. John A. Calnane, third vice president; Mrs. Leo Moser, secretary, and Mrs. A. V. Reyburn, treasurer.

DEAFNESS CONQUERED BY NEW RADIO IDEA

Wonderful New Invention Makes It Inexcusable for Anyone to Remain Hard-of-Hearing

SENT ANYWHERE FOR 10 DAYS' FREE TRIAL

NEW YORK—A new radio discovery has been announced here that should bring joy to all deaf persons and their families. Radio scientists have wrought another miracle. A miracle for the deaf—bringing good hearing at once to poor ears and ending the discomfort and embarrassment of deafness.

In a statement to the press, the radio engineers responsible for this idea, announce that it is embodied in the famous ACOUSTICON—for twenty years recognized as the world's best hearing aid.

In other words, the ACOUSTICON is now based on the same sound-reproducing and amplifying principles as the radio itself—with the deaf person as his own receiving and sending station.

Like the radio, the ACOUSTICON has a transmitter and a receiver. Sensitive to a pin drop. So powerful they pick up any sound the human ear can hear and deliver it clearly, distinctly and resonantly to the impaired auditory nerve.

The makers of the radio-built ACOUSTICON frankly concede that no deaf person can begin to appreciate the marvelous efficiency of this little device until he or she has tried it. So they are offering to send it for 10 days' free trial to any deaf person anywhere without a penny of charge. They have removed all red tape, requiring no deposit or payment of any kind. Simply send your name and address to the DICTOGRAPH PRODUCTS CORPORATION, Dept. 1341, 220 West 42d Street, New York City, requesting a 10-day free trial of the radio-built ACOUSTICON. A postcard will do.

PLANS DRAWN FOR BIXBY HALL AT WASHINGTON U.

Work on Building for School of Fine Arts to Cost $250,000 Will Begin Soon.

GIFT ANNOUNCED IN NOVEMBER, 1921

Delay in Erecting Structure Immediately After the Donation Due to High Costs of Materials.

Bixby Hall, the school of fine arts of Washington University, gift of which by W. K. Bixby was announced in November, 1921, is to be erected soon. The university announced last night that the contract for the $250,000 structure is about to be let, the plans having been drawn.

The building will be at southeast corner of the campus, at Skinker road and Forsythe avenue, facing Forsythe. This site is south of the present art school, which occupies what was the British pavilion in the World's Fair of 1904. Additions to the pavilion will be razed and the original section kept standing for a time at least.

Unlike other buildings on the university's notable campus, which are of Tudor-Gothic style, with Missouri granite predominating, Bixby Hall will be of English renaissance design, with walls of light-colored Indiana limestone. The outlines will be simple. Jamieson & Spearl are the architects. The length from east to west will be 204 feet and the width 60 feet.

Some Old Art to Be Removed.

Fine interior woodwork and decorative plaster work from the old art building will be removed to rooms of the new structure. Thus embellishments now in the lofty east room of the pavilion will be moved to the antique drawing room on the first floor, north of the hall; Elizabethan panelling and plastering will be transferred to the new director's room; the old Adam room will be the new business office.

Bookcases and other woodwork of the memorial library will be transferred also. They were originally in the old St. Louis School of Fine Arts, Nineteenth and Locust streets.

Offices of the new hall will be on the south side of the first floor. Classes in drawing from the antique, commercial art, interior decoration, design, weaving, basketry, ceramics and modeling will be on the same story. The second floor will have three rooms for life classes with northern skylights, studios for still-life studies and the library.

Need Other Buildings.

Chancellor Hadley, announcing the decision to erect the new school pointed out that the campus now has 12 buildings devoted to education, the gymnasium and swimming pool, three dormitories and the power house. The Newton R. Wilson Geology Hall is being erected, as well as five fraternity houses, and a new power house is to go up.

"All these buildings," said the Chancellor, "would seem to constitute a rather complete educational plant. But a university, like education, is always progressing, and, like a church, is always in need of money. We are as much in need of some buildings that we haven't as of some that we have. We greatly need a women's building, as there is now no place on the campus where our 800 young women can go for rest or recreation. Our department of biology is housed in a temporary wooden building, and we have no place where the student body, or for that matter where one-half the student body can meet and listen to an address. We have to take them in sections, when we have distinguished speakers.

"Further, some of our classrooms are so crowded that the professors can hardly find room to stand and none in which to gesture when lecturing to classes. But with all these handicaps we have, in the opinion of competent experts, the most attractive, if not the most complete, educational plant in the United States."

Donor Patron of Fine Arts.

Bixby Hall was not erected immediately after the gift was announced because of prohibitive building costs. It will be recalled that it was learned last month Bixby had given the university a $500,000 equity in the Chase Apartments, in connection with his gift of securities to pay for the art school. He is a capitalist, patron of the arts and member of the university corporation.

Italian-American Ball Tonight.

The thirty-third annual informal ball of the Italian-American Cavalry Association will be held at the Hotel Statler tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

GOAT MEAT GOT FARMHAND'S "GOAT"

He Testifies It Was Served Thrice Daily for 3 Months in Worthington Home.

A hired hand on the St. Louis County farm of James A. Worthington during the winter of 1920-21 discoursed yesterday on the diet of Worthington's eight children and his late wife. On the stand in Judge McElhinney's court at Clayton the witness said he ate with the family and had goat meat three times a day for three months with the exception of one meal a week when catfish was substituted. As for himself, he said, he tried the catfish once.

The farmhand, Frank Jacobs, was testifying for Miss Grace Worthington, the eldest daughter, in her injunction suit to prevent her father ever having custody of the seven minor sisters and brothers. She seeks to strengthen a court order which gave her custody of the children five years ago after their mother's death. They live now at Forest Park College where Miss Worthington is a teacher and their aunt the president.

Goat Meat Three Times a Day.

One of the first questions asked of Jacobs was: "What did you have for breakfast on the farm?"

"Goat meat," he responded.

"What did you have for dinner?" "Goat stew."

"For supper?" "Goat meat, again."

"Worthington had a herd of 100 goats which he killed one by one as meat was needed," the witness explained. One of the last to die, he said, was 'Billie,' 15 years old.

Catfish Once a Week.

Further questioning elicited from the witness the testimony that catfish was served one meal a week.

"How was the catfish?" "It was mouldy and he scraped it off."

"What happened?" "I got sick."

"Why didn't Mr. Worthington get sick?" "His stomach had a steel lining, I always told him."

Back to the goats. Jacobs asserted they were all kept in a small enclosure in the barn. They tramped on each other and sometimes there were eight goats dead in the barn, he said.

Previous witnesses have asserted Worthington's family was forced to eat horse meat and impure milk. Circuit Judge Wurdeman testified that he visited the farm once when a complaint came to the Juvenile Court. There were big holes in the screens, no curtains or shades, and the place was in "a very untidy and miserable condition," he declared. "Your girls aren't the type of farm girls and you shouldn't try to make farm girls out of them," the Judge said he told Worthington.

Worthington's attorney, Karl Lubke, put each witness through a rigid cross-examination. In response to one question, Judge Wurdeman said the life of Worthington's doughters was much like that of many other "farm girls" in St. Louis County.

The hearing probably will run through all of next week as no defense testimony has as yet been given.

ENGLISH PAPERS DISPLAY N. Y. WORLD'S DEBT PLAN

Sunday Express, However, Says That View for Clearing House Is Not Widely Held in U. S.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos., the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The newspapers are displaying prominently the New York World's suggestion for a clearing house for all war debts. The Sunday Express is featuring the editorial of The World on its first page.

The newspapers, however, warn their readers that this view appears not to be widely held in the United States and that the World is opposed to the administration policy.

HACKEL ESTATE IS $11,000

Editor's Will Lists Real Estate and Stock.

An inventory of the estate of Hans Hackel, editor of the Westliche-Post, who died Nov. 5 last, was filed yesterday. It shows real estate at 3720 Michigan avenue, title to which passed to his wife on his death, and other property valued at $10,763.70. The value of the real estate was not given.

He owned $4000 of the stock of the Westliche-Post Co. Life insurance totaling $4500 is listed.

'DIE AMERIKA' TO GO UNDER HAMMER

Receiver's Sale of Old German-Language Newspaper Set for Next Tuesday.

The last chapter in the 52-year-old history of Die Amerika, German language newspaper, will be written Tuesday morning when a receiver's sale of assets will be held at its plant, 18 South Sixth street.

Established in 1872 by the German Literary Society, an organization of several hundred immigrants from Germany, its last 10 years have been exciting, but not prosperous. During the World War its policy was often criticised as pro-German. In 1917 it was credited with daily circulation of approximately 19,000, 11,000 less than in 1907.

English Edition Short Lived.

Last January James Dennis Flynn, former Oklahoma politician and editor, arrived in St. Louis and announced he had acquired control of the America Publishing Co., successor to the German Literary Society, and planned to issue a daily English edition, the St. Louis American, in addition to Die Amerika.

The Republican City Central Committee started obtaining 5000 subscriptions at $5 a year for the American, in exchange for its support of the Republican city ticket, but delays in publication resulted in the subscription money being turned back. The paper finally was published in May, and lost money steadily until discontinued after 43 daily issues.

On July 9 Die Amerika failed to appear, for the first time in its history, its workers having gone on a strike for back wages. Flynn was then removed as editor and president, and Eugene J. Sartorius appointed receiver on recommendation of creditors who filed a bankruptcy petition. Publication of Amerika twice a week was resumed, only to be stopped Nov. 9.

Stockholders will lose everything, and creditors will get less than dollar for dolalr, Sartorious said yesterday. He said the company's capitalization is $75,000, but only about $47,000 was issued. He placed the debts at $113,000 and the assets, including real estate, at $86,000.

Flynn engaged in the fish business here after leaving the American, and now is understood to have returned to Oklahoma.

Property which will be offered for sale Tuesday includes mechanical equipment for publishing German and English newspapers, and a job printing outfit. The auction will not include the building, nor a large press and 11 English typesetting machines. The latter two items are mortgaged, and fore closure will mean loss of $18,000 equity in them, Sartorious said. Subscription lists of Die Amerika also will be offered.

2½ YEARS IN BOOTLEG CASE

Fine of $3000 Also Imposed on Peoria Defendant.

By the Associated Press.

PEORIA, Ill., Jan. 17.—A sentence of two years and a half in the Federal penitentiary and a fine of $3000, the stiffest "bootleg" penalty ever dealt out in Federal Court here, was given Alex McCarren, defendant in three cases. More than 90 defendants have been sentenced to jail and fines of more than $45,000 imposed during the present term of court.

District Judge Fitzhenry said today that the dockets of the Federal Court, congested with bootleg cases, are now in better shape than for five years. Mrs. Gertrude Warner, assistant United States District Attorney, directed prosecution of the cases in this cleanup.

WOULD FINISH PRIMARY ROADS BEFORE OTHERS

Senator McCawley to Offer Amendment to Highway Law Repealing Some Sections.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17.—Completion of the 1500-mile high type hard surface primary road system in Missouri, connecting the larger centers of population, before any additional contracts are let for secondary road construction, is the leader in the State Highway program of Senator McCawley of Carthage, chairman of the committee on roads and highways.

McCawley has in course of preparation measures to repeal those sections of the highway law passed in 1921 requiring that construction be carried on in all counties of the State simultaneously and directing that funds be apportioned annually to all the counties. He proposes to replace them with an amendment directing that work on primary roads be pushed to completion as rapidly as contracts can be let.

Roads to Be Finished.

Under the McCawley plan, if he can succeed in getting it through both branches of the Legislature, where it is expected to meet with strong opposition, the following routes would be completed with high type surface before there were further expenditures on the remaining 6000 miles of State system:

That part of Route No. 1 along the western border of the State from Maryville to Joplin.

All of route No. 2 from St. Louis to Kansas City.

That part of route No. 3 from Marshall to Springfield.

From Moberly to Rolla and from Kirksville to Macon on route No. 7.

All of route No. 8 from Hannibal to St. Joseph.

That part of route No. 9 from Hannibal to Caruthersville.

That part of route No. 13 from Higginsville to Warrensburg.

All of route No. 14 from St. Louis to Joplin.

All of route No. 15 from Mexico to Fulton.

Plan Is Practical.

While at first thought it would appear that there would be little likelihood of McCawley bills passing, a study of the practical side of the situation leads to the conclusion that success is not as improbable as it may seem.

Of the 34 senatorial districts, the primary road system enters 31, and of the 150 members of the House of Representatives, 31 represent counties traversed by the primary roads. These legislators represent considerably more than the constitutional majority required in each house to pass a bill.

It is not to be expected that all will vote for the McCawley bill for the reason that there are conflicting interests between primary and secondary roads in every county and every senatorial district. It is probable that a number of legislators will have a greater interest in the construction of the secondary roads than in the primary.

In so far as the Senate is concerned, however, 22 of the Senators, a constitutional majority, represent districts in which a majority of the counties have primary road mileage. McCawley said he believed the time had come to build roads that "start somewhere and end somewhere."

"With the increase in the automobile license tax and the tax on gasoline," he said, "all questions of the State ultimately having sufficient funds to complete all roads is answered. Under the present law the Highway Commission could do nothing except build a piece of road here and a piece there, with the result that every route contains some good road and a lot of bad road. Continuance of that practice will mean that it will be years and years before we have a completed road anywhere.

Expects Opposition.

"The building of the primary system at once would mean that in a comparatively short time the heavily traveled routes would be completed and then the entire organization of the department could be devoted to building the secondary roads. I believe it would speed up road building and that it would be to the interest of the State as a whole."

"I expect very spirited opposition. There are many members of the House whose counties are not touched by the primary road system and it's natural that they should object to waiting while other portions of the State are served first. But even with the present plan somebody has to fail. Not everybody at the table can get the first helping of the turkey."

McCawley also has in course of preparation an enabling act to authorize the formation of special road districts to build with local funds lateral roads to connect with the State system, these roads to be built according to the engineering standards of the State commission, and to be taken over by the State and the districts paid for them when the construction of the State road system, as at present designated is completed.

ZIONISTS LEND $250,000 IN MONTH IN PALESTINE

Heaviest Sums Are Advanced to Settlers at Beginning of Agricultural Season.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 15.—More than $250,000 was advanced during the month of October by the Zionist Organization to settlers in the 40-odd co-operative and individual holders' units founded by the Palestine Foundation Fund, states a report just issued by the treasurer of the Palestine Zionist Executive.

It is explained that this large outlay for the Zionist settlements occurs at the beginning of the agricultural season every year. The money was advanced for the purchase of draft animals, cattle, machinery, seed and poultry.

ARKANSAS WOMEN FORCED ACTION ON CHILD LABOR LAW

Miss Erle Chambers, Legislator Tells of Ratification Which Put State First on List.

DELIVERS ADDRESS AT TOWN CLUB LUNCH

Asserts Opposition to Measure Came From Men Who Admitted They Wanted to Employ Boys of Ten.

Arkansas' woman legislator, who led the fight for ratification of the twentieth, or child labor, amendment, which resulted in that State being the first to ratify the proposal, told an audience of about 75 men and women at luncheon at the Town Club, yesterday, the story of her legislative labors, and, incidentally, repeated and amplified her speech in its advocacy, which made Arkansas' legislative history.

The speaker was Miss Erle Chambers of Little Rock, now serving her second term as a representative of Pulaski County, in which the capital is located. She appeared under the auspices of the Missouri Women's Legislative Committee, which is seeking to obtain similar ratification at the hands of the present Missouri Legislature. California already has followed Arkansas' example.

Miss Chambers was introduced as a former County Probation Officer, welfare worker and legislative lobbyist, and she further identified herself as a lawyer, the sister of a lawyer and the daughter of a lawyer and Confederate soldier.

Women Are Militant.

Of pleasing blond type and attired in blue frock and modish hat, the speaker's earnest exposition was enhanced by frequent and businesslike gestures. Tortoise-shell glasses, a straight nose and a firm chin contributed to the impression of a forceful personality.

"Arkansas women are militant for child welfare," she said. "The distinction our State won in ratification follows a legislative record in recognition of women's rights. As early as 1874 women were given full property and inheritance rights in our Constitution. Before Federal suffrage the men granted us the rights of woman suffrage at primaries, and since we are all Democrats down there, we got pretty much what we wanted.

"Ratification was brought about by the splendid men in our State Department of Labor, who have the respect of business men. The State Federation of Women's Clubs gave active support. The farm group, except a significant minority, stepped into the breach and swung ballots. At the last we had to work to stave off an injunction to prevent certification by the Secretary of State."

Source of Opposition.

The opposition, such as there was, came from a group which, she said, frankly admitted it wanted to work negro boys under 10 years of age in the cotton fields. Opposition throughout the nation, she asserted, comes from the "big interests," who in their greed are unashamed to exploit child labor, and others who honestly believe the proposal an encroachment on State's rights. This, she denied, arguing that the amendment was merely an enabling act, giving Congress "the power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age."

She contended that such permissive legislation would operate to bolster up State laws; that it would not, unfortunately in her opinion, affect child labor on the farms; that it would not build up "an army of Federal employes," as was shown during the period of operation of child labor laws passed by Congress and declared unconstitutional; and that it could not, by any possible stretching of powers, create a Bureau of Education, as some fear.

On the other hand, she continued, it would strike at the exploitation of 1,000,000 children in industry, who are made to suffer most at a period of life, when physically least able to bear it, industry being short-sighted and the loser in the long run. "This is the time, women of America, when you are needed," she concluded. "The children have suffered long enough."

'TIN PLATE KING' DIES; ESTATE SET AT $50,000,000

Daniel G. Reid, a Beginner in Wall Street at Age of 41, Amazed Financial World by Daring Operations.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Daniel G. Reid, known internationally as the "Tin Plate King," died suddenly today at the age of 67, after a three days' illness of pneumonia at his Fifth avenue home. Mrs. Henry J. Topping, Reid's only surviving child, was at the bedside.

Reid, whose organization of the tin plate industry and operations in Wall Street made him one of the conspicuous figures of his day, had been in ill health for four years and had practically retired from business to conserve his failing powers. His estate was estimated by his friends today at approximately $50,000,000.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday morning at the home by Dr. E. M. Stires of St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church. The body will be buried at Richmond, Ind., where Reid started life as a poor boy

Born in Muncie, Ind., in 1858, Reid began his career as a bank clerk in Richmond and was superintendent of the Logansport division of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the age of 21. Believing that the McKinley tariff bill offered an opportunity for the manufacture of tin plate, he organized the American Tin Plate Co. When that company was absorbed by the United States Steel Corporation, Reid was made a director of the latter organization. He became a dramatic figure in the group of daring financial operators which included John W. Gates, William B. Leeds, James R. Keene, William H. Moore and James H. Moore. Reid was 41 years old and was estimated to have a fortune of $30,000,000 when he entered business in Wall Street

Amazed Wall Street.

His most sensational operation was the capture of control of the Rock Island Railroad, a venture which was said to have amazed even Wall Street veterans accustomed to huge stock deals. He later organized the American Can Co., the Tobacco Products Co. and became a director in many other companies.

From a humble plant in 1891, with workmen brought here from Wales and machinery from England, the American Tin Plate Co rose in production until 1898, when Reid's properties were merged with more than 200 tin mills. They were capitalized for $40,000,000. The combination later was absorbed by the United States Steel Corporation, through negotiations by the late J. Pierpont Morgan, at a record-breaking price.

Reid next turned his attention to railroading, obtaining control of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Co. by buying one-third of its $75,000,000 stock, in partnership with the Moore Brothers and Leeds. When the Interstate Commerce Commission some years later was probing the financing of the road, Reid became a storm center among the road's stockholders and retired as chairman of the board in 1914.

Fortunes Made and Lost.

In 1909, when Reid was still a prominent figure in the financial world, Wall street was electrified by a sensational rush on Rock Island shares on the Monday after Christmas. The price was run up from $50 to $81 on a turnover of more than 200,000 shares, finally dropping to $50 again. Fortunes were made and lost, the Stock Exchange held an investigation, a brokerage firm was disciplined and Reid was blamed for having manipulated the market.

Upon retiring from the Rock Island, Reid floated the $50,000,000 Tobacco Products Corporation. He continued activities in business until 1922, when his health began to fail. In 1923 he resigned as chairman of the Board of Directors of the American Can Co.

Reid's first wife was Ellen Dunn Reid. He made gifts totaling $500,000 to Richmond, Ind., as an endowment for the Reid Memorial church in memory of her and his parents, and the Reid Memorial hospital, in memory of his son, Frank.

Reid's second wife, Clarisse Agnew, was one of the beauties in Hoyts "A Milk White Flag," and later starred in vaudeville, died in 1904. Two years later he married Margaret M. Carrier, a casino favorite known to Broadway playgoers in "The Chinese Honeymoon" and other musical successes. She divorced him in 1920, a previous separation agreement giving her $200,000 outright and $30,000 a year, it was understood.

BURLEY TOBACCO POOL SOLD

R. J. Reynolds Co. Gets 50,000,000 Pounds From Growers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 17.—Official announcement made here last night by President James C. Stone of Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association that 50,000,000 pounds of pooled 1924 Burley tobacco has just been sold by the association to R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. of New York, and Winston Salem, N. C., making total to 100,000,000 pounds bought by this company from the pooling association in last 40 days.

Theodore H. Kirk, local representative of the Reynolds Co., negotiated the deal which was made at association prices aggregating around $15,000,000 it is stated. Early in December the Reynolds company paid around $14,000,000 for 50,000,000 pounds purchased then and which is now being delivered.

THEORY SON KILLED FATHER, THEN HIMSELF

Police Believe August Geiger Jr. Fatally Stabbed Aged Parent and Then Turned On Gas.

Last Monday morning the milk bottle and German daily paper were taken in as usual at the residence of August Geiger and his son, August Jr., 3918 Virginia avenue, but since then the bottles and papers accumulated, until yesterday morning, when they attracted neighbors' attention and an entry was forced in the three-room cottage.

Gas rushed out through the forced window and prevented policemen, who had been called, from going inside for a few minutes. When entrance was possible, Geiger Jr. was found dead on the kitchen floor and his father was found dead on the bathroom floor and drenched in blood from a jagged cut in the neck.

Believe Son Killed Father.

Circumstances led the police to believe the son killed his father with a knife while suffering from mental aberration, then turned on the gas and killed himself, last Monday. Geiger Sr. was 70 years old and the son, who is reported to have acted queerly at times, 38. Geiger's wife died Dec. 6, causing her husband and son to grieve deeply. The son was not married.

The elder Geiger's body, clad only in an undergarment, was doubled, as from pain. Apparently he stumbled forward on the bathroom floor after being attacked in his bed in the middle room. The bed was smeared with blood and a trail led to the bathroom. A white cord bound about one wrist indicated that Geiger's hands had been tied together, but the fall probably broke the cord. The nose and forehead were skinned, as from a fall.

Hands Folded on Breast.

It seemed the man's hands were tied after he was assaulted, because there was a deep cut between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, indicating an effort to seize the cutting instrument when the hands were free. The cut in the neck was such as a knife would make and apparently the jugular vein was severed. There were several stabs inside the wound and three shallow stab wounds in the left side of the chest.

The younger Geiger lay with his hands folded on his breast and dressed in clean shirt and underwear and trousers. A watch and a clean pocket knife were on the table beside him. No other sharp knife was found in the house. Papers were stuffed in all the window and door cracks and burners of the gas range were open but unlighted.

Father Unable to Work.

Among effects found in the dwelling were a number of medical journals with underlined passages concerning the effect of wounds and loss of blood and a letter from a physician attesting that Geiger Sr., a retired bookbinder, was not in a condition to work.

Geiger Jr. was employed as a designer at the Cupples Tire Co. from March, 1923, until the death of his mother, which, fellow employes yesterday said, affected him greatly. They recalled that he acted queerly when at work and often would turn quickly and demand, "Who's watching me?" although not being watched.

Edward Leitner, a next-door neighbor at 3916 Virginia avenue, who called the policeman and entered the Geiger home with him, related that father and son had grieved continuously since Mrs. Geiger died, the elder man saying he didn't see how he could get along without her. About $75 was found in the house. Geiger Sr. is understood to have owned the cottage, where the family lived about 12 years. No relatives are known to neighbors.

WOLF ERADICATION IN 15 MONTHS COST MISSOURI $12,970

Total Outlay Reached $22,452, of Which Federal Government Pays a Portion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17.—Wolf eradication work carried on in Missouri cost the State and Federal Governments an average of $84.09 for each wolf and coyote caught by official trappers between September, 1923, and Dec. 31, last, it was learned today. The total cost of the work was $22,452.03, of which the State paid $12,970.77. The trappers caught a total of 267 wolves and coyotes.

Reports issued by the State Board of Agriculture, under whose supervision the work is carried on, show a smaller "per capita" cost, however, by including 44 bob cats, now deceased, which were found in the wolf traps.

The Board of Agriculture report discusses the State expenditures only. It shows that 311 predatory animals, including the bob cats, were caught at a cost to the State of $12,970.77, or an average of $41.70 a head.

However, these figures do not represent the actual cost per head as the Federal money was not included. The actual cost to the State was $13,433.15, but a credit of $462.38 was allowed for cash received from sale of furs.

The State appropriated $15,000 two years ago for wolf eradication work and the Federal Government was to match the work dollar for dollar. Thus far the Federal Government has put up $9485.66. The State paid all the expense, during the last three months, with an understanding that the Federal Government would pay all the expenses during the first three months of 1925, while the Legislature is in session and before all appropriations are passed.

CLARENCE HOWARD'S LETTER OF RETIREMENT INDORSED

Chicagoan Upholds Need of Public Co-Operation Expressed by Commissioner.

Clarence H. Howard, president of the Commonwealth Steel Co., and retiring member of the Police Board, has received a letter from H. A. Wheeler, president of the Union Trust Co. of Chicago, indorsing sentiments expressed by Howard in his letter of resignation, sent to Gov. Hyde.

Wheeler believes, as Howard urged in his letter, that children should be taught to respect policemen and view them as friends and not enemies. "The Police Department of Chicago," Wheeler says, "has been damned by the public and the press until it feels that it has no reputation to save. There needs to be an entire reconstruction of the relation of the public to its law enforcers. We are overlooking one of the best inducements to law enforcement, in our utter disregard and disrespect for the law-enforcing power."

You don't have to have smoke!

Smoke! Smoke! Smoke!

Great big gobs of thick, black, oily, sooty, devastating smoke—poisoning the lungs of the people, soiling the beauty of the city, increasing in volume daily. And there's no sense in it! It can be stopped if you want it stopped, and the remedy means countless thousands of dollars of profit which are now rank, arrant waste.

The Kewanee Smokeless All-Steel Firebox Boiler is the remedy. It will burn any kind of fuel under the sun without smoke, and if every big building in this city is equipped with it, the smoke problem will be solved and the smoke inspector will grow fat for want of something to do.

The smoke-evil is due to the kind of boilers some of you use. They can't burn anything but high-priced smokeless coal without making smoke, because they are not built that way. And if they can't get the high-priced smokeless coal, or if they refuse to pay its price, they've got to burn some other kind. And they can't do it without smoke. So the primary fault is with you.

The health officer will tell you that SMOKE IS NOTHING BUT UNCONSUMED FUEL. If your boiler won't burn all the gases, smoke is bound to result. The unconsumed gas is the smoke. And it represents so much waste in dollars and cents. Let the Kewanee Boiler Company tell you the Story of Smoke, you cities that suffer, and you will get a slant on this subject that will open your eyes.

And The Old Man Behind the Boiler will send one of his representatives, or come himself, to any city in the union which is annoyed by the smoke evil.

BAKER'S ELECTION BOARD SLATE OPPOSED

Senators to Report Dissatisfaction With Persons Considered for Jobs Here.

St. Louis Senators will return to Jefferson City today prepared to confer with Gov. Baker there Monday on the sentiment they found here with respect to his slated appointments to the police and election boards.

The slate prepared by the Governor for the Election Board, about which the principal discussion revolves, included the names of George Eigel and Harry Willson, attorneys, as the Republican members and Emanuel Grossman, attorney, and James Y. Player, a present member of the board.

Senators have noted considerable opposition to Grossman and Joseph J. Mestres, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, said yesterday he did not believe it was proper that Dr. James Stewart, Republican, new secretary of the State Board of Health, should be permitted to name Democratic commissioners. Dr. Stewart is said to have put forward Grossman's name.

One Senator said that a strong sentiment had been found in favor of the reappointment of Miss Emma Bobb as a Republican member of the board and that this would be conveyed to Gov. Baker at the conference Monday. Miss Bobb has incurred the enmity of the Republican City Committee because its members believe that she was primarily responsible for the practice of ignoring the recommendations of committeemen in the matter of appointments for judges and clerks.

Various women's committees and a number of men have visited the Governor requesting the reappointment of Miss Bobb and a resolution was introduced in a recent meeting of the City Committee urging the reappointment of the entire present board. Miss Bobb has been in the employ of the Election Board for 15 years and was appointed a commissioner by Gov. Hyde on the resignation of John H. Holliday.

Mrs. Roscoe C. Anderson and Richard Murphy, member of the Board of Education, are mentioned for the other Democratic post in the event Grossman fails of confirmation.

Arthur J. Fruend and Allen C. Orrick are said to be two certain Police Board appointees.

Senators to Report Dissatisfaction With Persons Considered for Jobs Here.

St. Louis Senators will return to Jefferson City today prepared to confer with Gov. Baker there Monday on the sentiment they found here with respect to his slated appointments to the police and election boards.

The slate prepared by the Governor for the Election Board, about which the principal discussion revolves, included the names of George Eigel and Harry Willson, attorneys, as the Republican members and Emanuel Grossman, attorney, and James Y. Player, a present member of the board.

Senators have noted considerable opposition to Grossman and Joseph J. Mestres, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, said yesterday he did not believe it was proper that Dr. James Stewart, Republican, new secretary of the State Board of Health, should be permitted to name Democratic commissioners. Dr. Stewart is said to have put forward Grossman's name.

One Senator said that a strong sentiment had been found in favor of the reappointment of Miss Emma Bobb as a Republican member of the board and that this would be conveyed to Gov. Baker at the conference Monday. Miss Bobb has incurred the enmity of the Republican City Committee because its members believe that she was primarily responsible for the practice of ignoring the recommendations of committeemen in the matter of appointments for judges and clerks.

Various women's committees and a number of men have visited the Governor requesting the reappointment of Miss Bobb and a resolution was introduced in a recent meeting of the City Committee urging the reappointment of the entire present board. Miss Bobb has been in the employ of the Election Board for 15 years and was appointed a commissioner by Gov. Hyde on the resignation of John H. Holliday.

Mrs. Roscoe C. Anderson and Richard Murphy, member of the Board of Education, are mentioned for the other Democratic post in the event Grossman fails of confirmation.

Arthur J. Fruend and Allen C. Orrick are said to be two certain Police Board appointees.

Fog Prevents View of Historic Castles on Danube—Rhine Is Crossed at Strassburg; Arrival at Paris on Bastile Day Marked by Rousing Welcome.

BY LOWELL THOMAS.

(Copyright, 1925, by the Chicago Tribune Newspaper Syndicate and the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

A FEW minutes out from Vienna we plunged into heavy rain, and then flew through gloomy skies all the way across Austria and Germany. The gloom somehow seemed appropriate, and seemed to symbolize the feelings that we thought must be in the hearts of these people of Central Europe who are paying so heavily for the part their leaders forced them to play in the late war. Occasionally we dove through banks of fog that lasted for 10 or 15 minutes. If there had been any high mountains between Vienna and Paris the flight would have been an extremely hazardous one. As it was we had several narrow shaves," remarked Leigh Wade as he described the trip up the Danube.

"The storm prevented our getting a clear view of the famous castles of which we had heard so much, but frequently the rain and fog drove us right down to the river, and twice we shot around sharp bends and kicked the rudder in time to avoid colliding with the turret of a castle. For four hours we followed the winding course of the Danube, dodging castles, cliffs and hill tops. We were flying against a stiff head wind that held us down to 50 miles an hour.

Really Thrilled by Rhine.

"It had thrilled us to fly over the great rivers of the East, such as the Yangtze Kiang, the Mekong and the Irrawady. And we had felt like magicians turning back the pages of history for a thousand years or more when we flew above the sacred Ganges, the mighty Indus, and the historic Tigris and Euphrates. But the greatest thrill that came to us from looking down at a river came this day on our way from Vienna to Paris when we shot out of a fog bank, blinked our eyes in the dazzling sunlight, and looked down to find ourselves crossing the Rhine.

We were flying at an altitude of 2000 feet when we passed right over one of the most famous bridges in Europe, a bridge that resounded to the tramp of hundreds of thousands of German soldiers during the World War. Ten minutes later we were loading up with a fresh supply of oil and gas at the French-Alsatian aerodrome on the outskirts of the city of Strassburg.

"Taking off again without visiting the city, we soared over many picturesque little Alsatian villages, and as we crossed the mountains into France proper we saw ahead of us a city that looked as familiar to me as Casopolis, Mich. To 'Les' Arnold also, its churches, its gardens and parks and its hotel de ville looked as natural as his own home town. It was Nancy, charming Nancy, innocent victim of so many night raids by fleets of Gothas hunting for the barracks and supply depots on its outskirts.

Over Historic Ground.

"It seemed difficult to realize that it was in these same skies that Ball, Guynemer, Bishop, Fonck and our own Eddie Rickenbacker and Frank Luke and thousands more of our fellow airmen used to dive out from behind clouds and send their adversaries down in flames.

"I was thinking about these things, and thought about all of my old pals, many of whom had made their last flight and fought their last fight here in these skies above La Belle France, and pointed to a great fleet of airplanes approaching us. I'll admit that at first my heart skipped a beat or two because it took me that long to bring myself out of my reverie and to remember that there was no longer any chance of this being Rickthofen's flying circus. It was 1924 now, and not 1918. And the fleet approaching us turned out to be the planes that had been sent to escort us into Paris.

"Fifty miles from the city we caught our first glimpse of the familiar spidery Eiffel Tower and the white dome of the Church of the Sacre Coeur on the Montmartre. When we arrived over Paris the entire population seemed to be out on the boulevards. We circled round and round several times, and it was easy to pick out the landmarks so familiar to every American who served in France and who was lucky enough to get to Paris.

Rousing Welcome.

"It was July 14, Bastille day, and thousands of people were cheering and waving flags when we taxied up to the hangars at Le Bourget. An hour passed before we could get a chance to do any work on our planes because it took that long for us to shake hands with the many high French officials and the foreign diplomats who had come out to greet us.

"During that hour on the outskirts of Paris we met more celebrities, Generals, Ambassadors and Cabinet Ministers, than we had encountered in all the rest of our lives.

"After we had refueled we were whirled to a hotel in staff cars belonging to the French aviation service, given a few minutes in which to clean up, taken to a typical 20-course Parisian dinner, and then ushered into a box at the Follies Bergere.

"Dead tired after having flown more than 10 hours that day, as soon as we had made ourselves comfortable in the box we promptly fell asleep. Great was the consternation of our French hosts. The bewhiskered assistant Cabinet Minister sitting near by gave me a nudge in the ribs during a particularly spectacular scene. I opened my eyes to find the celebrated chorus girls of the Follies Bergere prancing along a runway out over the heads of the audience. As usual, they were garbed in nothing but picture hats and a bit of talcum powder. I looked at them and said, 'Humph, they are just the same as they always were,' and then went back to sleep.

"Then the bearded gentleman poked Jack. But he merely half opened his eyes, looked at our whiskered friend, said, 'beaver,' and resumed his nap.

"Next day the French papers said:

"'If the Follies Bergere won't keep these American airmen awake, we wonder what will!"

"When we got back to our hotel that night we printed the following notice and put it on the door:

"'Please do not disturb except in case of fire, and only then if you have given up all hope.'

"The fastest time that had been made by airplane across Europe and Asia had been when Lieut. D'Oisy had flown from Paris to Tokio. D'Oisy had reached the China coast from France about the time that we arrived in Japan from Alaska. The newspapers of the world had been full of the story of his flight and the marvelous speed he had made. But in flying from Tokio to Paris we had beaten D'Oisy's record by two full days.

"Moreover, from the time we had left Southern California we had not had a single holiday. Sundays, Turkish and Japanese national holidays had meant nothing to us. But Smith had promised us a day's rest here in Paris. He had promised this provided that on our way across Asia and Europe we were able to make up 15 days—half the time we had lost in Alaska and the Aleutian Islands. But we had done better than this. We had made up 17 days.

"Resting" in Paris.

"So we were looking forward to our holiday, our day of rest in Paris, with eager anticipation. This is how we rested:

"At 10 o'clock we went to the Arc de Triomphe and placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. Then we started on a round of officials calls, visited the President of France, attended luncheons and various ceremonies, went to teas, and then attended a banquet that lasted until midnight. We all voted it 'one hell of a holiday.'

"The banquet that night was held at the Allied Club and was attended by a great crowd of Generals, Admirals, Ambassadors and Cabinet Ministers. Again we felt like Gulliver in the land of Brobdingnag. But we found all of these big men exceedingly easy to talk to. In fact, this seems to be one of the attributes that goes with success and high attainment.

"It was on this occasion that 'Les' found himself seated next to the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, who asked him what sort of a reception we had in Saigon. When 'Les' hesitated about replying he demanded a frank answer. So 'Les' told him of how we had been ejected from the leading cafe of Cochin China simply because we had no coats. The Minister of Foreign Affairs was furious, made some notes, and said he was going to teach somebody a lesson.

"Next morning we went out to the aerodrome at Le Bourget and prepared for the hop across the English Channel. With this flight we were to leave the mainland of Europe and start on the most hazardous part of our entire journey—the flight from Europe to North America by way of Iceland and Greenland."

Only one right way to heat homes with oil

8° Below-outside 70° Above-inside

No matter how cold it is outside, every Oil-O-Matic heated home is exactly the temperature desired.

THE right way to heat with oil has been found. It has been proved for six Winters. Now more than 20,000 owners know the satisfaction of this scientific way. Oil-O-Matic has given them a new conception of oil burners.

Their homes are always exactly the temperature they enjoy! They never have to give it a thought. It is entirely automatic.

Proved for six years

Over a period of six years Oil-O-Matic has successfully met every heating problem. It is quiet, odorless, clean and absolutely dependable.

You will be interested to see this correctly built oil burner. It is unlike any other device that heats with oil.

Six years ago our engineers took up the study of oil. They found four vital facts that were being disregarded. These explained the difficulties others were having in trying to heat with oil. Then we designed an oil burner that would make use of these four natural laws.

The result was Oil-O-Matic. The first oil burner to make cheap fuel oil a completely successful fuel for heating homes. For six Winters now, Oil-O-Matic has met every demand in homes, large and small.

When you buy an oil burner see that it agrees with these laws. If you follow them you cannot go wrong.

The four famous laws

The first law says that oil must be broken up into a fine mist. So fine, it will float like a fog. All other ways violate this law.

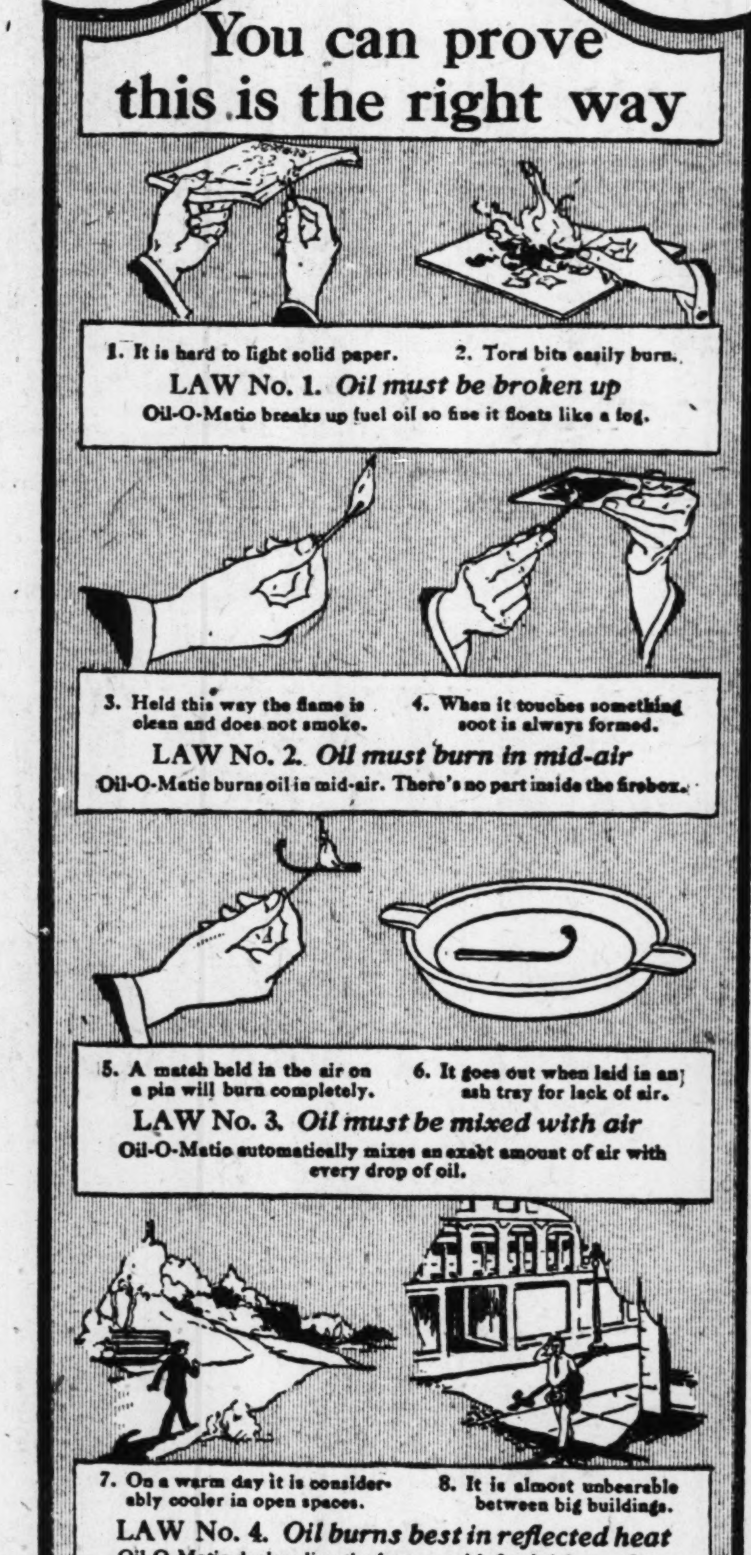
After the oil is broken up, the second law demands that it be burned before it touches anything. Carbon and soot will surely result otherwise. So no plates, pots, chamber or any part of an oil burner should be inside your furnace or boiler.

According to the third law, the amount of air that is mixed with the oil must be exact. Naturally this cannot be left to someone's opening or closing a damper. The oil burner itself must supply the correct amount of air.

The fourth law is just as important. Oil cannot burn perfectly without reflected heat. So unless the firebox of your heating plant is lined with brick, it is impossible to get perfect combustion.

It is this way of burning oil that has made the use of fuel oil really successful for heating homes. It is the method found only in Oil-O-Matic.

You can prove this is the right way



1. It is hard to light solid paper. 2. Torn bits easily burn.

LAW No. 1. Oil must be broken up

Oil-O-Matic breaks up fuel oil so fine it floats like a fog.

3. Held this way the flame is clean and does not smoke. 4. When it touches something soot is always formed.

LAW No. 2. Oil must burn in mid-air

Oil-O-Matic burns oil in mid-air. There's no part inside the firebox.

5. A match held in the air on a pin will burn completely. 6. It goes out when laid in an ash tray for lack of air.

LAW No. 3. Oil must be mixed with air

Oil-O-Matic automatically mixes an exact amount of air with every drop of oil.

7. On a warm day it is considerably cooler in open spaces. 8. It is almost unbearable between big buildings.

LAW No. 4. Oil burns best in reflected heat

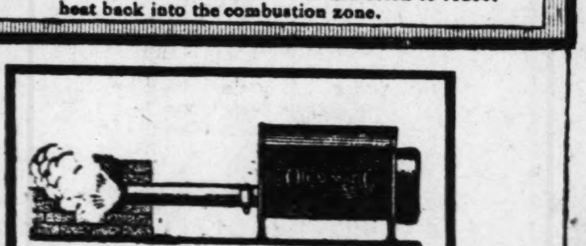
Oil-O-Matic dealers line the furnace with fire-brick to reflect heat back into the combustion zone.



No Part Inside the Firebox
No plates, pots, pilot light or anything inside to burn out or replace.

Note these exclusive features

There are other features that make Oil-O-Matic different from any other device that heats homes with oil.

We originated and perfected five years ago the Williams Thermal Safety Control. It put an end to the open can designed to catch liquid fuel oil. It ended all worry about the oil not lighting or blowing out. This positive device watches over your entire plant. Oil-O-Matic can't run at all unless it runs right. Not a drop of oil can flow. The motor is stopped. Ignition is shut off. This control is the greatest advance in oil burner construction since our application of the four laws.

Works perfectly in any good heating plant

Of course there's no continuous pilot light. That is too wasteful of gas. It has no place on a modern oil burner.

Oil-O-Matic burns a cheap, low gravity oil instead of expensive kerosene and distillate. This gives you more heat units at a lower cost. See chart below for surprising facts on various grades of oil.

So this perfected way, approved by leading combustion engineers, ends all doubt. Now no one need be without the comforts of oil heating. Oil-O-Matic can be installed in any good heating plant. Steam, hot water, vapor, hot air.

Easy terms—Guaranteed

The men who install and service your Oil-O-Matic are all trained men. Most of them are graduates of the Williams Institute of Heat Research. They have experience, facilities, organization and financial responsibility. They are backed by the largest producers of automatic oil burners in the world.

They will be glad to offer you terms if you want them.

Get the facts now. See it demonstrated. Send the coupon for a copy of "New Facts About Oil Heating." It will answer every question. After you read it you will never be content with any other way of heating your home.

Facts About Oil

This warning is issued by the Empire Refineries, Inc., one of the biggest in the country: "It is obvious that the supply of kerosene and lighter distillates will not long continue to be adequate. The system that depends solely on this grade of fuel cannot continue to function when there is no longer such fuel to be had. On the other hand, the heavier grades of oil will continue in abundance. It is well known that the heavier grades contain more heat units per gallon."

There are several grades of oil. The cheaper ones are best. They contain more heat units, as is shown below. Note that kerosene costs the most and gives the least heat. Oil-O-Matic burns any grade on this list, but the cheapest is recommended. Oil-O-Matic will instantly adjust itself to lightest or heaviest grades.

Grade of Oil	Heat Units per gal.
KEROSENE	132,858
DISTILLATE	136,887
GAS OIL	138,926
FUEL OIL (For Oil-O-Matic)	141,790

NOTE—A gallon of fuel oil weighs nearly a pound more than a gallon of kerosene. Heat units are shown in terms of gallons. You buy oil by measure, not by weight.

Soldan and McKinley Are Victors

Yeatman No Match for West End Five in High School Basketball League Match.

Soldan and McKinley won from Yeatman and Cleveland, respectively, in the High School League basketball double-header at the Cleveland High auditorium last night.

Soldan, in the first game, defeated Yeatman, 26 to 14.

McKinley sprung a surprise in taking the second game, 20 to 17 from Cleveland.

The second game was a most exciting affair from the start with Musgrove starring for Cleveland and Antrobius playing a leading role for McKinley.

Yeatman Outclassed.

Inability to hit the basket early in the game caused Yeatman to find itself at an immediate disadvantage in its game with Soldan. Hassler, Layman and Post scored for the West End team in the first quarter before Yeatman counted a point. Late in the first half and early in the second half Yeatman enjoyed greater success and two long field shots by Randall, bringing the score up to 12 to 9 in Soldan's favor, raised the Yeatman hopes.

However, Soldan improved its game in the late stages and pulled right away. Layman, who started slowly, came fast in the fourth quarter and scored two field baskets.

Soldan did not display any appreciable improvement over their performance of a week ago.

The crowd was only half as large as that of the opening night, a week ago, when Central and Cleveland engaged in a hot battle.

The scores:

Soldan (26).

NURMI HAS ALTERED HIS STYLE, STAGG FINDS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17. — The flying feet of the phantom Finn, Paavo Nurmi, that have been kicking over world records since his arrival in America, are no longer functioning as they did in the Olympic games. His stride has been slightly modified, probably to meet indoor track conditions. This is the observation of Amos Alonzo Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, who studied the Finn's running form in Paris last summer. Stagg was coach of the American middle distance runners.

Nurmi now runs more on the balls of his feet than he did in outdoor competition, the 62-year-old Stagg observed when the Finnish flash last night broke the world's indoor record for the mile and three-quarters, defeating Jole Ray, American champion miler.

Stagg also noted that Nurmi's knee action was the most noticeable action of his stride, which, he said, resembled that of a man running downhill. He does not pull for ground and his arm are bent and carried high. There is a sharp rebound when his feet strike the boards and his strong knee spring delivers a snap and follow through that throws the foot higher behind him than other runners.

CARDINALS SCHEDULE 27 SPRING GAMES ON PACIFIC COAST

Soldan and McKinley Are Victors

Soldan and McKinley won from Yeatman and Cleveland, respectively, in the High School League basketball double-header at the Cleveland High auditorium last night.

Soldan, in the first game, defeated Yeatman, 26 to 14.

McKinley sprung a surprise in taking the second game, 20 to 17 from Cleveland.

The second game was a most exciting affair from the start with Musgrove starring for Cleveland and Antrobius playing a leading role for McKinley.

Yeatman Outclassed.

Inability to hit the basket early in the game caused Yeatman to find itself at an immediate disadvantage in its game with Soldan. Hassler, Layman and Post scored for the West End team in the first quarter before Yeatman counted a point. Late in the first half and early in the second half Yeatman enjoyed greater success and two long field shots by Randall, bringing the score up to 12 to 9 in Soldan's favor, raised the Yeatman hopes.

However, Soldan improved its game in the late stages and pulled right away. Layman, who started slowly, came fast in the fourth quarter and scored two field baskets.

Soldan did not display any appreciable improvement over their performance of a week ago.

The crowd was only half as large as that of the opening night, a week ago, when Central and Cleveland engaged in a hot battle.

NURMI HAS ALTERED HIS STYLE, STAGG FINDS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.— The flying feet of the phantom Finn, Paavo Nurmi, that have been kicking over world records since his arrival in America, are no longer functioning as they did in the Olympic games. His stride has been slightly modified, probably to meet indoor track conditions. This is the observation of Amos Alonzo Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, who studied the Finn's running form in Paris last summer. Stagg was coach of the American middle distance runners.

Nurmi now runs more on the balls of his feet than he did in outdoor competition, the 62-year-old Stagg observed when the Finnish flash last night broke the world's indoor record for the mile and three-quarters, defeating Joie Ray, American champion miler.

Stagg also noted that Nurmi's knee action was the most noticeable action of his stride, which, he said, resembled that of a man running downhill. He does not pull for ground and his arm are bent and carried high. There is a sharp rebound when his feet strike the boards and his strong knee spring delivers a snap and follow through that throws the foot higher behind him than other runners.

Peace Restored in Soccer League; Players Likely to Get a Guarantee Next Year

Phil Riley Says He Will Retire Unless Plan Is Accepted Whereby Fixed Sum Is Paid—Proposes to Prohibt Use of Franchises as Advertising Medium.

By Dent McSkimming.

Unless there is a decided reaction today, the differences between officials of the St. Louis Soccer and Exhibition Co., and the players of the local professional league will be removed and amicable relations restored at least for the balance of the season.

Phil Riley, treasurer of the company and a member of the Board of Directors, said yesterday that he was willing to make any reasonable concession to the players in order that the situation might be clarified at least for this season.

"We should quit wrangling and get back to football," haid Riley. "The players should be given an opportunity to prepare themselves for the games with the champions of the American Soccer League for if they can win the series they will be recognized once more as United States champions and our prestige will be restored."

Riley explained that in advocating an agreement immediately he was speaking as an individual and not as spokesman for the stockholders.

Guarantee Next Year.

"Next season I will propose a plan whereby the players will be guaranteed a fixed sum for every game. I have studied the financial situation for many seasons past and I am convinced that we can guarantee players of the two winning teams $10 per game and the losing players $7.

"It will cost approximately $1000 per week to operate on this basis, the stockholders to pay all expenses.

"The present arrangement under which the players are paid a pro-rata share of the gate receipts is very impracticable. They are within their rights in demanding a check of receipts and expenditures and I personally will welcome such cooperation. However, this representation will not bring money in at the gate if the public is not interested in the attraction. The cause of the lack of financial return is more deep rooted.

"I am so firmly convinced that the guarantee plan will work out and re-establish mutual confidence and reawaken public interest that I am willing to underwrite the venture myself.

Will Insist on New Plan.

"I say the plan will be put in operation next season, if I have any influence in professional soccer at

Vespers, Who Oppose Millers, Have Fine Record for Defense

THE Vesper team, which has developed the tightest defense of any club in the St. Louis Soccer League, will oppose the leading Ben Millers today in the first game of the league double-header at St. Louis University Field, Grand and Laclede avenues.

Only 10 goals have been scored against the Vespers in 10 games, a record which is very remarkable in professional soccer. The Millers are essentially an attacking machine, for they have scored 34 goals in 10 games, more than twice as many as either the Vespers or the Scullins.

In the second game today, the rebuilt Ratican club will meet the Scullins. The first game will start at 2 p. m.

Nurmi Victor in 2000 Meter Race

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Paavo Nurmi, the flying Finn, established a world's record in a special 2000-meter event, the feature of the Fordham University A. A. games in the 102d Engineers' Armory tonight. It was his third appearance in a meet in as many days and sets a mark in epoch-making performances. His time for the 2000 meters was 5:33, a world's indoor record.

MUDHENS TO PLAY ONLY 9 EXHIBITION GAMES

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 17.—Only nine exhibition games will be played by the Toledo American Association club during the 1925 spring training trip.

Great Record Made By Nurmi in Races On American Tracks

SINCE his entry into the indoor track competition in the United States, Paavo Nurmi, the great Finnish middle distance runner, has established seven new world's records. Four of these came on successive nights. Nurmi started on his record-breaking feats Jan. 6 at Madison Square Garden, when he established three new standards. On Jan. 15 he set three more, while Friday night in Chicago came another.

Nurmi's record in competition in the United States:

Jan. 6 at Madison Square Garden: Mile in 4:13 3-5, breaking old mark of 4:14 3-5.

Jan. 6 at Madison Square Garden: 1500 meters in 3:56 1-5, establishing record.

Jan. 6 at Madison Square Garden: 5000 meters in 14:44 4-5, beating old record of 14:54 1-5.

Jan. 15 at Madison Square Garden: 1¾ miles in 7:55 3-5, breaking old mark of 7:59 4-5.

Jan. 15 at Madison Square Garden: 3000 meters in 8:26 4-5. Old standard 8:31 1-5.

Jan. 15 at Madison Square Garden: 1⅞ miles in 8:29, 5 3-5 seconds ahead of old record.

Jan. 16 at Chicago: 1¾ miles in 7:55 2-5, cutting 1-5 of a second off his own record set the night before.

All the standards shattered by Nurmi previously were held by Joie Ray, who has been badly defeated by the Finn in each meeting between the pair.

Anderson Wins Belleair Title

Missouri Golf Champion Beats A. C. Turner in Florida Golf Final.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., Jan. 17.—A. Donald Anderson of the Normandie Golf Club, St. Louis, holder of the Missouri amateur title, today won the annual January tournament, defeating Alfred C. Turner of Clearwater, who won the event a year ago, by 3 up and 2 to go, after winding up the morning half of the match one up.

Anderson lost two of the first three holes in the morning, but both settled down to good golf in the afternoon, as their medal cards of 74 and 75 bear testimony.

Francis Gudger of Asheville, N. C., won the competition for the beaten eight of the first division, beating Henry A. Hoffman of Providence by 3 and 2.

Leonard Stopped More Rivals Than Any Other Lightweight

Figures Show That Champion Who Retired Recently Knocked Out 72 Boxers in 219 Bouts—McAuliffe Only Other Titleholder to Quit Undefeated.

By Sparrow McGann.

(Copyright, 1925.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Benny Leonard's absolute retirement was the big incident of the week and of course all the fans and all the experts are arguing as to whether or not this great lightweight king was the greatest of all lightweights.

The writer is not going to give an opinion. He is going to cite facts and let the fans judge for themselves. What will the facts show? They will prove that Benny sent more opponents to sleep than any lightweight in ring history. That ought to be good enough for Leonard and probably it is.

Before going into the figures it might also be stated that Benny is the one lightweight champion since Jack McAuliffe's day who retired undefeated.

What the Figures Show.

Here is how the lightweight champions of modern times stand:

	Bts.	K.O.	K.O. By	Lost Fl.
Benny Leonard	219	72	2	1
Freddie Welsh	179	32	1	1
Willie Ritchie	76	6	1	1
Ad Wolgast	128	36	2	6
Bat Nelson	130	37	2	13
Joe Gans	145	55	2	3
Kid Lavigne	38	5	2	2
Frank Erne	37	7	3	3

Leonard will be a loss to the game not only because of his drawing power, but because of his gentlemanly instincts and his ideal family life. There is no question that he was a real champion in every sense of the word.

Benny was a champion at a time when the money was bigger than it had ever been before him, or probably ever will be again.

It may be said of him, however, that he has not retired with all the money he might have had in the bank since, with his alert intelligence, he was never averse to taking business flyers. They say he dropped quite a little in an automobile tire venture.

Lost to Britton on Foul.

Just the same he is not likely to hear the wolf at his door. Leonard fought without reproach save on one occasion when fighting Jack Britton, who was welterweight champion. Benny was alleged to have fouled the welter king when Britton had been knocked down. It was alleged by some that eLonard did this deliberately, but no one can ever tell about such things and the lightweight king's excellent record to date stood him in stead and gave him the advantage of the doubt. In any event, Leonard could have won the fight and the welter title had the fight not been awarded to Britton because of Benny's act.

In the past two years the question of Leonard's weight has been much discussed. He refused to weigh in with newspaper men present upon several occasions and the general belief has been that he could not make the limit of his class without weakening himself so materially as to be unable to defend his title against a worthy opponent.

Began Fighting When 16.

Gossip is that one of the reasons why Leonard has retired without going through with the proposed fight against Mickey Walker, the present welter champion, is that he cannot make the welter limit, 147, pounds and be strong.

Leonard was born in New York's great East Side and began fightnig when he was 16 years old. He was knocked out by Joe Shugrue in that year and by Frankie Fleming in 1913. The one fight he ever lost aside from being knocked out was on a foul to Jack Britton and he won the title in 1917 when he knocked out Freddie Welch of England in nine rounds.

Rickeymen to Depart Feb. 22; First Contest Is Booked for Feb. 28

Thirty-Three Active Players on Reserve List and Usual Quota of Collegians and Sand-Lotters Will Bring Squad to Nearly 50.

Branch Rickey has arranged a pretentious training camp schedule for the young men who will rty to win places on the 1915 Cardinal baseball club. The squad of hopefuls will gather at Stockton, Cal., shortly after Feb. 22 and Rickey has arranged an exhibition game with Sacramento to be played at the Cardinal camp Feb. 28. There won't be any time for rest after that game, either. On March 1 two exhibition games will be played, one in the morning and one in the afternoon with the Secramento club.

April 5, A. M.—San Francisco at San Francisco.
April 5, P. M.—San Francisco at San Francisco.
April 11.—Browns at St. Louis.
April 12.—Brown at St. Louis.

Twenty-nine games are on the schedule announced yesterday by the Cardinal management. The teams to be opposed are Sacramento, San Francisco, Oakland, Kansas City and the Browns, the games with the St. Louis American Leaguers being scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, April 11 and 12.

Thirty-three players are on the Cardinal reserve list and the usual quota of college and sand lot phenoms will give Rickey a squad which will number nearly 50, unless Secretary Hiram Mason, overcome by the railroad rates to the coast, decides to poison a few youngsters for the good of the treasury.

Not So Much Road Work.

The Cardinal trip this year will be in striking contrast to the journeys the Rickeymen have made in recent years. In the past there was so much traveling and so many stops at jerkwater stations that even the ball players, renowned for their sunny dispositions and disinclination to complain, were on the point of remonstrating. This year the Cardinals will take a train to California, play exhibition games until April 5 and then catch a train for St. Louis. Of course something may arise to cause games to be scheduled en rotue, but the present itinerary calls for a straight jump back from San Francisco to St. Louis.

It also will be the first year in some time that the Cardinals will not have games with major league teams on the road. The two contests with the Browns thus far are the only clashes scheduled with big leaguers.

Perhaps Three Outfielders.

Chief interest in the training camp of the Cardinals will be the contest for the third base position and for regular places in the outfield. Rickey has been criticised for shifting his outfielders so much that nobody knows who plays the outfield for the Cardinals. Take any great team and the outfield, the entire team, has identity. But seldom does the bleacherite know who is playing the field for Rickey. A man must play regularly to be popular and perhaps that shifting, that lack of identity, has not helped the Rickeymen with the public. At any rate it is said that Branch is disgusted with shifting outfields and will try to give each outfield berth to an individual, to be guarded until failure do them part.

The outfielders who are listed to make the California trip are Ray Blades, Taylor Douthit, Chick Hafey, Roscoe Holm, Clarence Mueller, Hy Myers, Ralph Shinners, and Jack Smith. Max Flack, also on the reserve list is listed as ineligible and Burt Shotton, also on the list, is a coach.

The infielders on the reserve list are Rogers Hornsby, Lester Bell, Jim Bottomley, Jim Cooney, Howard Freigau, Thomas Thevenow and George Toporcer.

The batterymen are Pitchers Clough, Day, Dickerman, Dyer, Haines, Halahan, Mails, Rhem, Sherdel, Shields, Stuart, Sothoron and Wigington, and Catchers Gonzales, Clemons, Vick, Niebergall and Bool.

Kessler Wins On a Knockout

Washington University Boxing Tournament Held Before 1000 Persons.

Championships in five weight divisions were decided in the Washington University boxing tournament at Francis Gymnasium last night. About 1000 persons witnessed the program which was held preliminary to the Marquette University - Concordia Seminary basketball game.

Lazlo Sommers outpointed M. Thomas in the 165-pound class in the bout which aroused greatest interest among the spectators. The judges disagreed at the end of three rounds and Sommers was given the verdict on his superior punching ability in the fourth round.

Benny Kessler scored the only knockout of the program when he so far outclassed his opponent, V. Packman, that the bout was stopped by Referee Albert Graff in the second round.

The Commerce and Finance team won the team trophy, with 41 points. The winner in each bout was given a medal.

The results:

125-POUND CLASS—Goodman (Law), defeated Kranzberg (Law), three rounds, judges' decision.

Referee—Albert Graff. Judges—Dr. B. Zeidinger and Louis Mitleider.

CENTRAL FIVE WINS FROM PRINCIPIA, 21—7

Central High School basketball team swamped the Principia Academy team in a practice game last night at Howard gymnasium. The score was 21 to 7.

Cristal and his understudy, Brown, starred in scoring points for Central.

"TOO MUCH PARIS," DUNDEE IS OFF FOR HOME; PROMOTERS LOSE

(Copyright, 1925.)

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Johnny Dundee, scheduled to fight Fred Bretonnel on Jan. 27 in the biggest bout of the winter in Paris, changed his mind suddenly and sailed quietly for New York on the Paris today. He said his wife is ill. It is reported that the real reason is that Dundee is out of form because of too much Paris.

His sudden departure caused a flurry in sporting circles, among the French as well as Americans. Many seats had already been sold, at from 15 to 30 dollars. Tex Solal, France's Tex Rickard, who had staked his all on Dundee as a drawing card, declared the bout off tonight and stopped the ticket sales.

The Gaumont Palace, where the fight was scheduled, was leased for 50,000 francs and the promoters are out many thousands more for advertising, training, etc. The house would surely have gone to 400,000 francs.

SEVEN BIG LEAGUE CLUBS TO OPEN SEASON WITH VETERAN LINEUPS

Brownies Have Added to Battery Strength, but No Regulars Have Been Lost

Infield and Outfield Likely to Be About the Same as in 1924 —Cardinal Training Will Be Featured by a Battle for Third Base Position.

By Herman Wecke.

WITH the major league clubs scheduled to migrate for the South for spring training in less than two months, pre-season dope indicates that seven of the 16 teams will start in 1925 with practically veteran organizations. However, indications are that there will be plenty of changes in the battle front of the other contenders in April over the same date of a year ago.

THIS is the first of three articles dealing with the probable battle fronts with which the major league clubs will start the 1925 campaign. Today's article deals with the Browns and Cardinals. The second, to be published next Sunday, will be on other American League clubs and the third on National League clubs.

Among the teams which are listed in the catagory of near "standpats" come the Browns. This in spite of the fact that Manager George Sisler recently completed two trades. However, additions to the Browns added only battery strength, so there is likely to be no shift among the regulars, unless some phenom is uncorked when the local American Leaguers get to Tarpon Springs, Fla.

It is different with the Cardinals. With Rickey's aggregation there will be another fight on for the third-base job, with Lester Bell, recalled from Milwaukee, and Howard Freigau, who covered the place during most of 1924, as the leading contenders. George Toporcer, the bespeckled infielder, also will be in the hunt for the job. Another thing, Rickey's outfield is far from certain.

Clubs to Stand Pat.

Besides the Browns, the clubs in the American League which, according to the present "dope," will start with veteran battle fronts, are the Senators, world's champions; Yankees, Tigers and Athletics. In the National League, the Giants and Dodgers appear to be the only teams that will present veteran fronts.

As regards the Browns, the opening-day battle front will without a doubt again include Manager Sisler at first, McManus at second, Gerber, shortstop; Robertson, third base, with Williams, Jacobson and Tobin in the outfield. It does not seem possible that a newcomer will oust any of these athletes.

However, Manager Sisler is still looking for a hard-hitting outfielder, who swings from the right side of the plate. All of Sisler's regulars are southpaw batters, as is Herschel Bennett, holdover from last season. The veteran Joe Evans is the only right-handed hitting meadowman, Bill Mizeur, who hit .328 with Terre Haute, and Verdo Elmore, who was with the club last fall, also swing from the left side of the plate.

Chief among the Brownie infield reserves will be Simon and Rice of last season's club and La Motte, drafted from the Memphis club.

Added Battery Strength.

Trades have added strength to both the pitching and catching staffs. Additions to the hurling corps will be Joe Bush, Joe Girard and Milton Gaston, obtained in the trade which sent Shocker to New York. The new catcher is Leo Dixon from the St. Paul club. He will be first aid to Hank Severeid. Tony Rego and Tyrrell will fight it out for the other catching job. In addition to the three hill men from the Yankees, Sisler will have Danforth, Grant, Vangilder, Pruett and Wingard from 1924 and some youngsters.

For the Cardinals, three infield positions seem to be well taken care of. They are first base, second and short. Jim Bottomley, who will again hold forth at first, is expected to improve, as he finished with a rush following his poor start last season, because of illness. Hornsby will be at second and Cooney, who set a new N. L. fielding mark for shortstops, at short. Third base is the uncertain spot. Bell, because of his hitting, likely will be favored. Freigau, Flowers, Toporcer and possibly Thevenow will give him opposition.

In the outfield, Jack Smith, who starred in 1924, is almost certain to start in right, with Ray Blades in left. Center field is uncertain. Wattie Holm finished out the 1924 campaign in the position, but it is hinted that Rickey will again shift him behind the bat. Others who will fight for places are Hafey, Douthit, Mueller and Shinners, who was drafted from Toledo.

Work for Gonzales.

Mike Gonzales, the Cuban, will again do the bulk of the catching. In spite of a late start with the Rickeymen, he worked in more clashes in 1924 than any N. L. receiver. Others on the list are Clemons and Niebergall, with the team last season: Vick, recalled from Louisville; Bool, from Fort Smith, and Holm, if Rickey decides to use him. Holm made his first appearance behind the plate last year and looked as though he might develop into a good mask and pad man.

The 1924 records showed that Rickey's pitching staff needs strengthening. The veterans are Dickerman, Sothoron, Haines, Sherdel, Stuart and Dyer. Dickerman and Sothoron pitched good ball. Haines won but nine clashes and should do better. The same for Sherdel and Stuart. The added experience should help Dyer. The chief addition to the staff was Duster Mails, the southpaw from Oakland. Others are Rhem, Day and Wigington, right-handers, and Hallahan, a southpaw, who made a great impression with Rickey last spring.

PEACE RESTORED IN SOCCER LEAGUE; RILEY TO PROPOSE GUARANTEE

that time. If I fail to gain my point I will retire from the game because years of experience have proved to me that the present pro-rata division is a constant source of ill feeling and trouble.

"The fellow who backs the clubs for the advertising he derives therefrom is the only real winner under the present arrangement. Under my plan these commercial houses will be barred. No team will be permitted to name itself after any commercial institution.

"If this proposed guarantee of $10 and $7 per game is put in effect the players will no longer have grounds for objection to the officers' disposal of gate receipts. The stockholders will assume any loss that may exist at the close of the season and they will share whatever profits may be accumulated or they may start a sinking fund with which to build a new park in a more favorable location.

"The generally disagreeable condition of our present park, the great clouds of smoke that come up from the railroad yards and brick yards, the stretch of extremely bad weather during the holidays and our failure to retain the national championship have all had some bearing on the loss of patronage at our games."

Receipts to Be Checked.

The principal demand of the players—that they be given representation in the matter of checking receipts and expenditures—has been granted unofficially by the officials. Another point of agreement is in the matter of an annual benefit game to raise money for an insurance fund. The improvement of clubhouse conditions demanded by the players met with no objection on the part of the officers. The players have objected to paying $40 per operating day to three secretaries, out of the players' share of the receipts but it is expected that a compromise will be reached on this item which is considered by both factions a minor detail.

The stockholders of the company will meet today to give consideration to the players' appeal and a meeting of the players will be held Monday evening to receive the officials' reply. While the players have instructed their committee to call a strike if the demands are not met, it is now apparent that a compromise will be reached.

AMERICAN POLO PLAYERS TO INVADE ENGLAND

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Hurlingham Polo Club has invited representatives of the American army to be guests of the club during their stay in England, says Polo Monthly.

"It is expected," says the magazine, "that the American army team will arrive in England in May, and great interest will attach to their matches against the British army, whom they defeated so unexpectedly in the United States last year. It is at least certain that Sir Harold Snagge will spare no effort, with the assistance of Lieut-Col. Scott-Duff, to give the American soldiers a very agreeable time during their visit to this country. The inter-army matches at Hurlingham promise to be the most attractive feature of next season's polo."

GEORGE LA BLANCHE WORKS AS A TAILOR

By the Associated Press.

COLUSA, Cal., Jan. 17. — George La Blanche, who in 1889 knocked out Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil, with the famous pivot punch, and surprised the pugilistic world, has been working here as a tailor for more than a year. It was not yearned until recently that he was the fighting marine of the '80s who was accorded the honors of a champion.

He is known in Colusa as George Ferguson, his real name. He is 74 now and looks hearty.

After his victory over the Nonpareil he joined a party headed by John L. Sullivan and toured Australia. In his late years he reverted to the occupation his father taught him.

Art Longworth Tells How To Play Lies on Hillsides

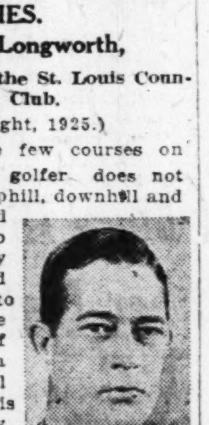
What to Do When Hill Slopes Up or Down Toward Green or When You Are Above or Below Your Ball.

ARTICLE No. 15—SLOPING LIES.

By Art Longworth,

Professional at the St. Louis Country Club.

(Copyright, 1925.)



A. LONGWORTH

THERE are few courses on which the golfer does not have to play uphill, downhill and sidehill lies and the golfer who does not study such lies and learn how to play each one will find himself out of luck in a match or medal round. In this article I will try to show how to play the different lies and as human memory fails us, I suggest that you clip out this article and keep it in your bag.

The next time you go out to play, visit one of the fairways where there are hillsides, take out a dozen balls and practice shots under the different conditions. Then keep the article handy and some day when you are playing a match and have a hillside lie, you may find that a glance at the article will be a helpful reminder of how you should play the particular shot.

There are four major situations. You may be playing up a hillside, down a hillside, or you may be playing along the side of a hill, in which case the ball may be below the point where your feet are, or above the point where you have your stance.

Take the case of the uphill shot. Your feet and the ball are on the same level, but the hill slopes upward in the direction toward the green.

Get well behind the ball, so that when you swing and follow through the clubhead won't hit into the ground. Use the open stance and play the ball off your left heel. The ball is likely to fade or curve to the right. The lay of the ground will tend to make you put cut on the ball, so play to the left of the pin.

In the case of the hill sloping down toward the green stand behind the ball, play the ball off the left heel, using the open stance. Take the clubhead back on the outside of the line of flight and again allow for cut on the ball. On the follow through bring hands down and through close to the body, finishing up to the left of the line of flight.

Now take the case of the sidehill lie, where you are standing below the ball. Remember to grip the club short. You will invariably hook in such a situation and so make allowance in your direction. Swing the same as for a full shot, playing a square stance.

When you are standing above your ball the chief thing to remember is to keep your head down. Keep your eye on the ball. There is a pronounced tendency to top the ball when you have a lie of this kind and the best way to avoid it is to keep that head down and watch the ball. When you have such a lie you are inclined to slice, so make an allowance in your direction. That is, play to the left of the pin.

In the Realm Of Bird Dogs

Short-Haired Dog Finally Wins Amateur Clubs Field Trial Championship.

By A. F. Hochwalt.

For the first time in the history of the stake, a pointer won the championship of the Associated Amateur Field Trial Clubs; but though this honor was a long time coming to the short hairs, it is generally conceded that the champion of 1925 stands out more decisively than any dog which has hitherto been awarded the title.

The dog which carried away this greatest of all honors in amateur field trial circles this year is the pointer, Seaview Rex, owned by Dr. O. D. Stickney of Atlantic City, trained by Robert Bevan of Thomasville, S. C., and handled in this event by R. W. Norman of Salisbury, N. C.

One of the stipulations in this stake is that all dogs must be handled by amateurs; it is for this reason that Bob Bevan could do nothing else but ride along back in the galleries and watch a stranger handle the great young pointer which is evidently destined for still greater deeds.

Beat His Own Entries.

Dr. Stickney, the dog's owner, could not be present to handle the dog himself and Mr. Norman, who had a couple of dogs in the stake himself, volunteered to take his place. He did his work most acceptably, for he not only secured a title for a competitor's dog, but he beat two of his own!

It is two years since the Associated Amateur Field Trial Clubs declared a champion. It was in January, 1923, that the setter, Maid's Eugene, won the title on the grounds at Grand Junction, Tennessee, where Seaview Rex ran the finest race of his career. After that event two years ago, many of the Eastern members felt that they would like to see the stake run nearer at home and Grand Junction was sacrificed by a majority vote against it, for most of the member clubs are located east of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The club tried three times to make a champion since Maid's Eugene won the stake and finally realizing that Grand Junction, Tenn., had the most desirable grounds for long heats of any field trial country in the South, it was eventually decided, after three failures had been made, to come back to Grand Junction.

Field the "Best Ever."

The stake was begun on Jan. 1, and concluded the next day. There were 10 dogs in the stake and the heats were two hours in length. It should be remembered that dogs must first qualify by winning in some all-age stake of a club which is a member of the association before he is eligible. That is why the number of starters is always small but select. This year the best lot of dogs ever assembled in this stake competed for the title.

The race of Seaview Rex was 100 per cent. He ran in fine form, showed marvelous speed and range, but what is more, he handled his game to perfection.

His first find of a bevy was on the ridge of a hill. He stood there like a graven image and, as he was on the far side of a creek from where he pointed, it required some little time for his handler to get to him; but the dog needed not a single word of caution to remain steady. When the birds were flushed and his handler fired, the dog never moved an eye lash.

Worked in Perfect Form.

That was only one bit of work, however. He made five distinct "finds" and all were as perfect as the first. He handled like a finished dog should handle, but seldom does in public competition.

This kind of work invariably wins championship titles and Seaview Rex at present looks like a most promising candidate for still higher honors. If he can run the three-hour heat as well as he did the two hours in the amateur event, there is no telling what he may do to the national championship, for such races as his cannot be beaten.

At the present time, Seaview Rex is being considered among the possibilities in the national championship in which 39 dogs are entered—and they are the best in the country.

Langford Tells How He Won Title In Mexico While Unable to See

Sam Felt Around for Opponent and When He Found His Chin One Punch Landed the Mexican Heavyweight Championship—Lost Crown Later to Clem Johnson.

Sam Langford, famous negro heavyweight boxer, in the following article, tells to a representative of the Post-Dispatch how he won the championship of Mexico, although stone blind.

THAT tournament down in Mexico City was a "lulu." The idea was to eliminate to see who was champion. They tossed me into the ring six different times and I won the title.

And I won it when I was stone blind in both eyes.

I knocked out the first three with a few punches. I could barely see them with my right eye—but that was enough. I knocked out the fourth, but before I nailed him, he caught me over the right eye and partly closed it. Two days later I stopped the fifth and that got me into the final with "Kid" Savage.

The fifth bout was on a Saturday. I was to fight Savage on Sunday. That fifth boy just landed once. It was a left hook on my right eye. He closed it tight. All through the night I worked on it to get it open—but it wouldn't.

Was Led Into Ring.

SO, when fight time came with Savage, my seconds had to LEAD me into the ring and LEAD me to my corner. I couldn't see them, couldn't see Savage; I just couldn't see anybody.

The boys wanted me to call it off. But not Little Thammy. I needed the money too much.

"Don't worry about Little Thammy," I said to them. "I don't need to see that boy. I just got to FEEL him."

Savage kept out of reaching distance for a long time. But in the fifth round I caught him and backed him to the ropes. All the time I was feeling of him to see how tall he was and where his chin was. Then, when I had him all propped and measured, I said:

"Little boy, this will be all for you."

And sure enough it was. I swung a right, caught his chin—and that's how Little Thammy got another championship.

Did Not Hold Title Long.

BUT I wasn't champion very long. Clem Johnson came into Juarez and challenged me and that boy was too tough for Little Thammy to beat with one eye gone and the other just flickering out. Clem stopped me in the thirteenth —and that's how I lost my title.

Early in 1924, they wanted me to go to Mexico City again and box Jim Flynn. I did, and knocked out Jim in three rounds. A little while later I boxed Jim in Juarez, Mexico, and won in 10 rounds.

Then I drifted into Los Angeles. They tried to help me by giving me some soft ones in four-rounders. But nobody is soft when you can't see where the punches are coming from or where to throw yours.

By that time, my right eye was so bad I knew that it was crazy for me to keep on fighting. So I decided that I'd fight just once more. That was in April, 1924.

They put Eddie Trimble against me. I went into the ring blind. During the whole first round I couldn't find Trimble—and he hit me a hundred punches. But in the second I got in a clinch, felt him over to find where his chin and body was—and then I hit him.

About Sam's Last Fight.

THE punch lifted him off his feet and he lay on the ropes. One more smack and I could have knocked him to sleep. But I didn't know where he had gone. I was running around the ring, swinging lefts and rights, hoping I'd hit Trimble. I never knew he was on the ropes.

When the crowd saw me doing that the fans knew something was wrong with me. And the referee figured I was stone blind, but the crowd didn't know about it until after the fight was over.

Oh, yes, Trimble recovered and came out in the third and pounded me all around the ring. I couldn't grab him and so couldn't hit him. When the third was over Danny Goodman, who was in my corner, said:

"Sam, this is murder. It's got to stop. I'm going to throw in the sponge."

"No," I said. "Nobody ever threw in a sponge for Little Thammy Langford—and nobody is going to. I'll get through this fourth round all right."

And I did. But I guess I took as many punches in that final round of my last fight as I ever took in an entire fight in my whole career. Trimble won—and then I took off my gloves and decided that the fighting days of Little Thammy were over.

MISSOURI BASEBALL TEAM WILL TRAIN IN OKLAHOMA THIS SPRING

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 17.—Plans for a spring training trip for the University of Missouri baseball team, which will give the Tigers a week or more of work in Oklahoma with two practice games there before the conference season opens, were announced yesterday by C. L. Brewer, director of athletics.

Negotiations are now under way, Brewer said, to obtain a suitable place in Oklahoma for the diamond squad to work from April 8 to 14.

The Tigers' conference season opens with Oklahoma University at Norman, April 15 and 16. With two games with Oklahoma, the Tigers have scheduled four with Washington, four with Kansas, two with Nebraska, two with Ames and two with the Kansas Aggies. The two practice games would bring the schedule up to the conference limit of 18 games.

RYAN CANDIDATE FOR THREE-I PRESIDENCY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—John C. Ryan, retiring president of the Peoria club, is a candidate to succeed Al Tearney as president of the Three-I League, it was announced tonight. The club owners will meet here Feb. 9 to elect a successor to President Tearney, who announced his resignation some time ago. Ryan is the oldest, in point of service, of any club president in the league. He recently resigned as president of the Peoria Fans' Association.

"Big" Munn Wi Defend His Titl First Time Feb. 3

Guarantee of $15,000 by Chicago Pomoter Accepted, Manager Announces.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 17.— Munn, conqueror of Ed Lewis holder of the world's catch-catch-can wrestling title, will wait until the end of his 12-week vaudeville contract to defend the title.

Word to this effect was brought back here by Gabe Kaufmann manages the new champion. will defend his title twice before April 1, the date previously nounced for his debut as titleholder. Chicago will first get a look at Munn in action. Kansas City second choice.

On Feb. 3 Munn will defend his title for the first time in a Chicago ring, the scene being the Coliseum. He has been guaranteed $15,000 according to his manager, wrestle an opponent to be selected by Ed White, Chicago promoter.

Stage Contract Clause Waived.

"I wanted Munn to defend his title for the first time in the ring where he won the championship," said Kauffmann today. "But the guarantee of $15,000 could hardly be turned down. I was tied up with a theatrical contract, but I told the men interested in seeing Munn wrestle in Chicago that if they could get the Orpheum management to break the contract for a week, I would consent to Munn's meeting any man suitable to the promoters.

"On my return here, yesterday, I received a telegram from White in which was stated that he had arranged with the Orpheum management to release him from service the first week in February."

"Munn's second appearance in the ring will be in Kansas City but the date and his opponents have not been selected.

150 Offers Received.

"Since Munn won the title I have received probably 150 offers from wrestling promoters and theatrical circuits.

"The acceptance of the match in Chicago has caused a change in Munn's stage dates. He was to have opened in Lincoln, Jan. 30, and 31 and appear here the week of Feb. 1."

Munn's vaudeville contract calls for 10 weeks' work on the Orpheum circuit.

He will start his stage engagement at Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 22, and 24, where he started his athletic career as a tackle on the University of Nebraska football team. Kansas City will see the world champion at the Main Street Theater the week of Jan. 25.

Munn to Illustrate How He Won.

Munn will open his act with a talk on physical culture. After the lecture the champion will retire and later come back in wrestling costume and demonstrate how he broke Lewis' headlock and won the world's championship.

For this arduous stage toil the champion will draw $2500 a week.

LEGALIZED BOXING IN BUENOS AIRES BRINGS 150,000 PESOS TO CITY

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17. —The development of boxing in Argentina is shown by a statement of the municipal revenue bureau saying that the sum of 152,000 pesos has been collected in taxes on professional matches in Buenos Aires from February to the end of October of this year. This amount represents 10 per cent of the total gate money since Feb. 10, when the act authorizing boxing became effective. The money collected is distributed to the maintenance of hospitals.

Boxing was practically unknown in this country 10 years ago, but thanks to the exploits of Luis Firpo in the United States, it is today very popular. There are hundreds of clubs scattered throughout the country whose main activity is boxing, and the public interest in pugilism is steadily increasing. Matches are held in Buenos Aires every night and the attendance runs from 3000 to 10,000, according to the importance of the program. South American professional and amateur boxing tournaments are held every year in which Argentina, Chile and Uruguay participate.

MAMAUX BALKS AT TRIP TO MINNEAPOLIS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Al Mamaux, veteran pitcher sold recently to Minneapolis by the New York Yankees, will report to Minneapolis according to Ed Barrow, secretary of the Yankees, in spite of his reported intention to claim exemption from being sent to the minors as a "10-year" man. Under major league rules a player who has been 10 years in the big circuits cannot be sent to the minors without his consent.

Barrow declared that Mamaux's major league experience did not bring him within this class, saying that the Yankees would not have made the deal otherwise.

MAJ. GRIFFITH REFUSES WISCONSIN U. OFFER

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the Western Conference, was offered but rejected the position of director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, it was learned here tonight. He declined because he desired to continue his work as "Big Ten commissioner," and to devote time to his new duties as executive vice president of the Amateur Athletic Federation of America.

Fight Between Negro and St. P Be a Battle of Safety-First Beaten, Most Colo

By John E.
Sports Editor of th

JACK DEMPSEY yesterday lande reer. That was the wallop he he announced that his coming m the movies next June would end his

A pugilistic realm without a De nog without the nog.

When dazed Fistiana begins to take stock of the material from which a successor to Dempsey must be chosen, the forlorn situation in the heavyweight world will hit home still harder.

On the entire heavyweight horizon there is no candidate who even approximate the class of Dempsey in hitting power, fighting spirit, speed and backbone.

Men there are who have some of Dempsey's best qualities: but in none of the ranking heavies is there the combination of poise, persistence and punch possessed the greatest fighter that the heavyweight world every knew—in this man's opinion, at least.

Rickard Names "Availables."

A list of the fighters available as possible successors to Dempsey includes, according to Tex Rickard, who makes and breaks champion boxers, the following battlers:

HARRY WILLS—A 33-year-old, 215-pound negro with a punch, long experience and skill, but handicapped by doubtful courage, broken hands and a tendency to grab gloves and clinch when confronted by a resolute foe.

TOM GIBBONS—A 35-year-old, safety-first lad who is the smartest defensive fighter in the game but who lacks a punch against a dangerous foe. He was beaten by the present middleweight champion Harry Greb. He is too small and is too cautious by nature.

CHARLEY WEINERT—A 30-year-old Austrian, burned out by white lights, but shifty and clever. He lacks a knockout punch—and a heart, it is whispered—and himself has been knocked out all down the line by Jack Dillon, Fred Fulton, Gene Tunney and Luis Firpo.

QUENTIN ROMERO-ROJAS—A child of the Andes, he hails from Chile. Here is a tough boy who gained some fame by beating Jack Renault. But he is 29 years old, has no skill and no snappy punch. He is a receiver-general and that lets him out. And he isn't such a good receiver at that for Gunboat Smith—the dusky one—and that powderpuff hitter, Floyd Johnson, both stopped him.

JACK RENAULT—A Canadian fighter who has some support. He is 27 years old and has not set the world afire. His defeat by Rojas set him back a couple of seasons. He is not particularly skillful and he hasn't a real punch.

LUIS ANGEL FIRPO—The Pampas Bull still seems the one able to make the most interesting fight, though far from being a real champion. Luis WILL fight. He can hit and he has yet to show the white feather. If he trained faithfully, despite his 29 years and his hopeless lack of science or a left hand, he might yet make his rivals step aside. But he is too sluggish of hand, with an ambition to become a Dempsey.

GEORGE GODREY—A big husky negro who has shown in numerous fights that he hasn't the heart.

Delaney in Line For Title Bout

Negotiations for Berlenbach Meeting to Be Opened by Tex Rickard.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Two definite barriers stand between Jack Delaney, Bridgeport (Conn.) middleweight, and the world's 160-pound title, but it is expected he will get an opportunity to scale them within the next two months. These barriers constitute the hard-punching Paul Berlenbach and the champion, Harry Greb.

Delaney's feat in stopping Tiger Flowers, Atlanta (Ga.) negro, in the second round of a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden last night places him on the verge of a championship match with Greb, but Tex Rickard would like Delaney to meet Berlenbach before taking on Greb.

Delaney fittingly established his superiority over Berlenbach when he knocked out the latter last spring. However, the New York boy has been coming along fast since then and feels he can give a good account of himself in another fling at Delaney.

Rickard said today that no arrangements had been made for the Berlenbach-Delaney match, but that negotiations would be started next week. The winner of this match will meet Greb in a title fight, Rickard said.

Griffith, commissioner of athletics in the Western Conference, was offered but rejected the position as director of athletics at the University of Wisconsin, it was learned here tonight. He declined because he desired to continue his work as "Big Ten commissioner," and also devote time to his new duties as executive vice president of the Amateur Athletic Federation of America.

DEMPSEY'S RETIREMENT WILL LEAVE TITLE AT MERCY OF WILLS

Tom Gibbons, Outweighed Forty Pounds, Only White Title Candidate of Class

Fight Between Negro and St. Paul Light-Heavyweight Would Be a Battle of Safety-First Experts—Firpo, Although Beaten, Most Colorful of Eligibles.

By John E. Wray.
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

JACK DEMPSEY yesterday landed the hardest punch of his career. That was the wallop he handed the boxing world, when he announced that his coming marriage to Miss Estelle Taylor of the movies next June would end his ring career.

A pugilistic realm without a Dempsey or a Leonard is like egg-nog without the nog.

When dazed Fistiana begins to take stock of the material from which a successor to Dempsey must be chosen, the forlorn situation in the heavyweight world will hit home still harder.

On the entire heavyweight horizon there is no candidate who even approximate the class of Dempsey in hitting power, fighting spirit, speed and backbone.

Men there are who have some of Dempsey's best qualities; but in none of the ranking heavies is there the combination of poise, persistence and punch possessed the greatest fighter that the heavyweight world every knew—in this man's opinion, at least.

Rickard Names "Availables."

A list of the fighters available as possible successors to Dempsey includes, according to Tex Rickard, who makes and breaks champion boxers, the following battlers:

HARRY WILLS—A 33-year-old, 215-pound negro with a punch, long experience and skill, but handicapped by doubtful courage, broken hands and a tendency to grab gloves and clinch when confronted by a resolute foe.

TOM GIBBONS—A 35-year-old, safety-first lad who is the smartest defensive fighter in the game but who lacks a punch against a dangerous foe. He was beaten by the present middleweight champion Harry Greb. He is too small and is too cautious by nature.

CHARLEY WEINERT—A 30-year-old Austrian, burned out by white lights, but shifty and clever. He lacks a knockout punch—and a heart, it is whispered—and himself has been knocked out all down the line by Jack Dillon, Fred Fulton, Gene Tunney and Luis Firpo.

QUENTIN ROMERO-ROJAS—A child of the Andes, he hails from Chile. Here is a tough boy who gained some fame by beating Jack Renault. But he is 29 years old, has no skill and no snappy punch. He is a receiver-general and that lets him out. And he isn't such a good receiver at that for Gunboat Smith—the dusky one—and that powderpuff hitter, Floyd Johnson, both stopped him.

JACK RENAULT—A Canadian fighter who has some support. He is 27 years old and has not set the world afire. His defeat by Rojas set him back a couple of seasons. He is not particularly skillful and he hasn't a real punch.

LUIS ANGEL FIRPO—The Pampas Bull still seems the one able to make the most interesting fight, though far from being a real champion. Luis WILL fight. He can hit and he has yet to show the white feather. If he trained faithfully, despite his 29 years and his hopeless lack of science or a left hand, he might yet make his rivals step aside. But he is too sluggish of hand, with an ambition to become a Dempsey.

GEORGE GODREY—A big husky negro who has shown in numerous fights that he hasn't the heart. He has been taken several times.

ERMINIO SPALLA—An Italian heavyweight who has been trimmed on two continents and who has little to recommend him now and scant hope in the future.

Wills Too Strong for Tom.

Undoubtedly the strong bids for recognition will be made by Wills and Gibbons. And they may be matched. And what a mess such a fight promises to be. Aside from the discrepancy in size, which amounts to 40 pounds in weight and big margins in height and reach, Gibbons lacks the tremendous strength of his powerful foe. Wills could handle Tom with ease, to judge by the way he lifted 220-pound Firpo. But the dusky aspirant's bad hands and his seeming lack of resolution would probably make a fight between the candidates a safety-first wrestling match.

Undoubtedly Wills would master Gibbons, however, and probably would knock him out, if his hands stood up.

Wills is much more powerful even than Dempsey and would wear out his veteran foe before 15 rounds were over, even though unable to land a smashing punch to the chin.

If this fight takes place, and it is recognized as being for the championship, it can be set down right now that the world will then see another negro heavyweight champion.

If Wills wins the title he will keep it until Father Time, with his scythe, cuts him down. For outside of Firpo, whom Wills already has mastered, there is not a man on the list of possibilities who is not a member of the ancient Order of Ham and Egg.

Rickard Trying to Get Jack Dempsey to Meet Tom Gibbons or Wills

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.

TEX RICKARD is trying to persuade Jack Dempsey to sign for a title fight in June with either Tom Gibbons or Harry Wills in spite of the champion's announcement that he will retire from the ring and marry this spring.

Rickard's plan would be to match Dempsey in a return bout with Gibbons early in June, either at the Yankee Stadium or Boyles' Thirty Acres. If victorious, the titleholder then would be sought for the long awaited bout with Wills, negro challenger, in September.

If the champion declines more that one bout, Rickard will give him a choice of either Gibbons or Wills as an opponent. Both of these contenders have agreements with Rickard for title matches.

"I do not take seriously Dempsey's threat to retire," Rickard declared. "I expect him to take on at least one more opponent to prove his undisputed supremacy, before relinquishing his crown."

Delaney in Line For Title Bout

Negotiations for Berlenbach Meeting to Be Opened by Tex Rickard.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Two definite barriers stand between Jack Delaney, Bridgeport (Conn.) middleweight, and the world's 160-pound title, but it is expected he will get an opportunity to scale them within the next two months. These barriers constitute the hard-punching Paul Berlenbach and the champion, Harry Greb.

Delaney's feat in stopping Tiger Flowers, Atlanta (Ga.) negro, in the second round of a 12-round match at Madison Square Garden last night places him on the verge of a championship match with Greb, but Tex Rickard would like Delaney to meet Berlenbach before taking on Greb.

Delaney fittingly established his superiority over Berlenbach when he knocked out the latter last spring. However, the New York boy has been coming along fast since then and feels he can give a good account of himself in another fling at Delaney.

Rickard said today that no arrangements had been made for the Berlenbach-Delaney match, but that negotiations would be started next week. The winner of this match will meet Greb in a title fight, Rickard said.

CHICAGO GOLFER WINS PINEHURST TOURNAMENT

By the Associated Press.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 17.—George H. Hartman of Chicago today won the championship of the Winter Golf League of Advertising Interests, defeating Robert Finney, Baltusrol, N. J., 2 up and 1 to play in the final match of the annual tournament here. The winner had a handicap of four strokes.

Gaston a Great Prospect, Yanks' Catcher Thinks

Hoffmann Says Players Thought New Brownie Best Young Hurler on Team.

By Dent McSkimming.

Freddie Hofmann, New York Yankee catcher, who returned to his home here recently after a six weeks hunting trip in the New Brunswick and Maine woods, yesterday discussed the merits of Pitcher Gaston, who comes to the Browns in the Shocker deal. Hofmann caught Gaston in most of his appearances as a Yankee pitcher last season.

"The boy won't keep you long in doubt. He'll either be a sensational pitcher or an unmistakable 'bust'," said Hofmann.

"We considered him a very fine prospect; the best young pitcher on the staff.

"His greatest asset is a 'fork' ball which breaks very much like these freak 'knuckle' deliveries. He holds the ball just the same as Joe Bush holds his famous 'fork' ball, between the first and second fingers, spread wide apart.

Uses Fork Ball as Pace Change.

"When the thing is breaking right it is not only hard to hit but difficult to catch. He uses it for a change of pace, tossing it up as a slow ball when he believes the batter is all cocked to smash a fast ball.

"Gaston is only 22 years old, is big and rugged. He likes to work and that is one reason, I suppose, why Huggins let him go in as a relief pitcher so often. He won several games for us by going in in the middle of an enemy batting rally and stopping them dead. He has nerve and he is cool."

Hofmann gave his version of the cause of Joe Bush's streak of bad pitching in the middle of last season. Bush, obtained by the Browns in the trade for Shocker, started the season well, winning his first five games, and finished up in fine form, but in the middle of the fight he went dead.

Bush Out of Condition.

"Bush early in the season hit the ball very hard and Huggins used him often as a pinch hitter. He likes to bat and so every day he took swings at the plate in batting practice with the regular lineup. Instead of taking one or two trips to the plate, he stayed in around the batting cage and as a result he did not 'shag' fly balls in the outfield. After several weeks of that sort of stuff, Bush naturally found himself out of condition.

"Finally, the other players pointed out that the cause of his failure to win games was due to his lack of training in 'shagging' flies in the outfield and 'warming up.' Bush started late in the season to work hard and it wasn't long before he was back in great form and he finished as well as any pitcher on the staff."

COAST LEAGUE SIGNS AGREEMENT WITH A. A.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 17.—A five-year agreement for the "little world's series," to be played between the American Association and the Pacific Coast Baseball League pennant winners, authorized at the recent Coast League semiannual meeting, has been signed by Presidents Thomas J. Hickey and Harry A. Williams.

Blouin Will Oppose Detroit Bowler in Championship Match

JIMMY BLOUIN of Chicago, world's bowling champion, will defend his title in an 80-game, total pins to count match against Joe Scribner of Detroit, starting at Detroit, Jan. 24. Forty games will be decided in the Michigan city and the other 40 in Chicago, opening Jan. 31.

The match will be for a purse of $1000, with the gate receipts to be split 65 per cent to the winner and 35 to the loser, after all expenses have been deducted.

Scribner won the right to oppose Blouin through his victory over Ernie Hartman, another Detroit star, in a 40-game match, 8158 pins to 7967.

TENPIN ASSOCIATION TO SELECT DELEGATES TO ATTEND THE A. B. C.

The St. Louis Tenpin Bowling Association will hold a meeting at the Statler Hotel at 3 o'clock this afternoon to select delegates and alternates to the annual meeting of the American Bowling Congress to be held in Buffalo early in March. It is expected that close to 20 local quintets will make the trip to the national championship.

In addition, bids will be received from the alley owners for the next annual city championship tournaments, and the drives selected. It is planned to hold the city scratch next fall and the annual handicap affair next spring.

Other business of importance also will be brought up.

Municipal Sport Mass Meeting to Be Held Jan. 23

52,000 Persons Participated in Park Athletics in Year—Facilities Inadequate.

By Davison Obear.

More than 52,000 players participated in the organized branches of sport conducted in the various public parks during the past year, according to unofficial estimates based on Municipal Athletic Association reports. A considerable percentage of this number includes persons over the age of 21 years.

To the above total may be added those persons who participate in the other sports such as rowing, swimming, track, bicycling, handball and the playground games. Starting in 1912 the number of users of the public parks for recreational purposes has steadily increased.

The organized sports and the number of participants are indicated as follows:

Sport.	Players.
Tennis	31,718
Golf	13,806
Baseball	5,000
Soccer	2,000
Basketball	810
Total	53,328

According to the annual report of Park Commissioner Pape the figures for tennis and golf are official. The figures on participants in the three other sports are estimated.

Ficilities Inadequate.

Interest in municipal sport has outgrown the facilities. For this reason the Municipal Athletic Council has called a mass meeting to be held in the Community Center Building, Grand and Vista, on Friday, Jan. 23. At this gathering the representatives of the various sports will tell of their needs for additional facilities. Every person interested in municipal athletics is invited to attend. All of the city officials will also be asked to come to the meeting.

More facilities are needed for every branch of sport conducted in the public parks of the city. The following is a list of playing fields under supervision of the Park Department:

Tennis courts	75
Baseball diamonds	41
Soccer fields	15
Handball courts	4
Golf courses	2

Considering the number of players the facilities for golf and tennis are very inadequate. Players using the tennis courts and golf grounds are many times required to wait several hours before they are able to start play. Records show that in proportion to participants this city is far behind other cities in tennis equipment.

In the next several years money from the bond issues will be of some assistance in relieving the situation. Three years ago Philadelphia voted $50,000 for the construction of new tennis courts in its public parks. Within the period of three years St. Louis spent $42,000 for the maintenance of tennis.

St. Louis Boxers Named for Trips Away from Home

Kansas City Asks for Five and Indianapolis Wants Two More.

As a result of the success enjoyed by the amateur boxing game in St. Louis since the Registration Committee of the A. A. U. took charge recently, St. Louis has been honored within the last week with requests from Indianapolis and Kansas City for the appearance of St. Louis talent.

Chairman Robert Probst yesterday announced that the committee had selected seven boxers to represent this city in two out-of-town tournaments, both of which are to be held on Jan. 31.

Five boys will go to Kansas City where the Kansas City Athletic Club will hold a boxing carnival. They are as follows:

105-pound class—Tony Pirrone, Sherman Park Community Center.

112-pound class—Mike Sansone, Business Men's A. C.

118-pound class—Sam Schenemann, South Broadway A. C.

160-pound class—Joe Dugan, Business Men's A. C.

This team will be under the care of Chairman Probst and Harry Cook, manager of the Business Men's Athletic Club.

On the same evening a pair of local boxers will be contestants in a show to be held by the Hoosier A. C., at Indianapolis. They are:

118-pound class—Eddie Kaiser, S. B. A. C.

135-pound class—Jack Horner, S. B. A. C.

Kaiser will be matched with Lawrence Pruitt, who defeated the St. Louis boy in the Coliseum ring a month ago. Horner will be sent against Ray Dodd of Indianapolis who secured a point victory over the St. Louisan here a month ago.

Selections by Committee.

The selections made by the Registration Committee were based upon the performances of contestants in recent shows. In the case of the Indianapolis team, the request from the Hoosier A. C. specifically named Horner and Kaiser. The Kansas City A. C. communication asked for a leading local boxer in each of the five weight classes.

A tournament will be held by the Business Men's A. C. at the Coliseum, Jan. 29. The proximity of the out-of-town tournaments, two days later, will not prevent the appearance of seven selected boys in the Coliseum show.

2000 FIVES EXPECTED TO COMPETE IN ANNUAL A. B. C. TOURNAMENT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 17.—With the assurance of an entry of over 2000 teams and probably close to the record of 2132 teams established at Chicago last year, Buffalo bowling officials have signed contracts for the installation of 28 alleys in the Broadway auditorium, Buffalo's convention hall, for the pin knights to occupy during the twenty-fifth annual international tournament of the American Bowling Congress to be held here March 5 to April 6.

Secretary A. L. Langtry of the American Bowling Congress reports an entry of 900 teams outside of Buffalo at this date and with a like number of local teams having made reservations, there is no doubt but what over 2000 teams will be in before the closing of entries Feb. 4. Secretary Langtry is receiving entries at his headquarters, 175 Second street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Twenty-eight alleys will allow for the bowling of 896 Buffalo teams in the first eight days of the tournament, 32 squads being scheduled afternoon and evening over this period. The visiting teams will start about March 13 and from that date until the close of the tournament two squads of five-man bowlers will be scheduled each night with doubles and singles in the morning and afternoon. This arrangement will allow for the rolling of 2240 teams in the 32-day tournament.

ADOLPHUS, 10 TO 1, WINNER IN REX HANDICAP

Sarazen's Full Brother Beats Elsass by a Nose; Odds on Choice Is Third

Quatrain, Conceding the Winner 13 Pounds, Finishes Length Behind the Victor—Wild Aster Wins Whirl Handicap, Carrying 18 Pounds More Than Little Visitor

Special to The Post-Dispatch

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 17.—In a driving finish, Col. Phil Chinn's Adolphus, full brother of Sarazen, captured the honors in the Rex Handicap, feature of Saturday afternoon's racing at the Fair Grounds. Elsass finished a neck behind the son of High Time, while a length to the rear of Elsass came the 1 to 2 favorite, Quatrain, which performed impressively in his previous start. W. Harvey was astride the winner, his third of the afternoon.

Adolphus was hustled away from the barrier and into a good lead by the sorrel-top apprentice, who is showing the way to the local riding colony. After the field had gone a half mile, Adolphus maintained a three-length advantage over Quatrain. The latter then gave way to Elsass which moved up resolutely in the stretch.

Rounding the turn into the lane that leads to the finish line, Elsass narrowed down Adolphus' advantage to half length and had the leader driving to the limit. All through the final eighth of the six-furlong journey Willie Harvey and Brother Burt fought it out and the younger member of the Harvey family clearly demonstrated his superiority over his older brother.

Quatrain Conceded Winner 13 Pounds.

As good as 12 to 1 could have been obtained against the chances of the winner. Adolphus, like his brother Sarazen, is a gelding. He was conceded 13 pounds weight by Quatrain, odds-on choice.

Much to the satisfaction of many Orleanians, Jockey Adrian Vuillemott, a local boy, piloted Calcutta to victory in the opening contest, a six-furlong affair for 3-year-olds and upwards. It was the second winner of his career. Lady Boss finished second and Battle Shot was third. Montifringilla, the favorite, failed to take down any portion of the purse.

Vuillemott held the chestnut son of Colin behind the pace for the first quarter which was set by Lady Boss, the speedy beginner. Upon entering the stretch the local lad sent his mount into the lead and steadily drew clear of all competition. Although Calcutta maintained a good margin over Lady Boss in the final sixteenth, Vuillemott did not stop urging the chestnut horse until he had passed the wire.

Favorite Tires, Bush Buck Wins.

Bush Buck scored his first victory in the colors of A. Crouch when the bay gelding came home the winner of the second race, which was at a mile and 70 yards. Willie Harvey's urging and good judgment was largely responsible for the triumph. Futuro, the favorite, got the place, while the badly tiring Nivlag lasted long enough to be third.

At the barrier's rise, Nivlag jumped into the lead and set a fast pace in the heavy going. Bush Buck was rated in behind the leader, with Harvey holding him in stout restraint. Nivlag let go after making the turn into the stretch and Bush Buck took command, but Harvey had to put forth his best efforts to keep the gelding there to the finish.

Third Victory for Geldings.

Weight doesn't seem to bother the Greentree Stable's Wild Aster, at least it didn't in the Whirl Handicap, secondary feature on the program. The chestnut gelding romped to an easy victory over Little Visitor and the Runt in the sprinting event which brought out five starters. Wild Aster was the odds-on choice and came in for a good deal of support.

In scoring his second consecutive victory of the day Harvey handled Wild Aster in the same manner which he had Bush Buck in the preceding race. Kept off of the pace until well into the stretch, Wild Aster raced the Runt into submission and drew out. Little Visitor closed fast in the last furlong but stepped in a hole and was thrown off her stride, losing about a half length by the mishap.

W. Harvey Wins Four Races.

Another victory was scored by Harvey when he drove Blue Hill home the winner of the fifth race, a mile and one-sixteenth affair. Escarpolette finished second and Bad Luck gathered in the short end of the purse. It was the Canadian red-head's fourth consecutive triumph of the day.

Blue Hill took the lead soon after the "gate" was released and held sway for the entire trip, but needed hard urging in the last sixteenth of the journey.

Harvey's winning streak was broken when he failed to come down in the sixth race with Smuts, which was well-played because of his presence in the saddle. Soldier II gathered in the coin in this event which was at a mile and a half. Sophy held on to the place while Proceeds held off Smuts for the low end of the purse.

It was merely a canter for the black son of Bard of Hope throughout the entire trip. At the release of the webbing, Soldier II jumped into the lead and immediately opening up a good gap steadily increased his margin and finished out the distance with a six-length margin.

Soldier II was 2 to 5 favorite and should have been in view of his recent good efforts in the soft going.

Asbestos Picked This One.

Over Fire, odds-on favorite, took down the purse in the closing number, winning over Tantalus and Demijohn. However, Over Fire was stopping in the last sixteenth and his rider had to go to the "bat" in an effort to keep his charge at the head of the procession. Tantalus was closing gamely and was wearing down the winner.

W. Harvey Rides Four Consecutive Winners; Seven in 13 Starts

JOCKEY W. HARVEY today rode four consecutive winners at New Orleans, including both stake races. In addition he bestrode two seconds and one unplaced.

Yesterday Harvey had mounts in six out of the seven events scheduled. He rode three winners, two seconds and one third.

He was unplaced only once in 13 starts and scored seven victories in two days. At New Orleans they have begun to play his mounts regardless of how they figure.

BREWER UNDECIDED AS TO WISCONSIN OFFER

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 17.—Following a conference with Prof. James Moore of the University of Wisconsin, C. L. Brewer, director of athletics at the University of Missouri here, today declared that he had reached no decision regarding the acceptance of a position as director of athletics at the Badger institution, which is his alma mater. Brewer said he did not expect to reach any decision in the matter today.

The Missouri director characterized the Wisconsin directorship as one of the most attractive positions in the United States, declaring the possibilities there were almost unlimited. He added, however, that when he returned to Missouri less than two years ago he did so with the intention of making this State his home.

Attack, Defense and Style Should Be Analyzed in Judging Ring Bout

Referee Sharpe Calls Attention to Necessity for an Understanding of the Rules of Boxing in Order That a Just Decision May Be Reached.

This is the thirteenth of a series of articles written by officials in charge of amateur boxing in this district in which an endeavor is made to better acquaint boxers and spectators with the rules of the game.

By Harry S. Sharpe,
Referee and for 30 Years a Student of Boxing.

To properly judge a boxing contest is no easy task. If it were, there would be more referees and judges.

H. S. SHARPE.

In a letter received by me from Mr. William Muldoon, of the New York State Athletic Commission, he comments as follows:

"One of the most difficult problems that we have to deal with is to secure men to serve as referees who, first of all, have the proper knowledge of the rules and regulations and have courage to decide as they think right, giving no attention whatever to the protests or the hisses and booing of the audience. They must, also, be alert and quick in their movements, and not at all self-conscious. They must have power of concentration and be undisturbed or influenced by the surroundings, and must be honest above all things.

The foregoing quotation needs no elucidation by me, but as in these articles we are discussing the rules I want to stress the necessity of a thorough knowledge of the code before one is competent to judge. This applies particularly to referees and judges who officially arrive at decisions.

It would also be beneficial if the majority of spectators would give a like consideration to all the merits of each contestant before deciding which is the better boxer. This would immediately serve to raise the standard of amateur boxing and would, therefore, improve the game generally.

Three Distinct Divisions.

In order to properly arrive at a decision the activities of the contestants must be separated into three divisions and viewed from these angles—ATTACK, DEFENSE, STYLE and GENERALSHIP, the latter two being combined.

It must be borne in mind that scientific boxing is not taught for the purpose of enabling men to beat up each other, but to enable them to protect themselves when assaulted. Hence the necessity of developing a "DEFENSE," and this must be given due consideration when judging a contest.

"ATTACK must be given preeminent consideration, because without it there would be no contest.

"STYLE and GENERALSHIP" is to be considered in the general resume of the contest, particularly applying to contestant's department and his activities in taking advantage of openings and opportunities afforded him by the rules and science of boxing, and minimizing his chances of being beaten, or saving himself from defeat.

In the next three articles "attack," "defense," "style and generalship" will be separately discussed in the order named.

Hartford Owned .691 Mark First Season in N. L.

Club Had Many Famous Players—Bulkeley Was Club's First President.

(This is the twelfth article of the series which John B. Foster is writing to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the National League, which will be celebrated the coming season.)

By John B. Foster.
(Copyright, 1925.)

In early baseball, Hartford always played a prominent part. The old Charter Oaks, organized in 1874, were one of the nation's famous ball clubs.

The Hartford team was a member of the National League in its first year, and the manager was Robert Ferguson, one of the best-known men in the history of the game and a player of unlimited pluck and courage. His whole baseball career was exemplary.

Other players of this team were famous. They were Doug Allison, W. A. Cummings, the first man to throw the curve; Tommy Bond, one of the National League's great pitchers; Ed Mills, the giant first baseman; Jack Burdock, a second baseman, whose reputation as a player always will live; Tom Carey, Tom York, one of the best outfielders baseball ever had; J. J. Remsen, Pete Cassidy, Dick Higham and W. H. Harbridge.

Team Finished Third.

Hartford was in the fight all the way through the first year of National League history, and finished third, with a percentage of .691, as a result of 47 games won to 21 lost. That was good enough baseball to win a championship in almost any year, but the Hartfords that year were playing against the strong Chicagos and the St. Louis team, which was much stronger than had been expected.

The head of the club was Morgan G. Bulkeley who was also the first president of the National League. Bulkeley became Governor of Connecticut and State Senator. However, he never lost his interest in baseball. He was identified with the great insurance interests of Hartford and a zealous worker among his employes to maintain athletic interest, which he insisted was the best tonic for indoor workers.

Owned Flying Outfield.

It was the flying outfield of the Hartford club that gave a new zest to playing that position in baseball. There had been a tendency to pick big and heavy men for outfielders because it was thought big men could hit the ball farther. It had been the idea that the principal aim of the outfielder should be to get long hits and not bother much about fielding.

The Hartford outfielders were very proficient in catching long flies and while they did not bat as hard as some of their rivals it dawned upon the managers of other clubs that the ability of the Hartford outfielders to catch the long hits more than offset any disadvantage that they might have in the distance they batted the ball. That started speed in the oufield.

(In his next article Foster will discuss "The Louisvilles," another of the famous National League teams of the early days.)

NOTRE DAME CENTER NAMED HEAD COACH OF SANTA CLARA COLLEGE

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Jan. 17.—Adam Walsh, captain of the Notre Dame team last season, has accepted the position as head football coach of Santa Clara College, San Jose, Cal., and has signed a contract for five years.

Walsh's selection as coach by Santa Clara is said to have followed a conference which Walsh had with the athletic authorities when he was on the Pacific Coast with the Notre Dame team.

Walsh will report Sept. 15 and devote three months of each year to the post. During the other nine months he will be connected with a San Francisco business house.

NEWARK POLO TEAM DEFEATS PHILADELPHIA

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Newark, N. J. defeated Philadelphia, 10 to 6½, in the second consolation round of the intercity indoor polo tournament today.

Goals — For Newark, Clough 2, Towers 4, Gessford 5.

For Philadelphia — Kingsley 3, Wolfs 3, Snellenbur 1.

Fouls—Newark 2, Philadelphia 1.

Wrestlers to Wear Caps.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Jan. 17.—Cauliflower ears need no longer be feared by Indiana University wrestlers, it was said today, when Coach Jack Reynolds put his Crimson squad to work wearing especially prepared caps. The cap has reinforced flaps over the ears and is designed to prevent the breaking of the cartilage which results in the ear resembling a cauliflower.

WILL ROGERS

Another 'Bull' Durham advertisement by Will Rogers, Ziegfeld Follies and screen star, and leading American humorist. More coming. Watch for them.

THIS is supposed to be an ad. It isn't like a lot of these ads that try to fool you as to what they are until you get to the end. I can tell an ad as far off as I can see it. And if I can see one that far, so can the great American public who are at least as quick as I am. And that's putting them at the lowest possible scale of intelligence.

I repeat, I want it distinctly understood that this is an ad. What's more, it's one of my first attempts at ad writing. Of course, the logical question is what does Will Rogers know about writing an ad? My answer is simple—everything!

The first thing any ad writer has got to know is how to get paid and I found that out, in fact, the first letters of the alphabet I learned were P. I. A.—that means Pay In Advance.

The real truth about why I started writing ads for these people is that I got a family kicking the toes out of lots of shoes daily and I read where my employers sold enough of their stuff so that if the bags were laid end to end they would stretch further than from Oklahoma to Yokohama—and that's some stretch. So I think this looks good to me. That's why I signed up. I hope it turns into a steady job. At any rate, I'll have another piece here next Sunday.

P. S. I like to forgot to tell you what I was advertising. It's 'Bull' Durham. I don't smoke it myself. I don't smoke anything, but somebody does or else what happened to all those bags?

IT'S MORE ECONOMICAL of course, but the real reason thousands of he-men swear by good ol' 'Bull' Durham is because for sheer goodness of flavor you just can't tie it.

The Result-Meter

—Local Display Advertising

Years and years of experience has proved to St. Louis advertisers that one newspaper produces far better results than any of the other newspapers—that is why the Post-Dispatch alone—year in and year out—carries far more Local Display Advertising than the Globe-Democrat and The Star COMBINED.

Local Display Advertising During 1924:

Post-Dispatch alone	14,398,720	Agate Lines
Globe-Democrat and The Star* combined	12,253,200	Agate Lines
Post-Dispatch excess over both	2,145,520	Agate Lines

The Gain of the Daily Post-Dispatch in Local Display Advertising was far in excess of that of the Daily Globe-Democrat or the Times. The Star* was the only St. Louis Daily newspaper to show a loss for the year.

The Post-Dispatch is First in St. Louis

First in Local Display Advertising
First in National Display Advertising
First in Want Advertising
First in Real Estate Advertising
First in Total Paid Advertising
DAILY—First in St. Louis Circulation—SUNDAY

Supremacy in city circulation makes advertising profitable and the continued concentration of advertising in ONE newspaper proves that newspaper's circulation supremacy

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Evening Post in its weekly copyrighted financial review says:

"The feature of the week has been a mild and perfectly natural reaction in the markets. With the stimulating effects of the early January reinvestment demand wearing off, with money tightening moderately after extreme ease, with prices at new tops, and with technical positions weakened, some reaction was more or less inevitable. Profits were taken and experiments on the short side were invited. So far the reaction has held within comparatively narrow bounds; the recession has been orderly. A pretty good brand of support has been uncovered. It is quite possible that the reaction will go further; such a development would not force a conclusion that the bull market is over. On the other hand, it is not impossible that the advance will be resumed. Money is easy and is likely to remain easy. Dividends are being increased. There seems to be no bad news in the making. While a reaction at this stage of affairs would not be surprising, there is no reason to fear one of any great severity until the character of industrial news changes.

Foreign News Cheerful.

"It is still too early in the year to obtain a trustworthy idea of the trend of business. The steel industry has increased its operations further and is now working at approximately 85 per cent of capacity. This fact serves to remind one that a great deal of steel is being made. And the market for steel and pig iron, after a series of advances and a good deal of buying, is quieter. It would be a mistake to assume that these conditions indicate a weak situation. There is as yet no suggestion that operations at the steel mills are to be speeded up quickly to capacity. And a breathing spell in the iron and steel markets after the good buying of the past two months is quite in the natural order of events. Meanwhile car loadings are picking up after the holidays, cotton consumption is larger and an increased scale of operations in the automobile industry is practically a certainty. In short, the industrial outlook still is encouraging.

"The news from abroad also is of a cheerful character. The conference that has just come to a close at Paris is a success. Certain important problems were settled. What is more important, the various countries concerned displayed the same spirit of conciliation and fair-mindedness that made the Dawes plan possible. They showed that their chief concern was to clear up the war wreckage and get on with the work of economic and financial reconstruction. With regard to our own part in the conference there has been a good deal of rather fruitless argument over the question of whether or not our representatives won a victory or came off second best, and of whether we became entangled in European affairs. From the business standpoint the encouraging aspect of the matter is that our Government was willing to discuss things in give-and-take manner, to make concessions and to adjust its claim to the possibilities of the situation. It is less important to know whether the administration did a smart thing than whether it did a sensible thing. And as the conference closes it becomes apparent that the chances for a rational handling of the allied debts are measurably bettered. Bearing in mind our huge foreign loans, it is reassuring to observe the signs of a consistent improvement in the foreign outlook.

Profit-Taking in Sterling.

"The profit-taking that featured the week also made itself felt with regard to the pound sterling. That also is a perfectly natural development. But that the pound is on its way to parity seems pretty well established. A sign of the times is furnished by a dispatch from Pretoria giving the conclusions arrived at by Prof. Kemmerer and Dr. Vissering after an investigation of the desirability of a return to the gold standard by the Union of South Africa. These two currency experts strongly recommend that South Africa go on a gold basis by July 1. They review the advantages that will accrue to the country, such as greater stability of purchasing power, interest rates and exchange, greater confidence at home and abroad and a lower level of real interest rates. The pound really needs little urging. It should be fairly obvious that every one will be better off when the whole business world gets back onto a sound money basis."

"Prices resumed their upward course in the stock market today as a result of further covering of short commitments. The industrial group displayed the greatest strength and several stocks advanced to new high levels for the movement. Substantial recoveries from recent lows were recorded by General Electric, American Can, General Motors, and American Locomotive. Another advance of 19 points by Nash Motors to a record high at 285, attracted attention in the motor group, but the remainder of these shares moved irregularly. Allis Chalmers was another stock in the industrial list which touched a new high in the general advance. Selling pressure which forced the midweek recession apparently had been lifted and buying by those who had taken a short position, helped the recovery. Sales in the first hour exceeded 400,000 shares, and the volume of business in the two-hour session was not far below the million share mark.

Foreign Exchange Firmer.

"Foreign exchange rates ruled firm throughout the list and the volume of business was fairly heavy. Sterling moved forward fractionally, but lire proved to be the feature of the day's trading. Heavy buying in exchange on Italy sent rates up to the highest level of the week.

"The statement of the New York Clearing House as of the close of business Jan. 17 showed the following changes: Loans, discounts, investments, decreased $95,279,000; net demand deposits decreased $51,200,000; time deposits decreased $1,193,000; circulation increased $22,000 and excess reserves increased $93,771,930.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"Outside of a sudden decline in Italian exchange the foreign exchange market generally moved in an orderly manner all through the week and ended with rates showing little variation from those of the preceding week. The unsettlement in Italian exchange first developed in London where lire checks sold as low at 4.00¼ a new low record for recent years. But in this market the lowest prices touched was 4.01½. Offerings were easily absorbed, although there was a disposition to look on the decline as a natural consequence of the political unrest in Italy and it was not long before urgent buying appeared, causing a rally to 4.12¼ in yesterday's trading. Sterling made a high level for the week on Monday, when demand sold at $4.79¾, and after falling to $4.75⅝, recovered about 2 cents and then eased off again. French was under pressure for the first few days, checks in Paris yielding to 5.34, but became firm in the last half of the week, crossing [illegible].

"Belgian was exceptionally strong through the week, moving up from [illegible] to 5.03. There was little variation in Swiss exchange, although it showed heaviness for a time. Dutch exchange, after falling from 40.40 to 40.28, recovered nearly all its loss. Scandinavian exchanges were fairly steady, although Danish fell down from 17.84 to 17.76 in the first half of the week and rallied at the end. Greek exchanges, after being inactive for a long period, became heavy, drachmas selling down to 1.72. South American exchanges showed an easier tone, but became firm in the past few days and ended with little net change.

"Bankers generally agreed in the view that the various movements in sterling were directed to a great extent by the steps connected with carrying the rate to parity in dollars.

"Foreign exchange rates Saturday ruled firm throughout the list and the volume of business was fairly heavy. Sterling moved forward fractionally, but lire proved to be the feature of the day's trading. Heavy buying in exchange on Italy sent rates up to the highest level of the week."

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Cotton goods were steady today, with many prices ⅛c higher than a week ago. Sales of print cloths for the week approximated production. Raw silk was slightly easier. Burlaps were lower on spot and afloat goods, with futures unchanged. Large numbers of wholesale buyers are in markets. Wool goods openings are expected to show substantial advances on all-wool goods.

WEEK-END COTTON CHANGES ARE SMALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—An opening advance promoted by relatively firm Liverpool cables was followed by reactions in the cotton market today, with March contracts selling off from 23.87c to 23.72c and closed at the lower figure. The general market closed barely steady, net 3 points lower to 3 points higher.

The opening was 2 to 12 points higher on covering and local buying inspired by the steady showing of the English market and more encouraging reports from the domestic goods trade. These features probably served to emphasize the bullish view of yesterday's census report on domestic mill consumption, but the initial demand was supplied within the first few minutes and the market soon turned easier. Reports of further rains in Texas were a factor on the decline which followed. October eased off to 23.75c, or 5 points net lower. There was demand enough to steady the price at that figure, however, and the market later was influenced by near-month liquidation or transferring of long commitments from January, March, May to later deliveries. This was evidently promoted by reports that approximately 50,000 bales of cotton were to be shipped from the New Orleans certificated stock to New York delivery on January and March contracts.

January sold off to 23.50c or 3 points net lower, while May declined from 24.18c to 24.05c. Closing prices were at the lowest on all positions except July and later months, which showed moderate closing rallies.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was 218,495 bales, compared with only 86,385 last year. Liverpool cables attributed the relative steadiness there to continued trade buying of new crops and a good spot demand.

Reports reaching here from New Bedford said that textile operatives there had agreed to accept the 10 per cent cut in wages.

Liverpool Cotton Quiet.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 17.—Cotton spot quiet; prices steady; strictly good middling 13.81d; good middling 13.46d; strictly middling 13.31d; middling 13.06d; strictly low middling 12.76d; low middling 12.46d; strictly good ordinary 12.06d; good ordinary 11.46d. Sales 5000 bales, including 1500 American. Receipts 16,000 bales including 15,400 American. Futures closed steady. Jan. 12.79d; March 12.85d; May 12.92d; July 12.96d; Oct 12.75d; Dec. 12.64d

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Cottonseed oil shared today's buoyancy manifest in lard and grain, prices moving up 10 to 14 points through demand from commission houses and shorts. Realizing sales reduced gains to eight to 11 points at the close. New York Coffee.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Recent declines were followed by rallies in the market for coffee futures here today, on covering and buying believed to be for European account. The opening was 15 points lower to five points higher, with near months relatively easy under continued liquidation, but prices quickly firmed up, May advancing from 18.98 to 19.30 and closing at 19.25. The general market closed seven to 30 points higher. Sales were estimated at 38,000. Closing quotations: January, 21.35c; March, 20.40c; May, 19.25c; July, 18.30c; September, 17.60c; December, 17.15c.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The raw sugar market was firm with prices 1-32c higher at 4.59c for Cuban duty paid. Sales of 15,000 bags of Cuban were reported for prompt shipment to a local refiner.

Raw sugar futures were higher on covering and buying for trade and outside account, prompted by firmness in the spot market. Final prices were 2 to 8 points net higher. January closed 2.95c; March, 2.84c; May, 2.96c; July, 3.06c.

No changes occurred in refined sugar, list prices ranging from 6.10c to 6.25c for fine granulated, with a fair inquiry reported.

Refined futures were unchanged, with sales of one lot for May delivery at 6.35c.

ST. LOUIS STOCKS

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, Jan. 17.—Wagner Electric common, Pedigo-Weber and Hydraulic Brick preferred were the outstanding features on the exchange the past week. Wagner Electric led in activity, more than 2800 shares changing hands, while Pedigo-Weber was first in ground gained, showing net advance of 21 points. Directors of the Pedigo-Weber Shoe Co. have recommended a 200 per cent stock dividend and later will take up the question of increase in dividend rate. One report is that the present stock will be put on a $6 annual basis. Missouri Portland Cement was another strong issue, selling at 160 at the closing session of the week. The street heard a report of a stock distribution of some kind. United Railways 4s featured the bond section of the market.

Total sales of stocks on the exchange during the week amounted to 20,501 shares. Bond sales were $77,000.

Following is a complete list of securities traded in on the St. Louis Stock Exchange during the past week, sales, highest, lowest, closing prices and net changes being given:—

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Stocks were active and strong in the short session today. Many new high prices were made and the buying was evenly distributed, both industrials and rails participating in the advance. The most conspicuous moves, however, were among the former. Short covering played a prominent part in the dealings while fresh buying was encouraged by the extent of the recent reaction and the fact that the outside news showed continued improvement in various lines of industry. Profit taking sales in the second and last hour caused some recessions from the early highs.

United States Steel common crossed 124 again on heavy trading. In the independents Republic, Gulf States, Crucible and Sloss-Sheffield all went higher, the gains extending to a point or more. Allis Chalmers touched a new top well above the 80 level, and General Electric sold several points higher. Among the public utilities Brooklyn Union Gas was again a feature at a record high. Reports persisted that favorable dividend action would occur shortly. American Car & Foundry went across 200 again, and American Radiator had a sharp run up of several points. Nash Motors which had advanced 16 points on the preceding day, opened up 19 points this morning. Mack Trucks and White Motors also were strong.

The high prices were made toward the close whe U. S. Steel common on very heavy trading rose sharply to 125⅛, or within an eighth of its recent high. Other independent steels were strong. Buying orders came into the market in large volume in the last half hour, and as a result prices were bid up briskly all around.

The Bond Market.

Prices closed the week in the bond market generally higher except for Liberties and the savings bank rails. Certain issues yielding around 6 per cent were in demand. An example is Missouri Pacific 6s, which sold above par for the first time, and such bonds as Tennessee Electric Power 6s and North American Edison 6s and 6½s. The class of bonds now coming into favor are those which are not quite good enough for the very conservative, and too slow moving for the speculatively minded.

U. S. Government bonds and the high grade rails were irregular today but on the week the Libertys show small declines in response to repeated predictions of higher money. For the same reason there has been an unusually good demand this week for short term securities. Pennsylvania Railroad collateral 7s of 1930 selling on a 5 per cent basis is a type of this bond. Another railroad bond of fairly short term which has had a better market is Colorado & Southern 4½s. This kind of investment buying has likewise shown itself in United Kingdom 5½s of 1937 which at 106½ have this week equaled their record high for all time. In this case the maturity return is under 5 percent but higher than that afforded by first mortgage domestic rails.

In general the foreign group has done better this week. The French issues have dragged, especially the 8s, which fell below 103 for the first time on this movement, but most of the list was higher. The feature among European bonds has been the City of Copenhagen 5½s, with an advance of more than 2 points based probably on the fact that drawings by the sinking fund for redemption at par to the amount of $750,000 annually will begin on July 1 next.

Chicago Great Western 4s at 61½ were selling 1¾ points above the low of the week. During the week all of the Seaboard Air Line issues, except the adjustments, have made substantial gains.

In tractions B. M. T. 6s have been consistently strong at a new high record above 85 and some revival of interest has come into Chicago Railways 5s, which are up over a point on the week.

New offerings this week have been comparatively small. The largest was $30,000,000 4½ per cent 3-year notes of the Edison Electric Co. of Boston on a 4.75 per cent basis.

In Financial Field

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.

E. W. Marland, president of the Marland Oil Co., announced today that J. P. Morgan & Co. would buy 100,000 shares of Marland stock at once and that an option on 235,000 other shares had been extended for six months from Feb. 10. The transaction, Mr. Marland explained, would enable the company to avail itself immediately of the advantageous opportunities in the oil industry. The closing market price of Marland Oil stock today was 43¾. Under an old agreement the oil company promised the stock to the banking firm at 39 and $1 a share extra for the option privilege.

The Mercantile Stores Co., Inc., proposes to increase the authorized capital stock from $5,400,000 to $21,600,000, stockholders to receive three shares of new common, which will begin paying dividends of $3 a share annually, and one share of new 7 per cent preferred, in exchange for each share of the present no par value capital stock. Mercantile Stores old is quoted at 460, a gain of about 250 points in the last year. The new stock is selling around 120.

Holders of the Chinese 5 per cent sinking fund gold loans of 1911, the Hukuang issue, who were notified by New York bankers last December interest would not be paid, were surprised to receive notice a few days ago that the fourth annual drawing had been effected and about $500,000 of the bonds would be redeemed at par on June 15, 1925. Although paying no interest, China is redeeming the bonds at 100, which is $57 above the current market price. The original issue was £6,000,000, which has been cut to £5,610,000 through the sinking fund.

The Houston Oil Co. plans to clear up back dividends by paying off $475,000 of its 6 per cent, accrued dividend certificates on Feb. 1, which is the balance of an original issue of $2,394,000 issued Aug. 1, 1911, in settlement of accrued dividends up to that date amounting to 54 per cent on the preferred stock. With these certificates out of the way no obligations would be ahead of the preferred.

NEW YORK CURB

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Following is a list of sales, highest, lowest, closing and previous closing prices of securities traded in on the New York Curb market today. Sales of stocks are in 100 share lots (except in the case of Standard Oil issues, sales of which are in full) and sales of bonds represent $1000 face value each:

Financial London Generally Approves Paris Settlement

Special Wireless to the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Jan. 17. — Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in the weekly financial review today, says:

"The Paris settlement is regarded as establishing another milestone in political progress. Generally speaking, the terms command the approval of the financial district, but special emphasis is placed on American participation.

"Referring to your contention about your share of reparations, the Morning Post says: 'America has won, but it will be observed that reparations come out of the common pool. America is thus morally and legally committed to the upholding of the scheme through which the allies intend to make Germany pay for her crime. That, to our minds, is the significant feature of the Paris conference.'

"This also is the view held in financial circles.

"It is believed that the Paris settlement may form a prelude to a general arrangement of interallied debts, for whatever difficulties and diverse opinions exist on certain points there is no question but that America and Britain both are concerned in the creation of more stable general financial conditions in Europe. Evidence of this same mutual bond is supplied by the reported likelihood of close co-operation between the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve Board in aiding our return to the gold standard. Some opinions here are sensitive to any kind of suggestion that we are dependent upon America for such aid. Common sense, however, suggests that such co-operation is indispensable by the circumstances of the case.

Gold Standard Problem.

"With the greater part of the world's gold supplies accumulated on your side, with such an upheaval in credits caused by the war, and with the present swaying to and fro of international balances, it probably will be impossible now or later to determine with exactitude the moment when our economic strength is sufficient permanently to maintain the gold standard. Therefore prudence suggests the desirability of securing a margin of credits or gold on your side, especially if unduly high bank rates are to be avoided.

"The feeling increases that our decision on the gold standard might be reached in a few weeks hence, because when Parliament meets the questions doubtless will be asked. There is complete bewilderment, however, as to the effect upon the course of money rates. Some now believe that, owing to your apparent anxiety to export gold, we might get large amounts and that the authorities here might be disposed to allow arrivals to expand credit and occasion easy in money, with the double object of stimulating trade and creating conditions favorable to a big Government conversion operation, which now presents our best chance of obtaining a permanent reduction in national expenditure and reduction in taxation. This is merely surmise, but is worth consideration.

Dullness in Stocks.

"Our present dullness in stocks is entirely a case of temporary indigestion resulting from overbuying, prompted by recent favorable political and financial developments. Unless these developments prove disappointing, it is believed that the improvement in stocks will be resumed shortly.

"Banking results in 1924 were excellent, the seven leading institutions showing an aggregate increase in profits of £500,000 over the previous year. No addition was made to dividends, the increased profits being mostly applied to special funds. It is believed that our best increase in invisible exports in 1924 was tourist expenditure here at the Wembley exhibition. Unless, however, our exports increase, faith in our power economically to maintain sterling exchange and the gold standard must be weakened."

Lead, Zinc and Copper

Lead last quoted at $10.50 per 100 lbs. in St. Louis.

Slab zinc last quoted at $7.80 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The world's copper output in December was 125,496 short tons compared with 121,704 tons the month before, bringing production in 1924, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics, to 1,458,737 tons against 1,356,196 in 1923. Mines in the United States produced 68,122 tons in December, slightly less than in November.

Continental Cotton Business to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

BREMEN, Jan. 17.—Liverpool no longer figures as an option market so far as German cotton users are concerned, Dr. Came, president of the Bremen Cotton Exchange declared in a speech today at the reopening of the cotton option market which has been interrupted since the war. All continental business he declared, now goes to America.

It was believed, the speaker said, that the energetic campaign for the recognition of American standards which was conducted by the European bureaus of the United States Department of Agriculture did much to turn German business exclusively to America. The German cotton exchanges, it was added, founded that the American department's standards gave the measurance that they would get exactly what they ordered from the American cotton producers.

Boston Wool Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—Cables telling of the stabilizing of raw wool prices at Melbourne and Sydney today imparted a cheerful tone to the week's closing of the raw wool market. Domestic prices continued firm and it was reported that mills had been taking a fair amount of wool. The week's total was placed at between 600,000 and 700,000.

New York Rubber.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Rubber, smoked ribbed sheets, spot, 33.

Review of Metals

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The trend of values in the steel market continues upward. The large gain in unfilled orders of the steel corporation confirms reports of heavy sales during December and mills are now running at from 85 to 95 per cent of capacity and are well booked up for the first quarter. Distributors are also well supplied, however, and new orders have been smaller.

Pig iron is quiet so far as new business is concerned, but mills are well booked up and prices are firm despite increased offers of foreign iron.

Copper held steady during the greater part of the week, but demand was distinctly less active and declines in London were followed by the development of an easier tone here on Friday. Offerings were light, however, and it was reported that comparatively slight concessions had brought in an increased inquiry from domestic consumers, but that most of the producing interests were holding for 15⅛c, or asking 15¼c for second quarter.

Tin has lost 2½ cents a pound through liquidation of long holdings on the sharp break in London and reports of a less favorable financial situation in the Far East. Consumers have been good buyers on recessions, however, and tin plate mills are operating at 80 per cent of capacity.

Lead held steady, despite the reactionary trend abroad. Consumers continue to draw heavily upon contracts. High prices are offering an incentive to increase developments of ore deposits and smelters are seeking Mexican ore.

Zinc easier on weakness in London and in sympathy with the break in tin.

Antimony inactive with easier undertone owing to reselling of contracts for distant delivery, although offers immediate delivery continue small.

HOGS SLIGHTLY LOWER THAN BASIS WEEK AGO

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last week.	Prev. week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	18,616	24,464	18,767
Hogs	92,721	109,975	116,483•
Sheep	4,689	5,293	5,133
Horses and mules	2,485	3,400	4,031
Totals	118,511	143,132	144,414

Although hogs closed slightly lower for the week at the St. Louis National Stockyards, most other classes of livestock reflected an upward tendency. Receipts were not excessive, the combined run of cattle, hogs, sheep and horses and mules amounting to 118,511 head, against 143,132 for the previous week. The supply of cattle and calves alone for the six-day period was 18,616 head, or a loss of nearly 6000 from the previous week. Quality did not average very high. Beef steers, stocker and feeder steers, light steers and heifers and bulls closed steady to strong, 15c to 25c higher in some favored cases. Cutter cows finished about steady, while canners were slightly lower on the light kinds, under an indifferent demand. The bulk of killer steers was $7 to $9 per cwt., and common kinds graduated down to $5. There were no strictly good kinds represented. Steer and heifer quality was also plain, most sales appearing around $5, $6 and $7. The best available droves scored in the $9 column, while common kinds graduated down to $3 or under. The majority of beef cows commanded $4 to $5.25. A common kind varied down to $3.50 and best sold upward to $6, $7 and better. Cutter cows remained at $2.50 to $3.25 and canners brought $1.90 to $2.25 for thin, light kinds and $2.25 to $2.50 for best natives. Bologna bulls finished on a $4 to $5 basis, top $5.25. Weighty beef animals commanded $5 to $6.25, while thin, light bulls and canners sold as low as $2.50. Stocker and feeder cattle, in light supply and moderate demand, encountered slightly improved selling. Steers ranged from $3.25 to $7.25, while $3.50 to $6 covered bulk. Best veal calves closed at $12.50 to $13, as compared with $11 a week ago. Light receipts, coupled with an active demand, influenced the rise. Southern canner yearlings at $2.50 to $3.50 were unchanged.

Hog Receipts Light.

Lighter receipts were one feature of the past week's hog trade, this fact however, failing to stop a decline in prices, due to generous runs at other Western markets. Total number of head on sale here during the six days aggregated 92,721, this supply, while of fair volume, falling considerably short of the previous week's offering of 109,975 head, and also less than the run of 116,483 head during the corresponding week a year ago. The week's opening sessions witnessed the arrival of a large number of the underweight and light hogs, with a sprinkling of Southern stuff also included. In spite of the fact the limited number of hogs on sale forced prices upward, with the top by Tuesday reaching $11.25. Wednesday also had a top of $11.25, but the market broke that day and continued on a lower trend throughout the remainder of the week, except for a slight strengthening during the closing session. Compared with the previous week's close, best butcher hogs show a decline of 5c to 10c largely, this class, ranging in weight from 190 pounds and up, selling mainly in a spread of $10.35 to $10.70. Lighter hogs show less loss, this class figuring steady in most cases, although some sales were slightly lower. Bulk of the offerings from 160 to 180 pounds sold at $10 to $10.30, some of the plain kinds, however, cashing at prices that were lower. Advances made early in the week on pigs were more than sufficient to make up for losses suffered toward the close, and with the closing session featuring a further upturn in price, this class closed higher for the week. The strong-weight offerings from 130 to 150 pounds at $8.75 to $9.50 closed at a gain of 50c to 75c over the preceding week's wind-up. Medium-weight pigs from 110 to 130 pounds average compared with the previous week also show a higher trend, sales of this class at $7.75 to $8.75 showing an advance of 75c mostly. Lighter pigs and peewees ruled very uneven throughout the week, a limited demand during the greater part of the session. Slightly decreased numbers of this class arriving during the closing sessions, however, caused a strengthening in prices on this class, with sales in the stronger weight kinds showing 50c to 75c advance. On the weights from 110 pounds and down range from $6.50 to $7.75, mainly, some of the trashy kinds, however, clearing under these quotations. Packer sows for the week closed at a discount of 10c in some instances, while other sales figured about steady. Offerings are quotable in a spread of $9.65 to $9.75, the big end of sales at the latter figure. Stags showed stronger trend, bulk of sales on this class at $7 to $7.50, with an occasional sale of smooth, light kinds noted upward to $8. Closing quotations on the different classes were as follows: Best butcher hogs from 190 pounds and up at $10.35 to $10.70, lighter hogs from 160 to 180 pounds at $10 to $10.35, strong-weight pigs from 130 to 150 pounds at $8.75 to $9.75, medium weights 110 to 130 pounds at $7.75 to $8.75, and lighter pigs and peewees from 110 pounds and down at $6.50 to $7.75 largely. Sows at $9.65 to $9.75 and stags at $7 to $8.

Advance in Lambs.

Some advance was registered in lambs at this market, due in part to the light supplies that were received during the six-day period. For the entire week there was a run of 4689 head of lambs recorded, compared with an offering of 5293 for the previous week. For the corresponding week a year ago the run aggregated 5133 head. There has been a fair run of lambs in regard to quality although this feature averaged about like usual of late in this department. Bulk of the arrivals last week were from native or Southwest territory, although a few offerings of Western lambs were included among those on sale. Monday opened with a top of $18, Tuesday's high advancing to $18.25 to both packers and butchers. Some lambs later in the week sold upward to $18.50, this sale the highest of the week. Closing quotations show a gain of 25c over the previous week's close, good to choice lambs quotable in a spread of $17.75 to $18.75. The medium to good quality grades are quotable at $16.75 to $17.75 and the plain to medium offerings from $14.75 to $16.75. Cull lambs show gains about in line with the better grades of lambs, sales on this class at $12 to $14 with the bulk of sales at $13 to $14. Skips range in price from $8 downward, according to weight and quality. Although initial sessions of the week featured no radical change in prices on the aged classes, later deals during the week witnessed sharp advances, especially on mutton ewes. This class shows a gain of 50c over the preceding week's close with choice handyweight kinds quotable up to $10.50. Best on sale here selling in a spread of $9.75 to $10 with some of the off quality and heavy kinds clearing upward to $9. Choppers and bucks are quotable at $5 to $6 largely, an occasional sale of some yearling bucks at higher figures. Canners range in price from $2 to $4 largely.

Horses and Mules.

A strong and active trade again manifested itself in horses and mules at the St. Louis National Stock Yards last week. A rather light supply of horses moved freely and mules, though in fair supply, also proved quite active. Combined arrivals were 2485 head, including 100 horses and better than 1300 mules on commission. A rather large contingent of buyers offered good competition and a satisfactory clearance resulted.

Outlet was afforded both Southern and Eastern horses and virtually all classes of mules. Good haired mules were preferred above all others, although fat was also given consideration.

WHEAT IS STRONG ON LOCAL MARKET

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Jan. 17.—Wheat futures ranged higher at the week-end in the local market.

Wheat gained strength during the day, emphasis being placed on higher Liverpool, report of revival in export and private report of Russian wheat needs. The close was 3c to 4c higher. Corn also closed higher. Anticipated decrease in visible on Monday was a late bullish wheat factor.

Soft wheat prices were 2c to 3c higher on the local market Saturday. There was milling demand for choice bright heavy test wheat and for selections of No. 3 red and sound No. 4s. Garlicky grain was slow. Hard wheat was 2½c higher, offerings being light. There was some shipping demand. A lot of 5000 bushels of Kansas No. 2 hard 12¼ per cent protein sold to arrive basis 10c over Kansas City May, 8c freight to be added. Corn was generally ½c to 1c higher, though there were a few sales at previous day's basis. There was a good general demand for all classes, with competition for yellow keenest. Oats prices rose ½c to 1c, there being local and shipping demand for white. Wheatfeed was firm and quiet. Bran was quoted $32.50 to $33 and gray shorts $36.50 to $37. Five cars of oatfeed sold at $13.75. A car of No. 1 alfalfa meal in new sacks sold at $29 local and 150 tons in secondhand sacks sold at $27.50 (50 tons to be shipping Jan., Feb., March). Ten cars of choice in secondhand sacks sold to go out at $30.

Opening a cent to more higher wheat held the advance and gained some in the early period of trade. Liverpool wheat was strong, prices there closing 1⅛d to 1⅜d higher. Corn here also was on higher basis early.

May wheat opened at $1.84¼, July wheat $1.57½, May corn $1.33¼ and July corn $1.34⅜.

The three Northwestern markets combined had 557 cars of wheat, compared with 462 a week ago, and 768 a year ago, Minneapolis receiving 253 cars, Duluth 56 and Winnipeg 248.

Local wheat receipts, which were 91,000 bushels, compared with 84,500 a week ago and 59,800 last year included 24 cars local and 30 through. Corn receipts, which were 142,800 bushels, compared with 116,200 a week ago and 180,600 last year, included 96 cars local and 6 through. Oats receipts, which were 174,000 bushels, compared with 124,000 a week ago and 106,000 last year, included 56 cars local and 31 through. Hay receipts were 30 cars local and 23 through.

BULL MARKET IN WHEAT AT THE CLOSE OF WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Wheat ended the week with a strong bull market and new high prices for the season on all futures. Buying power was enormous today, and despite heavy realizing prices moved into new high territory. Corn also was in the record-breaking class and met with consistent buying from strong interests. Oats were helped by the strength in other grains and a similar condition prevailed.

Bull offensive got under way in the wheat market today, swept all opposition aside and established new high records. There was a revival of export demand that was encouraging to the longs and this, together with the strength in Liverpool, were the big factors in the market. Export sales at the Seaboard were only 400,000 bushels, but this included some hard winter wheat to Antwerp. It is difficult to see any reason for the bullish feeling shown today. The movement of wheat at primary markets exceeds all expectation and arrivals of this wheat were 2,000,000 bushels in excess of those a year ago and 900,000 bushels more than the shipments. Milling demand for wheat is nothing to brag about, although sales the last day or two have shown a little increase. Mills took 25,000 bushels wheat from the local market today. Advices from Australia say there is a little improvement in the dock-strike situation. Unofficial advices from Russia assert that the country will need to import 9,000,000 bushels of grain from abroad. At the close today prices were 3½c to 3⅝c higher than yesterday and 7¾c to 11⅜c higher than the week before.

Corn also made new high records and closed ⅛c to 1⅜c higher for the day and 5⅛c for the week. Despite the strenuous efforts of local bulls, the market was unable to break $1.35. The cash situation showed more weakness and low-grade corn sold at a further decline of 1c in the discounts. Shipping demand was quiet and sales of only 15,000 bushels were recorded. Primary movement for the week showed receipts 5,000,000 bushels more than the shipments. The arrivals were 500,000 bushels more than the previous week and 2,000,000 bushels in excess of the corresponding week a year ago. This would suggest lower prices, but the bull movement is based on the fact that merchantable corn is scarce.

Oats were inclined to drag, but the strength in other grains caused a rally. Gains of ¾c to 1⅜c were recorded today, while prices are up ⅛c to 1⅛c for the week. The big visible supply tends to check bullish feeling. Shipping sales were only 17,000 bushels.

Provisions were helped by the grain strength. Earlier in the week the big accumulation of lard stocks was a depressing factor, but the bullish feeling all over the floor of the board of trade was infective and the trade soon forgot the bearish news. At the close of the day lard showed gains of 27½c to 37½c; ribs advanced 12½c and bellies were 2½c lower to 12½c higher. Lard was up 17½c to 25c this week; ribs were 42½c to 47½c higher and bellies unchanged to 5c higher.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The actual condition of Clearing House banks and trust companies for the week shows an excess in reserve of $70,260,320. Reserve increased $23,771,990, compared with last week.

MONACO'S PRINCE MAY NOT RETURN AS RULER

On "Outs" With Monte Carlo Gaming Chiefs and Unpopular With People.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

NICE, Jan. 17.—Evidence accumulates here, despite the usual "hush-hush" methods associated with Monte Carlo, that a serious split has supervened between the reigning Prince who now is in New York, and the Casino gaming authorities, who control the principality.

It is stated that the Prince may not return to Monaco and that his hasty departure recently on an American tour, leaving Monaco without a presiding functionary, all through the season, was really in the nature of an ultimatum to the real rulers, under Sir Basil Zaharoff, that certain of his wishes must be complied with, else he will not come back. Chief among these is his rigid opposition to Jews, who have developed a stranglehold on the principality in recent years, culminating a few weeks ago in the grant of a big concession to the Paris banking firm of Dreybluss, which the Prince says, was made behind his back.

At a stormy meeting of the council at the Casino, the Prince was told that his advisers could never get hold of him for consultation since he spent all his time either at Marne Chateau or in Finland, where the Princess desires her children be reared. The Prince particularly insisted that the aged opera impresario, Raoul Gunzburg, move on, but the story is that the latter refuses to budge unless he receives $700,000, which even Monte Carlo is unable to pay.

There are other facts suggesting a change shortly in the chief of state. The people of Monaco hold against their Prince that he never comes to Monaco; that his Princess is known to be a sworn foe of gambling, by which the principality lives; that the Prince has never really quit being the professional French soldier he was all his life until his succession, and that there is the possibility that his son might be disqualified from the legitimate succession by any impartial tribunal. The climax came about Christmas, when the ruler, who, after being welcomed with bugles, cannon and bunting, remained only eight days among his "loyal subjects."

Too Much Gas—Mr. Tuttle Couldn't Sleep

Stomach Gas Caused Restlessness and Pain

"After taking the second dose of Adlerika the heavy feeling (gas) in my bowels is entirely gone, and I go to bed and get a good night's sleep now." (Signed) J. C. Tuttle.

Intestinal Evacuant

There is now offered to the public a liquid preparation which is not only a wonderfully effective and QUICK intestinal evacuant, but which also seems to stimulate the glands of the intestinal tract and to cause expulsion of flatus (GAS). This preparation, known as Adlerika, is a valuable agent for the purpose of cleansing the bowels of matter which has been in the system a long time and which other less effective means have been unable to dislodge. It is often astonishing the great amount of matter Adlerika draws from the intestinal canal—even right after a natural movement it sometimes brings out unsuspected quantities of additional matter. Many times it brings out much GAS, thus relieving pressure in the abdomen. Adlerika is especially valuable when PROMPT action is necessary or to encourage the elimination of metabolic poisons through the bowel.

In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation or gas on the stomach and headache (when due to bowel inaction), a single spoonful of Adlerika often produces surprising and gratifying results. In cases of obstinate constipation or stomach trouble, if Adlerika does not bring relief in 24 to 36 hours the advice of a reputable physician should be secured.

Reports From Physicians

"I congratulate you on the good effect from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

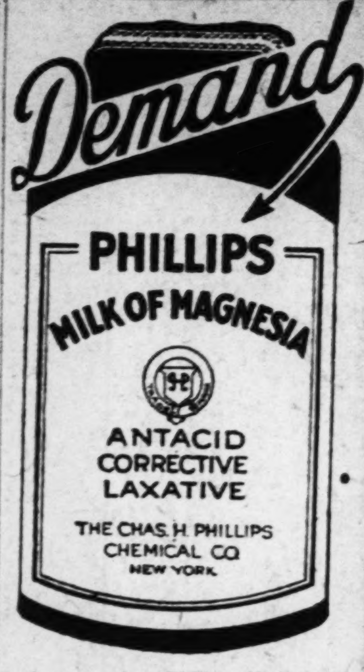
"Adlerika is the best in my entire 37 years' experience." (Signed) Dr. G. Eggers.

"I prescribed Adlerika with highly satisfactory results." (Signed) Dr. A. C. C. (Name given on request.)

"I can't get along without Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. W. H. Bernhart.

J. E. Puckett (a user of Adlerika) writes: "After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the impurities eliminated from my system."

Adlerika is a big surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines because of its REAL and QUICK action. Sold by leading druggists everywhere. In St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and Enderle Drug Co.



Accept only "Phillips," the original Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years. Protect your doctor and yourself by avoiding imitations of the genuine "Phillips."

82 Years Old and as Good as a Youngster

"7 or 8 years ago I was a very sick man. Doctors said catarrh trouble of stomach and bowels, affecting the liver and heart. For more than a year I wanted to die, but could not. Upon the advice of a friend I tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, and although 82 years old I now feel as good as a youngster." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflamation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Dolph Drug Stores and druggists everywhere.

Head Swim?

Clear the digestive tract, if you would relieve dizziness,

IN the dark ages of medical knowledge, people didn't understand that most unpleasant of afflictions—uncontrolled dizziness. They blamed the heart, the lungs, the brain—everything but the right thing; suffered untold torture as a result.

Today, sensible people know that dizziness is simply a symptom. It usually means that congested waste matter in the digestive tract is saturating the entire system with its poisons.

Whenever your "head swims", you may be sure that a dose of Pluto Water is in order. This safe, quick-action, water physic goes direct to the root of the trouble. In 30 minutes to two hours, the poison is expelled and a normal feeling of equilibrium returns. Don't resort to slow-action, over-night cathartics. Get relief promptly and thoroughly with Pluto Water.

Pluto is prescribed by physicians, sold by druggists and bottled at French Lick Springs, Indiana.

Missouri Association for Criminal Justice to Work for Swift Punishment of Guilty

Guy A. Thompson Declares Public Must Be Aroused to Support Move Against Appalling Crime Conditions.

WHEN representatives of civic organizations from all over the State met at Jefferson City on Oct. 15 last, at the call of the Missouri Bar Association, and formed the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice, they authorized Guy A. Thompson, who had been active in the movement as president of the bar, to prepare an address to the people of the State, telling of the formation and aims of the new organization.

Thomas C. Hennings, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., has been chosen president of the association and Arthur V. Lashly, attorney, has been chosen operating director. to conduct the survey and other activities.

The address to the people, by Thompson, follows:

"The crime condition is appalling and is becoming more menacing day by day. This is a matter that concerns us all, for it affects life and property and every man has either life or property, and all men at some time have both. Not only so, but we are spending vast sums of money to maintain our courts and prosecuting officers and police, to say nothing of our prisons and penitentiaries and a host of public officials that have to do with the protection of life and property through the administration of our criminal laws. The City of St. Louis alone expended for the prevention of crime for the fiscal year ended April 1 last, $4,610,320.29.

Facts Must Be Gathered.

"Undoubtedly some antiquated criminal laws should be repealed and some new ones should be enacted and, furthermore, reforms should be instituted in the administration of the law. From time to time various alleged corrective changes in the criminal law have been submitted to our Legislatures, and various so-called administrative improvements have been suggested to our public officials. The proposed legislation has failed of enactment and the suggested administrative reforms have not been adopted, for the two-fold reason that the proposals were unaccompanied by authentic facts and public opinion was not behind them.

"Experience has made it manifest that if any headway is to be made against this menacing condition two things are essential:

"1. The facts must be gathered in such fashion as to insure public confidence in their absolute accuracy and fairness.

"2. Public opinion must be mobilized and must demand the legislation and the administrative reforms which these facts point to as necessary.

"These two essentials can be had only through and by an organized representative agency sustained by public opinion and directed toward the accomplishment of these definite ends.

Committee Appointed.

"Moved by these considerations, in March, 1924, the then president of the Missouri Bar Association, with the approval of the executive committee of that association, appointed a special committee on crimes, criminal law and procedure, to investigate and consider the growth and condition of crime and criminal law and procedure in Missouri, and recommend (a) 'whether it be advisable that an organized movement be undertaken for the purpose of correcting any deficiencies that may exist in our criminal laws and in their administration, and, (b) if said movement be advisable, what part, if any, the Missouri Bar Association should take therein.' It was a committee of five, two from St. Louis, two from Kansas City and one from the interior of the State. Later there were added to the committee a representative each from the St. Louis, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Springfield Bar associations.

"After very careful consideration, the committee made a report that attracted the attention and won the instant approval of the whole State. In brief, it recommended a meeting of representatives of the various civic and commercial organizations and public spirited citizens, at which an organization should be formed, to conduct a State-wide survey to determine the actual facts with respect to deficiencies in our criminal laws and in their administration.

Report Submitted.

Fortified by these facts the committee believed that the demands of such an organization for remedial legislation would be heeded by the Legislature, and that its recommendations with respect to matters of administration would be welcomed by our public officials who deal with the administration of our criminal laws. Furthermore, the report contemplated a continuing body that should assemble data, observe the administration of criminal justice and publish from time to time the facts with respect thereto, with the object of reducing crime in the State of Missouri.

"The report was submitted to the various civic and commercial organizations throughout the State. It received practically their unanimous approval and many of them gave assurances that they would send delegates to the proposed meeting. Accordingly, the president of the Missouri Bar Association, called the meeting and in response their assembled in Jefferson City, in the Hall of Representatives, on Oct. 15, 1924, about 110 delegates, representing more than 80 civic and commercial organizations of the State.

Objects of Association.

"The Missouri Association for Criminal Justice was organized and incorporated during the day and those in attendance and the associations represented by them, became its charter members. The objects for which the association was formed are:

"'To conduct a statewide survey of the administration of criminal justice and of the causes and conditions of crime within the State of Missouri; to initiate and secure the passage of legislation and undertake such other remedial action tending to diminish crime and to improve the administration of criminal justice as are deemed necessary, or as are suggested by the findings and recommendations of such survey, and to promote and secure an intelligent and efficient administration of criminal justice within the State of Missouri through constructive co-operation with all officers, departments, tribunals and agencies, State, city and county, charged with the duty of the suppression, prevention and punishment of crime.'

"By-laws were adopted. These created two classes of members, active and associate. The active members are confined to representatives of organizations and individuals in sympathy (in the judgment of the board of directors) with the aims and objects of the association. Those eligible to associate membership are the Judges of the Courts of Record, the Governor and Attorney-General, Prosecuting and Circuit Attorneys, Warden of the State penitentiary, chairman of the Missouri State Prison Board, and all officers having to do with the administration of the criminal laws. But none of these last-named persons may be active members while holding office. A board of 30 members is provided for and an Executive Committee of nine.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN ON JAN. 24

WHAT IT MEANS TO SCIENCE AND TO THE CASUAL OBSERVER

Day Will Be Turned Into Complete Night—In Band of Totality 100 Miles Wide, Stretching From Minnesota to Atlantic Next Saturday.

A GREAT black disc slowly blotting out the sun; the rush of a gigantic shadow across the earth, slowly turning day into night; the sudden flashing of a streaming, pearly halo; outbursts of blood-red light from the circumference of the sun; stars shining in the daytime; a sudden chill in the air—that is a total eclipse of the sun.

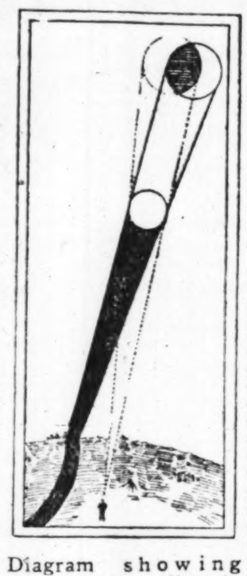

Diagram showing how those not directly in the hundred-mile shadow see a partial eclipse.

The opportunity to observe this spectacle one of the most awe-inspiring that man can witness, will be given Saturday to millions of people living within a strip 100 miles wide extending from west of Duluth, Minn., to the Atlantic Ocean at New York City and Cape Cod.

No total eclipse of the sun has been visible in the northeastern part of the United States since 1806, nor will there be another visible to this area after Saturday until 2024. Not since the coming of the white man to America has a total eclipse been seen from certain parts in this area, including the site of New York City.

The moon constantly trails a cone-shaped shadow after it in space. It is the infrequent impinging of this shadow on the earth's surface that causes solar eclipses. Could we transport ourselves out into space and there view a solar eclipse, we would see a small circular spot, about 100 miles across, traveling across the earth's surface for some 5000 miles. A solar eclipse presents a mighty astronomic display of never-to-be-forgotten grandeur to those within its path on the earth. As the moon disc moves across the face of the sun and totality nears, stars begin to gleam in the sky. To the right, and lower than the sun, Venus appears; then Jupiter, then Mercury. To the right and above, Altair and Vega shine through the veil of deepening gloom.

Bands of Light and Shadow

Just before totality, phantom-like bands of light and shadow, faint and glimmering, play over the ground and walls of buildings, darting with such rapidity that no camera has ever yet caught them. As the last thin crescent of the sun disappears, the moon's shadow rushes across the earth, west to east, at the terrific speed of 1365 miles an hour, a weird darkness falls and the pearly glow, known as the corona, bursts from the circumference of the moon disc while tongues of scarlet flame, the "prominences" of science, flash out all around it.

A brief two minutes is the longest time that the observer will be able to view the display. The maximum time of complete eclipse on land Saturday will be achieved at New Haven, Conn., which happens to be exactly on the center line of the band of totality.

New York City will be divided by the edge of the moon's shadow. Downtown Manhattan, including Wall street, is to be left in the light while in uptown New York the period of totality will be only about a half minute.

Scientists to Study the Eclipse

On account of the sun's great brilliance, scientists are able to delve into its secrets only when the moon shields the great fiery mass and exposes the halo of the corona and the prominences. Since 1880, when photography was first applied to eclipse observation, only a total of about one hour has been afforded for this work.

The 100-mile-wide band in which there will be totality Saturday will embrace 10 large American and Canadian cities, 10 States or provinces and will extend to a point in the Atlantic north of the British Isles. Practically the whole of Connecticut will fall under the moon's shadow.

All of the United States east of the Mississippi, the eastern part of Canada, part of Mexico, Central America, South America, Greenland, Europe and Africa, and the whole of the North Atlantic Ocean are included in the vast expanses in which the eclipse of January 24 will be visible in its partial phases. In these regions, observers will see the moon gradually cut into the sun's brilliant disk, diminishing its light somewhat, but the sun will not be entirely blotted from their gaze.

SHADOW WILL BE 86 PER CENT TOTAL IN ST. LOUIS AT 7:51 A. M.

THE eclipse will be 86 per cent total in St. Louis and vicinity, according to Father Shannon, astronomer of St. Louis University.

Before the sun is visible above the horizon the morning of Jan. 24, it will have passed into partial eclipse. The shadow will reach its maximum at 7:51 a. m. From this time until 9:01 a. m. the shadow will shrink until, at the last hour stated, the eclipse will be over as far as St. Louis spectators are concerned.

The Framing Corona.

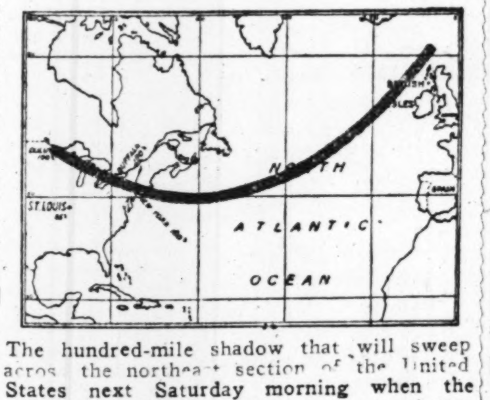
The corona is the principal attraction during an eclipse. Only when the moon completely blots out the light of the sun does the faint aurora of light, no brighter than the full moon, become visible around the inky disk. In reality, the corona reveals the constitution of the sun. Composed of particles of the sun's incandescent mass, forced off perhaps by the pressure of the light itself, it sends tidings of an unknown element, coronium, that has not been found on earth. This pearly glow about the sun, sometimes extending several sun diameters beyond it, has caused much speculation among scientists.

Is there a gradual growth of this nebulous appendage of the sun, or is the solar activity on the increase? Is the corona all that is left of an extensive nebulous envelope which at one time surrounded the sun but which will gradually fade away?

The last few years of solar research have revealed the influence upon the earth of solar radiation other than heat and light. Great streams of electrons shot off from the sun are known to strike the earth and produce aurorae in the upper atmosphere, influence telegraph lines and radio, and probably the weather as well. It is known that sunspots affect tree growth.

Mysterious Sunspots.

When sunspots are few, the corona is short and bushy at the poles and long and streaming at the equator, while, at the time of sunspot maximum, the streamers are evenly distributed and the corona is evenly developed around the disk of the sun. Since a new cycle of sunspots has recently begun, astronomers are much interested in the kind of sunspots to be exhibited at the coming eclipse.



The hundred-mile shadow that will sweep across the northeast section of the United States next Saturday morning when the moon comes directly between earth and sun.

During the 1868 solar eclipse an unknown yellow line was discovered in the sun's spectrum unclaimed by any element then found on the earth and was labeled as belonging to helium, the sun element. Twenty-seven years later the noninflammable gas, helium, was discovered on earth. At first it was extremely rare, but on Saturday a great airship is to use 2,000,000 cubic feet of helium gas in order that it may float high above the earth to enable astronomers to obtain better observations of the eclipse.

Many Observers Ready.

A single second of experiment just when the moon passes the sun and the earth may help the world to achieve undreamed riches. At the instant of the beginning and the ending of totality a "flash spectrum" of the sun may be seen through prisms or with gratings. From photographs of this display of lines can be determined the heights to which the solar vapors extend. The great clouds of hot hydrogen, helium and sodium are shot many miles out from the surface of the sun. Flash spectrums afford the only means known to science for measuring the heights of these solar vapors and the actions of the atoms of their elements.

What St. Louis and Missouri will see of the eclipse—an 86 per cent obliteration of the sun.

Ten observatories in the United States and Canada will be ready to operate at top speed during the precious seconds of totality. Weather, however, is the factor that they cannot provide against and an obscured sky may throw their plans awry. Records of the United States Weather Bureau indicate less than a 50-50 chance for favorable atmospheric conditions.

Knowledge of solar eclipses dates back to the days of the ancients. Thales of Miletus, founder of Greek astronomy, who lived in the fifth century, B. C., probably was the first man to predict an eclipse. This fell on May 28, 585 B. C., and turned day into night while the Medes and Lydans were engaged in a battle of a long-fought war, so frightening them that they made a lasting truce. The scientists of those days knew more about the movements of the planets and stars than does the average layman now. The idea of a round earth was not original with Columbus; long before the birth of Christ astronomers regarded the earth as a sphere.

A Former Eclipse.

To the Chaldeans belongs the credit of discovering that, after a lapse of 223 lunar months, or 18 years and 11 days, an eclipse will repeat itself. The interval is called the Saros, or "repetition."

The predecessor of the coming eclipse, one Saros ago, fell upon Russia and Central Asia on Jan. 14, 1907. The next will be located in China and Alaska and will fall on Feb. 4, 1943.

The orbit of the earth revolving about the sun in an eclipse is inclined to the plane of the orbit of the moon as it makes its monthly trip around the earth. The moon usually dodges a direct line between the earth and the sun and an eclipse is avoided. Only twice a year does the moon approach closely to the plane of the earth's orbit, causing two eclipse seasons during which eclipses of both the moon and sun can occur. Due to the manner of motion of the moon and the earth, the points at which the path of one intersects the path of the plane of the other's orbit are constantly changing year by year, causing eclipses to be possible in any calendar month. There must be at least two eclipses of the sun each year, and there may be as many as five.

How Eclipses Are Predicted.

Due to the fact that at least two eclipses occur each year, there are many series of eclipses passing over the earth at the same time. A series of eclipses begins at one of the poles of the earth as a partial eclipse and it takes 1150 years for it to vanish into space at the other pole, leaving in history 64 total eclipses.

Prediction of an eclipse in all its details requires the accurate work of two astronomers, skilled in mathematics, for a total time equivalent to more than 30 days of eight hours each. Several years before the coming of a total eclipse, the Nautical Almanac Office of the United States Navy performs the task of prediction and distributes it to the world.

Those who intend to observe the eclipse of the sun next Saturday should provide themselves with an eyeshield as the direct rays of the sun are harmful to the eyes and may cause even blindness. The old-fashioned method of smoking a piece of glass over a gas jet or with a candle will give a satisfactory eclipse-observing eyeshield, provided care is taken to make the carbon coating uniform and of proper density. Dark spectacles also can be used, but tinted glasses, such as are sold to motorists and bathers, should be avoided as they do not reduce the sun's rays sufficiently. A piece of photograph film or plate, exposed to light and then developed, also will make an effective shield.

Deeds of Man, for Good or Evil, Are Inherited by His Children, Noted Vienna Biologist Says

Dr. Paul Kammerer Asserts That Imprint of Forefathers, and Not Accident of Birth and Environment, Affects Lives.

By ERNEST BRENNECKE,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.

DR. PAUL KAMMERER, the distinguished Viennese physiologist, arrived in New York last week. He is a general in an army of scientific revolutionaries and he is conducting a bitter war against conservative ideas of evolution—for there are fundamentalists and modernists in laboratories as well as in pulpits.

Kammerer holds the theory that whatever man consciously does to himself, whether it be good or evil, will be transmitted in some measure to his children. This is known as the "inheritance of acquired characteristics" and it is violently opposed by the majority of biologists, who contend that no change that a man can effect upon his own person will directly affect his offspring.

As soon as I heard of Kammerer's arrival, I sought him out and asked him to explain this controversy in simple language for the readers of this page.

"There are two theories," he began. "One is the theory of natural selection, the other is the theory of the inheritance of acquired characteristics. Any person with a scientific mind must hold to either of these doctrines. He must decide between the two."

"Why must he?" I asked.

"No Two Beings Alike."

"Because this decision will determine his fundamental outlook on life," answered Dr. Kammerer. "Upon his attitude on this question will depend a serious man's attitude toward progress, civilization and conduct. One can understand this only after one has grasped the sense of the two ideas. Let me explain briefly—

"The theory of natural selection accounts for all the different forms of life in this manner: The same parents will have children who differ from each other. No two children are exactly alike—and this applies to all plants and animals as well as to all human beings. No two leaves are ever exactly alike; no two persons are; their minds and bodies differ. What causes those differences? No one knows.

"Let us now imagine a large family of rabbits with many differences, say in color. Some are brown, some white, some black. They live on wintry snow fields. They have enemies. These enemies easily find and attack those rabbits whom they can easily see against the whiteness of the ice; thus browns and blacks are destroyed, while the whites, being practically invisible, escape. This goes on for many generations, until finally only white parent rabbits and white children rabbits are left.

A Survival of Fittest.

"In other words, the animals that happen to be fittest to their environment, those who turn out to be strongest at birth, have the best chances to life and to produce offspring of their own; thus the weak and ill-adapted ones gradually die out or are violently exterminated. This is also known as the doctrine of the survival of the fittest: The strong live, the weak perish; accidents of birth plus the nature of environment determine the future of the race.

"Whatever an animal or person can do to himself, say my opponents, does not matter in the long run, for he will not be able to transmit such artificial changes to his offspring. He may cut off his hand, but his son will be born with two hands; he may spend years practicing the piano, but his daughter will not be born with a hand specially adapted for piano playing. Thus the future of the race is almost completely controlled by external nature and the mysterious variations that occur by birth or generation. You see, there is a mystical element in this natural selection theory. Yet it was long believed to be a satanically mechanical theory that robbed mankind of its divine heritage.

The Theory of Inheritance.

"Now for the other theory—the theory of the inheritance of acquired characteristics. This admits the truth of the positive assertions of natural selection, but it goes farther in holding that there can be nothing mysterious or mythical about the difference between one living thing and another. It holds that these differences can be accounted for, partially at least, by the events which affected the bodies and minds of the parents. If a parent forms a habit, either through his own volition or through an external influence, the offspring will be affected by it to a greater or less degree. It may take long periods of time for such 'acquired characteristics,' repeated again and again, to make themselves perceptible—but they are there all the time.

"Thus you will see, this latter theory makes us much more responsible for our descendants than we would be if nothing more than natural selection held sway in the world. What we do are determined not only by the accidents of our own and of our forefathers surroundings, but also by all of our forefathers' actions and habits.

"Can Guide Future Races."

"Under natural selection, whatever happens, happens almost independently of human efforts for better or for worse; under the inheritance of acquired characteristics, things are largely determined by human conduct and the future literally lies entirely within our powers for good and for evil. We can make the future races of the earth happy or unhappy; we shall make them either demigods or savages. Our moral habits, then, become most important; we must decide for ourselves as to what is right and wrong, and act accordingly. Darwin's 'survival of the fittest' does not necessarily mean the survival of the best, it means merely the survival of the strongest."

Here I interrupted Dr. Kammerer. "Your scientists, however," I remarked, "will not be guided by the considerations you are now offering—or if they are, they won't admit it. They claim to be guided by solely by facts. Can observed facts and repeated experiments prove facts that either theory is right?"

"There, of course," he replied, "you hit the essential point in the discussion. It would be possible to submit the matter to experimental proof. But a few simple experiments will scarcely suffice. What we need is a huge mass of eventual data which will resolve the question once and for all. All we have to date, however, is a few scattered observations that yield no irrefutable conclusions.

Moving Toward Solution.

"For a long time, indeed, this was considered an insoluble riddle, for even Darwin himself believed that it would take perhaps millions of years for species-mutations to occur. But we have lately been moving more rapidly than that. Let me offer a few of my own observations:

"First, by way of refutation of any creative aspect of selection and the survival of the strongest I can point to the failure of inbreeding of the race. For instance, the royal families, whose ancestors were all persons of the highest, or at least the most powerful

Theatrical Revival Overdue.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

REFERRING to your article relating to Mr. Wm. A. Brady's unrest due to radio activities of late: It does not take much nowadays to make theatrical managers restless. They have been resting on their oars for a number of years. They are now keeping up with the procession of their competitors. As to productions, the big head liners, such as "The Music Box," "Follies," at top prices, would hardly compare with "Sinbad" or "Ali Baba" of former years at normal prices. You hardly ever hear of augmented orchestras any more with the big productions. The general run of musical comedies are merely high-class vaudeville acts combined. The material and originality is running short in the musical line. The drama is holding its own as far as it goes, but does not extend far enough to keep away "dark houses." The stars are not numerous, and some of the old school are relaxing for want of material. Shakspearean plays have been overdone.

A few revivals might have an effect of lighting up dark houses, such as Mantell in "Monbars," Hampden in "La Tosca" and "Fedora" (formerly produced by Davenport and McDowell), John Barrymore in "Francesco da Rimini," 'Beau Brummel" and "Parisian Romance." And find a successor for Nat Goodwin in the "Gilded Fool" and Stuart Robson in "Henrietta," and "She Stoops to Conquer."

Our Debt to France.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

YOUNG AMERICA, growing up, would be much better off knowing some things that his school history does not tell him. It would be better for him if he were told that his Government in Revolutionary days did not avoid but eagerly sought those foreign entanglements that are utilized today by the demogague to dissuade us from our plain duty to Europe. The rebellious colonists sent their ablest men to Europe to invoke the assistance of any monarchy, however effete or despotic. An attempt was made but failed to reach the ear of that grim old tyrant, Frederick the Great. Our sole success in securing an entanglement was at the court of Louis XVI, a court whose coming doom at the hands of a maddened people was already being traced in bloody letters.

We finally prevailed upon France to make an alliance with us against England. Our ally sent troops and a fleet to the American coast and also gave us arms and money of which we were desperately in need. Some of this money we repaid and some we were happy to have regarded as a subsidy. If we now compel France to repay the money we advanced to her to employ against our common enemy, we should repay her subsidies of the Revolution which, with interest for 145 years, will amount to a tidy sum.

Pharisees and Publicans.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE following I have dedicated to the New York "Committee of One Thousand;" who recently had a morning repast of buckwheat cakes with President Coolidge:

"The High Priests of Industry proceeding boldly into the Inner Holy of Holies of the Temple of Righteousness, proclaim to mankind the excellence of their worthiness, thanking the Deity that they are not like the rest of men—

While we Publicans, in a dimly lighted fane of the temple, dare not so much as lift our eyes, but with bowed heads and striking our breasts, cry "Peccavimus."

Libations being poured and stomachs fortified by buckwheat cakes, they stalk from the temple in virtuous pride, seeing not us, the ragged legatees of an undernourished thousand.

Beyond the temple, and near their path, there is a man stooped over, writing strange characters in the sand—while we, meekly standing afar off, perceive that they pass on, observing him not.

The Isle of Pines.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE just read your editorial, "Isle of Pines Ownership," published about Dec. 16, and I am very much pleased to know that you are favorably disposed toward our fellow countrymen who were induced to settle there through information given out by our own Government.

At one time there were, as you say, 4000 Americans there, but many have become disheartened waiting for our Government to make its promise good, that the island was American territory, and have drifted back to the States. I am one of those, so your idea of a plebiscite at this time would go against us. But if you will take a vote according to the acreage owned, there would be no question about it being voted American.

I am enclosing a few copies of an article published by the San Diego Union which I think covers the case pretty well. I know your paper has always stood for fair play, so if you can find time and space in your paper, please help those poor people on the island to save their homes. They do not want to live under the Cuban flag, and were induced to go there on information given out by our own Government at Washington.

LOUIS W. BARTEL.

PROTECTION FOR ALL OR NONE.

Our statesmen at Washington have mostly forgotten the farmer. There are two exceptions—the President and Senator Borah. The President believes the present Congress can deal with this problem and pass adequate relief legislation. Senator Borah believes an extra session of Congress should be called.

In our opinion Senator Borah is right. Apart from passing the supply bills this fag-end session of Congress never does do much. Its time is limited. Also, it lacks the inspiration of an imminent test at the polls. There will be no election this summer. November, 1926, is far away, politically speaking.

But the prosperity of agriculture is a matter of vital importance to all the people. It is vital not only as regards our daily bread, but it is vital sociologically and vital as regards the permanence of our institutions.

We have just come through a convincing demonstration of what agrarian distress and poverty may mean governmentally. We have seen the farm bloc tie things up into a good many knots at Washington. We have seen a third party enter the presidential contest, and we know that party would not have appeared except for the unhappy condition of the farmer. We have seen the successful Republican party conduct its presidential campaign on an appeal to save the Constitution of the United States. In other words, the very ark of the covenant was endangered by reason of hard times on the farm.

To be sure, the third party was beaten. It failed to develop anything like the strength it expected to muster and which the leaders of both the old parties expected. What caused this failure? Was it Dawes' belligerent eloquence? Was it La Follette's fumbling, badly directed fight? Those were minor elements. The major cause, as everybody knows, was the advance in the price of farm products, the farmer's improved economic condition and his brightened prospects. We know, too, what caused this advance in the price of farm products. Bad crops elsewhere and a general improvement in European conditions.

It is obvious, though, that we cannot permanently rely upon bad luck elsewhere to maintain the welfare of the American farmer. And as to Europe's economic future, what seer can say! What must be apparent is that the American farmer's condition is fundamentally unchanged, so far as future assurance is concerned. That liability casts its shadow far.

The prosperity of the American farmer is truly a paramount issue. It is truly a challenge to all our best minds; the best minds of business and finance as well as those of statesmanship. That Congress can find a solution for this problem in the crowded days of this traditionally impotent session is out of the question. If Mr. Coolidge really thinks this possible, his notion is, indeed, a Coolidge myth. The obvious truth is that the restoration of the American farmer to an equitable place in our industrial order can only be accomplished by removing the inequities which now oppress him. If other industries enjoy governmental subsidy agriculture must be subsidized. If we legislate profits into the pockets of manufacturers we must do the same thing for the farmer. If the great United States Steel Corporation must have a protected market at home in which it can charge prices which will enable it to sell its surplus abroad in competition with the world the farmer must have the same kind of home market.

That is more easily said than done, of course. But the dilemma is here and we can't get away from it by luck, stump speeches or smug benedictions from the high priests of subsidized industry. We have either got to abolish subsidy altogether or pass it all the way around.

The party of protection is in power. It has been, and is, the party of protection for the few. That policy is played out. Protection for all or protection for none is the alternative that confronts the Coolidge administration.

EFFECT OF HERESY TRIALS.

The sitting of the Court of Review of the Protestant Episcopal Church on the case of Bishop Brown, convicted of heresy, amounts to a new trial, and gets a prominent place in the news of the day. In medieval times heretics, witches and murderers were classed together as major criminals, and in parts of Europe were tried at night, in the secret court known as the vehmgericht. And the heretic often fared worse than the murderer, even though he recanted at the last moment.

But heresy, from the point of view of the then orthodox, increased and multiplied. However, the trials then had, with their impressive and more or less terrifying surroundings, did not react upon orthodoxy as a modern trial is apt to do. Orthodoxy always had the last word, and there were no inquisitive reporters to spread the testimony and verdict in news columns, side by side with reports of banquets and commercial gatherings, for a public made up of the reverent and the mocking to digest or cast aside.

Now we witness the spectacle of the most sacred things, from the churchman's point of view, displayed in the frankest manner. Mysteries, for the sake of which men were once prepared to die, are discussed with no more show of feeling than the market or baseball reports. And the churchmen themselves appear to enjoy this publicity, which is an inevitable part of the times.

The heretic is definitely out of the murderer class. And we have no more witches. A few more heresy trials and we shall have no more heretics.

THE CONQUEST OF THE DESERT.

"The tinkling of the camel's bell" on the desert has been succeeded by the whir of the gasoline motor. The arid plains of the two greatest continents are still inhospitable to life and severe on unacclimated intruders. But the fastness of the desert has lost its invincibility. As against the new vehicles of the waterless wastes the traditional beast of burden is a feeble forbear. It has been beaten at its game as the ox has been obliterated by the railroad and the motor truck.

The Sahara has lost its majestic isolation. From London or Paris it can be crossed to its southern border in 12 days. Two types of cars are employed on the trip, the automobile where traction is tolerable and the caterpillar tractor where it is not. The dreary waste is sparsely dotted with stations where a walled rectangle serves as a refuge from the equatorial enemies of man. Schedules on the motor trail are probably more regular than those of our Rocky Mountain railroads.

More contemptuous still of the terrors of the burning sands is the motor on wings. The world flyers relate a thrilling tale of riding a sandstorm through the Sind Desert in India quite as suffocating at 700 feet altitude as at 50. But they navigated the fiery hurricane without resort to the usual methods of the ships of the desert and their swarthy masters. And they did in a day what a caravan could do in 30.

The desert will always be associated by the great mass of mankind which never sees it with beauty and poetry, with shiek and legend, with fair maidens and dashing Bedouins. For those with the more intimate contact of everyday living it seems destined to a future of practical development.

POSTAL EXPENDITURES AND RECEIPTS.

It appears that Congress never intended to deny the postal workers better wages, the new bills pending, known as S. 3476 and H. R. 11,444, carrying practically the same salary provisions as the defeated bill, but also containing adjusted postal rates to provide new revenue to cover the pay increases.

A Railway Mail Association bulletin states that the postal workers are satisfied with the wage schedules in the new bills, but cannot subscribe to the policy now sought to be established that postal revenue must always be sufficient to cover any necessary increase in wages. These Government servants rightly contend that the taxpayers are willing to bear whatever burden may be required in order that postal employes may be paid salaries sufficient to meet the cost of living.

As to this, the Detroit News makes the following pertinent comment:

> If every Government department were obliged to show an annual profit in money before its employes were paid, the army and navy, among others, would work for nothing. Yet they are paid for an indispensable service they render, and postal employes should be adequately paid without regard to the amount of money accumulated or lost by the service.

Why pick out the Postoffice Department and demand that it be self-supporting? Is the Agricultural Department self-supporting? How much revenue does the Biological Survey bring in? The Bureau of Entomology? The Bureau of Mines? The Weather Bureau, and half a hundred others? How many Government activities are there, of far less vital consequence than the postoffice, that are not only nonsupporting, but enormous consumers of tax appropriations? What about the vast expenditure for agricultural reports—geological, geodetic, Indian, commerce, labor—for all of which the public is expected to pay without considering revenue?

Why should the postal employes, whose services are worth a certain amount, be expected to donate part of their time and efforts out of patriotism, any more than other Government workers?

THE "POLITICS' OF PEACE.

The enemies of the League of Nations have thought to put the curse of Cain on the League by branding it as "political." Hamilton Holt, in his St. Louis speech to Washington University students, took the bull by the horns and admitted the allegation. The League plan, he is quoted as saying, represents political organization, which results in law and is, therefore, one of the bases of the theory of peace.

"Political," because of reprehensible politics, has become associated in the public mind with something untrustworthy and unscrupulous. That is why the word is used to brand the League as evil. As a matter of fact all government is political in the original sense of the term. The Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Emancipation Proclamation are political documents. Our Federal, state and local governments are political. The Monroe Doctrine is political. Can any international agreement for the preservation of peace be entered into which is not political? It cannot.

The only alternative to politics in the true sense is anarchy. That is what we are having internationally so long as the nations do not organize for law and peace.

THE VALUE OF PUBLICITY.

Fortunately for Dr. d'Herelle of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, the University of Minnesota understands the value of publicity, even though the Pasteur Institute does not. Dr. d'Herelle, before and during the recent war, conducted experiments that led to the discovery of the so-called bacteriophage, that mysterious little ultra-microbe that lives by destroying disease microbes.

But Dr. d'Herelle, being a scientist, without interest in publicity, wrote a book or two about it, and then went away to Indo-China to conduct other work in the interest of humanity.

It was not until the press of the world heralded the discovery of the ultra-microbe recently by Dr. Green of the University of Minnesota, that fame dragged Dr. d'Herelle out of his laboratory when it was announced he had accomplished the same results several years before Dr. Green.

All honor to that modest and unassuming benefactor of humanity who does his work without seeking the glory the world owes him.

A WHISKERY FALLACY.

One Mr. Hankins of the Western Kansas plains, where vagrant breezes blow, attributes his longevity and lifelong good health to his whiskers. He is 93 years old and his beard is 70 years old and several feet long.

"There is nothing like a beard to assist the average person in living beyond the ordinary span of life," pipes Mr. Hankins through his own. "The protection afforded the throat and chest by a heavy growth of whiskers is a certain preventive of colds, pneumonia and other ailments responsible for premature death."

With all the respect due to the venerable age of Mr. Hankins, it is in order to point out that the old gentleman is mistaken, and to warn others against accepting his dictum. Pneumonia and colds are germ diseases. A dangerous germ is considerably more likely to enter the system by way of the hirsute lodging place on lip, chin or neck than by the open-air route. After a period of repose in a man's whiskers a weary germ perks up and becomes active and agile. People "catch cold" through breathing germ-laden air; and pneumonia development is hastened by the same unwisdom.

If the Hankins theory—held by a great many men who nevertheless refuse to wear whiskers—be correct, then why is it that we have so many aged women in excellent health? The ladies, God bless 'em, don't wear whiskers.

STILL—!

Modest youths and Quiet misses,
Heed my words
And hold your hisses.

Sneer not at
The overbearing,
Though conceit is Always wearing.

In certain circles
On this earth
One must boast
To prove one's worth.

Otherwise, 'midst
All the dinning
One might never get One's inning.

Moral's this:
Don't be too quiet.
If you must—
Go raise your riot.

Frank Kent thinks it would not affect the outcome of one of our presidential campaigns if neither party spent a cent. He has been looking on behind the scenes, and he tells us in the current Mercury what becomes of all this money. There is a great horde of idle people who are available when the campaigns begin. They are not worth anything, or they would not be available. However, there is no one else who has time for it; so the campaign assembles this army of ne'er-do-wells and inefficients. Some of them are men, some women. They have their salaries and expenses. Their expenses often exceed their salaries. Not one of them ever made a vote, and if they were not employed the campaign would never miss them. It is the men who hold public office and the politicians who have to have places for these people. That is one of the terrible things about politics. For every public man who is successful there are hundreds of hangers-on who attach themselves to him as barnacles cling to a ship. Nor does he go into dry dock to get rid of them in a national campaign. No scraping for him. He comes out of it with more parasites than ever attached to him, and when their total weight finally pulls him under he is truly mourned by those he fed. Frank thinks the presidential campaign funds, which amount to millions, are merely a charity. Except for them the politician would not be able to keep up. He does not believe that anything affecting the vote of the country is done with this money. We are glad to hear him say so, because we have been under the impression that the Republicans were buying the election. He laughs at this, which is reassuring. The money is all stolen or grafted before anything can be done with it, so he says. Thank God for that! Then the country is safe. It will not be sold to the highest bidder.

Fiction stop from the Globe-Democrat in which we learn what the heroine said:

Lieut. Real kneeling on one knee, contemplated the pale face of Arlette. Distinct, yet mingling with the faint growl of distant thunder, Peyrol's voice was heard saying:

CONTINUED TOMORROW.

Sir: In G. B. Shaw's "Saint Joan" as recently played at the American Theater, an inaccuracy or diversion from the text occurs. I do not wish to be controversial, and while not admitting the correctness, I simply present it as an instance of American "squeamishness." Perhaps it is due to a mistaken idea of the management. Be that as it may, in the epilogue of the play, as given in the book, Shaw has Charles say: "What is hell like?" The Soldier answers: "You won't find it so bad, sir. Jolly. Like as if you were always drunk without the trouble and expense of drinking. Tiptop company, too: Emperors and Popes and Kings and all sorts," etc. Now in the spoken version, as it was played at the American, the word "Popes" was deleted. This censorship is especially hard to understand, when the whole play is considered and indeed a reference to "Bishops" inhabiting the lower regions is made further on.

Barrel-stave persuasion won't make a boy seek an education. In my plant boys go to a modern and recognized school and learn useful information eagerly a portion of the day. When I was a youth, I went to work in a machine shop. I saw a locomotive engine there and wondered what made the wheels go around. I asked the foreman. He looked at me and walked away without satisfying my thirst for knowledge. Any boy today in my plant can get all the questions answered that he can ask.—Clarence Howard.

We are afraid Mr. Howard judged the foreman a little harshly. He probably did not know himself what made the wheels go around, and we think foremen seldom do.

Why can't the Democrats at Jefferson City be warned by what happened the Democrats at Washington? If it can be established that there were irregularities in the handling of State funds during the Hyde regime, it will only result in a one-sided Republican victory at the polls in the next election. If the Democrats have not found that out, they haven't been anywhere and don't know nuthin.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

NEED OF NATIONAL ETHICS.

REINHOLD NIEBUHR in the January Atlantic Monthly.

ANY political philosophy which insists that a nation is not subject to moral law is bound to issue in an international diplomacy which operates upon the assumption that nations are not to be trusted. And the political economy of Adam Smith inevitably creates the antithesis of the social philosophy of Karl Marx. The effort at liberalism to preserve the peace between warring classes and nations by pitting self-interest against self-interest was bound to fail. It only served to aggravate the fears and hatreds which the groups and nations had for one another. The Great War came to reduce the whole philosophy of unrestrained self-interest and undisciplined power to an absurdity. * * * One need only analyze the perfectly hopeless situation between Germany and France, and the deeply ingrained conviction of each that the other is not to be trusted, to realize the anarchic condition of our modern life. It is the perfect fruit of modern paganism. There is neither mutual repentance nor mutual forgiveness and therefore there can be no mutual trust. * * * It is quite clear that such a world can be saved only by a spiritual ethic which will inspire men to trust human nature as essentially good, and which will make economic and political institutions subservient to human welfare. The church has such an ethics in the Gospel of one whom it reveres as Master. * * * We are bidden to love even our enemies and to trust our fellow men beyond their immediate ability to validate our trust. * * * The Gospel of Jesus became diluted with Greek philosophy, and the church, which was sworn to teach it, became involved with social groups and nations whose interests and instincts ran counter to its ideals; so that in time an emaciated ethics of more respectability was substituted for real Christian morality. This failure of the church to insist on its own religion has been disastrous to civilization and to the church itself.

SOVIETS AND CHRISTMAS.

From the Springfield (Mass.) News.

IT was Joshua who commanded the sun to stand still and along came King Canute, who tried to command the waves of the sea to recede, but, so history relates, with much less success. The soviets in Russia have undertaken about as hard a proposition as Canute, because they are attempting to take Christmas away from the Russian people. This year, as before, every effort was made to divert the annual holiday celebration into something akin to an antireligious demonstration, but they failed to stir the imagination of the peasantry and their endeavors, therefore, were vain. This is about the third time the soviets have tried to destroy Christmas. Their intense antagonism against anything betokening religion is so manifest as to mark it at once as selfish and insincere. As well try to make the sun stop shining by turning one's back upon it, as to endeavor, as the bolsheviki have done, to disrupt Christmas by frowning upon it. The best tests of sovietism are the absurdities it engages in.

MISSOURI ASSOCIATION TO WORK FOR SWIFT PUNISHMENT OF GUILTY

office created by the bylaws is that of operating director. He is to be nominated by the executive committee, shall be paid a salary and, under the direction of the president and the executive committee, shall have charge of the work of the association. All employes shall be nominated by him. The following are the standing committees: Survey, Statistics, Legislature, Police, Prosecution, Juries, Courts, Clemency, Punishment, Probation, Parols and institutions, Finance and Publicity. There are no dues. It is estimated that $50,000 will suffice to defray the expenses of the survey and it is expected that that amount will be provided by voluntary contributions from public-spirited citizens and the member associations.

"The board of 30 members was chosen by the meeting. Eleven of these are residents of St. Louis, 10 of Kansas City and nine of the State outside St. Louis and Kansas City. In selecting the board care has been exercised to choose men and women well known throughout the State to be hard-headed and practical, but public-spirited, and successful in their respective callings and occupations.

"The board held its first meeting in St. Louis on Nov. 21. It chose the members of the Executive Committee and elected as the chairman of that committee former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley, now Chancellor of Washington University. It enacted an amendment to the bylaws making the president, the vice presidents, the secretary and the treasurer members of the Executive Committee and it appointed a subcommittee to select those officers and, most important of all, to select the operating director. These selections have been made.

Offices in Three Cities.

Offices will be maintained in St. Louis, Kansas City and Jefferson City. The chief work that will be undertaken in the beginning will be gathering the data and the actual facts with respect to crime and the administration of criminal law in Missouri. This survey will be carried on simultaneously in St. Louis, Kansas City and in the interior of the State, although, with respect to the interior of Missouri, it is likely that certain counties will be selected as typical and the survey will be confined to those counties. In choosing those to do this work it will be borne in mind that it is far better not to attempt the task at all than to have it poorly or indifferently done. The work, as it progresses, will be under the immediate supervision of the operating director who will report from time to time to the Executive Committee.

"Until the facts are known, and known accurately, necessary reforms, statutory and administrative, are impossible. Armed with the facts and demanded by public opinion they will be inevitable. Ours is the only civilized nation in the world that has no system of criminal statistics.

"This scope of the investigation will excite controversy that will remain for decision by the board and the operating director and will in large measure be determined by the funds at the disposal of the association, for it is manifest that the survey will be costly and will necessarily be restricted in scope by the moneys at its disposal.

Attention to Courts.

"It is certain, however, that attention will be given to the courts, to the prosecutors and the police. In connection with the courts, accurate data will be gathered concerning their organization, matters of continuances, new trials changes of venue, rules of evidence and juries, and also as to the rules of court, particularly of the Appellate Courts, with respect to reversals because of technical errors. In connection with the prosecutor, attention will be given to matters of system and organization, personnel disposition without trial, nolles bail bonds, acceptance of pleas of lesser offense, and other matters of administration. The facts will also be gathered with respect to the organization of the police force, its personnel, and its system of promotion and discipline. It seems inevitable also that data concerning our parole, probation and pardon systems, and our system of dealing with juvenile offenders and our penal institutions will be collected.

"When the facts shall have been gathered by the survey, the efforts of the association will then be directed toward securing the passage of such remedial legislation, and toward the institution of such administrative reforms as the facts disclosed by the survey point to as being essential to improve the administration of criminal justice.

"This, in all probability, will not complete the work of the association, for, even after the survey shall be completed, and after the necessary legislation shall be enacted, and after the administrative reforms shall be adopted, it is contemplated that the association will continue as the public's 'unofficial observer' of the administration of criminal justice throughout Missouri, and that it will assemble data and publish the facts from time to time, and that, to promote the efficient administration of criminal justice in Missouri, it will co-operate with our public officers and agencies charged with the duty of the suppression, prevention and punishment of crime.

Success Depends Upon Support.

"The goal to be gained is swift and certain punishment for the guilty. Toward its attainment the activities of the Missouri Association for Criminal Justice will be directed. Success will depend upon the moral and financial support it will receive from the public. More unfortunate than the deficiencies in our laws and in their administration, more menacing than the rapid growth and increasing power of the criminal classes, more appalling than mountains of crime statistics that could be gathered, is an apathetic and indifferent public.

"The Missouri Bar Association thus far has given to this problem many months of the best efforts of several of its members and more than $1000 of its money. The Missouri Association for Criminal Justice is now ready to take up the task. It will begin its labors under auspicious conditions. It will have as its constituent members practically every civic and commercial organization of importance in the State, representing hundreds of thousands of members. It has the confidence of the business public and the press."

Observance of Lee's Birthday.

The 117th anniversary of the birth of Gen. Robert E. Lee will be celebrated at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the Westminster Presbyterian Church under the auspices of the Sons of Confederate Veterans, assisted by the various Southern societies of the city. Alcee Stewart, commander, is in charge of arrangements and will preside. The Rev. W. C. Timmons, pastor of the First Congregational Church, will speak.

PLAN TO SPEED BOND PROJECTS ADVANCED

Aldermanic Committee Reports Favorably Two Proposals for Final Reading.

The two alternative plans for speeding bond-issue improvement projects were advanced by the Legislative Committee of the Board of Aldermen yesterday, which voted to report them favorably for final reading at a special meeting of the board tomorrow. The plans, as is known, are for a court test and a charter amendment to make it possible under the charter to make contracts for bond work without having sold the necessary bonds in advance.

Favorable report on the ordinance reorganizing the condemnation section of the City Law Department was voted also by the committee. This would increase the salary of William Senn, head of this important section, from $4800 to $7500 annually and raise the pay of assistants.

Alderman Baur, a member of the committee, brought up the question of raising Aldermen's salaries from $1800 to $3000 a year, and was appointed to confer with City Counselor Senti about it. It is desired to know whether the board can vote itself a raise or must ask the people to vote it in April through a charter amendment.

POPULARITY OF PALESTINE WITH TOURISTS GROWING

Country Registers 22,384 Travelers in Five Months; Good Winter Season Expected.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 20.—That Palestine is becoming increasingly attractive to the tourist, now that normal travel facilities and hotel accommodations are available, is shown by an official report for the last five months, during which 22,384 travelers came to the country.

Many of the tourists spent two months in Palestine, retailers, hotelkeepers and souvenir dealers reaping considerable profit from them.

Nearly everybody in Jerusalem and other Palestinian towns is preparing for the winter season which promises a greater inpouring of tourists to the Holy Land than during any prewar winter. The Jewish Information Bureau announces advices from Europe and America are that more than 5000 Jews expect to spend the coming Passover here.

DEEDS OF MAN, FOR GOOD OR EVIL, INHERITED BY CHILDREN

endowments of mind and body, have been intermarrying for hundreds of years. What has been the result? According to the theory of selection (in this case artificial selection) the present members of those families should be supermen. Without lese majeste I may point out that they are far from it.

"Again, in my own experiments I have demonstrated that the hereditary constitution can be, and has been effected from without, at least in the cases of salamanders, toads and acidians (sea-squirts). Other workers are now trying to repeat these experiments; if they are successful the anti-Darwinians will have a difficult task to hold their own.

An Important Question.

"I am, of course, definitely on one side of the fence. I believe firmly in the inheritance of acquired characteristics; yet I have tried to give you a fair explanation of the issues. You see how important the question is. From a pragmatic point of view it is far more important than the question of whether we are descended from Adam or the ape; no matter which way we answer that, our conduct need not be affected. But when we decide whether or not our actions are responsible for the future or whether we are merely puppets in the hands of God, or fate or chance—then our answer will govern our actions as masses and as individuals.

100,000 Die Yearly From Kidney Diseases

Authorities Say 50 Per Cent of These Deaths Due to Neglect.

Health authorities in all parts of the country are alarmed at the increasing death rate from diseases of the kidneys and liver. Of the annual toll of more than 100,000 lives more than 50% of these deaths was undoubtedly due to failure to heed in time nature's warning of diseased kidneys.

Nervousness, pains in the back, headache, poor appetite, dizziness, etc., are often symptoms of kidney disorders and nature's gentle warnings that poisons are being retained in the system. You cannot afford to ignore these danger signals if you value your health—your most priceless possession.

If you feel out of sorts and suspect that your kidneys and liver are not acting naturally don't delay but go to your druggist, and get a bottle of Warner's Compound (formerly called Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy) and take according to directions. In a short time you should notice the benefit from this remedy made from herbs and other beneficial ingredients. Used for over 50 years by millions in all parts of the world. For your health's sake take care of your kidneys.

Telling How and When To Use Trustworthy Products and Reproducing Extracts of Patrons' Letters Relating to Cadomene, Balmwort, Sulpherb, Arbolone, Su-thol, Mentho-Laxene, Minyol, Hypo-Nuclane, Vilane, Etc.

Questions and Answers

P. J. H. asks: "I weigh 197 pounds and would like to reduce. Can you recommend a good tablet or pill?"

Answer: I know of nothing better for the purpose than Arbolone tablets, which seem to give almost universal satisfaction to those who take them as per directions with each package.

O. M. A. asks: "Have been a victim of constipation for a long time and now as a result am broken out with ugly pimples and often a dreadful itching of my body. What should I use."

Answer: Try taking Sulpherb tablets regularly for a few weeks. I am confident they will aid in restoring a healthier condition.

K. T. T. asks: "My sleep is disturbed a half dozen times each night owing to bladder pressure."

Answer: Quick relief from such a condition usually follows when Balmwort tablets are taken as per directions. They act beneficially on sluggish kidneys and irritated bladder.

M. A. B. asks: "Please advise a remedy to dispel a rheumatic ailment that nearly drives me wild with pain."

Answer: For pain relief take 5-grain Su-thol tablets. Also use Cardiol tablets to aid elimination and assist nature in neutralizing the toxins in the tissues which give rise to rheumatic affections.

B. W. M. asks: "I think I need a building up medicine. Am very nervous, weak and poorly all the time. Hands are cold and moist and have aches and pain of a fleeting character."

Answer: Procure Cadomene tablets and take regularly as a tonic to improve the quality of blood and thus aid in restoring stability to the nervous system.

W. B. Y. asks. "What is a person to do who is afflicted with dandruff, itching scalp and sore spots due to scratching the scalp?"

Answer: Procure plain yellow Minyol and use as per directions.

W. H. asks: "Have catarrh of nose and upper throat. Mucus drops in throat and almost chokes me. What will help this condition?"

Answer: The regular use of Vilane powder as a nasal douche and gargle. Also use Mentho-Laxene salve in nostrils daily.

A. Y. E. asks: "I am bothered with chronic indigestion and constipation, headache and biliousness and want your advice."

Answer: As a pleasant thorough laxative take Casca-Royal Pills. To relieve indigestion and tone up the stomach take Triopeptine tablets for a few weeks.

G. W. B. asks: "I am not a consumptive, but have a stubborn cough which nothing does any good. Cough night and day."

Answer: Procure the essence Mentho-Laxene. Use regularly as per directions. It is truly wonderful in relieving any cough due to mild inflammation, colds, etc.

T. T. M. asks: "Tell me how to improve my appetite and gain a few pounds. Am very thin, somewhat nervous and tire easily."

Answer: A tonic medicine, like Hypo-Nuclane tablets, will generally restore the appetite and aid the system toward an increased plumpness. Add milk to the daily diet and exercise until deep breathing ensues.

Miss H. G. asks: "At this season I suffer constantly with neuralgia and headache so severe that I cannot work. What will aid me?"

Answer: Have your teeth examined and cared for. A good tonic may be needed. To get quick relief from pain take 5-grain Su-thol tablets as per directions.

A. T. O. asks: "Can you advise a reliable efficient laxative and liver tonic?"

Answer: I suggest Casca-Royal Pills as superior to anything for the gentle laxative action.

NOTE: For many years, Dr. Lewis Baker, Medical Director, The Blackburn Products Co., College Bldg., Dayton, O., has been recommending trustworthy medicines to millions of people through the medium of the newspapers, and doubtless has helped in relieving the ailments and minor infirmities of the public more than any single individual in the world's history; and by an inexpensive method.

The medicines mentioned by him are pure and free from habit-forming drugs. They represent the combined wisdom and experience of physician and chemist.

Progressive druggists can supply them.

By reading his answers to others you should find a case similar to your own.

A copy of Dr. Baker's great guide book "Health and Beauty," will be mailed to anyone sending 10 cents (coin).

Thousands have written him expressions similar to the following:

Letters to Dr. Baker

PITTSBURGH, Pa.: Edward C. Kroll, 103 So. 26th St., writes: "I had been troubled with stomach and bowel distress for about 14 months. Had a physician at least once a week prescribing medicine for my trouble. A friend suggested I get a box of Sulpherb tablets. After using three boxes I can say my troubles have disappeared. I have had no trouble for over three months. Many of my friends are now using them, etc."

PETERSBURG, VA.: W. B. Harrison, Secretary and Treasurer of The Virginia Printing and Manufacturing Co., Bank and Market Streets, writes: "I have been using Casca-Royal Pills for about 20 years. I take one pill every night and have the desired results. Am 82 years old, at my office every day. My good health I attribute largely to these pills and will not be without them and have no unpleasant effect from constant use, etc."

BARBERTON, OHIO: Mrs. Lauretta Mitchell, 426 W. State Street, writes: "I am 49 years old and for the last two years I have been in poor health, but at this writing, after taking Cadomene tablets for two weeks, I am feeling fine. If any one is suffering from nervousness and in a completely run-down condition, as I was, I can certainly recommend Cadomene tablets very highly."

• • •

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.: Mr. Asa Caldecott, 26 Peckham Street, writes: "I feel it a privilege to write to you about essence Mentho-Laxene. I left this country in 1915, joined the British army and served three years in the Royal Engineers in Mesopotamia and Egypt. Coming back from these hot climates to England, I commenced coughing day and night. I arrived in New Bedford in bad health and tried several doctors but got no relief. I could not sleep. I then read your advice in Boston paper about Mentho-Laxene. I got a bottle, and it was the best thing I ever did. I took four doses full strength and rested better that night than I had for months. After taking the second bottle and using the Mentho-Laxene Salve, I felt like a new man. I used to have colds all winter. Last winter I did not have one, just by taking a few doses a week, and there are dozens of my friends using it now and they all say the same—'it is the best on the market, etc.'"

ROCHESTER, N. Y.: Sarah L. Warrant, 355 Rosewood Terrace, writes: "Having had bladder trouble which at times caused me extreme pain, I was advised by a local druggist to purchase a box of Balmwort tablets, which I did, and after taking as per directions, I have been relieved of all the symptoms. I noticed relief the third day after starting. I am fifty years of age and a dressmaker, etc."

CHICAGO, ILL.: Mrs. Marie An[illegible] 3040 West 22d Street, writes: "I highly recommend the Hypo-Nuclane tablets. I had been in poor condition for five years. Could eat or sleep very little and always tired, with headaches and backaches. Weighed 97 pounds in April, and in 4 months of taking Hypo-Nuclane I now weigh 121¼ pounds. My face and neck is filling out and the deep lines under my eyes have disappeared. I feel and look like a new being and can now do my own work, etc."

WOODLAWN, PA.: Mrs. A. T. Haney, 446 Shefield Ave., writes: "I am 74. Have worked near 40 years in the iron works. For the past 14 years I have been unable to work steady because of kidney and bladder irregularities. It so reduced me in flesh and strength that I could only do the lightest kind of work. I doctored with many with little relief and was almost ready to give up. Was induced to try Balmwood tablets. At the time my night's rest was disturbed. Before I had used one box I was so much better that I slept well all night. There is nothing I have taken in all the 14 years that has done me as much good as Balmwort tablets, etc."

LOUISVILLE, KY.: Edmand Waggoner, 313 E. College St., writes: "My stomach bothered me for four years. Would get gnawing pain, and vomit up hot water-brash. Could not eat anything without being in such awful misery. I went to four different doctors, but didn't get any better. One said my teeth caused it. Finally I had all my teeth drawn. A year after I had my new teeth my stomach distress was worse than ever. Then a friend told me of Triopentine tablets. I got a box, and then read about Sulpherb tablets. By the time I had taken a box of each my stomach was much better. Now, I have taken six boxes of each, can eat anything at any time and never have any stomach trouble. I am sure thankful, etc."

RENOVA, PA.: Mrs. H. A. Peters, 1122 Erie Ave., writes: "I took the Arbolone tablets and must say they have done me a lot of good. I weighed 180 pounds. After taking a few days I did not have that stuffy feeling so I kept on and now I weigh 160 pounds. Thanks to you for the good they have done. I am telling my overstout friends, because I know they have never done me any harm. Thanking you again, etc."

You just KNOW it's well
Your baby, too, can laugh and coo and crow in the best of health.
You just know it's NOT well
There is no reason for your baby to look or feel this way.

CONSTIPATION means SUFFERING

Poor little thing! It can't tell when the milk is wrong, or it has a little cold, or any of the hundred things that might happen to one so young! But Nature can—and does. The baby becomes constipated, it cries, it frets. That is the warning to look out. Danger and disease are lurking in the body. All the poisons are bottled up in that little frame. Relieve this condition at once or you may have a very sick child.

Dr. Caldwell's
SYRUP PEPSIN
The Family Laxative

—relieves constipation and brings the little one back to health. It restores the bowels to normal activity and so gently that baby joyously laughs. It's Nature's relief for constipation—Egyptian senna, pepsin and pleasing aromatics in a pleasant tasting liquid combination prescribed by Dr. Caldwell for years in his extensive practice and used throughout the country for over 30 years.

Gentle As Nature—Pleasingly Sweet

Nor is baby the only one who needs it. As effective for old as for young. Your bowels should act at least twice daily. Do they? If not, assist Nature as millions are doing annually. Buy a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin now and use as directed. More than 10,000,000 bottles sold annually.

It is sold everywhere medicine is sold—and guaranteed. Try it at our risk. Your druggist will return your money if it fails to do as promised.

BILL PROPOSES TO STOP BOOTLEGGING IN DRUG STORES

Measure to Be Introduced in Legislature at Instance of St. Louis Retail Druggists' Association.

INSPECTOR WOULD EXAMINE PLACES

Former Bartenders and Saloon Keepers Alleged to Have Acquired Control of 100 Stores in State.

The elimination of "bootleggers" as drug store proprietors is the purpose of a bill to be introduced in the State Legislature next week at the instance of the St. Louis Retail Druggists' Association.

The bill was drawn by Ernest F Oakley Jr., attorney for the Druggists' Association, following a general discussion by the druggists of the menace resulting from allowing bootleggers and others, not registered pharmacists, to operate drug stores in Missouri. At this discussion Fred H. Swift, an officer of the association, said: "Tragedy is impending. Former bartenders and saloonkeepers, evidently actuated by purely mercenary motives, have acquired ownership and control of more than 100 drug stores in the State of Missouri. Public health is endangered through the sale of medicines by unprincipled men who are not properly qualified to dispense them."

Bill Not Retroactive.

The bill, as originally proposed, will not be retroactive, merely making it impossible for unqualified persons to become owners of drug stores in the future. Oakley, however, said he would reserve the final decision on this point until just before taking the draft of the proposed legislation to Jefferson City Monday night.

If passed, the amendment to the pharmacy law would require every pharmacy owner to secure a drug store permit, at an annual fee of $2. An inspector would be employed to see that all pharmacy laws were obeyed and violators would be fined $100 for each week they operated a drug store without a permit issued by the State Board of Pharmacy. Members of the latter board would be appointed only on the recommendation of the Missouri Pharmacy Association, if the amendment becomes a law.

Druggists Support Bill.

The spirit with which the amendment will be received cannot be determined now. All members of the Missouri Pharmacy Association and the St. Louis Druggists' Association have been urged to support the measure, and it is understood that considerable influence will be brought to bear to have the bill passed. Oakley, who is handling the legislation for the Druggists' Association, was formerly Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis.

Bazar at Old People's Home.

A bazar will be given at the Old People's Home on Jefferson avenue and Dayton street by the Ladies' Charity and Aid Society, Thursday. Luncheon will be served from 2 to 5 and supper from 5 to 8. In the afternoon there will be a sale of aprons and embroideries.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.

ARRESTS PLANNED FOR 20 PERSONS IN FORD THEFT 'RING'

Plan for Sale of Stolen Cars, Uncovered by Auto Club, Implicates 75 in City.

LARGE FORD SALES AROUSED SUSPICION

New Motors Were Placed in Old Cars to Prevent Identification by Serial Number.

Warrants will be issued Thursday against 20 persons alleged to be members of an automobile theft ring responsible for the theft and resale of 500 Ford cars in St. Louis and vicinity in the last eight months.

Investigators who exposed the ring reported having evidence against 75 persons, including buyers and sellers of the stolen cars, and from this number the 20 strongest cases will be selected. The warrants will charge the making of false affidavits.

Bought New Motors.

The thieves concentrated on stealing Fords, as only the engine of this make is numbered serially by the factory. The original motor would be removed from the stolen car and replaced with a new motor bought by the ring from a dealer for about $105. The resale prices ranged from $300 to $400, as most of the stolen cars were less than two months old.

In order to hide the thefts, purchasers of the new motors made affidavit to purchasing complete cars, when they applied for a certificate of title. Once the title was issued, it was difficult to prove the car, or any part of it, had been stolen, unless the original owner knew of private identification marks.

Large Sales Furnished Clew.

An abnormal demand for new Ford motors was one of the clews that led to the expose of the theft scheme. Legitimate dealers co-operated with city detectives and a private investigator of the Automobile Club of Missouri, in the inquiry.

Secondhand automobile dealers are said to have been included in the ring's membership. The motors removed from stolen cars are believed to have been destroyed or hidden under water, probably in the Mississippi.

Prospective purchasers of cars are advised by the investigators to deal with reputable dealers exclusively. Owners of Fords are urged to place secret identification marks on their cars.

Statues of St. Paul's Crumbling.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The statues of the apostles adorning the sides of St. Paul's Cathedral have been unable to withstand the rigors of 200 years of London weather. Today they are without features, and are fast crumbling away. Copies are being made of material better calculated to withstand decay and will shortly be set up.

SODA "POP" TO HAVE NEW NAME

Manufacturers of Carbonated Beverages to Put on More Dignity.

Soda pop is no longer "pop," but in the future will be known as "bottled carbonated beverages," as a result of the United States Government's action in declaring it a food product. Manufacturers of the drink have decided that the improved quality necessary for such official recognition should entitle it to a more refined name than "pop," so "pop" must go.

That and a good many other topics pertaining to carbonated beverages will come under discussion among delegates of the Missouri Soda Water Manufacturers' Association when they hold their annual convention at the American Annex on Jan. 29 and 30. Manufacturers from all parts of the United States are scheduled to speak, and official entertainment has been provided for the visitors and their guests. A theater party will be given Thursday and a banquet and dance Friday night. The Ladies' Auxiliary will entertain the women visitors with a luncheon Friday and a sightseeing trip and shopping tour.

Among the speakers will be Junior Owens, National Secretary of the American Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages of Washington, D. C.; W. B. Hatfield of Brooklyn, president of the national organization; Sidney W. Lee of Birmingham, Ala., former president, and Royal Holbrook, secretary of the Iowa Manufacturers' Association of Cedar Rapids. The national convention of the association will be held in Kansas City the week of Oct. 19.

Hungarian Hall Dedication.

The United Hungarian Societies of St. Louis will dedicate their new hall at 1921 South Ninth street at exercises held this afternoon and tonight. C. Kaldor, president of the organization and editor of the Es Videke, Hungarian weekly, will preside at the meeting. Director of Public Welfare Cu[illegible]liff and Lawrence McDaniel w[illegible] speak.

Coughed 5 Years From Fall in Icy Water

Science Stops Cough Quickly with Mentho-Laxene

Buffalo Man's Open Letter

"I was soaked to my skin and frozen in ten below zero five years ago. Since then I have caught frequent colds and had a terrible cough winter and summer. I tried most everything. Went to doctors; medicine did no more good than water, so I just gave up. About a month ago I read about Mentho-Laxene. I bought a bottle that night and was coughing terribly. Just before going to bed I took a dose (just a single dose) and I didn't cought all through that night and slept sound, although my custom was to awaken five or six times and cough, cough for fifteen minutes.. I have taken two bottles and don't cough at all now, and I feel fine, and I think this is most remarkable."

Signed, George W. Mellors, 135 Olive St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Any cough due to inflammation of the mucus membranes yields so quickly to the MIGHTY HEALING POWER of MENTHO-LAXENE that amazement and delight take the place of suffering almost like magic. Literally thousands have written thus.

Science Wins Again!

The same science that gave us the wireless and the airplane has given us a scientific cough remedy that stops obstinate, deep-seated coughs quickly, when all other methods fail. And remember, it is free from opiates, narcotics, chloroform and sickening sedatives that so often upset the stomachs of children and elderly folks. With this Master Prescription, coughs and colds are now quickly halted. This marvelous efficiency is due to a scientific method of combining imported Japanese Menthol with native extracts and essences in a powerfully concentrated form, which has a peculiar double action within the system—it quickly relieves the intense spasms that causes the cough, subdues the inflammation, heals the irritation, drives right out of the system the catarrhal phlegm and relaxes the congested membranes which cause obstinate coughs and colds.

Progressive leading doctors, scientists, chemists and druggists sell and highly recommend Mentho-Laxene for children of all ages and for adults. Any mother can feel free to give this pure medicine to her children. It is both inexpensive and very economical. Some prefer to use it full strength, while others dilute it with sugar syrup or honey, making a full pint of delicious cough syrup which children do not "fight." Every bottle is guaranteed satisfactory in every way or money back for the asking. The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio

Mayor Writes

Mr. Andrew Lastine, five times mayor of Marne, Iowa: "I have been troubled with coughing spells for fifteen years. I tried nearly every known medicine without any relief. Then about three years ago I bought Mentho-Laxene. The first dose gave me relief. I now am able to rest and sleep, and always have a supply on hand."

Maine Father Writes:

"My wife, my 14-months-old baby and myself all had severe colds with bad coughs, too. We took about a bottle and our colds and coughs were well. It is the best I have ever had." E. H. Mulligan, 197 Lincoln St., Bath, Maine.

Sleep Impossible

Wisconsin—"My husband had influenza and pneumonia which left him with a stubborn cough—worse at night—sleep became impossible; doctored and tried many so-called cough remedies to no avail. He has taken Mentho-Laxene for three weeks and is entirely relieved. I can surely say it is the supreme cough medicine in quantity and quality." Mrs. Monroe Zwoster, R. No. 4, Box 160, West Allis, Wis.

Child—Like Dead!

Ohio—"My little girl, two years old, had a bad case of bronchial trouble. Doctor's medicine seemed to do no good—the child was just like a dead baby—I hurried and got a bottle of Mentho-Laxene—gave her one dose only until she got up and did not have to worry about her any longer."—Mrs. Daisy La Bella, 773 Summer St., Akron, Ohio.

California Woman Writes!

"For one [illegible] three months I [illegible] and nothing [illegible] lieve me. I tried [illegible] prescriptions and [illegible] cines—at least [illegible] in vain. I began [illegible] use Mentho-Laxene [illegible] just as truly as I [illegible] living. In two [illegible] time my cough was [illegible] solutely gone." POLICE WOUND ONE AT OIL STATION

Several Other Holdups Are Prevented as 'Hands Up' Order Meets Courageous Rebuff.

For many years Mr. Average Citizen, staring into the business end of a menacing pistol, has had the lamentable but logical habit of elevating his hands and saying to the wielder of the weapon, "Take everything I have, but leave me all in one piece," or words to that general effect.

During the past week, however, Mr. A. C., tired of being a worm, has turned, as worms will. Result: One robber killed, one intruder killed, one robber wounded, five or six holdups frustrated, and five alleged robbers captured by the police as a result of the bravery or wit of the erstwhile timid citizen. In addition the police, working overtime in an effort to halt the crime wave, wounded one holdup man.

The first instance of a determined resistance on the part of citizens to lawbreakers occurred last Sunday night, when James R. Bentley Jr., a 16-year-old boy, shot and killed a man who attempted to enter the home of his parents at 1900 La Salle street. The youth, called from his bed by his mother, assembled a small rifle and successfully stopped the invader. The man whom he killed was Ralph Halbrook, 33 years old, 2002 Olive street, who was said to have been seeking his estranged wife. She lives a block from the Bentley home.

Robber Killed in Store.

Wednesday night Tom Kearney, a widely known race track bookmaker, who had never before fired a revolver, shot and killed a man who attempted to hold him up in his cigar store at 407 Walnut street. The robber, identified as Cornelius Hosty, 34 years old, attempted to fire at Kearney, but his weapon missed fire twice. Kearney was exonerated by the Coroner, as was young Bentley.

For the same Wednesday night the reports at Police Headquarters carry a comedy holdup in which two robbers were foiled. The scene was the car sheds at 6700 Manchester avenue. Charles F. Briggs the cashier, was standing outside his bullet-proof cage when two men entered, and, thrusting revolvers at him, ordered him to "stick 'em up." Briggs leaped backward into the cage and slammed the door, shouting "Go to hell!" as he disappeared from view. A robber fired his pistol and the bullet flattened against the side of the cage. Business of thumbing the nose by Briggs as the robbers fled, pursued by the watchman.

Then there was the case of G. P. Clark paymaster for the Rice-Hutchins Shoe Co., 1408 Washington avenue, held up Thursday afternoon with a $1400 payroll in his pocket. He hung on to the money, although one of the two robbers slugged him with his revolver. The robbers fled, but their auto license number was noted and two hours later Clark had identified one of two men captured by the police. The second man was also held as the owner of the license number.

A similar instance was that of John Weller, paymaster for the E. A. Koeneman Electric Co., 1420 Pine street. Friday afternoon he saw two men waiting for him as he left the office with a $1000 payroll. He called the police, the two men confessed planning his robbery and a third man was named who also confessed participation in the plot to rob him.

Two citizens during the week routed outlaws by firing on them. Clifford C. Goodhead awaking Monday evening to find a burglar in his bedroom at 3008A Virginia avenue, fired both barrels of a shotgun at the intruder as he disappeared over the ashpit in the back yard. Two nights later Waldo D. McClure of 7250 Shaftsbury Lane, University City, with his revolver, routed an auto load of men who had followed him to his home and attempted to crowd his car to the curb.

Cosmo Romano, proprietor of a restaurant and bar at 1400 South Vandeventer avenue, added another robber to the casualty list Friday night when he hammered an armed holdup man into insensibility with his own revolver. The victim of the beating, George F. Weaver, 27, an ex-convict, is in City Hospital.

While all this was going on Patrolman Henry C. Staake Wednesday night shot and wounded a man who attempted ot rob the Standard Oil Co. station at Taylor avenue and Page boulevard. The wounded man has been identified as Edward Fitzgerald, 19, of 1418 Hamilton avenue. Two days before Sergt. Steve Collins had rounded up five youths who admitted a series of robberies, and several other good arrests were reported for the week by the police.

CURB ON GERMAN MIGRATION

Americans Pass on Those Seeking to Enter U. S. as Farmers.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Jan. 17.—Germans who try to get into the United States on the pretense that they are expert agriculturists entitled to preferential treatment have a rough road to hoe now in Berlin. The Consulate-General turns such applicants over to William A. Shoenfeld and Aldon C. Shoup of the European organization of the American Bureau of Agriculture and Economics, who have consented to assist the Consular service in determining whether the representations of the applicants are true. Shoup is a real dirt farmer and Schoenfeld is a scientific agriculturist and a graduate of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.

It does not take any milking contests or plowing tests for these to weed out merchants and other soft-handed applicants from the real sons of the soil.

CAIRO-WISCONSIN CONCRETE ROAD READY BY JUNE

Meridian Highway, 350 Miles Long, Finished Except Stretches to Be Surfaced in Spring.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Jan. 17.—A fast motor car route of 18-foot concrete from Southern Illinois, Southeast Missouri and the St. Louis region into the Wisconsin vacation land will be available by June, when, it is believed, every part of Illinois Highway No. 2 will be completed from Cairo, a distance of 350 miles to the Wisconsin line near Rockford, Ill. This route, also known as the Meridian Highway, is virtually completed today, except for a few stretches that are ready for concreting, and the longest concrete boulevard that any State in the Mississippi Valley can boast. This band of concrete is scarcely secondary to the Illini boulevard, connecting Chicago and St. Louis, in importance. Its length, one-fifth greater than that of the road connecting the metropolitan cities, places it in the foremost rank of traffic arteries which are likely to carry the bulk of the motor vehicle traffic of the future.

To Rush Work in Spring.

The Meridian Highway is now entirely completed between Cairo and Mendota via Carbondale, Sandoval, Vandalia, Pana, Decatur, Bloomington, Wenona and La Salle, except a short gap between Wapella and Clinton in De Witt County which has been delayed by right of way controversies. The stretch between Mendota and Rockford via Dixon has been graded and is ready for concrete surfacing. The sections from Rockford north to the Wisconsin State line have been completed for some time.

The State highway department will lay the concrete on the few remaining gaps the first thing this spring and by June it is expected every foot of the great boulevard from Wisconsin to the Ohio River will be completed.

Costliest Road in Middle West.

The total cost is estimated at approximately $10,000,000, a larger sum than has been expended by any other state of the Middle West on a single road.

With the exception of a jog to the West through Lee and Ogle Counties, made necessary by engineering difficulties in following the exact north and south line, the Meridian highway extends north and south with a remarkable fidelity to the points of the compass. Yet at the same time it serves a score of the leading inland cities of the State, from Rockford at the extreme north to Cairo at the base of Egypt.

Perhaps its greatest distinction lies in the fact that the Meridian highway furnishes a direct line of communication for vehicles between Canada and the great South. In connection with the north and south boulevard through the center of Wisconsin from Canada to the Illinois State line, the Meridian highway will likely attract a large part of the vehicular traffic moving between Canada and the Gulf of Mexico in years to come.

It is the first north and south route of any consequence to be completed that will appeal to motorists moving between the Canadian provinces and the southern tier of states. It is believed that travelers by automobile and truck between the North and South will naturally gravitate towards this direct improved road, which not only offers an 18-foot width for a distance of 350 miles, but also extends through one of the richest

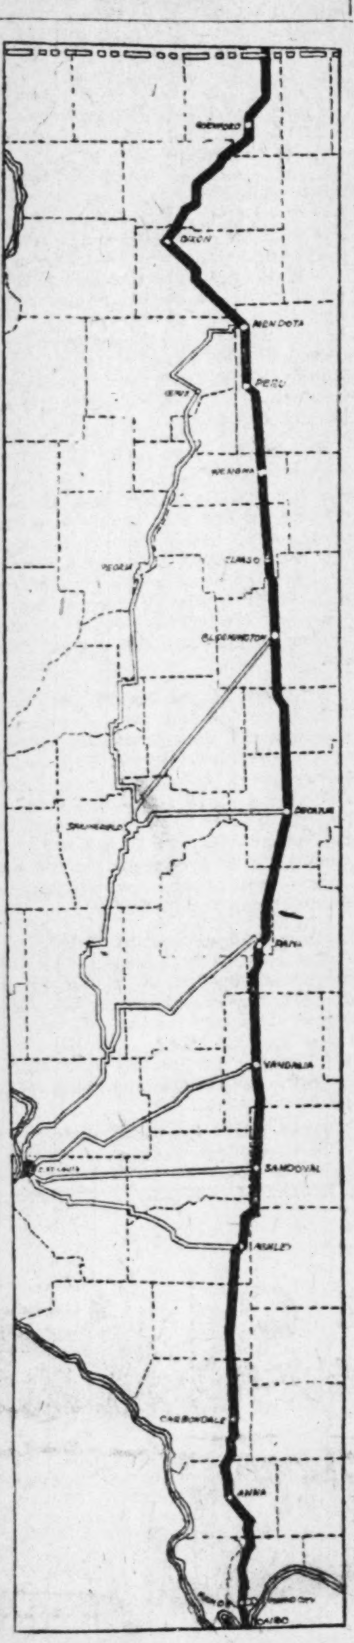
MERIDIAN HIGHWAY WHICH SHOULD BE FINISHED BY JUNE



NEW DISTRICT POLICY FOR STATE AUTO CLUB

An innovation that will be watched with interest by members of every automobile club in the country will be put into effect soon by Manager Matt Morse of the Automobile Club of Missouri. The city is to be divided into districts, and a paid club supervisor is to be put in charge of each district.

The supervisors will have headquarters in the club's main office on Lindell boulevard. Their duties will be to see that every member in their districts gets all club benefits and services, to be the means of personal contact between club members and club officers; to take up and follow through complaints and all matters of interest to motorists in their districts. They will have no other duties.

"We believe," said Morse yesterday, "that such a district system will insure the real co-operation that the club is so desirous of furnishing to every member."

ROAD BUILDING RECORD MADE IN SO. E. MISSOURI

Region Has More Miles of Hard-Surfaced Highway Completed Than Any Other in State.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

POPLAR BLUFF, Jan. 17.—More work has been completed on the State highways in Division No. 10 of the State highway system in Southeast Missouri than in any other section of the State, according to figures on file at the State highway offices.

Southeast Missouri has the first completed through highways in Missouri and more miles of hard-surfaced highways than any other section of the State. Out of approximately $35,000,000 spent on highways in Missouri during the first year of contracts over $8,000,000 was spent in Southeast Missouri.

Important Work.

During the construction season of 1924 Division No. 10 had under contract 430.1 miles of roads at a contract price of $7,205,685. During 1924, 246.8 miles of roads were completed at a cost of $3,584,115. Approximately 183.3 miles, costing $3,621,570 will be carried over into the construction season of 1925.

With the exception of one short stretch in Pemiscot County, the section of route No. 9 from Cape Girardeau to Caruthersville was completed last year. Highway No. 23, from Poplar Bluff to St. Louis, was made an all-weather road, and will be completed in 1925, a small stretch in Wayne County being the only portion remaining to be built or under construction.

Division No. 10's part of highway No. 16, extending from Bird's Point, to which the ferry from Cairo runs, to Springfield, was completed in Division No. 10 last year. This is the most important cross-State road in the southern half of Missouri. In Carter County, where Division No. 9 begins, Route 16 from Ellsinore and the Butler County line has been graded a distance of about eight miles. Superstructure on old county pier and abutments and earth approaches have been constructed on this route about one and one-half miles west of Ellsinore. Route 16 between Van Buren and Reynolds County line has been graded for eight miles. At Van Buren, on route 16 over the Current River, the State Highway Department is building an all steel bridge, 1218 feet long. This will eliminate a railroad crossing and is built on a 1½ per cent grade.

In Shannon County, on route 16, four miles of the road has been graded west of Winona and five miles from the Carter County line.

Six miles of graded earth on

ILLINOIS MOTOR BODY LOSES FOUR CLUBS TO A. A. A.

Alton and St. Clair Organizations Shift — Kansas City Controversy Up to "Three A'S" Manager.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A realignment of motor clubs in Central and Southern Illinois and settlement of the differences between the Automobile Club of Missouri and the Automobile Club of Kansas City, are indicated as a result of action at the meeting here of the Executive Committee and board of directors of the American Automobile Association.

By vote of the directors, the Alton Automobile Club and the St. Clair County Automobile Club were granted affiliation with the A. A. A. Affiliation also was granted to the Quincy Motor Club and to the Mississippi Motor Club at Moline and Rock Island, conditioned on receipt of copies of these clubs' resignations from the Illinois State Automobile Association, which was promised.

As the Illinois State Automobile Association is not affiliated with the A. A. A., clubs belonging to it which desire to join the A. A. A. must withdraw from it before they can be taken into the "Three As."

At the meeting here, the A. A. A. Executive Committee voted to suspend the Automobile Club of Kansas City on the charge that it had not carried out an agreement with the Automobile Club of Missouri. The latter organization holds that creation of a service department, whose members have no vote in the main club, is not making the club truly representative of Kansas City motorists, as was agreed.

Before the directors of the A. A. A. could act on the recommendation of the Executive Committee, a telegram was received from the Kansas City club stating that a

AUTO SHOW AT CHICAGO OPENS NEXT SATURDAY

Cars Worth $1,000,000 and Elaborate Decorations Will Be Features.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—The public opening of the Chicago national automobile show is set for next Saturday evening with more than $1,000,000 worth of cars and accessories on view. Friday and Saturday will be given up to the trade.

The feature of the decorations will be a silver jubilee tower, similar to that which was the feature of the New York show. This tower will light the entire show.

Many of the 1925 models which were on display at the New York show have been sent here and others will come from the factories. The complete list of motor cars to be represented here includes:

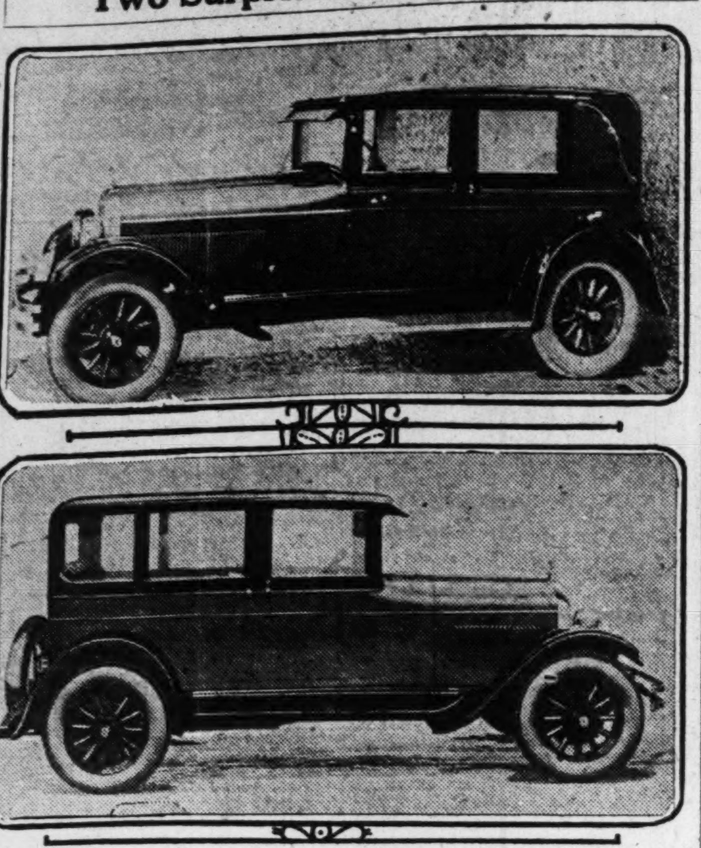
Completion of the Meridian highway is epochal in the history of Illinois and marks the climax of road construction under the $60,000,000 bond issue. It is among the last of the improved boulevards made possible by the original bond issue.

The first section was commenced four years ago at Cairo, and, county by county, the great project has been pushed north until now it reaches to Wisconsin and invites the north and south traffic of the continent. That each succeeding year will witness an increase in the volume of traffic on it is deemed certain.

It will be for the cities along the Meridian highway to insure expeditious movement and avoid conflict with the natural congestion of their own thoroughfares and at the same time eliminate accident hazards at railway crossings.

The State Highway Department has practically completed its share of the great improvement. It is expected that the municipalities will do their part.

Two Surprises at Auto Show



Top — The new Locomobile "straight eight" brougham. Below—The new Locomobile "Junior Six" sedan. These cars are in addition to the costly big Locomobile which is continued as a six-cylinder job. The new 'straight eight," which engine is of 2 11-16 bore, is priced so low as to put it in competition with moderately priced sixes. The "Junior Six" also is low-priced.

Automobile in Theater Act.

One of the new Hup "straight eights" plays a part in a radio control act at the Delmonte Theater.

Guests of Distributer.

Fifty Paige and Jewett dealers in the St. Louis district were guests Tuesday of the Wilson Motor Car Co., the new distributer, at a luncheon at Hotel Melbourne, at which also were present Henry Krohn, vice president in charge of sales of the Paige Detroit Motor Co., and W. A. Hall, special representative. Robert E. Lee, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, was toastmaster. Among those who spoke were Krohn, H. Claude Merry, secretary and sales manager of the Wilson company; John R. O'Neil, the firm's wholesale manager, and R. J. Ossens of the Commercial Investment Trust. Krohn said there was every reason to expect that 1925 would be one of the best years the industry has known.

PROPOSED GAS TAX IN ILLINOIS CAUSE OF LIVELY AGITATION

WITH motor clubs and automotive industry executives organizing in opposition, the proposed Illinois gasoline tax is likely to be the center of a spirited fight in the Legislature. Supporters of the bill for the tax declare that many Legislators have promised to vote for it. Among those working for the bill is the Illinois Agricultural Association.

ILLINOIS MOTOR BODY LOSES FOUR CLUBS TO A. A. A.

meeting was being held to take action on the club's bylaws, presumably with the object of trying to meet the objections of the Automobile Club of Missouri. The directors thereupon referred the controversy to General Manager Ernest Smith with power to act.

The latest development in the situation was a telegram to Smith from the directors of the Kansas City Club saying that they had adopted a motion providing that the club's by-laws be amended so that all members of the service department be given the right to vote on all club matters not included in the property rights of the club. As this seems to meet the main objection of the Automobile Club of Missouri, it is regarded as probable that the Automobile Club of Kansas City will be regarded as functioning as an A. A. A. organization, at least for the time being.

Uses New Type of Manifold.

The airplane type engine with which the Velie car is powered now has a new manifold which the factory says will add 8000 miles at least to the life of the engine. H. C. Snow, chief engineer of the company, says this manifold will heat a cold motor in winter weather to operating temperature in 30 seconds, and that gasoline will not get past the pistons as easily, as usual during the winter months in most gasoline engines.

Will Be Branch Manager.

James H. Platt has been appointed general manager and Ottmar Nierhoff office manager of the branch which the Ajax Rubber Co., Inc., has opened in St. Louis as headquarters in this district for Ajax tires.

TIRE SERVICE CHARGES ADOPTED.

THE following minimum service schedule was adopted by members of the Associated Tire Dealers of St. Louis at their annual meeting at Hotel Claridge Tuesday night: Road call, 50 cents; delivering and mounting a new casing, no charge; delivering new tube but not mounting it, no charge; delivering and mounting new tire, 50 cents; store door work—mounting a repaired casing or tube, 25 cents; mounting tube or tire bought elsewhere, $1. These charges are to be in addition to regular repair charges.

Officers were elected as follows: President, A. P. Woehrle of the Beverly Rubber Co.; first vice president, Sam L. Chorline of the State Tire Co.; second vice president, J. G. Johnston of Johnston Bros. Tire and Service Co.; third vice president, Harry F. Schollmeyer of the Valley Motor Co.; treasurer, C. V. Quinn of the Reid-Quinn Tire Co.; secretary, Thomas F. Carpenter of the Carpenter Tire Co.; directors—Arthur A. Guenther, Flynn-Guenther Rubber Co., chairman; Chris Hasenpflug, Hasenpflug Tire Co.; Harry White, Merchants' Tire and Battery Co.; T. C. Setzer, Buckley-Pannell-Setzer, Inc.; Arthur S. Fishell, Fishell Tire Service Co.; Louis B. Wyner, Universal Tire Co.; D. J. Henry, Henry-Maginnis Tire Co.; Harry Schweighofer, Standard Tire Co.; J. W. Kummerle, B. & K. Tire Co.; A. D. Reid, Reid-Quinn Tire Co.; J. Cohn, S. & L. Tire Co., and Charles Haill, Robert G Haill Tire Co. President Woehrle, Vice President Chorlins and Treasurer Quinn were all re-elected.

The meeting was marked by what President Woehrle termed a truly wonderful spirit of good fellowship and co-operation in view of the fact that the association was organized only a few months ago. The association has two big tasks ahead—education of the tire dealers of the city in co-operation and steadily improved service to the public, and preparations for the national tire dealers' convention which will be held here this year.

Opens Branch Office in City.

The Black & Becker Manufacturing Co. of Baltimore has opened a branch office at 2839 Locust boulevard for distribution of its portable electric tools and grinders used in automotive work.

McNIECE JOINS AUTO FIRM.

ONE of the most widely known of St. Louis automobile executives, I. G. McNiece, has joined the MacCarthy-Archer Auto Co., distributor of Jordan and H. C. S. cars, and will be sales manager. McNiece's experience on Auto Row covers some 20 years most of the time as distributor of well-known automobiles. He was with the Halsey Automobile Co. 16 years or so ago, selling Packards. Later he was president of the Cadillac Automobile Co. of St. Louis. When the Lincoln car was introduced, he formed his own company and was Lincoln distributor in this district until the Ford organization took over the Lincoln factory. McNiece has been active in the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and in the annual St. Louis automobile shows. In the course of the years he has built a reputation for association with quality automobiles.

New Ford Dealership.

Willard N. Love, for six years sales manager for the Johnson Automobile Co. and 16 years in the automobile business, and William R. Johnson, formerly assistant sales manager of the Ford branch and later in the Johnson-Wright Motor Car Co., have formed the Love-Johnson Motor Co. as authorized Ford dealer. They will be located temporarily at 4937 Natural Bridge road while their new building, which is to be ready March 1 at Natural Bridge and Union boulevard, is being erected. Love's brother, John Love, will be in the sales department.

Schools For Salesmen.

H. J. Klinger, zone sales manager for Chevrolet in this district has been conducting a series of schools in salesmanship which have been largely attended by members of the sales forces of the local Chevrolet dealers.

Wins Praise at Auto Show.

Officers of the Gardner Motor Co. are elated over the praise that was accorded the new Gardner "eight-in-line" models at the New York automobile show, where they were generally said to be outstanding value. Sidney Bowman, Gardner distributer in New York, reported that he made more sales at this show than at any previous exhibition. He attributed this to the new design, European lines and pricing the closed eight at open model price. The new Gardner eight, which supplements the Gardner four, has a 75-horsepower engine, 4-wheel brakes and balloon tires. Both four and eight cylinder models will be exhibited at the Chicago show, beginning next Saturday. Officials of the Gardner factory who plan to attend the show are: Russell E. Gardner Jr., president; F. W. Gardner, vice president; W. H. Yelldell, secretary and sales manager, and C. W. Webber, chief engineer.

Becomes Dealers' Treasurer.

Walter H. Vesper, vice president of the Vesper-Buick Automobile Co., distributers of the Buick car in St. Louis territory, was elected treasurer of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, at a meeting of the directors held Wednesday in the office of Secretary Robert E. Lee. Vesper succeeded Snyder B. Ward, president of the Ward Motor Co., whose term as treasurer would expire May 1, 1925. Ward's resignation was tendered because of his illness. Ward is at Barnes Hospital.

Putting Ed Weber "In Right."

Through a typographical error in the Automobile Section last Sunday George Weber was made to serve as head of the Weber Motor Car Co. As a matter of fact, Ed Weber is head of that company, which distributes Studebaker cars, while George Weber is head of the Weber Implement and Automobile Co.

Firm Moves Its Office.

I. Horckitz has been appointed manager of the Brockman-McDevitt, of which Philip H. Brockman is president, coincident with the company's move from 3128 Locust to 3111 Locust boulevard, which is headquarters of the De Luxe Automobile Co. The concern distributes accessories, among which is the Bayonet cap for radiators.

New Dodge Plant in Canada.

Dodge cars will be built, not merely assembled, in a new plant at Toronto, Canada, which will displace the one established some years ago by Dodge Brothers at Walkerville, across the river from Detroit. A subsidiary company will conduct the plant.

Will Build for Retail Sales.

The Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. plans a new building, at the east end of its site on Delmar boulevard, just west of [illegible], to house its new Hudson and Essex retail sales branch, of which George R. Dunville has been appointed manager. At present the retail branch is in the Hudson-Essex service building.

To Manage New Tire Store.

William A. Cherlins is manager of the tire store just opened by the Chorlins Tire Co. at the northeast corner of Washington boulevard and Twenty-third street. The store has entrances on both streets.

Watch Their Own Cars Built.

Forty Ford cars were built and sold by Ford dealers on the assembly line that was run on Broadway during the New York Automobile Show. Many buyers watched their own cars being assembled and run off the line.

To Sell Car Curtain Device.

Exclusive right to make and sell in this region the roller curtains which are a feature of the new Studebaker duplex phaeton models has been granted to the Wells-Shuford Co., accessory manufacturer with offices at 3540 Olive street. The company is prepared to supply the curtains for former Studebaker open models, and has begun to make deliveries. The company will market the curtains device as the Wedford Ever-Ready [illegible] and plans to exhibit it at the Chicago Automobile Show.

EAST FLORIDA CITIES SAY ROAD IS MALIGNED

Prepare Map and Summary of Highway Conditions From Jacksonville to Miami.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 17.—So many statements have been made that the Dixie Highway from Jacksonville to Miami, down the Florida East Coast, is in bad condition, that the Chambers of Commerce in all the cities on this route have united in preparing a map purporting to show in detail that the stories are not true. This map shows conditions on the first of this month, and was checked by the State engineers.

The State is spending $3,000,000 in rebuilding and improving the northern part of this highway. Such detours as are necessary are being kept in passable condition at State expense for the benefit of visiting motorists.

Of 381 miles of road, the Chambers of Commerce declare, detours occur on only a small section, and these may be traveled without unnecessary trouble. The remainder of the highway, they state, is brick, which has been repaired and widened recently, or shell in fairly good condition, or crushed rock base, oiled and sanded to a smooth surface and in perfect condition, or new asphalt or concrete pavement. Certain detours necessitated during the rainy season are no longer needed, as repairs have been made, now that the heavy rains are over.

WILLS-STE. CLAIRE SIX ADDED TO LINE

Oil Is Water-Cooled in Motor, Which Has Seven-Bearing Crankshaft.

As in the eight, the new Wills-Sainte Claire six, just seen at the New York show, has overhead valves and cams. This principle of engineering is embodied in a majority of the highest type aviation motors and many of the finest cars of Europe. The design eliminates noisy rocker arms and push rods, and not only makes for greater simplicity and accessibility but also smoother operation and greater efficiency.

There is a seven-bearing crankshaft which is regarded as one of the finest crankshafts ever designed and one of the outstanding features of this motor.

A unique cooling system is another development. The thermo-syphon system not only cools the motor and prevents it from becoming overheated, but also cools the oil. This prevents thinning of the oil by heat, with resultant loss of viscosity.

Water-cooled oil and perfect carburetion which has been developed cause its designers to claim that this motor is as near "carbonless" as has been designed.

A fully developed and proved system of hydraulic four-wheel brakes, balloon tires, eight body styles mounted on the standard chassis of 127-inch wheel base are some of the features of the newest Wills-Sainte Claire.

December Car Deliveries.

Deliveries of General Motors cars by dealers to consumers in December totaled 34,276 cars and trucks, compared with 35,709 in December, 1923, and 33,095 in November, 1924. During 1924 there were 656,678 General Motors cars and trucks delivered by dealers to users, compared with 731,281 in 1923, a decrease of 10 per cent.

A unique cooling system is another development. The thermosyphon system not only cools the motor and prevents it from becoming overheated, but also cools the oil. This prevents thinning of the oil by heat, with resultant loss of viscosity.

Water-cooled oil and perfect carburetion which has been developed cause its designers to claim that this motor is as near "carbonless" as has been designed.

A fully developed and proved system of hydraulic four-wheel brakes, balloon tires, eight body styles mounted on the standard chassis of 127-inch wheel base are some of the features of the newest Wills-Sainte Claire.

December Car Deliveries.

Deliveries of General Motors cars by dealers to consumers in December totaled 34,276 cars and trucks, compared with 35,709 in December, 1923, and 33,095 in November, 1924. During 1924 there were 656,678 General Motors cars and trucks delivered by dealers to users, compared with 731,281 in 1923, a decrease of 10 per cent.

ROAD BUILDING RECORD MADE IN SOUTHEAST MISSOURI

Route No. 16 in Texas County has just been completed between Dunn and Cabool.

In Wright County, west of Mansfield, three miles of gravel and three miles of graded earth have been completed on No. 16, while east of Mansfield three miles of graded earth road has been completed. Several small sections on the same route, a total of about two miles of graded road, have been completed on either side of Norwood.

Division No. 16, which includes Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Madison, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Ripley, Scott, Stoddard, Wayne and Bollingers has 861 miles of State highways, as designated in the centennial road law by the special session of the Legislature in 1921. Of the 861 miles, 469 miles have been constructed by the commission, 183 miles are under construction and 239 miles are unimproved road, which will be constructed as rapidly as funds are available.

In Butler County.

In Butler County during last year ,the State completed Federal aid projects 204-Z and B, 10 miles of 18-foot concrete pavement on route 16, east of Poplar Bluff. "This section," Division Engineer Newton said, "is probably the most important completed road in Southeast Missouri, as it completed the Poplar Bluff-Cairo road from Poplar Bluff to Bird's Point on the Mississippi River."

Work under construction, to be completed in 1925, consists of section 8 of route 53, one and three-quarter miles of gravel road connecting the St. Francis River bridge and Dunklin County with Highway No. 16 at Poplar Bluff. Later plans may call for paving this road with eight-foot concrete. Surveys have just been completed on two routes, the most economical location to be selected by the commission soon. Several other minor projects are to be completed. They include Federal aid project 525 on route 42, the Ripley County connection with the north and south road through Butler County, and project 207-B, a new bridge over Cain Creek on route 16, west of Poplar Bluff.

In Stoddard County, the roads completed in 1924 consisted of Federal aid project 118-A, a section of route 16, to be 18-foot concrete.

Twenty-eight miles of gravel road on Route 25, from a point three miles south of Bloomfield north to the Cape Girardeau County line, are completed with exception of a small amount of bridge work. Federal aid project 211-A, 7.7 miles, on Route 25 from Dexter to Bernie, and Section 83, of Route 16, three miles of 18-foot concrete pavement on the Cairo-Poplar Bluff road from the Butler County line east, with the completed portion of one under construction, give Stoddard County a gravel road from Capt Girardeau County line north to Advance to the Dunklin County line south of Bernie, and a completed concrete and gravel road on the Poplar Bluff-Cairo highway east and west through Dexter across the county.

Work under way, to be completed in 1925, consists of Federal aid project 211-B, 3.3 miles of gravel with 500 feet of concrete pavement on Route 25 from Bernie south to the Dunklin County line, and Federal aid project 118-C, a relocation of two miles of Route 16 from Essex east. This relocation avoids two railroad grade crossings. The 1925 program will include Highway No. 51, a road from Puxico northeast to the Bollinger County line.

Much Work on Program.

The Wayne County program shows completion of Sections 13 and 14 of Route 34, seven and one-half miles of graded earth, including bridges, on the east and west road and south road. This program was finished last year. Work under construction, to be completed in 1925, consists of Sections 18, 19, 20 and 23, the north and south road, Route No. 23. These sections are now about 85 per cent complete. The 1925 program will provide for construction of Route 34, the east and west road as far as the Castor River.

Contracts completed in Madison County were projects No. 203-A, a seven-mile section of the Fredericktown-Ironton road, a two-mile section of the same road immediately west of project 203-A, Route 70, the St. Francis River Bridge on the Fredericktown-Ironton road, Sections 97, 98 and 99 graded earth sections, including bridges, on the primary road on Route 9, from a point north of Fredericktown to the Bollinger County line. This contract is somewhat unusual, in that it was financed entirely with local funds, the commission agreeing to repay this money as soon as refund money is due Madison County out of the secondary allotment of the $60,000,000 bond issue.

Contracts under construction in that county, to be completed this year, include an 18-foot concrete pavement on Sections 97 and 99 of Route No. 9. This contract was let in November, and contractors are preparing to start work as soon as weather conditions permit. The 1925 program includes Route No. 70, the Fredericktown-Ironton road.

Bollinger County.

In Bollinger County, during 1924, the commission completed Sections 100, 101, 102 and 103, 18 miles of graded earth road, including bridges, on Route 9, and Federal aid projects 202-A, 208-A, 208-C, Route 51, and Section 24 and all parts of Route 51 from Patton south through Lutesville to the Stoddard County line.

Work under construction, to be completed in 1925, consists of 18-foot concrete pavement on Sections 100, 101, 102 and 103, Route 9. The contractors are making preparations to start work with arrival of favorable weather. Contracts in Bollinger County for 1925 cover a section of Route 25 in the south part of the county, which is the only uncompleted link from Lutesville to the Stoddard County line, and gravel surfacing on four miles of graded earth constructed in 1924 on Route 51 from the Stoddard County line north.

In Ripley and Pemiscot.

Work in Ripley County completed in 1924, consisted of two and one-quarter miles of gravel road on the north and south road through the county, four and one-half miles of grading, bridges and culverts on Route 42, the east and west road through the county, and five and one-quarter miles of graded earth, bridges and culverts on Rouse 42 from the east end of Federal aid project 206 to the Butler County line.

In 1925 the contracts will include construction of gravel surfacing on the completed earth sections of Route 42 from the Butler County line west to a point six miles east of Doniphan.

The completed contracts in Pemiscot County consist of eight miles of 18-foot concrete pavement on Route No. 9, from the New Madrid County line at Portageville, south three and four-tenths miles of gravel road from Hayti directly north, and 11.8 miles of 34-foot grade earth road, including bridges and culverts, on Route No. 9 from the Arkansas State line north to the gravel road south of Hayti.

Work under construction, which will be completed in 1925, consists of five miles of nine-foot concrete and seven-foot gravel on Route 84, the east and west road from Hayti west to Kennett in Dunklin County. This contract cannot be completed before summer. Six miles of road will be built in 1925 on contracts to be let soon.

Dunklin County Situation.

In Dunklin County the contracts completed or practically completed in 1924 cover three projects on Route 25, the North and South road. These complete the road form the Dunklin County line south to three miles south of Senath. From this point on Route 25 to the Arkansas line the contractors have completed a nine-foot concrete pavement with the exception of one quarter-mile gap, and will complete the gravel surfacing in the next three or four months. Two months of good weather in the spring will complete Route 25 from the Arkansas line west to Cardwell, to the north line of Dunklin County. On Route 53, the Poplar Bluff-Campbell-Holcomb road, two projects, extending from the St. Francis River south to Campbell and Holcomb, are to be completed soon. On Route 84, the east and west road through Kennett, forming a part of the Hayti-Kennett road, has been completed with the exception of a section in the extreme east part of Dunklin County. Owing to construction by the drainage district of several large ditches, road work in this county will not be completed until late in 1925.

During 1924, Section 3 of Route 82, a 16-foot gravel road, three miles in length, was completed in New Madrid County. Route 82 is the east and west road, across New Madrid County, extending from Malden in Dunklin County, directly east through Risco to Route 9. Section 4 of the same route, two miles of gravel road is now under construction.

Two miles of Route 94, nine-foot concrete and seven-foot gravel on the Cairo-Poplar Bluff road, were completed in Mississippi County in 1924. Other projects completed last year include 2.2 miles of 16-foot gravel on the Benton-Charleston road, Route 55-A, a nine-foot concrete road from East Prairie west; 3.5 miles to the New Madrid County line and Project 198-A, a nine-foot concrete road, from Charleston 10.3 miles to East Prairie. Federal Aid road project 198-B, from the Charleston-East Prairie road east and south to Wolf Island, on the Mississippi River, a distance of 14.8 miles, is almost complete.

Contracts completed and accepted in 1924 in Scott County, consisted of a section of Route 16; Route 55, 3.8 miles of the Benton-Charleston road, and Route 55, two miles of 16-foot gravel, including a large bridge.

HUDSON
World's Greatest Buy
Everyone Says It—Sales Prove It

Being the world's largest builders of six-cylinder closed cars permits Hudson to give values beyond all comparison.

Economies in manufacture and the experience gained in three years' concentration on closed cars have resulted in the best cars and the lowest prices of our history.

Despite the fact that Hudson has alone offered closed car comforts at open car price, its real appeal has been the brilliant character of its performance.

With the Famous Super-Six

Hudson has the famous Super-Six chassis. Its motor solved the problem of smooth performance. It increased motor and car life to the extent that thousands of cars having service records exceeding a hundred thousand miles. The Super-Six was created by Hudson, is patented and belongs exclusively to Hudson.

Note the prices at which Hudson closed cars are sold. Think of their values in good looks, in the way they retain their attractions and the little attention and cost required to keep them in first-class appearance and condition.

They have reduced closed car costs for thousands. They afford advantages to be found only in costlier cars, and yet their cost is but little more than cars whose sole appeal is price.

DEATHS THROUGH MOTOR VEHICLES SHOW DECREASE

Drop in November Totals for Country Regarded as Encouraging in View of Car Increase.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A decrease in motor-vehicle fatalities in this country is noted from statistics supplied to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, which estimates 1800 in November, which is well under the total for the previous month and for November, 1923. With registration of cars 16 per cent larger than in 1923, a 13 per cent decrease in fatalities indicates traffic-control progress.

For Uniformity.

Uniformity of traffic policy is to help reduce the fatalities, in the opinion of the Chamber's Traffic Planning and Safety Committee, whose chairman is George M. Graham. Uniformity was the aim of the Hoover conference at Washington, which advocated:

Uniform road signs being put into effect through efforts of Association of State Highway Officials.

One-hand signal, the extended hand giving a warning of change in direction.

Examinations for drivers, eliminating the unfit.

Gradual elimination of grade crossings, with requirement that motorists recognize railroads' rights at existing crossings, particularly at main-line points properly marked.

"These are but a few striking ways in which unified effort will help to improve traffic," said Graham. "All elements are reaching the common basis of solution, and the results promise to be worth while.

Protecting the Pedestrian.

"We must bear in mind constantly that the pedestrian must be protected.

"The fatality figures for the month keep repeating past experiences in showing that more than two-thirds of the catastrophes occur to those on foot.

"The fact that a great number of these cases represent jay-walking is a secondary consideration.

"Traffic must be so well ordered that the temptation to jay-walk will not exist."

John Smith and His Car

by FREDERICK RUSSELL

THE CAR IS STOLEN.

SMITH'S car hadn't been out of the repair shop two weeks when it suddenly disappeared into the oblivion which claims millions of dollars' worth of motor cars annually. I happened to meet him on the street at noon hour directly after the trouble. Apparently he was on his way to tell me about it.

According to Smith's version of the story, his car disappeared while he was depositing a check at the bank. He admitted that he had not locked the car because he intended being gone only a few minutes.

"A little carelessness now and then," I said, "doesn't do any real harm, but it has been your custom to park the car in front of the bank at 12:30 every other day. When a car owner makes it a rule to leave his machine at a certain place at a definite time a thief is bound to get wise to the fact in time. In your case he was just waiting for the one chance in a hundred when you would forget to lock the car. One way to puzzle the car thief is to park your car in a different place every time you leave it. He can never be quite sure about it then: he'll try the property of some other motorist, whose habits he is more familiar with."

"I guess you're right," Smith replied. "But the car's gone, and what is there to do about it."

"There's a lot to do about it," I retorted. "And the quicker we act the better."

"I've notified the police," Smith said. "If they can't find the car no one can."

"That's just where you're all wrong," I replied. "The police have a hundred and one things to look after, many of which are vastly more important than the recovery of your car. Notification of the police, however, is the first thing to do, because this gives the story of the theft of the car official recognition. The insurance company is better satisfied when procedure is regular."

Smith had forgotten about his theft policy.

"Good enough!" he exclaimed. "Now they can settle for a total loss and call it quits."

"That all sounds well," I replied. "But you forget that you will have to wait two months before the insurance company will settle with you. The policy grants them this length of time in which to await developments. Remember, the insurance company does not undertake to go hunting for your car, though the adjuster assigned to the case may find it advisable to do a little detective work. Of course the Underwriters' Detective Bureau is always on the job, but their plan is a broad one and indirect as far as any particular car is concerned. They aim to locate and convict car thieves rather than recover particular cars. So, in the meantime your car is just a needle in a haystack. If you buy a new car before the 60 days period is over you will have to use your own money. And if your car is found you will then have two machines on your hands.

"For another thing, you violated the provisions of your policy when you neglected to lock the car. For the reduced rate at which the fire and theft policy was written you agreed to equip your car with a fire extinguisher and an approved locking device, and to keep the lock locked when away from the car. You haven't co-operated very well with the insurance company. My advice to you is to make an extraordinary effort to recover your car. It will pay you to do so."

As we had been walking back to the bank I asked him if he thought any of the cars parked at the curb were there when he left his car. He tried to recall, and finally concluded that the new limousine standing across the street was there when he drove up. Fortunately there was a chauffeur at the wheel. I went over and quizzed him.

"Sure," he replied, "I saw that car. 'The guy seemed to be in a hurry to get away. Didn't shift gears well."

"Which way did he go?" Smith asked.

"Straight ahead," was the answer.

"That won't help any," I interrupted. "He could turn in any one of several directions at the next corner, and beyond that he could change his direction of flight again. Can you give us a brief description of the driver?"

"Sure," said the chauffeur.

He did, too. And while he talked I made a careful note of everything.

"Now," I said, turning to Smith, "we've got something to work on. Find the man and the rest is easy. Remember that it's simple enough to hide a car, but a thief walks into his trap sooner or later. A full description of him in the hands of the police is the best trap you can set."

AT-THE-DOOR GROCERY SERVICE ON BIG SCALE PLANNED IN CALIFORNIA

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Jan. 17.

A ONE MILLION DOLLAR corporation has been formed to operate at-your-door grocery and meat market service in California making daily calls. Present plans provide for 40 motor units, which will run on regular schedules. The units will consist of tractor and semi-trailer large enough to carry complete grocery and meat stocks.

NEW AUBURN FOUR AND EIGHT COMING

New Models Probably Will Be Seen Here Tomorrow or Tuesday.

The new Auburn cars—a brand-new 4-cylinder and a "straight eight," the 8-88, entirely distinct from the present Auburn eight—will be on display in St. Louis tomorrow or Tuesday at the Mound City Automobile Co. Joseph A. Schlecht, president of the Mound City Co., says he was so impressed by the new Auburns when he saw them at the New York show, that he had several officials and department heads of his company go to the Auburn factory to see the cars and drive some of them back. So Joseph A. Walde, secretary-treasurer; George H. Walde, vice president; R. E. Grant, head of the used car department, and E. C. McGruder, head of the wholesale department left Thursday for Auburn, Ind., and should be back with the new cars early this week.

New 4-Cylinder Auburn.

The new 4-cylinder Auburn has a 108-inch wheelbase and is priced to make a lot of competition. The engine is 3⅝ in. bore x 5 in. stroke, with a five-bearing crankshaft. Balloon tires and disc wheels are standard equipment, the tire size being 29x4.40 in. A feature of the car is its low build. A unit power plant is used and a transmission lock provided. Spark and throttle levers are on the dashboard instead of on the steering wheel. Ignition advance is semi-automatic. Semielliptic springs are fitted at front and rear. There is a single piece windshield.

Description of the Eight.

The new eight engine has 3⅛x4½ in. cylinder dimensions. A Swan manifold is fitted. Four-wheel brakes are regular equipment, those on the front wheels being internal expanding and those on the rear wheels external contracting. These brakes are fully equalized by means of a special Auburn equalizing mechanism. The emergency brake operates on a drum on the transmission shaft and is applied by means of a handle on the dashboard, which leaves the driving compartment unobstructed.

The springs consist of many thin leaves and a special shackle design is used. There are three finger levers on top of the steering wheel. One is the throttle lever; the second is a combined spark advance lever and switch and the third the lighting switch. All of the instruments are arranged on a single panel on the instrument board.

One of the inclosed models on the eight 88 chassis is a four-door passenger brougham, which has inset door handles and walnut panels on all doors. Brewster type windshields are fitted on this and on all other closed models. The upholstery is in a satin finish leather with flower designs.

Another body on the eight 88 chassis is the regular sedan, which is mohair trimmed throughout.

Of the various body types formerly offered on the 6-43, the sport touring model and the touring coupe have been discontinued, while the price of the five-passenger sedan has been reduced, making it lower than the former price of the open model.

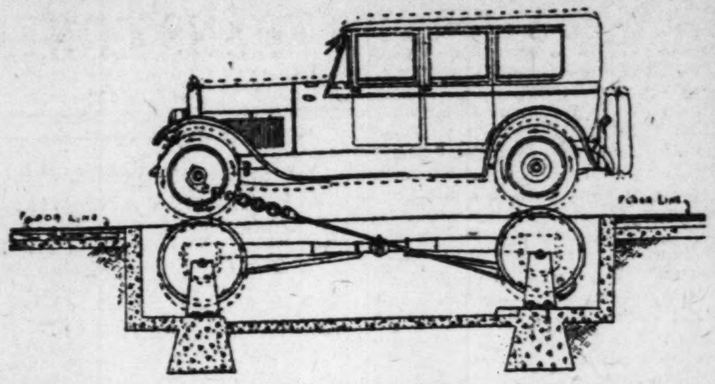
New Roadster Shown.

One of the most unusual but strictly practical models yet shown at a national show is the Flint Six "55" roadster. This model, with its front seat wide enough for three, has also a rear deck concealed seat, which is automatically released by the turn of a small handle mounted at the back of the front seat, and is lifted from its closed position by two concealed heavy coiled springs which expand when the handle is turned. When close, the rear deck cover fits flush with the rest of the deck of the body and has no visible hardware to mar the appearance. The deck-well is roomy and the seat and back are both set at comfortable angles and heavily upholstered in hand-buffed leather. Several color combinations are offered. The part of the body above the bead moulding is a dark shade of the chosen color, as for instance Brewster green, the moulding being black to match the enamel fenders and other sheet metal parts, and the balance of the body is of a lighter shade.

Follow St. Louisans' Example.

C. A. Vane, manager of the National Automobile Dealers' Association, reports that the following dealers' associations have followed the example of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association in recommending that the factories make necessary changes in models of cars when they will not cause breaks in the selling season: Youngstown Automobile Dealers, Illinois Automotive Trade, Garage Owners of Minnesota, Toledo Automotive Trades, Tampa Auto Dealers, Pittsburg Automobile Dealers, California Automotive Trade Association of Oakland, Cal., Chicago Aumomotive Trade, Detroit Automotive Dealers, Des Moines Motor Trades Bureau and the Fort Worth Automotive Trades.

Agitator Tests Riding Qualities



TWO Ford truck rear axle and propeller shaft assemblies are built into an "agitator" which subjects each completed Lincoln car to tests equivalent to driving a mile a minute over the roughest of roads, allowing at the same time searching examination of moving parts.

The "agitator" comprises four wheels mounted below the floor level and so spaced that they contact with the wheels of the car to be tested. These agitator wheels, being mounted on two truck axles which are connected together by the propeller shafts, revolve in unison. The wheels are mounted eccentrically so that a rise and fall of three inches in circumference takes place as they revolve. In addition, there are several large irregular "bumps" on each wheel.

After tests of the chassis on the factory track at a high rate of speed, the body is put into place, the car driven onto the eccentric wheels and held there by chains.

Assuming every imaginable position of strain, the swaying, bouncing car is gradually speeded from five to 50 miles an hour.

Using a sounding fork, in practically the same manner as a physician uses a stethoscope, the testing expert, for five and one-half miles, listens for squeaks, rattles or irregularities. During the last half mile the tester is at the wheel driving the Lincoln at the rate of 50 miles an hour.

Officers Elected.

The following officers of the Radiator Division of the Associated Automobile Service Companies have been re-elected: President, Walter H. Eiermann; vice president, Theodore A. Schoenlau; secretary, J. H. Glaser; treasurer, Jacob Bernhardt; sergeant at arms, Anthony Mahacheck. George L. Thorpe, manager of the Associated Service companies, presided at the annual meeting.

DODGE BROTHERS

TYPE-B SEDAN

Unquestionably, the most compelling tribute to the car's stamina is its widespread use by farmers, ranchmen, surveyors, salesmen and others who travel isolated roads in all sorts of weather.

These men will tell you that a good polishing restores the durable finish to its original brightness after the car has been caked with mud for weeks.

To them it is a matter of vital importance, too, that Dodge Brothers powerful starter functions promptly after prolonged exposure to the cold.

Nor is any group of owners more constantly impressed by those elements of excess value which characterize not only the Type-B Sedan itself, but every car that Dodge Brothers build.

VALVE-TIMING MECHANISM

Q. What is the object of valve-timing mechanism?

A. To ensure that the intake and exhaust valves open and close at exactly the right instant required for efficient motor operation.

Q. What type of valve-timing mechanism is used in most low-priced cars?

A. A train of gear wheels, deriving power from the revolving crank-shaft, operate the cam-shaft that times the valves.

Q. What type of valve-timing mechanism is used in most high-priced cars, and why?

A. Chain drive, because gears become noisy and cannot be adjusted to take up wear, whereas the special chain used is quiet and can be adjusted to take up wear or stretch.

Q. What timing mechanism is employed in the new Star motor?

A. Silent chain of the same make and quality as used in cars of the highest prices

SATURATION POINT ARGUMENT AGAIN BECOMES ISSUE

Two Manufacturers Publicly Say It Has Arrived—Most Makers Disagree With Them.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 17.—For the first time in the automobile industry's history, manufacturers are admitting that there is such a thing as a saturation point. Two at least of them publicly have declared that it has arrived.

Economists and those who pretended to be economists began several years back to visualize a day when every person in America who could own an automobile would own one and when the automobile industry would be unable to find new prospects for its cars. Some saw it near at hand and placed the country's car absorptive capacity at 10,000,000, though a few, in the beginning could not comprehend the picture of a nation with more than a single million automobiles. Others placed the number at 20,000,000; a few, more sanguine, at 25,000,000 and the saturation point a possibility not within this generation.

Statement Disputed.

Through it all the automobile industry remained silent or ridiculed the idea of a point of saturation, even as lately as a year ago. Now some of its leaders have executed an about-face and say not only that such an event is possible, but that it actually is here.

There are many, both within and without the industry, who will take exception to this statement, and not without reason.

It is not likely that the statement that the statement that saturaion is already here will be indorsed by other car makers. Many of them, while not admitting the likelihood, have been privately studying the question for some time and with the aid of figures advanced by economists are prepared to show that this nation can absorb more than 30,000,000 cars before

Two Manufacturers Publicly Say It Has Arrived—Most Makers Disagree With Them.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 17.—For the first time in the automobile industry's history, manufacturers are admitting that there is such a thing as a saturation point. Two at least of them publicly have declared that it has arrived.

Economists and those who pretended to be economists began several years back to visualize a day when every person in America who could own an automobile would own one and when the automobile industry would be unable to find new prospects for its cars. Some saw it near at hand and placed the country's car absorptive capacity at 10,000,000, though a few, in the beginning could not comprehend the picture of a nation with more than a single million automobiles. Others placed the number at 20,000,000; a few, more sanguine, at 25,000,000 and the saturation point a possibility not within this generation.

Statement Disputed.

Through it all the automobile industry remained silent or ridiculed the idea of a point of saturation, even as lately as a year ago. Now some of its leaders have executed an about-face and say not only that such an event is possible, but that it actually is here.

There are many, both within and without the industry, who will take exception to this statement, and not without reason.

It is not likely that the statement that the statement that saturaion is already here will be indorsed by other car makers. Many of them, while not admitting the likelihood, have been privately studying the question for some time and with the aid of figures advanced by economists are prepared to show that this nation can absorb more than 30,000,000 cars before anything like saturation is approached.

TRACKS OF DINOSAURS 10,000,000 YEARS OLD ARE FOUND IN ARIZONA

TRACKS made by dinosaurs some 10,000,000 years ago have been found in a thin layer of rock about 7 miles from Tuba City, Ariz., reached by the Navahopi road from Grand Canyon. The footprints measure 16 inches long with a greatest spread of 13 inches and indicate that the dinosaur making them had a 52-inch stride.

Admittedly the point of saturation seemingly has been reached in some cities, whose streets are strained to the bursting point with cars; cities whose streets were never built for intensive automobile use and which, except for these physical limitations, could absorb many more automobiles. Not in these, but in less congested centers and in the rural districts, is where the manufacturers will sell cars.

No Show Down, Anyway.

Even if the saturation point has been reached, it does not signify that automobile production in the years to come will slow down. The task of replacing the automobiles annually going into disuse will be sufficiently large to insure volume production for the industry. It is now estimated that this number approaches 3,000,000 a year or soon will, which, plus the number of cars that will be sent into foreign lands, now almost virgin motor fields yearly absorbing an increasing number of cars, is sufficeint to insure operations on a scale equal to or approaching that of 1924, when approximately 3,400,000 cars were turned out.

That is the less bright part of the picture from the car maker's viewpoint. But with the saturation point still distant, as some insist it is, and 33,000,000 or 20 to 25 millions as the maximum the country can absorb, annual output for some years to come is certain to be above the 1924 mark, with eventual stabilized output, on the basis of replacements alone, running around 4,000,000 cars a year, or almost the record set in 1923, which would seem to prove that the industry is far from declining and that bright days are ahead.

Factory Caution.

Current automobile production is feeling the stimulus of the New York show. In the Detroit area some companies are moving up schedules strongly, others somewhat less actively, with further expansion looked for during the next few weeks as the show season progresses. It is noticeable that schedules as they have been announced show a variation in activities and indicate that some makers are still moving cautiously, evidently not certain just how their cars will fare. The Chicago show is next looked to for enlightenment as to the public's taste in cars this spring though the Detroit show, now on, will give them some light on the question.

More Price Cuts Likely.

Price cutting is now the main element in the motor situation. Another leading maker has cut prices on its entire line.

Competition, which threatens to be more severe this spring than ever before, and not altruism, has compelled the price cuts. Car makers already are working on a slim margin of profit and with steel and other materials and wages climbing, and with the more expensively produced closed car selling at open-car levels, price cutting means further slashing of that thin profit margin.

Few changes in car design or models are looked for this year. It is thought the present styles will continue, as body design seems to have been stabilized, at least temporarily.

However, two Detroit makers of high-grade cars are known to be working on new motors, one, an eight-in-line which will be lighter smaller, more compact and more powerful than its present eight-in-line.

$1 Repairs Per 3000 Miles.

An average repair expense of $1 per 3000 miles is reported by H. E. McAllister of Minneapolis on a 5920-mile run to Los Angeles and back. His car, an Olds six, bought last May, had run 9000 miles before he started for the Pacific Coast. He said he drove 2617 miles to Los Angeles in five days, six hours and 40 minutes, averaging 500 miles a day, and returned over the same route in six days and four hours. His only expense, outside gasoline and oil, was $6.50 for a front spring broken in a desert chuck hole. He reported an average of 17.6 miles to the gallon of gasoline, despite the high speed and much bad going.

Bonuses for Employes.

The Merchants' Tire and Battery Co., Goodyear tire dealer and Prestolite battery distributer, award $5050 in bonuses to employes at its annual dinner. Harry B. White is president of the company, which has two branches and also filling stations.

MORE U. S. AID SOUGHT FOR TRANS CONTINENTAL ROADS

Congress Asked to Let Government Bear Larger Share or All of Cost in Mountainous and Public Lands Sections.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Probably no highway measure that will come before this session of Congress will be of as much importance to the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast states, and to all motorists and bus and automobile interests in general, as the Colton bill bill now pending. If it, or some similar measure, is adopted, advocates declare, construction of the needed transcontinental highways will be greatly facilitated.

The situation out of which has come a demand for enactment of some such measure was summed up before the convention of the American Association of State Highway Officials at San Francisco by Chairman Harvey M. Toy of the California Highway Commission.

Among other things, Toy declared that unless Congress amended the Federal Aid Act, to make it more workable in its application in states having large areas of public lands, there would be renewal of agitation for construction of all main highways by the Federal Government.

Toy urged repeal of that section of the present Federal Aid Act limiting co-operation by the Federal Government to $20,000 per mile, saying that construction in mountainous sections of the West is so expensive that the states are unable to meet their share of the highway cost.

He also urged legislation to permit the Federal Government to bear the entire cost of constructing certain sections of transcontinental routes across vast areas of public land in Western States. These two proposals are embodied in the Colton bill.

Prohibited from taxing these lands the states are unable to raise sufficient revenue, Toy said, to meet Federal aid allotments. The transcontinental routes, he pointed out, are not for the accommodation of traffic originating within the states, but are needed and demanded by travel originating east of the Rocky Mountains.

Unless the States are extended the privilege of using all of their Federal aid allotments without local co-operation on the east or west primary highways, Toy predicted, the main highways across the continent will not be completed during the present generation.

TRUCK AND TRAILER TAKE PLACE OF FREIGHT TRAIN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—By using a motor truck and trailer to replace a local freight train hauling less-than-carliod freight between Ithaca and Geneva, N. Y., the Lehigh Valley Railroad is saving $3900 a month, or 80 per cent of the former cost of the service.

The train cost $4816 a month, as follows: Engine crew, $466; train crew, $1054; locomotive repairs, $1652; fuel, water, oils, $1552; freight car supplies, $42; freight car repairs, $49.

The truck and trailer cost $900 a month on contract.

The truck is operated on a schedule, its movements being subject to orders of a train dispatcher. The contract price of $36 a day for the motor truck includes insurance against loss and damage.

Since the service began in October there has been much less damage to shipments than formerly, when small consignments were knocked about by frequent stopping of the train.

Another experiment which the Lehigh has been making is substitution of a 40-passenger railroad motor coach for a train on the run between Plainfield and Perth Amboy, N. J. A crew of two men has supplanted the five who manned the train. This experiment has paid for itself during teh first year of operation.

New Chandler Coach

In which you get the powerful Pikes Peak Motor and famous Traffic Transmission

$1595
f. o. b. Cleveland

Body by Fisher

THE Coach Imperial is finished in smart Luxor Blue Duco. Full artillery wheels and genuine balloon tires are standard equipment. Specifications include the Fisher V&V Windshield, automatic windshield wiper controlled from the dash, motometer and bar cap, rear vision mirror.

(The Traffic Transmission is built complete in the Chandler plant under Campbell patents)

THIS new model solves a problem that long has puzzled the automotive industry. It provides for the first time—a closed car at touring car price which embodies not only protection and transportation—but also beauty and flashing performance.

Unmistakable Beauty

You will be struck by the instant reallzation that here in the Coach Imperial is an entirely new order of coach appearance—a broader, more liberal application of the principles of mass, line and color—a more careful and infinitely more successful blending of beauty factors.

Also, on stepping inside the car, you will become acutely conscious of a new kind of coach atmosphere—a positive roominess, a smartness of upholstery and provisions for relaxation and comfort that are wholly without precedent in closed cars of this type.

The doors are so wide that an average person can reach the rear seat without disturbing front seat passengers.

Unparalleled Performance

With this distinguished appearance is combined the performance that only a Chandler can provide.

Undoubtedly you have heard many a Chandler owner express himself on this subject. Yet we predict that when you drive the Coach Imperial you will have an experience even more vivid than you expected.

The Pikes Peak Motor was developed on the highest automobile climb in the world. It is one of the reasons why Chandler stands uppermost in the public mind.

It made Chandler the national performance champion and its unparalleled power, speed and snap are matters of common knowledge. But when you "give her the gas" you get standards of performance that are absolutely new!

Also you may have heard that it is possible to change speeds in the Chandler without clashing gears.

The Traffic Transmission does more than eliminate all noise when you go from low to second or high. It enables you to snap from high to second or low in absolute silence and with absolute certainty of making an instantaneous gear engagement!

Combining for the first time at touring car price, marked beauty, pronounced luxury of environment and unexampled performance, the Chandler Coach Imperial gives without question what no other coach can give. See it today!

Two New Open Models

Included in Chandler's presentation for 1925 are two new open models representing advances no less striking than the Coach Imperial.

The Sport Touring ($1595) is entirely new in general lines and detail. It is offered in Luxor blue or two-toned grey green Duco.

The new Comrade Roadster is distinguished by a rumble seat of improved design that will find immediate favor because of its easy accessibility and the ample leg room it provides. Price, $1795.

The recently announced Chummy Sedan and the Metropolitan Sedan De Luxe are continued at their present attractive prices. And their sustained popularity is unmistakable proof of their dominant value! All prices f. o. b. Cleveland.

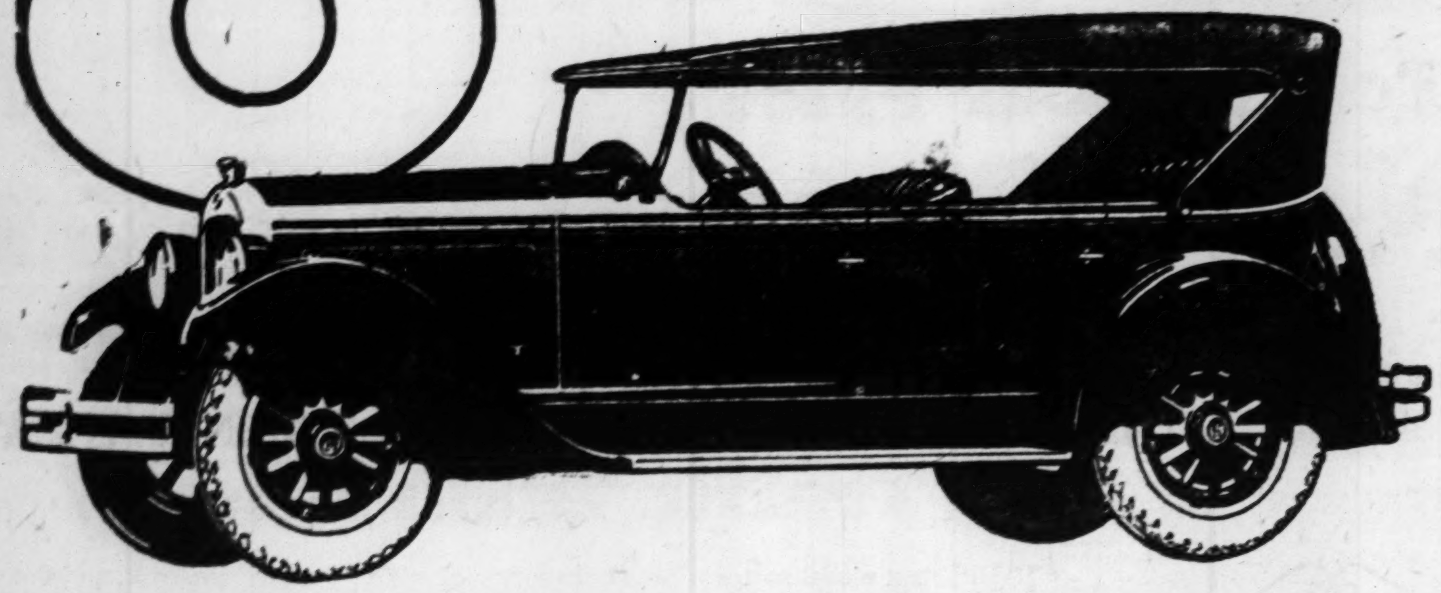
MAURICE FRANCILL



The new Hupmobile Eight at last strikes that fine balance between price and efficiency toward which the motor car industry has been working for 20 years.

If your experience has included eight-cylinder cars—and if you have thought you already know the very finest in motoring—drive the Hupmobile Eight.

You will find that in many respects the Hupmobile Eight far outdistances anything hitherto accomplished in eight-cylinder engineering in America.

It has beauty of design, finish and equipment not excelled within $1000 of its price; and its own price is less than that of many sixes.

It produces more power per cubic inch of piston displacement than anything which has preceded it.

Its performance is so smooth and symmetrical that there is not even a murmur of "roughness" anywhere in the engine's entire power and speed range.

More than any other fine car, it combines compactness for handling and parking with roominess for riding comfort.

It has a finer and better balanced combination of speed, lugging power and rapid acceleration than the eight type has ever before presented.

It records an average gasoline economy heretofore unequaled among eights—both in continuous high-speed operation and at a steady 20-mile-an-hour pace.

In unison with speeds far beyond your requirements, pick-up that almost takes your breath away, and the certainty of four-wheel hydraulic brake control, it offers unprecedented eight-cylinder gasoline economy, surpassing beauty of design, and all the old-time Hupmobile reliability.

We are ready to demonstrate the Hupmobile Eight against all eights and all superior sixes, and put it to any tests you desire. Come in or phone now.

Long before radio became one of the pleasures of the home, Valley Battery Chargers were in successful operation in telegraph, telephone, railway and other signal work.

When radio came, our engineers adapted the proven principles of the Valley Battery Charger to Radio Battery service. The result is the Valley Type ABC Battery Charger—the radio member of an aristocratic family of battery chargers.

The Valley Type ABC Battery Charger is the only charger needed for all batteries; for 6-volt "A" batteries, for one, two, three or four 24-volt "B" batteries and for 2-volt batteries. Also for 6 and 12 volt automobile batteries.

900 PHONES ON ONE SET

To this "radio central" are connected 900 sets of headphones and five loud speakers.

Disabled war veterans find their hours of pain passing easily under the soothing influence of music from the ether.

Signals from local and distant stations are received in the control room on a five-tube Freed-Eisemann neutrodyne receiver and amplified by Western Electric apparatus, which also controls the loud-speaker system. The sets were installed by popular subscription to provide music to the sufferers in hospitals in many sections who otherwise would be deprived of this solace and inspiration.

The installation is unique. There is nothing like it elsewhere. Thousands of feet of wire are required to connect up the individual receivers with the main control. The entire room is given over to the equipment with a duplicate Freed-Eisemann set, A and B batteries and a whole string of chargers to keep the batteries in good condition.

The officers and doctors in charge of "radio central" at Walter Reed Hospital testify to the tremendous value of the service rendered by radio.

As many as 80 ships now receive news by radio while at sea, for use in their daily ship paper. Thus passengers are kept informed on current happenings between landings.

NEW ARRIVALS ON THE RADIO MART

ALMOST every broadcast listener, and especially the one who has constructed his own receiving set, has gone through the experience of connecting his B battery to the wrong binding post or short circuiting two connections within the set and burning out the filaments of his tubes. Those who wish to profit by this experience will be interested in the new radio fuses recently placed on the market by the Chicago Fuse Manufacturing Co. These fuses are made of two metal supports across which a very fine fuse wire is soldered. The fuse wire and supports are enclosed in a glass tube with a piece of insulating material at the base. Two terminals which extend through the base permits the tube and fuse to make contact with a receptacle. The latter makes it possible to renew the fuses when they burn out. The fuse is nothing complicated and is very simple to connect to any receiving set. It is placed in series with the negative B battery connection either within the set or between the set and the B battery. The latter position affords the greater amount of protection. In the case of any short circuit in the B battery circuits the fuse burns out and if the B battery has been in contact with any of the filament leads the tube is thereby protected.

A well constructed radio frequency amplifying transformer is found in the new Kellogg transformer which is designed for tuned radio frequency amplifying circuits. The method of winding the primary and secondary coils of this transformer is quite different from anything that has appeared on the market. The windings are placed on a Bakelite form in such a manner that the losses due to the presence of the dialectric should be very low. The complete unit, consisting of the windings, form, contacts, and support, is about three inches in diameter and one inch thick. The Kellogg transformer may be used in any circuit employing tuned radio frequency amplification and can be mounted in any number of positions including condenser mounting.

A new and original device to be used with the antenna insulator for the purpose of keeping the antenna taut has been designed and placed on the market by the R. Mitchell company of Boston, Mass. The Tensionator, as the new device is called, consists of a metal spring placed between two hooks. Inserted between the insulator and pulley the Tensionator, its makers say, absorbs shocks and strains, keeps an even tension on the antenna, tends to prevent the antenna from swinging, and during the very cold weather, when the antenna wires contract, the Tensionator prevents the wires from breaking or pulling down the masts. The recent cold weather in the Midwest, which brought down many radio aerials, proved the necessity of such a device.

The latest model of the Acuratune dial is quite an improvement over the old types. All back lash has been eliminated to make the operation of the dial quiet and smooth. The controls are made to fit all standard shafts both as to diameter and length. Bushings employed to reduce the opening to the shaft diameter give added strength to the dial because of their added length. The dial is silvered and etched, the knobs have been knurled and the size of the micrometer adjustment knob increased.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. 1. Which is best for a crystal set, a vario-coupler and variable condenser, or a two-slide tuning coil? 2. Can C. W. signals be heard with a crystal set? 3. With a crystal detector and two-slide tuning coil I can receive KSD extremely well, but WCK is barely audible. Is this due merely to the difference in the power of the two stations, or is the receiver at fault? 4. Do you know when WEB plans to start broadcasting again?—E. A. A.

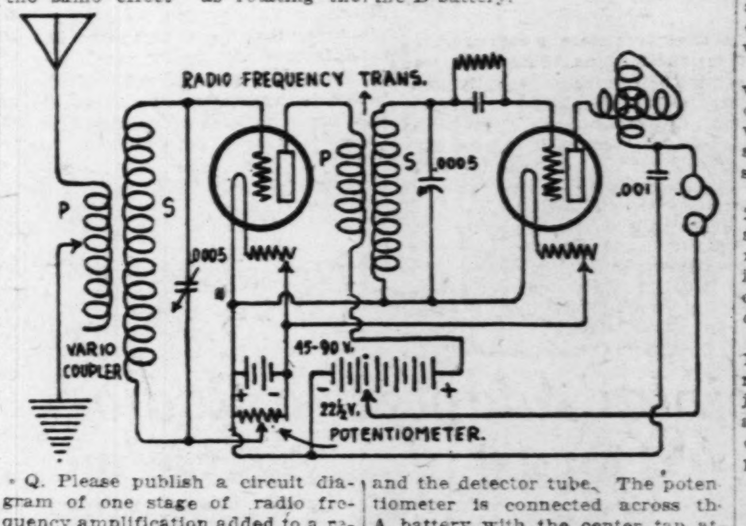
A. A vario-coupler with a variable condenser across the secondary will give more accurate and selective tuning than a tuning coil. The latter is the cheaper and gives very good results. A diagram of a vario-coupler and variable condenser in a crystal detector hook-up was shown in these columns Dec. 14. 2. Continuous or carrier waves from transmitting stations cannot be heard on ordinary crystal sets. If a carrier wave is modulated by either voice or imperfections in the plate current supply of a tube transmitting station these may be heard on a crystal set. 3. The fact that you receive KSD stronger than WCK is partly due to the difference in the power of the two stations. However, it is possible that your set will not tune well to the lower wave lengths. 4. We have not been informed when WEB will be on the air again.

Q. I have a single-tube regenerative receiver using a 20-foot indoor loop aerial. I am using a WD-11 tube and a 23-plate variable condenser. Would like to know what makes all the squeaks and howls, also what makes the noises when you move your hand toward the receiver. How can I increase the range of my set?—M. B.

A. The squeaks and howls that you mention are caused by the tube oscillating. Stations come in best just before the point where the tube oscillates. When you turn your tickler or plate coil far enough over to cause the set to oscillate you not only make undesirable noises in your own receivers, but also in those of your neighbors who happen to be listening in. The other disturbance that you have noted is what is known as body capacity. When you place your hands near the coils in the set you add capacity to the circuits. This has the same effect as rotating the dials of the condenser or tickler. The way to correct this is to shield the panel. The best improvement that you can make in your set is to add one or two stages of audio-frequency amplification. If you would use a good outside antenna the range of your receiver will be greatly increased.

Q. 1. To which side, positive or negative, of the A battery is the negative B battery connected in all circuits and why? 2. Is collodion ideal for putting on the primary of a vario-coupler to keep the wire in place or is there something better? 3 When I disconnect the filament battery from my set there is a scarcely audible hum in the earphones. Does this indicate that the B battery is being consumed?—F. T. H.

A. 1. Generally the negative B battery terminal should be connected to the positive side of the A battery. The reason for this is that the plate must be positive with respect to the filament and connecting the negative B battery to the positive A makes it more so. In other words, the A battery adds a little voltage to the B battery. In the new four element tube circuit the only potential that is applied to the plate is that that comes from the A battery. In the ordinary three element tube circuit this plate potential from the A battery is so small in proportion to that that is supplied to the B battery that it really is of little importance. Like by pass condensers, which are not always necessary, to use them is good practice. 2. It would be better not to use any kind of material such as collodion to hold the wires on coils in place. Like enameled wire, any such solution that is placed on a coil increase its distributed capactiy. This means an increase in the resistance of the inductance for radio frequency currents and results in a loss in signal strength. 3. The hum that you hear when the filament current to your tubes is cut off is most probably induction from the lighting circuit. Try touching one terminal of a pair of receivers to any light fixture and hold the other in your hand. If you hear the same hum then as you hear through your set, you will know that it is 60-cycle A C induction. Hearing this when the filament current is not on does not mean that there is a drain on the B battery.



Q. Please publish a circuit diagram of one stage of radio frequency amplification added to a regenerative set. J. M.

A. A diagram of the circuit you ask for is shown here. Besides the apparatus in your regenerative receiver you will need a radio frequency amplifying transformer and a potentiometer. The transformer is connected between the first tube and the detector tube. The potentiometer is connected across the A battery with the center tap attached to the grid return from the first tube. If tuned radio frequency amplification is used, and it is preferable, a .0005 mf condenser should be placed across the secondary of the radio frequency transformer. The remainder of the circuit is self-explanatory.

Provide a hook under the radio table to hang up the phones when not in use. These delicate instruments require careful treatment.

Never use an acid as flux in soldering, as the acid will attack the copper in the wire and in a short time the set will not function correctly.

For the Notebook.

Too much insulation cannot be put on an aerial.

For short waves, a variometer makes a good loading inductance.

The cost of recharging a storage battery is from 75 cents to $1.25.

Slow adjustment is the only kind that brings in long distant stations.

A good vacuum tube, if handled with care, will work well for three years.

Condensers in series reduce the wave length, while coils in series increase it.

When using a soft detector tube, a potentiometer will increase its sensitiveness.

"Simplicity" is a good motto to follow when building a radio set, and nothing should be included that is not necessary.

NEW RADIO PATENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—[illegible]teen patents on radio inventions were granted by the United States Patent Office during the past week. Five of these patents went to C. Francis Jenkins on his inventions for the transmission and reception of pictures by radio. A brief description of the other patents granted follows:

Signaling system (No. 1,521,[illegible]) invented by H. L. Godfrey of Wilkinsburg, Pa., and assigned to the Westinghouse E. and M. Co. A feature of this invention is a frequency trap which when open enables the energy to be radiated from the system, and when closed affords a substantially infinite impedance to the antenna circuit.

Electron discharge amplifier (No. 1,520,994) invented by Harold D. Arnold of Maplewood, N. J. and assigned to Western Electric Co. An object of this invention is to provide means whereby the ratio of amplification can be varied without varying the impedance presented by the amplifier as a whole to the impulses which are to be amplified.

Electric ground clamp (No. 1,520,868), invented by Raymond M. Hutton of Philadelphia, Pa. An object of this invention is to provide an improved electric ground clamp which will facilitate the grounding and bonding of electric conduit and other piping.

Method of receiving electrical oscillations (No. 1,520,835), invented by Alexander Meissner of Berlin, Germany. The object of this invention is the heterodyning of received current so as to strengthen the vibrations in the telephone receivers.

Process for finishing panels for radio sets (No. 1,521,096), invented by Paul M. Hennegan of Cincinnati, O. This invention relates to the marking of radio panels.

Combined radio and phonograph amplifier and tone control therefor (No. 1,521,366), invented by Alfred H. Haag of Baltimore, Md. This invention permits the phonograph amplifier to be used as a loud speaker for radio reception.

Receiving system (No. 1,521,380), invented by David G. McCaa of Lancaster, Pa., and assigned to the Electric Apparatus Co. The object of this invention is the reduction of static, strays and other natural or artificial disturbances including other radio signals.

Synchronizing rotating bodies (No. 1,521,205), W. S. Stephenson and George W. Walton of London, England. This invention relates to means for maintaining two rotating bodies spaced a distance apart in synchronism by the use of wireless or electro-magnetic waves.

Transformer (No. 1,521,[illegible]), invented by E. N. A. Rauland of Chicago, Ill. The object of this invention is to provide a simple and sturdy transformer of compact design.

Telephone headset (No. 1,521,275), invented by G. W. Carpenter and Wendell L. Carlson of Schenectady, N. Y. An object of this invention is to shield the telephone cords of the headset from strays or other external interference.

Fixed and variable grid leak (No. 1,521,213), invented by S. N. Baruch of New York, N. Y. An object of this invention is to provide a variable high resistance for radio circuits with little or no microphonic characteristics.

Using a Crystal Detector.

The crystal detector is coming into wide use today through the medium of reflex circuits. One thing in favor of the crystal detector over the vacuum tube is that it is stable in operation and is noiseless. However, there are so many crystals on the market that one has to be careful in making a selection. When purchasing a crystal detector the first consideration is the maximum voltage that it will stand. Under ordinary conditions the detector should be able to stand up under a potential of at least 90 volts—a higher voltage if desirable. The fixed type of crystal detector is to be preferred. After the detector has been placed in the circuit it should be reversed to test for better results. It is characteristic for a crystal detector to work best in one direction. It is wise to have at least two detectors for the circuit using the crystal and each one should be given about a month's service. In other words, change your detector once a month.

Honeycomb coils absorb moisture. They should be dried out if they fail to perform properly.

THEATRICAL MANAGER NOT A FOE TO RADIO

Sees the New Medium as an Aid to the Stage When Properly Used.

John Golden disagrees with the theatrical managers who see in the radio a great evil to the theater. He declares that if one is looking for attractions which keep people away from the theater he must include the radio petting parties, cross-word puzzles, rain, snow and the hired girl's night out. He is willing to string along with the managers opposed to the radio if they will agree to abolish or at least seriously to hobble love, the brain-teasers, precipitation during theater hours and the cook's Thursday night date, to say nothing of getting a prohibitive tariff against God-bless-our-home mottoes. Otherwise, he intends to stand for an effort to utilize the immense popularity of the radio to the advantage of the theater rather than for a die-hard policy of obstruction, advocated by some New York managers.

"My publicity department already is seeking to devise means for reaching the great theater public over the air and at frequent intervals," Mr. Golden says. Instead of taking the attitude that radio is a menace, theatrical interests should consider it in its true light—a potential means of exploiting their plays before great audiences. Accordingly, the reviewers of the New York stations will be on the first night list for all my future openings.

"If the manufacturers of all kinds of products are finding the radio of assistance in reaching their publics, it is unreasonable to assume the same agency is detrimental to the theater. The best illustration of the use of the radio for exploitation purposes was the New Year's night broadcasting by two opera and concert stars under the auspices of a talking machine company. The talking machine admittedly was imperilled by radio. So it adopted the old political policy, 'If you can't lick 'em, jine 'em,' and its sales messages with names of stars, names of records—everything but the price—was delivered in a single night to millions of people. I think it is as unreasonable to assume that the radio is the enemy of the theater as to hold the view that it is dangerous to the newspaper. The ether wave is quicker than presses and type, but the radio has brought a great volume of advertising from new sources and there is every reason to believe it has increased circulations. As a matter of fact, three of the best of the Western broadcasting stations are operated as a service to their patrons by great newspapers—the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Kansas City Star and the Chicago Tribune.

"To my mind with the public enjoying a new plaything, it is certain to result in a great amount of resentment if the theatrical managers place themselves on record as attempting to curtail the free entertainment now furnished. As a matter of fact, we try to tune in some dance music or other entertainment in the smoking room and tea room at the Little Theater during intermissions every night and on election night we sold out when some plays did not because we had advertised that a radio placed on the stage would be in use during the intermissions."

NEW RADIO PATENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16. — Six- een patents on radio inventions ere granted by the United States atent Office during the past week. ive of these patents went to C. rancis Jenkins on his invention or the transmission and reception f pictures by radio. A brief decription of the other patents ranted follows:

Signaling system (No. 1,521,018) nvented by H. L. Godfrey of Wilinsburg, Pa., and assigned to the Vestinghouse E. and M. Co. A feaure of this invention is a freuency trap which when opened nables the energy to be radiated rom the system, and when closed ffords a substantially infinite imedance to the antenna circuit.

Electron discharge amplifier (No. 1,520,994) invented by Har- d D. Arnold of Maplewood, N. J., nd assigned to Western Electric o. An object of this invention is provide means whereby the ratio f amplification can be varied ithout varying the impedance preented by the amplifier as a whole the impulses which are to be mplified.

Electric ground clamp (No. 1,-20,868), invented by Raymond M. Hutton of Philadelphia, Pa. An object of this invention is to provide n improved electric ground clamp hich will facilitate the grounding nd bonding of electric conduit nd other piping.

Method of receiving electrical scillations (No. 1,520,835), inented by Alexander Meissner of erlin, Germany. The object of his invention is the heterodyning f received current so as to trengthen the vibrations in the elephone receivers.

Process for finishing panels for adio sets (No. 1,521,096), invented by Paul M. Hennegan of Cininnati, O. This invention relates o the marking of radio panels.

Combined radio and phonograph mplifier and tone control thereor (No. 1,521,366), invented by lfred H. Haag of Baltimore, Md. This invention permits the phonograph amplifier to be used as a oud speaker for radio reception.

Receiving system (No. 1,521,-80), invented by David G. McCaa f Lancaster, Pa., and assigned to he Electric Apparatus Co. The bject of this invention is the reduction of static, strays and other natural or artificial disturbances, including other radio signals.

Synchronizing rotating bodies (No. 1,521,205), W. S. Stephenson and George W. Walton of London, England. This invention relates to means for maintaining two rotating bodies spaced a distance apart in synchronism by the use of wireless or electro-magnetic waves.

Transformer (No. 1,521,252), invented by E. N. A. Rauland of Chicago, Ill. The object of this invention is to provide a simple and sturdy transformer of compact design.

Telephone headset (No. 1,521,-275), invented by G. W. Carpenter and Wendell L. Carlson of Schenectady, N. Y. An object of this invention is to shield the telephone cords of the headset from strays or other external interference.

Fixed and variable grid leak (No. 1,521,213), invented by S. N. Baruch of New York, N. Y. An object of this invention is to provide a variable high resistance for radio circuits with little or no microphonic characteristics.

Using a Crystal Detector.

The crystal detector is coming into wide use today through the medium of reflex circuits. One thing in favor of the crystal detector over the vacuum tube is that it is stable in operation and is noiseless. However, there are so many crystals on the market that one has to be careful in making a selection. When purchasing a crystal detector the first consideration is the maximum voltage that it will stand. Under ordinary conditions the detector should be able to stand up under a potential of at least 90 volts—a higher voltage if desirable. The fixed type of crystal detector is to be preferred. After the detector has been placed in the circuit it should be reversed to test for better results. It is characteristic for a crystal detector to work best in one direction. It is wise to have at least two detectors for the circuit using the crystal and each one should be given about a month's service. In other words, change your detector once a month.

Honeycomb coils absorb moisture. They should be dried out if they fail to perform properly.

Radiograms.

Radio was used successfully in Chicago to mobilize 148 men of the 131st Infantry in less than half an hour, and the entire regiment answered roll call two hours after an assembly call had been radiocast.

The United States is establishing a radio station at Wiseman, Alaska. It will be in charge of Private Elmer J. Ulen, Signal Corps, U. S. A. The location will be the farthest North radio station on the American continent.

Crystal set owners in San Francisco and Oakland can now hear programs delivered in WJZ's studio, New York City, by means of a radio relay through four broadcasting stations.

NOTED INSTRUCTORS FOR RADIO COLLEGE

Pupils Chose the Subjects for the Spring Term of New York University Air Course.

Complete proof if the practical value of education by radio is expressed in the announcement of the spring term of the New York University "Air College" to be broadcast by station WJZ of the Radio Corporation of America.

The entire educational radio program, comprising 15 weeks of nightly lectures, was chosen by the radio students themselves. This is the first time that so comprehensive a program has been scheduled solely in answer to popular requests.

New York University has definitely included education by radio in its activities by incorporating the "Air College" in the extramural division of the university. Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown recently appointed Prof. C. Hathaway as director of the "Air College," to prepare the programs and outline future developments of this new department of the university.

The list of professors and instructors who will deliver the radio lecture courses during the spring term includes some of the greatest names in the educational world. Perhaps the best known is Prof. Marshall S. Brown, dean of the faculties of New York University, who will give the first part of the series of lectures on American History. This particular radio faculty will provide the radio listener-in with a more famous group of instructors than is ordinarily enjoyed by college or university students anywhere.

Twelve subjects will be broadcast in courses of from three to 15 lectures during the 15-week term between Jan. 5 and April 24. These will range in scope from the purely cultural subjects as literature and drama to the commercial phases of advertising and engineering.

An experiment in examination of the radio students will be conducted in connection with the course on American History. Upon the conclusion of this course examination papers will be mailed to all students so requesting, to be returned within a limited time for correction and grading. This is an innovation for "Air College" students which will in all probability be extended to the other radio educational courses if found successful.

A slightly different arrangement of instruction schedule than was used in the fall terms recently completed will be employed in the new term. No one subject will be treated on the five consecutive weekday nights as was formerly the practice, since it has been determined that some of the effectiveness of the radio presentation is lost by such a system. Instead, one subject will be broadcast every Monday night, other subjects will be treated in three lectures weekly on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, and Fridays will be reserved for all other courses. This will enable radio listeners to follow their particular subject without sacrificing any other interests in order to remain home every consecutive night.

REMARKABLE INCREASE IN RADIO EXPORTS

Value of Equipment Shipped From America in 1924 Twice That of Preceding Year.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Radio exports during 1924 probably exceeded $5,000,000, according to incomplete figures prepared by the Department of Commerce. This is nearly twice the amount of experts for 1923.

The figures show that Canada is the principal buyer of American radio sets and apparatus. Exports to Mexico increased throughout the year while Cuba has been a growing market during the entire year. South America has been a generous purchaser of American sets, while exports to Australia and New Zealand also showed a big increase.

"As has been true since radio assumed a commercial role," says the Department of Commerce, "the exportation of storage batteries, both primary and secondary, again showed a decided increase in 1924 over that of the previous year. In the case of primary batteries, however, the gain was probably due principally to the marked increase in the shipments of flashlights—$692,307 for the first 11 months of 1924 as against $455,361 for the same period of 1923. Of special interest is the radio business itself, which, due largely to the ever-growing market caused by the dissemination of radio knowledge throughout the world, together with the ever growing tendency in other countries to remove restrictive measures that have hampered the manufacture and use of radio, and the greater freedom granted to broadcasting stations in operation and under process of construction, by each foreign government in question, have also contributed toward making our 1924 exports in this class practically twice that of 1923."

MECHANICAL INSTRUCTION IN ARMY RADIO SCHOOL

Mechanical devices, the army's adaptation of the commercial dictaphone, have been used successfully at the Army Signal Corps School, Camp Alfred Vail, N. J., to take the place of instructors in Morse and radio code work, according to a recent announcement from the commandant.

Use of the new machine will standardize instruction and for the first time in the whole army will have identical lessons in communication—wired and wireless—without any exacting demands on the teaching personnel. This is just one of the advantages of the mechanical tutor pointed out by Capt. John P. Ferriter of the Signal Corps, who has been largely instrumental in perfecting the device.

Hard rubber records, practically indestructible, are used for receiving practice—much like the old-fashioned phonograph cylinders employed before the disk form of records became so popular. By means of a special reproducer the signals on the record are made to operate a relay, the local contacts of which may be used either to interrupt a tone passing through the head-set of the radio operator or give the Morse code to students in those classes.

Soft wax cylinders of the sort used in office dictaphones are employed by the student practicing sending, which are then rerun and copied by him. A special reproducer and recorder are among the new and necessary changes made by the Signal Corps in adapting the commercial machines to army use.

Special code practice equipment for radio classes has been designed, simple and easily installed, which makes it possible for isolated posts to have just as good instruction as that given by experts in the signal schools.

TO CHECK INTERFERENCE

A determined campaign against the elimination of man-made interference to radio reception will shortly be started by the Radio Bureau of the Department of Commerce, it is expected.

The Budget Bureau has approved an additional appropriation for this service which may allow the field force of radio inspectors and supervisors to be doubled. While it is not yet definitely known what the amount will be, it is believed it will be more than $100,000.

The recommendation for an addition appropriation for the Radio service will send to Congress within the next few days where speedy action on it is anticipated. Inasmuch as the recommendation has the approval of President Coolidge, it is believed there is little doubt as to its adoption.

The Surete Generale of Paris has recently been authorized to install radio receiving sets and is training some of its men in the use and operation of wireless instruments.

The sets will be used merely for checking purposes, it is reported

NEW STATIONS AND WAVE-LENGTHS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Radio Bureau of the Department of Commerce did a rush business in granting new stations licenses during the past week. Twelve new clas A and two new class B stations were licensed, while five class C stations were transferred to class A. The new stations follow:

Call—Station.	Meters.	Watts.
CLASS A.
KPPC—Pasadena Presbyterian Church, Pasadena, Cal.	229	50
KFUP—Fitzsimons General Hospital, educational and recreational department, Denver, Colo.	234	50

DYEING FOR TELEPHONE

More than 1000 different piece parts used in the manufacture of telephone apparatus at the Chicago works of the Western Electric Co. require dyed cotton or wool yarn. A modern dyeing plant is maintained at the works at which about 90,000 pounds of yarn are dyed each month. This is the yarn which appears on such things as wires in various pieces of telephone equipment, the different colors making identification both possible and easy.

Insulation.

An insulated wire will pick up the broadcast programs just as easily as a bare wire, as the waves penetrate the covering without the least difficulty. If the lead-in is insulated, it will act as a part of the aerial.

In the RADIO TESTING LABORATORY

The latest receiving set tested by KSD laboratory was the Super Zenith model VII. The test was made under the same conditions that are encountered in the average home. Static was quite noticeable all during the test and very strong one evening. The equipment used to test the receiver consisted of a loud speaker of a well-known make, C301 A tubes throughout, a six-volt storage A battery, and standard dry cell heavy duty B batteries.

Using but two stages of audio frequency amplification such distant stations as WCAP, WBZ and KOA were tuned in with ease. With several of the local stations broadcasting no trouble whatever was encountered in tuning in distant stations. Several stations working on wave lengths about 500 meters were heard plainly on the loud speaker with KSD broadcasting. The quality of reception was very good on distant as well as local stations.

The Super Zenith is a six-tube receiver having two stages of radio frequency amplification, detector and three stages of audio frequency amplification. At no time during the test was it found necessary to use the third stage of audio frequency amplification. While listening to local stations only one stage was used. The filaments of the tubes and the audio frequency amplification are controlled by one multiple point switch.

The Super zenith receiver has several novel features that are worthy of note. With two stages of tuned radio frequency amplification three variable condensers are necessary. In this receiver two of these condensers are connected to the same dial. A small vernier condenser is used to balance the capacities of these two condensers. During the test it was found that this vernier had to be adjusted but once. After balancing the two condensers on a distant station it was not necessary to change the adjustment either on the short or long waves.

The tuning of the Super Zenith is handled by two main controls, the knob that is attached to the two radio frequency amplifier units and a similar knob that is attached to the antenna tuning condenser. These knobs are attached to the condensers in such a manner that they are vernier controls having a ratio of about eight to one, which is all that is necessary for fine adjustments.

Oscillations in the radio frequency amplifiers are controlled by the use of a noninductive resistance placed in the plate circuit of the first tube. The adjustment of this resistance is not at all critical. One single plug permits the use of either headphones or loudspeaker.

The Super Zenith was found to be an exceptionally good receiver. It was easy to tune, the quality of reception was good and distant stations were received with more volume than would be used by the average loudspeaker.

USES OF RADIO FREQUENCY

IT IS generally accepted that radio frequency amplification is an essential part of present-day radio circuits. A large percentage of manufactured receivers are equipped with radio frequency amplifiers and this may be taken as indication that the trend is to receivers of this type. The neutrodyne is a popular form of radio frequency amplification and another widely used type is the tuned impedance R. F. receiver.

Before discussing the various types of radio frequency amplification, let us consider what is the function of this part of a radio circuit. Adding radio frequency amplification to any receiver will not increase the strength of the signals. It will primarily increase the distance range of the receiver.

The reader may say, "Well, I don't care for distance, therefore I need not use radio frequency amplifications." One can assume this attitude if he is going to install the receiver in a good radio location. However, the reader will find that radio frequency amplification is needed in some cases to get the local stations.

Conditions simliar to this exist all over the world and they are caused by dead spots, and shadows that are cast by the presence of large objects that have the property of absorbing magnetism, such as steel or iron.

Why would the addition of radio frequency amplification aid the operation of a receiver that is located in a dead spot? Radio frequency amplification amplifies or boosts the feeble currents intercepted by the antenna to such an extent that these small currents become large enough to impress a large variation on the grid of the detector tube. In other words, it magnifies there minute currents before they are detected (rectified) by the detector tube or a crystal. This also applies to the distant signals, which are also very feeble and need some stimulant before they are rectified.

Size of Radio Shields.

When shielding is resorted to to eliminate interference from body capacity, it is much better to use a small shield for each instrument than a large one covering the whole panel, as a loss of efficiency, due to intercapacity between the instruments, is likely to result in the latter case.

CROSLEY
Better-Cost Less Radio Products

¶ Less than four years ago, when Radio Broadcasting was just beginning, when a few amateurs were listening to phonograph record concerts over the air, when apparatus to receive such music was either home-made or the limited factory-made equipment was both inefficient and costly—

¶ The vision came to a young man of the Middle West that Radio Broadcasting would develop into one of the most powerful factors of life itself; that it presented a greater medium for entertainment, education and culture than had ever been dreamed of before; that radio receiving sets could be so simplified and perfected as to bring this wonderful new thing better and at a great deal lower cost into any and every home in the land.

¶ This man, Powel Crosley, Jr., started then a radio manufacturing business, the growth of which has become one of the business romances of the age.

¶ Today almost one out of every five factory-made radio receivers bears the name CROSLEY.

¶ The production of Crosley made Radios has reached almost 5000 per day; probably three times as many as made by any other company.

¶ The very element of simplicity necessary in quantity production has developed a degree of efficiency found in no other equipment.

¶ Owners of Crosley Radios marvel at their ability to outperform more costly sets, and the demand for them grows by leaps and bounds.

¶ With increased production periodically came reductions in prices.

¶ Recently the justly famous Crosley Trirdyn, incorporating a unique combination of radio frequency amplification with Armstrong Regeneration making three tubes do the work of five or six, the most popular receiver in the world selling at its price or more, was reduced from $65 to $50 and again the demand increased tremendously.

¶ The Crosley line of receivers includes a one tube set that brings in coast to coast and foreign stations. It sells for $14.50.

¶ The two tube Crosley 51 Radio sells for $18.50.

¶ The three tube Model 52 is only $30.00.

¶ Every Crosley owner is a booster. He feels that his Crosley investment represents the utmost in radio value. He is therefore the best form of Crosley advertising.

¶ Some dealers would prefer to sell higher priced sets — they are more profitable — but if you insist they can sell you Crosley Radios.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

REFLEX HOOK-UPS GAIN IN POPULARITY

Specialist Points Out Advantages in Clear Reception and Saving of Battery Current.

The bugbear of reflex set building and operation is fast passing out of existence due to the more adequate information which is now available, and radio fans are beginning to give it the full consideration which it deserves.

William H. Priess, one of the foremost specialists in reflex set design, tells us convincingly why reflex outfits take a front place as all-purpose broadcasting receivers for both the average home body and the more experienced enthusiast.

In the first place there is an immediate saving on tubes; for by using a crystal as a detector and returning the energy from one circuit and piling it on top of that in another, one tube can be made to do the work of two, and four or five of seven.

If the circuits are carefully designed to reduce the resistance, so as to increase the magnification of energy due to resonance, the tubes used can—paradoxical though it may seem—accomplish even more than those which they replace. This, however, is only possible when the set is built with care taken to eliminate dielectric losses, wire losses, and inductive interference, and to so arrange the apparatus that tuning is sharp and body capacity negligible. All this can be done simply by planning, instead of trusting to chance.

Besides the reduction in first cost and upkeep, due to the fewer tubes needed, there is a direct saving in battery current, both A and B.

With a reflex set, selectivity and freedom from static may be readily increased by using a loop aerial. This also does away with the necessity of stringing up an outdoor antenna of any kind, and with the troublesome search for a good ground connection.

Distortion and instability that is often attributed to such sets is caused entirely by improper design. It is practically impossible for a good reflex set to howl or distort, unless grossly mistreated.

Crystals are the only detectors that have absolutely straight line rectification characteristics, and by using them in his reflex set a person can get a clear quality of tone that is otherwise impossible.

The radio frequency amplification boosts faint incoming waves to a point where they can be easily detected. This enables reception of distant stations without the squeal or mush of internal oscillations.

Audio frequency amplification increases the volume of the electrical movement to a point where it can operate a loud speaker.

The control needed is simple: it being only necessary to rotate a condenser connected across the loop, and another across an amplifier tuning inductor. Volume may be controlled by a potentiometer.

CHOOSING CONDENSER AN IMPORTANT POINT

Instruments Should Be of Proper Capacity and Have the Right Wavelength Curve.

Correct size and capacity are the first things to be determined in the selection of a variable condenser. Radio fans insist on rating these condensers by the number of plates, which is all wrong. They are properly rated by microfarads. That is the standard fixed by engineers, and the number of plates is not a true indication of the size of the condenser, according to the engineers of the Electrical Research Laboratories, Chicago.

The .00025 mfd. condenser usually has 11 plates, and the .0005 mfd., 23 plates, and the .001 mfd., 43 plates, and when reference is made to a 23-plate condenser, the capacity is assumed to be .0005 mfd. The capacity of a condenser, however, is dependent on the size of the plates and the distance they are separated from one another, and it is possible to have practically any capacity that is desired with a fixed number of plates. A two-plate condenser could be constructed so as to have a capacity of .0005 mfd.

It is best to call for the size condenser by its capacity, rather than the number of plates that it uses, and to observe the manufacturer's capacity rating on the box in which the condenser is contained. Many of the cheaper makes of condensers, rated by the number of plates, rather than the capacity in microfarads, may be considerably more or less than what you think they are.

The correct size to use depends on the wave-length band you wish to cover and the size of the inductance that is used in your set. A popular fallacy is that "if a 23-plate condenser will work, then a 43-plate condenser should be much better, because it has more plates." In a receiver where the entire wave-length band can be covered with a .0005 mfd. condenser, the exchange for a 43-plate condenser will accomplish nothing, but crowd all of the stations in together on the lower half of the condenser dial. The increased capacity will turn the receiver above the broadcast wave-bands, where nothing but commercial code will be heard.

Next to consider is the way in which the capacity is varied. Some of the newer types of condensers are constructed with straight-line wave-length curves that greatly improve tuning. Instead of crowding all of the lower wave-length stations together on the lower part of the scale, it spreads them out a little and permits selective tuning.

Points on Inspection.

The workmanship and material should receive consideration. Run your finger over the edges of the plates to see that no sharp burr from the manufacturing process remains. The rotor shaft should turn freely, yet be without play in the bearings. The insulation between the rotor and the stator should be of the best, and as little as possible of it used.

Condensers are usually carefully adjusted before they leave the factory, and if tampered with the plates may be thrown out of alignment and the capacity of the condenser changed. Use care in mounting your apparatus on the panel so as not to force any part of the condenser. If it will not go on easily redrill the panel or enlarge the holes you have drilled until it can be mounted easily. Tighten up the mounting screw or nut until the condenser is rigid on the panel.

In fixing your dial on the front of the panel first place the rotor plates all the way in between the stator plates. Move your dial until it reads 100 on the marker on your panel and then fasten the set screw. The dial reading will now read zero when the capacity of the condenser is the least, and 100 when all of the capacity is in use.

In service little attention need be paid to the condenser other than to clean out any dust that may collect between the plates. An ordinary pipe cleaner accomplishes this very well and should be used every week or two.

NOTED FRENCH EXPERT STUDIES FADING EFFECTS

His Transmission on a 200-Meter Wave Develops Interesting Facts on Weakening of Signals.

M. M. Lardry (8AO), a French radio amateur who is a scientist as well, has been conducting important studies of fading and variable reception effects for many months, especially in connection with blind spots and the weakening of signals at sundown. His experiments in transmission on a 200-meter wave length are especially interesting in view of their connection with the theory of the heaviside layer.

The transmission set of Mr. Lardry is located near Le Mans, in a depression with a diameter of 500 meters and a depth of 30 meters below the surrounding plateau. There is an opening in the plateau to the south, so that the set is in the center of a horseshoe. When Mr. Lardry sent out messages, amateurs at short distances (60 to 100 kilometers) reported that nothing could be heard, with the exception of amateurs located in the direction of the opening of the horseshoe, who heard perfectly. Amateurs located at long distances in every direction picked up the messages and reported excellent reception.

These experiments seem to confirm the heaviside theory, which Mr. Lardry states is the only hypothesis worth considering. He believes, however, that the heaviside layer is not a geometric surface refracting the waves geometrically. The heaviside layer is tumultous, Mr. Lardry believes, refracting radio waves at various angles. It is likewise a "volume" and not a surface, and absorbs part of the radio waves.

In this manner the waves which travel directly along the soil are reinforced by reflected radio waves with varying intensities, while meteorological perturbations near the receiving apparatus result in the "fading" of all waves, whether direct or reflected by the heaviside layer.

BATTERY HINTS

Just a few precautions must be taken in order to prevent trouble. Here are some of them:

Never add sulphuric acid to a battery above the tops of the plates.

Place a glass tray under the battery to catch the bubbling electrolyte.

Never draw excessive current or charge at too high a rate, as this will cause the plate to become distorted and will ruin the battery.

Charge the battery to its capacity before putting it away for any time.

See that the voltage of the charging device is higher than that of the battery.

The charging rate in amperes is indicated on the battery plate. Never exceed this rate.

Always keep the battery solution, as this does not evaporate and need not be replenished.

Place the battery on frequent charge, rather than allowing it to go near the danger point of discharge.

The C battery is a precautionary appliance rather than a positive help. Its main purpose is to keep the tubes from draining the B battery, thus producing quite a saving. It also reduces set noises.

The Shubert-Jefferson is idle for the second successive week, but will reopen next Sunday night with Charlot's Revue, a London importation of traits different from the usual show of the kind. For the week of Feb. 8 is announced the fifth "Greenwich Village Follies."

The American next week will present a Henry W. Savage production, "Lollipop," with Ada May. This will be followed in turn by Sissle and Blake, in "The Chocolate Dandies," and Irving Berlin's third edition of the "Music Box Revue."

A Russian Playlet.

THE bill at the Orpheum is distinguished by the name of Mrs. Leslie Carter, famous emotional actress, who will appear there this week in a one-act playlet of the Russian revolution entitled "Alixe of Tartary." Mrs. Carter last acted here with John Drew in "The Circle." Also featured is Miss Dorothy Jardon, an operatic singer, who will give a miniature recital. Other acts listed are those of Ted Claire, with an orchestra and company of dancers; Rose King and Chic Yorke, Billy Glason, the Dixie Four, Elliott and La Tour, Achilles and Julius Newman. Harry M. Snodgrass, pianist, will play at the Orpheum next week. The Woodward Players, at the Empress, are undertaking Channing Pollock's "The Fool."

At the Rialto will be seen a revue headed by Lester Lane and Elsie Travers; Amac, card juggler; John Vale and Beula Cray, Van and Vernon, and the Alexander brothers and Evelyn. The bill will change Thursday. The Grand Opera House promises Joe Bennett and assistants in "The Telephone Tangle," Agreenoff's revue, with Alma and Jean Duval; Harry Maxfield and Will Stone and other entertainers. The German Stock Co. will present at the Odeon tonight a historical drama, "Die Bluthochzeit." The burlesque show at the Garrick is "Miss New York Jr."

BURTON HOLMES In New TALK ON ROME

ALONG famous arteries of ancient and modern travel, Burton Holmes will conduct his audience at the Odeon tomorrow night in the second travelogue of his present series. "Round About Rome" is not to be confused with the first travelogue already given under the title "Immortal Rome."

Outside the gates of Rome there lie the classic aqueducts of old, the Catacombs, the Appian Way and the crumbling tombs of many a famous Roman. Beside these are the spots frequented by the very-much-alive Romans of the present day; Tivoli, Frascati, Ostia, the Lake of Nemi, each with its own peculiar charm and all glowing in the perennial beauty of Italian sunshine. It is of these places that Holmes will talk tomorrow night.

Anthony Coldeway, who wrote the scenario for "Cobra," Rudolph Valentino's first independent production, is now working on "The Scarlet Power," which will be the second.

Roman Choir Will Sing Friday at Odeon

THE Roman Choir, consisting of 16 singers of the patriarchal basilicas of St. Mary Major, St. John Lateran and the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican, will appear for the first time in St. Louis next Friday evening at the Odeon.

The artistic director of the tour is the Rev. Antonio Grimaldi, for 16 years basso at the Sistine Chapel. The conductor is Cavaliere Angelo Negri, organist of the St. Mary's in Rome, and a composer and pianist of note.

The program arranged for the St. Louis concert comprises not only standard classics of the Roman Church, but operatic arias and folksongs. It will be as follows:

"Gloria," Perosi; "Ave Maria," Vittoria; "O Salutaris Hostia," Perosi; Muller's "Il Ritorno Del Gregge" and Scandello's "Canzone Neapolitan," sung by Pietro Barchi and ensemble; chorus, "Va Pensiero," from "Nabucco," Verdi; Leoncavallo's Prologue from "I'Pagliacci," and "Zaza Piccola Zingara," sung by Salvatore Augello; Meyerbeer's "O Sucre Che Riposate," from "Roberto le Diable," sung by Guido Guidi; Puccini's "E lucevan le stelle" from "La Tosca," and "O sole mio," sung by Giuseppe Giorgi; Puccini's duet, "Ah Mimi, tu piu," from "La Boheme," sung by Signors Pagliarani and Lazzarini; the Trio from Gounod's "Faust," sung by Signors Giorgi, Augello and Guidi, and "Song of the Piave," Mario.

Puppets in "Treasure Island."

A puppet version of Stevenson's most popular work, "Treasure Island," will be given by the Tony Sarg Marionettes at Sheldon Auditorium, on the afternoon of Jan. 27.

"Dangerous Innocence," the film version of the Pamela Wynne novel, "Ann's an Idiot," has just been completed under the direction of William Seiter. Laura La Plante and Eugene O'Brien head the cast of this picture.

In the Movie Studios

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS has selected Mary Astor as leading woman for his picturization of "Don Q.," according to an announcement just issued from the Pickford-Fairbanks Studios. Miss Astor is one of the youngest leads in pictures, being only 18 years of age. Her first screen work was in the Tri-Arts production, "The Beggar Maid," produced in New York. Since then she has done some excellent work, notably with Richard Barthelmess in "The Bright Shawl" and with John Barrymore in "Beau Brummel." For a year she was under contract to Famous Players-Lasky, during which time she played the lead in James Cruzo's "The Fighting Coward," and also in "Uuguarded Women." In "Don Q" Miss Astor will be seen as a Spanish senorita whose beauty and charm urge the hero through many thrilling and romantic adventures.

Mary Bryan, who played the role of Wendy in "Peter Pan," has been signed to a long-term contract, according to announcement by Jesse L. Lasky.

T. Roy Barnes has arrived at the Paramount Long Island studio to play in Bebe Daniels' next starring

Screen Version of "The Golden Bed" Is Missouri's Feature

Tom Meighan in New Picture at Three Theaters and "Excuse Me," Tom Mix and Rin-Tin-Tin Other Offerings.

THE Missouri this week is presenting Cecil B. DeMille's screen production of Wallace Irwin's brilliant and dramatic novel of American marriage and morals, "The Golden Bed." In the cast are Rod La Rocque, Vera Reynolds, Robert Edeson, Henry B. Walthall, Julia Faye, Robert Cain, Warner Baxter and others. "The Golden Bed," as readers of the story in the Post-Dispatch know, tells of two sisters, daughters of a Southern family, and their relation with a man who rises by his own efforts from a plebeian position to a financial giant.

Lillian Rich and Vera Reynolds play the roles of the sisters and Rod LaRocque is the much-sought-after man. Burnoff and Josephine, dancers, have been re-engaged for an indefinite period. Their presentation this week will be "A Bird in a Gilded Cage," a descriptive dance number. Harriet Scholder, a concert pianist, will be presented in a recital and Harry Philwin, the ex-service man who was blinded in action in France, has won a return engagement. There will also be a Mack Sennett comedy "Honeymoon Hardships."

Thomas Meighan's "Tongues of Flame" is the attraction this week at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters. The picture is an adaptation of the last novel written by the late Peter Clark McFarlane. Bessie Love and Eileen Percy appear in support. "Tongues of Flame" tells the story of a city of 40,000 people built on ground which was not legally theirs. It had been obtained from a tribe of Indians by fraud. A lawyer, seeking revenge against an old enemy, incites the Indians to question ownership and succeeds in dispossessing the inhabitants. The result is a riot and a night of terror as the town is burned and pillaged. The Grand Central will have an extra attraction in Eugene Dennis, known as "the Kansas Wonder Girl." Miss Dennis is a 19-year-old mind reader. Starting Wednesday and playing for three days, Bebe Daniels in "Daring Youth" will be featured at the West End Lyric. Norman Kerry is the leading man.

Rupert Hughes' farce, "Excuse Me," is the feature picture at Loew's State. Norma Shearer and Conrad Nagel have the leading roles of the distraught lovers who, in order to catch the overland train, didn't have time to get married, thinking that they could find a minister on the train. After the train was under way, they discover that they are unable to locate the minister—and from then on the mix-up starts.

The Russian Lilliputians have been held over for another week and are seen in a new offering called "Story of a Paris Night." Zimmerman and Grandville will sing, and an atmospheric prologue, "All-Aboard," precedes the screen feature.

"Teeth," featuring Tom Mix and his horse Tony and a new canine star, Duke, appear at the Delmonte. A radio program is an added attraction on the stage. This program will be conducted by Maurice Francill, who will give an exhibition of the development of wireless communication and demonstrate miracles which are made possible by this new power. There is also a comedy and the usual weekly international news shots on the program.

"Processional," New Play in Jazz Rhythm, Absorbing Experiment

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Critic of the New York World.

A PLAYWRIGHT must be judged primarily in what he does, and yet the reviewer cannot leave out entirely the hint and promise of a production even though it happens to be headed straight for failure. John Howard Lawson's "Processional," produced Monday night at the Garrick by the Theater Guild, is amply good enough as it stands to elicit my enthusiasm. To me this curious and somewhat pretentious experiment by the author of "Roger Bloomer" is among the most absorbing things which the present season has had to offer. And yet I am well aware of the fact that it fell completely dead at the feet of the first-night audience. I have never seen a play received with such sullen silence.

A dramatist is in the unfortunate position of being denied the right of appeal. He cannot say, "Very well, I will write for the special few who happen to like my work." He cannot bring together his own particular group by mavericks, recruiting one here and another at the far end of the earth. Still less is he able to appeal to posterity. When a play dies it is dead all over. Generally speaking, the judgment of a current generation in regard to a play cannot be reversed by a later generation.

Nevertheless, I have a lively belief that Mr. Lawson is on no bypath. One or two ingredients in his mixture may have to be changed, but he will not be compelled to discard his formula. "Processional" alienated its audience because its technique was strange. There will come a day within our own life time when this technique will be wholly familiar.

Rush of Emotion.

EXPRESSIONISM, as it is employed by Lawson, is no flight into difficult intellectuality. It is rather the rush and richness of sheer emotion which bewildered those who saw it for the first time. I am not at all sure that a wholly naive group of people would not like it much better.

But, after all, I cannot be much concerned with what other people think. My business is to report my own adventures, and to me "Processional" was a thrilling experience. It is, if you like scratch paper rather than a carefully finished achievement. If so, it is the scratch paper of a great American play.

Though "Processional" failed to touch or arouse the bulk of the audience, it certainly served to inspire the actors. I don't think there is another show in town played closer to the hilt. And among those upon whose shoulders the fire dances are one or two who seemed hitherto safely pigeonholed in slots of high, conventional competence. Those who saw June Walker in "Six-Cylinder Love" were accustomed to say, "She's a mighty clever little actress." None of those adjectives, with the possible exception of "mighty," will serve now, for you must take my word that, with the single exception of Pauline Lord in "They Knew What They Wanted," there is no other current performance calculated so to strike and beat against you as does Miss Walker's Sadie Cohen in "Processional."

Another Hirsute Gorilla.

AND there is also the "Dynamite Jim" of George Abbott's, a piece of work far more hairy than the ape which Wolheim took from the hands of O'Neill. And there should be special mention, too, of Blanche Frederici and of a marvelous minor bit by Alan Ward as a soldier who is killed, and another word of praise for Donald MacDonald as a reporter.

Of previous American adventures into expressionism two plays remain in my mind—"Beggars on Horseback," by Kaufman and Connelly, and O'Neill's "The Hairy Ape." "Processional" is best. It is best because it is far more uniformly emotionalized. There were those who fiddled about in their seats as the play burned, and informed their neighbors, "This is too deep for me." But those who would have thrust the play aside as something high-brow which they had a right to resent mistook entirely the gulf which lay between them and the play.

The fog of precious intellectuality is not in it at all. To be sure, the surface of "Processional" does mist up at times, but simply because Mr. Lawson not only holds his mirror up to nature, but also breathes upon it.

Jazz as Stage Technique.

THE story is that of a strike in the coal fields, with passion, extravaganza, burlesque and tragedy tossed about with both hands. A program note explains "Processional" as "an interpretation of American life in terms of jazz rhythm, in which just as a jazz orchestra makes use of every instrument, so Mr. Lawson employs the various techniques of the theater, ranging all the way from vaudeville to tragedy."

This is rather more arty than the play deserves, but it does suggest one legitimate ground of complaint. In a jazz orchestra the various instruments are all true, according to their lights. As things stand in "Processional," most of Mr. Lawson's tragedy is far better than his vaudeville. The mad and extravagant moments of the play fail, now and again, not because of wildness but on account of insincerity. Mr. Lawson ought to feel his jokes just as keenly as anything else. He has achieved one or two triumphal comic lines, but sometimes he goes on the principle that any gag will do to establish a dissonance. It won't. The mournful saxophone passages of "Processional" mute out the drum beats.

Book for Syncopated Opera.

INCIDENTALLY, the author is not speaking wholly in symbols when he calls his play "a jazz symphony." A band does move through the action orchestrating heartbreak into swaying shoulders and setting feet to tapping over new graves. It ought to be a better jazz band and, of course, if this were the perfect work of art, there would be new tunes written for the action rather than airs borrowed for the occasion.

Something of pace is still needed in the performance, and there are rough spots not intended in the manuscript. Still, I cleave to "Processional" as a play flooded with creation in full cry, and, incidentally, it ought to provide almost the perfect book for that jazz opera concerning which talk, now and again, bubbles about.

Two Plays at the Empire.

THE new opening at the Empire Theater Tuesday night provided two plays, one of them Sir James Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?" But this time Sir James comes off second best. Most of the entertainment resided in "Isabel," a three-act comedy by Carl Goetz, which has been adapted by Arthur Richman.

"Isabel" violates no formula save the one which demands that, though a heroine may look over the wall, she may not leap. We were led to believe that Isabel followed her wandering eyes and, to be sure, there was no great impropriety in this, for her adventure was put off until after the fall of the final curtain.

The play is extremely light. We have a husband, a wife and a lover—which is not precisely brand-new, but the theme is handled with excellent wit and grace. Perhaps there is at least a hint of novelty for these three discuss the situation with rare good humor, and the husband has quite a time in persuading the potential lover that he is not necessarily a scoundrel.

Nobody, not even the audience, should be surprised at the state of affairs, for this husband is a professor who wears spectales and is absent-minded. Such husbands, among others, are invariably deceived.

A capital cast has been assembled for the play. Margaret Lawrence earns her rank as star, for her performance is easily the best. She is, of course, one of the best comediennes in our thaeter and last night she was particularly happy in the ease and surety of her acting.

Excellent Small Talks.

THE direction of Frank Reicher is not above reproach. Leslie Howard plays well as the husband, but there are scenes in which he does too much. Evidently there has been a feeling that since the play itself is so very slight a certain number of hugs and grimaces must be supplied by somebody to give it greater body. This duty seems to have been fastened upon Mr. Howard, and there is some little sense of strain in his work, particularly since he plays opposite so effortless a player as Miss Lawrence.

Edna May Oliver is excellent and manages to move amusingly through even such an obvious chore as carrying a stately character into a slight inebriation. Indeed, there are no less than three persons included in the alcoholic humors of the third act. However, they are all charming about it. And the playwright, while he is no shining paragon in the creation of situation, is invariably ingenious in devising dialogue. "Isabel" gives as pleasant and gay an evening of small talk as anybody might desire. You have seen many plays of precisely this sort, but at least it is one of the best of its kind.

Barrie's One-Act Play.

NOT as much as that can be said for the one act of Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies." This is mystery melodrama, also according to formula and by no means up to the best which some of our own authors have done. The scheme is quite similar to Bayard Veiller's "The Thirteenth Chair," but Veiller did it better. One of 12 is certainly the murderer. It then becomes the task of the playwright to pass suspicion about the table, which is done with no great subtlety or invention.

Barrie has saved himself the trouble of a solution, for the play is a fragment and ends without an explanation. And this is an excellent stopping place for a piece of this sort, as the explanation is never anything like as good as the mystery. In the Barrie play A. P. Kaye does nicely.

Offenbach in Operetta.

THE great stage of the Century Theater blazed Tuesday night with a magnificance of melody and movement and color. "The Love Song," an operetta of the Second Empire, based on the life and music of Jacques Offenbach, was adapted by Harry B. Smith from the Hungarian of several authors, and uses Edward Kunneke's score. It is a fine and delightful music play. Probably no other two stages in New York have attempted to bring on so many singing girls and boys in a solitary evening.

To me the wonder of the gigantic proceedings on Central Park West lies in the fact that none of the players so far has been trampled down and crushed. In the finale scene inside the Tuileries at the close of the second act there seemed no end to the inflow of beautifully gowned beauties and their beaux. And this view also was one of exquisite taste and expert management in grouping.

It is a difficult score which has been rewritten and rearranged, much of it from Offenbach's own and much contributed by our latter day light opera makers. Aside from a tendency toward opening nightitis in the case of one or two of the principals, no one would have asked or expected a nicer, more pleasing vocalization. After slight uncertainty in the first act, which is the least glowing of the three, Miss Dorothy Francis, as Eugenie, the Empress who secretly fell in love with the famous composer, sang both sweetly and with a fiery sweep.

Odette Myrtil in Cast.

ALLAN PRIOR, in his first exacting tenor role since he left the Winter Garden, if seemingly subdued in the vast auditorium, was seldom in trouble, and acquitted himself with considerable honor. There also was Odette Myrtil, the Frenchy lady who dances while playing her violin. She was cast here as Hortense, whose principal duty lay in being funny. Harry K. Morton was the comic in so far as his prescribed lines admitted.

Mr. Shubert (it was J. J. who conducted this production) provided as lovely a mounting and setting as he has brought out in the last 10 years, and he has seen to it that the chorus is gifted in singing as well as in the usual requirements of the rompers of the extravaganza. The result is that here is something else again to add to that list of "musts" in the theater of musicals.

"The Valley of Content."

AN unacknowledged version of the late Clyde Fitch's "The City" made another appearance Tuesday night at the Apollo, and Miss Marjorie Rambeau's return to the New York stage was not, in the ultra-artistic sense, a success. The audience applauded and wept over the old mother and son interludes and the cruel father episodes, only to find in the last scene of "The Valley of Content" that the playwright, Miss Blanche Upright, had spoofed them.

For Miss Rambeau went hurtling through three acts and six scenes, cheapjacking the emotions, only to be found at the end asleep and dreaming hers and the audience's horrors. For her popularity a great deal may be said. At the end of the first act the star was embanked in roses, tulips, jonquils, violets and other unseasonable flowers to be found only at a first night or a funeral.

It is impossible to speak well of the play, for the simple reason that it belongs to the crudities of the earlier part of the century. The relationship of members of families have been changed since they were modeled by Fitch and his theatrical peers. Only last night Dr. Carl Jung passed through New York City, and his volumes could well be studied by the author of "The Valley of Content."

Samples of Dialogue.

WHAT she set out to prove was that it is folly to get rich—and this in the face of the recent income tax exposures. Alas, for the stage. It is just 25 years behind the times and losing ground rapidly. The acting was uninspired throughout the entire cast, who, it would seem, are not to be blamed if it is demanded of modern players to don the old mental dress of Augustin Daly.

A sample line of dialogue is this gem:

"Its just for you and the kiddies."

Another:

"I want my daughter to be just like her mother."

Miss Rambeau's entrance in Act 1, Scene 1, was to slow music written especially for the play by the Duncan sisters.

"Two Married Men."

UNJOINING Vincent Lawrence's latest comedy, "Two Married Men," which opened Tuesday night at the Longacre, and studying the sections, one finds that they do not match. The preliminaries are slight domestic comedy, much in the mood of "In Love With Love" and "Two Fellows and a Girl." The climax shades swiftly to the serious.

Through the last act, excepting the opening moment, two characters in conversation hold the stage. Love is their theme, an everyday, suburban love that has staled into desuetude. Though their conclusion limps a trifle, the protest, the determination, the weariness of that last act contains a breath or two of agony that wrings a half frightened silence from the listeners. The matter and the manner of the writing suggests that Vincent Lawrence has wasted too much time on feathers. He should turn to throwing rocks.

Tepid Jealousies.

IT is well that this gust of brilliance waited to the end. The opening acts are thin domestic wranglings in which two married men and their two married wives sizzle mildly over the fires of jealousy set by a neighboring male. This male has little on his mind but golf and love making. He combines them until sundown forces him to give up golf. Both wives adore him, natually.

Without the gruff sincerity of George Gaul in this idler's part the play would crumble early. Yet to Minor Watson goes the chief cum laude. Though still an unfinished product his quick command of comedy and his sudden shaft of fervor in the final scene speak of a favoring future. Frances Carson, back from London, was promiscuously feline as "the woman who reminded him of an open tournament." Though she borrows inflections from Ethel Barrymore and a shoulder swing from Dorothy Dickson the cast was fortunate in Ann Andrews. She should play oftener among us.

New Soprano Appears Twice Here This Week

DUSOLINA GIANNINI...

Ganz Offers Program Of Tschaikowsky Works

FOR the ninth pair of Symphony Orchestra concerts, on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening of this week at the Odeon, Mr. Ganz, in the absence of a soloist, has arranged a program of works by Tschaikowsky. The principal undertaking will be the Fourth Symphony, in F minor, in which the composer treated the subject of Fate—"the force which, like the sword of Damocles, hangs perpetually over our heads and is always embittering the soul." There is also listed the popular ballet entitled "Nutcracker," excerpts from which have previously been played here in the form of a suite. The program follows:

Symphony No. 4, in F Minor, Op. 36.
- I. Andante sostenuto; Moderato con anima (in movimento di valse).
- II. Andantino, in modo di canzone.
- III. Scherzo: Pizzicato ostinato; Allegro.
- IV. Finale: Allegro con fuoco.

2. "Elegie," for String Orchestra.
3. Suite tiree du Ballet, "Casse-Noisette," Op. 71A.
   - I. Overture miniature.
   - II. Danses caracteristiques: (a) Marche; (b) Danse de la Fee-Dragee; (c) Danse Russe, Trepak; (d) Danse Arabe; (e) Danse Chinoise; (f) Danse des mirlitons.
   - III. Valse des Fleurs.
4. Overture, "The Year 1812."

St. Louisans "Pop" Soloists.

THIS afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon will present two St. Louis choir singers as soloists—Mrs. Irene Hawley, soprano, and Thomas Spahn, baritone. Each will sing an aria from the same opera, Massenet's "Herodiade." The program follows:

1. March, "Triumphal Entry of the Boyars" .... Halvorsen
2. Overture to "The Merry Wives of Windsor" .... Nicolai
3. Aria, "Il est doux, il est bon," from "Herodiade" ...... Massenet (Mrs. Hawley.)
4. Suite, "Caucasienne," Op. 10—Ippolitoff-Ivanoff
5. (a) "The Mill..... Raff-Ponchon (b) "Perpetuum mobile"—Ries-Fischer
6. Aria, "Vision fugitive," from "Herodiade" .... Massenet (Mr. Spahn.)
7. Rhapsody for Orchestra, "Espana" .... Chabrier

On Tuesday evening the orchestra will give a concert at Moolah Temple for the delegates to the convention of Jewish congregations, which will be in session in St. Louis. Joseph Schwarz, baritone of the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be soloist.

Miss Giannini Sings Twice.

A SOPRANO new to St. Louis, Miss Dusolina Giannini, whose voice recently created a furore in New York and London, will sing twice at the Odeon this week. She will be soloist Tuesday night at the mid-winter concert of the Morning Choral Club, and on Thursday night will give a recital for the benefit of the Musicians' Fund.

Her program at the Choral Club concert will be as follows: "Somni Dei," Handel; "Non so piucosa," Mozart; "Widmung," Schumann; "Le filles des Condix," Delibes; "On the Steppe," Gretchaninoff; "Tonjour a toi," Tschaikowsky; "In the Silence of the Night," Rachmaninoff; aria from "La Reine de Saba," Gounod; "Invocation," A. Walter Kramer; "Joy," Harvey B. Gaul; "Before the Crucifix," Frank La Forge; and "Sing to Me, Sing," Sidney Homer.

The club, under the direction of Charles Galloway, with Paul Friess at the piano, will offer these numbers: "Sing, O Sing," James P. Dunn; "Beneath Thy Lattice," Henry Patterson Hopkins; "Cradle Song," Tertius Noble; "Spinning Song," by Deems Taylor, with Mrs. H. W. Geller and Miss Marietta Schumacher as soloists; "By the Rivers of Babylon," Charles Martin Loeffler; "Goin' Home," a choral arrangement of a melody from Dvorak's "New World" symphony; and "La Chanson du Tambourineur," Deems Taylor.

Rachmaninoff and Schmitz.

TWO pianoforte recitals of unusual interests will be those of Sergei Rachmaninoff, at the Odeon on Jan. 27, and of E. Robert Schmitz at the Sheldon Auditorium on Jan. 31, under the auspices of the Piano Teachers' Association. Rachmaninoff will play the Saint-Saens arrangement of an Air de Ballet from Gluck's "Alceste," Schumann's G Minor sonata, a Chopin group, two of his own works, and Godowsky's arrangement of the Strauss waltz, "Artist's Life."

Schmitz, a French pianist, is expected to reveal many startling discoveries in the technique of his instrument. This will be his first St. Louis concert.

St. Olaf Choir Wednesday.

THE St. Olaf Lutheran Choir, under the direction of F. Melius Christiansen, will give a concert Wednesday night at the Odeon. The program will consist of religious music by Bach, Mendelssohn, Rameau, Gretchaninoff and other composers.

The Civic Orchestra of St. Louis, under the direction of Ellis Levy, will give its first concert of the season on the evening of Jan. 30 at the Community Center, Grand boulevard and Vista avenue. Gwilym Miles, baritone, will be soloist at Charles Galloway's free organ recital this afternoon at Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University. The midwinter concert of the Kirkwood Choral Club will take place Thursday night at the Kirkwood High School.

Miss June Weybright will read a paper on "Mana Zucca" at Wednesday's meeting of the Morning Etude, at Vandeventer Hall. O. Wade Fallert will offer the seventh of his free organ recitals this afternoon at the Scottish Rite Cathedral. Four recitals by students of the Strassberger Conservatories are announced for this afternoon, tonight, tomorrow evening and Wednesday night.

At the Liederkrans Club concert on Jan. 31 choral excerpts will be sung from famous oratorios—Handel's "Judas Maccabaeus," "Haydn's "The Seasons" and Mendelssohn's "Saint Paul." The soloists will be Mme. Graziella Pampari, harpist, and Pasquale de Conto, 'cellist. Hugo Anschuetz will direct.

"The Lighthouse by the Sea," the attraction at the Kings and Rivoli Theaters this week. In addition to the dog, Louise Fazenda and Willie Collier Jr. are in the cast. Both theaters will also show "The Eve of the American Revolution," one of the "Chronicles of America," produced under the supervision of Yale University. This deals with the exploits of the Colonials, and features the midnight ride of Paul Revere and the Boston tea party. "The Rubberneck," one of the episodes in the tangled lives of the Spat family, is the comedy.

Seats for Chicago Opera From $3 to $7.50

FOLLOWING the announcement that the Chicago Civic Opera Company will present "Mefistofele," "Tannhaeuser" and "La Gioconda" at the Shubert-Jefferson on March 6 and 7, comes the statement that the San Carlo Opera Company will sing a week's engagement at the Odeon, beginning March 23. The works listed are "Tosca," "Rigoletto," "Aida," "Otello," "Madame Butterfly," "Faust," "Andrea Chenier," "Lohengrin" and "Il Trovatore."

The cast will include Elda Vettori, Anne Roselle, Tamaki Miura, Bianca Saroya, Josephine Lucchese, Stella de Mette, Mary Kent, Gilda Mercalle, Manuel Salazar, Gaetano Tommasini, Demetrio Onofrei, Francesco Curci, Mario Basiola, Mario Valle, George Cehanovsky, Pietro di Biasi and Natale Cervi. The conductors will be Fulgenzio Guerrieri and Aldo Franchetti. Popular prices, from $1 to $3, will prevail. Guy Golterman is promoting the season.

The prices announced for the Chicago Opera engagement are as follows: Second balcony, $3; first balcony, $5, $6 and $7; parquet, $7.50, and box seats, $10. The seating capacity of the Shubert-Jefferson is comparatively small, and three rows of seats will be removed from the parquet to accommodate the orchestra. It is estimated that if the house were sold out for the three performances, the receipts would total $27,000, and this amount has been guaranteed by St. Louis underwriters. Miss Elizabeth Cueny is local manager.

Among the singers to appear will be Feodor Chaliapine, Rosa Raisa, Edith Mason, Augusta Lenska, Joseph Schwarz and Charles Hackett. There will be three conductors, Giorgio Polacco, Roberto Moranzoni and Henry G. Weber.

Sidney Olcott has arrived in Hollywood from New York to direct Pola Negri in "The Charmer." "The Charmer" is an adaptation of Henry Baerlein's English novel, "Mariposa," which was adapted to the screen by Sada Cowan. Miss Negri will play the role of a wild Spanish mountain girl who overnight becomes a world famous dancer.

Ada May as Star in "Lollipop" Coming to the American

Henry W. Savage's musical production, "Lollipop", with Ada May as the star, will occupy the American Theater during the week, beginning Sunday night, January 25. This is the first Savage production to reach St. Louis this season and marks the initial appearance in this city of Miss May as a full-fledged theatrical star. She is remembered by local theater-goers as the dancer of "Listen Lester" and "The O'Brien Girl".

In Studio and Gallery

RESPONSE to the Post-Dispatch Black and White Competition just opening at the St. Louis Artists' Guild is such as to prove most gratifying to the promulgators of the scheme. One hundred and thirty-nine pictures have been entered and exactly fill the exhibition gallery and the smaller room on the front.

This display not only shows us a number of our prominent painters in new roles, but introduces some newcomers from the commercial studios and also brings up some amateurs.

Among the workers in fine art who have entered black and white pictures, Edmund H. Wuerpel seems most at home. He is the only one who has retained his color style and made no concessions to a "commercial" manner. Of course, it is true that Mr. Wuerpel's accustomed style slides very easily into this monochrome. The conscientious and sincere work with the gray tints is characteristic. Mr. Wuerpel's black and white version of the park lagoon and the big gray building on Art Hill is extremely nice and takes a prominent place in the show.

Manley K. Nash, whose "Mississippi" landscape in the guild's recent show attracted attention, gives a remarkably strong drawing of "The Spirit of St. Louis," which has innumerable commercial possibilities. Splendid force is given the drawing of the equestrian statue before the entrance to the City Art Museum, and a suggestion of St. Louis activities and their progress is handled well in the background.

Oscar Berninghaus surprises the spectator with two totally different pictures, one a delightful, free little thing entitled "In the Country," the other called "The Ferry Boat," a Mississippi River scene done in a big, strong way that would lend itself to reproduction. Mr. Berninghaus' drawings of "Cahokia" for Union Electric advertising were, we remember, just as conscientiously executed, which makes us think perhaps "The Ferry Boat" was originally made for some advertising purpose and then put into this show.

John Eppensteiner, originally a commercial artist who has worked his way, during the past few years, into the fine arts, exhibits two pictures which are so exactly opposite in every respect that it becomes difficult to realize they both belong to him. One, a soft and pleasantly executed drawing of "Rock Church," apparently done with a mixture of pencil and lithograph crayon, is reverential in its mystery and dignity. The other, a black and white edition of "The 11th Ward," treats not only of a subject far removed from the grace of Gothic architecture whose spires trail off into night's high heaven, but is handled in Mr. Eppensteiner's new quilted fashion, as frank and direct as the pencil drawing is veiled. "The 11th Ward" cannot be called strictly a "black and white" since tinges of brown have been put into his paint for emphasis. It is a powerful trick and certainly accomplishes the artist's aims, whether or not exception is taken to the means.

C. K. GLEASON is seen at his best, according to our way of thinking, in the present exhibition. On previous occasions we have remarked the superiority of Mr. Gleeson's work in black and white over his work in color, but never has it been so obvious as now. His two stunning drawings of "Union Station" and "Municipal Docks" will demand attention anywhere. They are two of the strongest pictures in the show. This man's capacity for adequately handling big subjects in an appropriately big way is fully exemplified. But now, leaving his drawings, examine two etchings which he has done and which are shown in the small front gallery, "The Return of the Warriors" and "Reredos, Christ Church Cathedral." These contain strength and finesse but in different dimensions.

C. M. Peter, art director of Barnes-Crosby, is introduced to us by three extremely interesting works. "A Future Miss St. Louis" is, we believe, the only figure study in the exhibit. Somewhat "Norman Rockwellian" in character, it is the sort of thing that "gets across" most readily. Its big slashes of black and big patches of white give the certain force of contrast that carries it along. The same style of handling is used in his picture of freight yards. "Olive Street Canyon" is an India inked wood-cut effect. None of them contain many of the academic art values, yet these pictures will be remembered by visitors to the show as some of the outstanding works.

Frank Mahon chooses to portray a subject dear to the hearts of the art school student who, years ago, created "Carrie Kingsbury" and who have repainted her, periodically. A mighty nice pencil drawing shows the Union boulevard entrance to Kingsbury place where between pillars and above the fountain, the graceful figure facetiously christened by the sculptors, presides. The drawing is loosely done and its composition is admirable.

MONDAY afternoon, Jan. 12, Mrs. Emily B. Summa exhibited 18 of her recent canvases before 150 members of the Art, Literature and Music sections of the Monday Club of Webster Groves, in Community Hall. She also addressed the women, speaking of her own work and of that of St. Louis painters in general.

The small snow scene which is included in Mrs. Summa's group of little pictures entered in the present Thumb Box has just been purchased by Mrs. Walter M. Bartlett, wife of Dr. Bartlett, as a companion piece of a previously owned evening landscape by the same artist.

The St. Louis jury for works of art for prospective entrance to the 120th Annual Exhibition at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts met last Monday at the Kodan Galleries. The jury, composed of F. G. Carpenter, Harland Fraser, Carl Waldeck, Charles Galt and Caroline Risque, selected the following paintings and pieces of sculpture to be sent to the academy to go before the final jury for entrance: Tom P. Barnett, "The Road to the Sea," and "In the Grip of the Ice King"; Oscar Berninghaus, "Sun Showers" and "Taos Ball Game"; Kathryn Cherry, "Temple Vase"; C. K. Gleeson, "Feast Day, Mexico"; Jessie M. Gleyre, "Mountain Patterns"; Gustave Goetsch, "The Close of a Great Day"; Robert Kissack, "The Breakfast Table"; Agnes Lodwick, "Dogwood in a Black Jar," and "Decorative Still Life"; Warren Ludwig, "Self Portrait"; Cornelia Maury, "Barn Yard"; Francis Scott MacNutt, "Emily and Peg"; Fred Nauman, "Morning Light"; Frank Nuderscher, "In Missouri"; Ralph Ott, "Sunny Morning"; Emily Phelips, "Cretonne"; Oscar Thalinger, "Westward"; Florence Ver Steeg, "Janet and the Wall Flower"; Eloise Long Wells, "Confetti"; Edmund H. Wuerpel, "Gray Woods" and "Twin Birches"; Shiela Burlingame, "The Lemm" and "Matrnity"; Nancy Coonsman Hahn, "Portrait of Mrs. Walter Koken" and "The Fish Boy," fountain design; Victor Holm, "Percival Chubb" and "The Kiss of the Air"; Mr. Carpenter, Mr. Galt and Miss Risque of the jury sent work for entrance.

Acceptance of works into the Pennsylvania show is a splendid tribute to the pictures selected and the results of the final jury always hold much interest to exhibitors and nonexhibitors alike. Announcement of the works selected from this group will be made at the earliest possible moment.

picture, "The Crowded Barnes will have as fellow members of the supporting cast neth Harlan, Frank Morgan Helen Lee Worthing.

George Fitzmaurice has completed casting the principals for his next production, "His Supreme Moment." Kathlyn Myers, Belle Bennett, Cyril Chadwick, Ned Sparks and Nick de Ruiz have been selected to support Blanche and Ronald Cloman, who will be featured.

"Raffles," House Peters starring vehicle, has been completed and will soon be ready for screening. In this picture, which was made under the direction of King Baggot, former matinee idol of the screen and now one of its foremost directors, Peters wears a dress suit for the first time (in pictures) in many years.

"The Rag Man," the picture Jackie Coogan started before he left for Europe, the exterior scenes for which were all filmed in New York, has been completed at the little star's Hollywood studios, and is scheduled for national release early in February. This production is Jackie's first for the 1925 season.

Robert Frazer has been signed to play the leading masculine role in Pola Negri's first starring vehicle for 1925. "The Charmer" is the title of the new Negri opera.

A change in production plans has sent Viola Dana hurrying to New York to play a feature role in forthcoming First National Picture as yet without a title. This is Miss Dana's first trip East in nearly four years, and as soon as her work in Eastern studios is completed she will rush back to Hollywood, where two emotional roles will be awaiting her attention. Dorothy Mackaill and Richard Barthelmess accompanied Miss Dana to the East.

Richard Dix has been engaged by William de Mille to play a feature role in his next production, "Men and Women," adapted to the screen by Clara Beranger from the stage play by Henry C. de Mille, father of the producer-director.

"The Desert Flower," a melodramatic comedy by Don Mullally, which has been running at the Longacre Theater in New York City, has just been purchased as the next starring vehicle of Colleen Moore, according to an announcement made by First National.

John Conway, who made "The Roughneck," with George O'Brien, is directing the screen version of James Oliver Curwood's "The Hunted Woman."

Upon the completion of his character of Ellery Taylor, a New England Sheriff, in Edwin Carewe's picture, "My Son," featuring Nazimova, Hobart Bosworth, veteran screen character actor went to New York to play a feature part in "Chicks." Mr. Bosworth has not been active in Eastern studios for several years.

Charles Le Moyne plays the heavy in "Riders of the Purple Sage," the screen version of Zane Grey's story being made with Tom Mix as the star.

Jack Mulhall is assigned the male lead in "Folly of Vanity," the production being made under the direction of Maurice Elvey and Henry Otto by William Fox. Betty Blythe and Billie Dove share the feminine honors.

Herman Raymaker has been assigned to direct the next Rin-Tin-Tin picture for Warner Bros. which will be "Trapped in the Snow Country."

If negotiations, which are now in progress between Owen Moore, stage and screen star, and Fred Jackson, well-known playwright, who has to his credit such successes as "A Pair of Sixes," "Two Little Girls in Blue," and others, goes through Moore may make a temporary retirement from Hollywood and the silversheet in favor of the speaking stage.

Bess Meredyth, who recently returned from Rome where she wrote the script for "Ben Hur," has contracted with the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Co. to write another script for that organization.

SULPHUR CLEARS SKIN RIGHT UP

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Menthol-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement, and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

MIDWINTER BUILDING TO PASS OLD RECORD

Salamanders and Tarpaulins Aid Contractors in Defying Low Temperatures.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Constructors say midwinter building has become a conquered peak. First scaled successfully after years of effort in the winter of 1923, they report that during the present winter they will go 1923 enough better to make the conquest permanent.

The business world, watching the climbers from below, already sees the effect in an early easing of seasonal unemployment in both the building trades and the field of building supply, in relieving of the housing shortage, and in a better stabilizing of the building industry as a whole by distributing the old back-breaking seasonal loads over a full 12-months period.

Dwight L. Hoopingarner, executive, American Construction Council, in describing some of the new aspects of winter construction, says:

"This greater stabilization has been secured by relatively simple methods. Experience has shown that work on large buildings, whether of steel, masonry or concrete construction, can be conducted with safety in temperatures down to 20 or 25 degrees above zero.

31 Days Maximum Loss.

"After that, salamanders to provide heat, tarpaulins to keep it, and hanging scaffolds to hold men and materials where they are needed, have solved the problem of keeping out the cold and frost and permitting winter operations to go ahead in many cases at more even temperatures and greater economy. Records of contractors over periods of years have shown an average of about 14 days, with scarcely over 31 days maximum in any one year, in which the weather necessitated that the precautions of winter building be taken."

Hoopingarner advises the building investing public to recognize the necessity of exercising special care in securing responsible and thoroughly skilled architects, engineers and contractors in the performance of winter work.

Prices Show Increase.

Four per cent more contracts were let for new building in the first 11 months of 1924, ended Nov. 30, than in the full 12 months of 1923 in the 36 states covered by the Dodge Reports, says Hoopingarner. The total figure for the 11 months was $4,100,000,000. Compared with the same 11 months of 1923, the increase was 13 per cent. With prices in the main slightly lower than the year before, he says the comparisones are conservative.

Hoopingarner finds winter activity producing a relative increase in prices, although prices for the year as a whole show a slight decrease. Previous to last year the winter demand for materials was relatively small. "It is well to note the fact," he observes, "that with a greater volume of winter construction there will be a tendency toward higher relative prices for materials, and possibly for labor, than have been considered normal for the winter season. Such a condition, however, will not vitiate the basic advantages of winter work."

MISSOURI FARMERS' WEEK WILL BEGIN TOMORROW

Concerts and Addresses on Program for Event at Columbia.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 17.—Missouri State Farmers' week will open here Monday night with a concert by the University Cadet Band. Following the introductory concert, President Stratton D. Brooks of the university, and Dean F. B. Mumford, of the College of Agriculture, will welcome the visiting farmers.

The feature address of the first evening will be that of Douglas Malloch, humorist, of Chicago. Tuesday evening there will be an entertainment by the University Glee Club, followed by an address by State Superintendent of Public Schools Charles Lee, and on Wednesday evening, the School of Fine Arts of the university will present a program of violin and piano music. The speakers for Wednesday are William Jesse Baird, director of the Department of Agriculture of Berea College, and former Gov. Charles H. Brough of Arkansas. A combination of piano and vocal numbers by Prof. E. A. McLeod, chairman of the piano department, and Prof. Herbert Wall, baritone and director of the University Glee Club, will open the evening program Thursday. Gov. Baker will then deliver an informal address, followed by a talk by Secretary Wayne Dinsmore, of the Horse Association of America.

Gland Caps

AN ASSISTANT TO NATURE
A BUILDER OF HEALTH

Gland-Caps is a glandular compound containing the active principles of the glands of healthy young animals. In combination with these are other health building substances.

Gland-Caps is an effective method of reawakening the glands through the blood itself. Nature acts slowly but surely. For this reason physicians recommending this form of treatment advise a continued course. In some cases Gland-Caps infuses new life and vigor into one with the first doses, but effective results can come only with extended treatment. Since its introduction to the general public Gland-Caps has received enthusiastic praise from all users.

MENCKEN DECRIES EFFORT TO TEACH STYLE IN ENGLSH BY HARD AND FAST RULES

Says Aim of Schoolmarms and Bucolic Professors Is to Put It on Basis of Mah Jongg and Flag Drills.

By HENRY L. MENCKEN,
Co-Editor With George Jean Nathan of the American Mercury, and Our Foremost Literary Critic.

I.

WITH precious few exceptions, all the books on style in English are by writers quite unable to write. The subject, indeed, seems to exercise a special and dreadful fascination over schoolmarms, bucolic "college" professors, and other such pseudoliterates. One never hears of treatises on it by George Moore or James Branch Cabell; but the pedagogues, male and female, are at it all the time. In a thousand texts they set forth their depressing ideas about it, and millions of suffering high school pupils have to study what they say. Their central aim, of course, is to reduce the whole thing to a series of simple rules—the overmastering passion of their melancholy order, at all times and everywhere. They aspire to teach it as mah jongg, the American Legion flag drill, and double entry bookkeeping are taught. They fail as ignominiously as that Athenian of legend who assayed to train a regiment of grasshoppers in the goosestep.

For the essence of a sound style is that it cannot be reduced to rules—that it is a living and breathing thing, with something of the devilish in it—that it fits its proprietor tightly and yet ever so loosely, as his skin fits him. It is, in fact, quite as securely an integral part of him as that skin is. It hardens as his arteries harden. It has Katzenjammers on the days succeeding his indiscretions. It is gaudy when he is young, and gathers decorum when he grows old. On the day after he makes a mash on a new girl it glows and glitters. If he has fed well, it is mellow. If he has gastritis, it is bitter. In brief, a style is always the outward and visible symbol of a man, and it cannot be anything else. To attempt to teach it is as silly as to set up courses in making love. The man who makes love out of a book is not making love at all; he is simply imitating someone else making love. God help him if, in love or literary composition, his preceptor is a pedagogue!

II.

THE schoolmarm theory that the writing of English may be taught is based upon a faulty inference from a sound observation. The sound observation is that the great majority of high school pupils, when they attempt to put their thoughts upon paper, produce only a mass of confused and puerile nonsense—that they express themselves so clumsily that it is often quite impossible to understand them at all. The faulty inference is to the effect that what ails them is a defective technical equipment—that they can be trained to write clearly as a dog may be trained to walk on its hind legs. This is all wrong. What ails them is not a defective technical equipment but a defective natural equipment. They write badly simply because they cannot think clearly. They cannot think clearly because they lack the brains. Trying to teach them is thus as hopeless as trying to teach a dog with only one hind leg.

Any human being who can speak English understandably has all the materials necessary to write English clearly, and even beautifully. There is nothing mysterious about the written language; it is precisely the same as the spoken language. If a man can think in English at all he can find words enough to express his ideas. The fact is proved abundantly by the excellent writing that often comes from so-called ignorant men. It is proved anew by the even better writing that is done on higher levels by persons of great simplicity, for example, Abraham Lincoln. Such writing arouses but little enthusiasm among pedagogues. Its transparency excites their professional disdain, and they are offended by its use of homely words and phrases. They prefer something more ornate and complex—something, as they would probably put it, demanding more "thought." But the "thought" they yearn for is the kind, alas, that they secrete themselves—the muddled, highfalutin, vapid "thought" that one finds in their own text books.

III.

I DO not denounce them because they write so badly; I merely record the fact in a sad, scientific spirit. Even in such twilight regions of the intellect the style remains the man. What is in the head infallibly oozes out of the nub of the pen. If it is sparkling Burgundy, the writing is full of life and charm. If it is mush, the writing is mush, too. The late Dr. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the Federal Union, was a highly self-conscious stylist. He practiced prose composition assiduously, and was regarded by the pedagogues of Marion and vicinity as a talented fellow. But when he sent a message to Congress, it was so muddled in style that even Henry Cabot Lodge could not understand it. Why? Simply because Dr. Harding's thoughts, on the high and grave subjects he discussed, were so muddled that he couldn't understand them himself.

On matters within his range of customary meditation he was clear, and even charming, as all of us are. I once heard him deliver a brief address upon the ideals of the Elks. It was a topic close to his heart, and he had thought about it at length and con amore. The result was an excellent speech—clear, logical, forceful, and with a touch of wild, romantic beauty. His sentences hung together. He employed simple words, and put them together with skill. But when, at a public meeting in Washington, he essayed to deliver an oration on the subject of the late Dante Alighieri, he quickly became so obscure and absurd that even the diplomatic corps began to snicker. The cause was plain; he knew no more about Dante than a Rotarian knows about the Institutes of Justinian. Trying to formulate ideas upon the topic, he could get together only a few disjected fragments and ghosts of ideas—here an ear, there a section of tibia, beyond a puff of soul substance or other gas. The resultant speech was enigmatical, cacophonous, and awful stuff. It sounded precisely like a lecture by a college professor on style.

IV.

A PEDAGOGUE, confronted by Dr. Harding in class, would have set him to the business of what is called "improving" his vocabulary—that, is to the business of making his writing even worse than it was. Dr. Harding, in point of fact, had all the vocabulary that he needed, and a great deal more. Any idea that he could formulate clearly he could write clearly. Any idea that genuinely moved him he could convey with charm—which is to say, with what the pedagogues call "style."

I believe this capacity is possessed by all literate persons above the age of 14. It is not acquired by studying text-books; it is acquired by learning how to think. Children even younger often show it. I have a niece, aged 9, who already has an excellent style. When she writes to me about the things that interest her—in other words, about the things she is capable of thinking about—she puts her thoughts into clear, dignified and admirable English. Her vocabulary, so, far, is unspoiled by

Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy

Really better than ready-made cough syrups, and saves about $2. Easily and quickly prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritable membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

FRIENDSHIP HOUSE

From the day we opened our doors and, as hosts, cried "Welcome," we have succeeded in our ideal of making the Missouri Theatre a "house of the people." No other St. Louis institution is so perfectly equipped to be the universal meeting place, the great rallying point of the community.

We are identified in ownership and ideals with an organization performing a great and valuable service in St. Louis, as the same organization carries its benefits throughout the world. The Missouri Theatre is a Famous Players theatre and only three other theatres in the entire world equal it in beauty and comfort.

Coupled with the spirit of the Missouri Theatre, the refinement of the institution, are the thousands of St. Louis friendships bestowed upon the Famous Players-Lasky Pictures, always the backbone of our programs. These pictures supplemented by the best from other sources enable us to announce always, "the best show in St. Louis."

BRITISH RAIL IMPROVEMENTS

One Line to Spend $70,000,000 for Equipment.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Nearly $70,000,000 will be spent soon on an elaborate program of work to be carried out by the London, Midland & Scottish Railway. The scheme includes the building of 220 large passenger and freight locomotives and 15 smaller ones.

Provision is also to be made for new sleeping cars, vestibule and corridor cars of the most comfortable type, kitchen and dining cars and other rolling stock.

MENCKEN DENIES EFFORTS TO TEACH STYLE BY HARD AND FAST RULES

schoolmarms. She doesn't try to knock me out by bombarding me with "hard" words and with phrases filched from Addison. She is unaffected, and hence her writing is charming. But if she essayed to send me a communication on the subject, say, of Balkan politics or Government ownership, her style would descend instantly to the level of that of Dr. Harding's state papers.

To sum up, style cannot go beyond the ideas which lie at the heart of it. If they are clear, it, too, will be clear. If they are held passionately, it will be eloquent. Trying to teach it to persons who cannot think, especially when the business is attempted by persons who also cannot think, is a great waste of time, and an immoral imposition upon the taxpayers of the nation. It would be far more logical to devote all that energy to teaching, not writing, but logic—and probably just as useless. For I doubt that the art of thinking can be taught at all—at any rate, by school teachers. It is not acquired, but congenial. Some persons are born with it. Their ideas flow in straight channels; they are capable of lucid reasoning; when they say anything it is instantly understandable; when they write anything it is clear and persuasive. They constitute, I should say, about one-eighth of 1 per cent of the human race. The rest of God's children are just as incapable of logical thought, in any true sense, as they are incapable of jumping over the moon. Trying to teach them to think is as vain an enterprise as trying to teach a streptococcus the principles of Americanism. The only thing to do with them is to make Ph. D.'s of them, and set them to writing handbooks on style.

DELEGATES TO JEWISH RALLY ARRIVING HERE

500 ST. LOUISANS ON COMMITTEE

Program Includes Religious Service and Symphony Orchestra Concert in Moolah Temple.

Delegates from every state of the Union are arriving in St. Louis today to attend the twenty-ninth biennial convention of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and the annual assemblies of affiliated organizations, the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods and the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, which open at Hotel Statler tomorrow. For four days these delegates—estimated at 500 in number—will consider plans for reviving interest in Judaism among the Jews of the country and outline a program of religious activity for the future.

Five hundred local Jews comprise the committees which are getting things in shape for the convention. Edwin B. Meissner and Aaron Waldheim are at the head of these committees.

The convention proper will open Tuesday when the three organizations will meet separately at the hotel. Monday evening a religious service will be held at Moolah Temple where Rabbi Aaron Simon of Washington, D. C., will deliver the sermon. Brief addresses will made by Dr. Leon Harrison, Dr. Julian Miller, Dr. Samuel Sale, Dr. Samuel Thurman and Dr. Louis Witt.

Tuesday afternoon the Sisterhood will discuss "The Religious Problem of the Nonresident Sister," and the Brotherhood will consider "How to Develop and Maintain the Interest of Our Young People in Judaism." A joint session will also be held when Marcus Aaron, former president of the State Board of Education of Pennsylvania and chairman of the Pittsburg Board of Education, will speak on "Religious Education From the Standpoint of American Judaism."

Tuesday evening the delegates will hear a concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at Moolah Temple, and Wednesday the union will consider a report of the Committee of Twenty-six, which will present a program of future work for the organization. On Thursday Rabbi Louis Wolsey of Cleveland will address the three organizations on "Social Justice."

Among the delegates will be two who have attended every convention since the organization came into existence—Judge Josia Cohen of Pittsburg, Pa., and Simon W. Rosendale of Albany, N. Y.

FORMER PREMIER, IN JAIL, REFUSES OFFERED FREEDOM

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Dec. 10.—For the last two years M. Krasnoshekoff, once Premier of the Far Eastern republic, has been in jail; he was found guilty of embezzlement.

But prison life has not succeeded in curbing the former statesman's energy. He has written four books on banking, for which he received $4000; he has organized among his prison mates a lucrative business of making wood-cuts and engraving on copper, and altogether he is doing so well that he has declined a release from confinement and the offer of a position with a local bank.

Offers Car to Pay Fine.

By the Associated Press.

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 17.—When a fine of $33 was levied against George Urborn on a charge of speeding in Pasadena, he pleaded: "Judge, won't you please take the car instead? I paid only $40 for it." The Court thereupon remitted $25 of the $33 fine. Urborn decided the car was worth $8, so he paid up and drove away.

Why Many Mothers Are Thin and Pale

No one perhaps suffers a greater drain on strength, nerve force and vitality than the woman who has children to care for. Yet Science has now perfected a remarkable new strength-giving combination which has enabled thousands of nervous, tired-out mothers, often in only a few short weeks, to build up and renew their strength, energy and physical and mental endurance.

Any doctor will tell you that a great many mothers lack sufficient iron—organic iron—in the blood. Without sufficient of this organic iron nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, so you become weak, pale and haggard-looking, nervous, irritable and easily upset.

In such cases what you need is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich the blood, and revitalize worn-out nerves. For Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. Try it for just two weeks and notice the marvelous improvement. Money back if not delighted. But be sure you get genuine Nuxated Iron, with the letters NI on every tablet. This is the only kind sold under this absolute guarantee. At all good druggists.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.

LARGE SUMS OF GOLD DISAPPEAR ANNUALLY

How Metal Is Swallowed Up in Industry and Among Primitive Peoples.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—What becomes of all the gold produced by the mines of the world is a frequent inquiry, particularly with the growing importance of gold shipments, and the question may be answered as follows:

Coinage among civilized nations, which accounts for about one-fourth of the production; use in industrial arts; waste, a $5 gold piece, for example, losing 1½ per cent in weight after one year's use; hoarding, by which million of dollars are mysteriously swallowed up annually among primitive peoples; and loss, as through fire, shipwreck and similar causes.

Less Gold Being Mined.

Gold mining in this country has fallen off because the industry has found it hard to turn a profit at postwar prices. The price of gold has long been fixed by the Government at $20.67 an ounce. Year in, year out, regardless of supply and demand, it remains "pegged" at this figure.

The purchasing value of gold, meanwhile, varies, fluctuating with price levels. An ounce of gold, economists compute, purchases perhaps only 60 per cent as much now as before the war. Mine costs, in consequence, could not be realized on many lower-grade workings and many have shut down.

Yet gold the world over continues to come from the earth at a high rate. Gold bullion priced at $2,501,000,000 was on deposit last year in the vaults of the United States Assay Office in Wall street, which is regarded as the most important clearing station in this country for monetary gold and gold used in fine arts.

$60,000,000 Yearly to Arts.

At this closely guarded crossroads from the gold field to the bank vault, the incoming alloyed gold is melted as much as five times in refining; five to seven assays are made from samples; the whole weighed and reweighed, checked and rechecked.

Platinum is a most valuable by-product of the refining at the Assay Office. As much as 1500 ounces of it have been recovered in 12 months, all velvet for the Government, and, quoted from $250 to $300 an ounce, worth from $375,000 to $450,000.

Gold in bars was bought last year from the Assay Office by American makers of fine art objects at a monthly average of $5,000,000, according to one outside estimate. The Director of the Mint, from such data as he had available, calculated the gold used in industry in the calendar year 1923 was $69,292,245, of which $40,013,175 was new material.

Far East Drains Supply.

The Far East and Africa are held responsible for the disappearance of much of the world's gold. India is called "a great sink for the precious metal," and in the last half century it is estimated to have made away with at least $1,500,000,000 in gold. Gold is used there in decoration, ornaments and textiles and hoarded and buried by owners who die, in many cases, without revealing the location of their caches. This drain is put at several million dollars annually.

China is said to be even more of a sponge for gold, while in Africa the gold paid in wages to Kaffir laborers at the mines goes with them to their kraals and somehow never returns, it is said. Trading posts well in the heart of the Dark Continent also report a lively demand for gold coins of whatever currency. Native chiefs, headmen and even braves covet the shining tokens to lavish upon their women for coin necklaces and bangles.

Shipwrecks withdraw an amount of gold that can only be guessed. Divers a year ago recovered $30,000,000 in gold bars from the White Star liner Laurentic which was torpedoed off the coast of Ireland during the war. Wall street itself has outfitted several expeditions even now on the high seas in quest of sunken treasure.

MERCHANTS IN ST. LOUIS TRADE AREA TO CONFER

Several thousand merchants in the St. Louis trade territory are expected to attend the fourth annual Move-More-Merchandise Conference, sessions of which will be held at Hotel Statler, here, Feb. 9, 10 and 11.

The conference will be conducted by the St. Louis Advertising Club for the American Retailers' Association, the object being to supply practical information on up-to-date merchandising and management. It is scheduled for a time when a great number of buyers will be in St. Louis and can conveniently attend.

The program has been prepared to some extent by the merchants themselves. Several hundred responded to questionnaires sent out last season by the American Retailers' Association, and their suggestions were taken into consideration by the program committee. Special attention has been given to obtaining speakers on advertising, merchandising, window trimming and display in general.

Registration will be held Feb. 9. Bishop James E. Freeman of Washington, D. C. is one of the speakers listed for Feb. 10. President L. G. Boone of the American Retailers' Association will discuss "plans for 1925" at the closing of the conference, Feb. 11.

THE DICK TWINS---A TALE OF TANGLED LIVES THAT SURPASSES FICTION

Mother Who Lost Her Babies Soon After They Were Born Finds Them Only to Lose Them Again

For Eleven Years, Margaret and Marjorie, Separated in Infancy, but Reunited Through a Queer Quirk of Fate, Lived Near Their Mother, Unknown to Her—Foster Father Now Learns They Are Not His, but Their Mother, Sacrificing Herself for Their Good as She Did in Giving Them Away at Birth, Does Not Claim Them—Some Day She Hopes to See Them Just Once and Then Go Out of Their Lives Forever.

By F. A. BEHYMER,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Jan. 17.

ON a July day in 1913 a young mother emerged from the valley of the shadow of death at Hackley Hospital after twin daughters had been born to her.

Her travail had been cruel but it was kind compared to the choice she was called upon to make. She could keep her babies, but it would be sacrificing them on the altar of her love for them, for they would almost certainly die. Or she could give them away, sacrificing herself and her love for them, and they would probably live. She gave them away.

For three years they lived within a few blocks of their mother, cared for by foster parents, without the mother knowing whether they had lived or died, and without anyone concerned knowing that each had a twin sister somewhere. And then, after playful fate had brought them together, they continued to live near their mother without her knowing that they lived and were near.

Yesterday the news was taken to her that her twin daughters lived and it was as if they had been born again to her, so great was her joy, but it was followed by another renunciation, greater than the first, for she made a vow to continue her sacrifice to the end, without hope of ever hearing them call her mother.

For the Babies' Sake

Poverty was the lot of the young woman, little more than a child herself, who went down into the valley of the shadow of death that July day in 1913, and to poverty had been added misfortune. The twins that were born to her were very tiny and very fragile. With the best of care, better care than their parents could hope to give them, they might survive. Without the best of care they probably soon would die.

It was explained to the young mother. There were childless women who would take the babies and bring them up as their own, but there was a condition that they insisted upon. It was that their possession be absolute and that the mother agree never to claim the babies if they lived. It was for the babies' sake and she agreed.

It was best, since she was to lose them, that she not be allowed to see them, but the nurse was kind, and in the name of kindness a hospital rule may well be broken, so one of the twins was brought to her and she held it a moment. Then it was taken away.

At the end of her convalescence she went back to her home and she did not know, and through the years she did not know, whether, at the price of her sacrifice, her babies had lived, or whether, in spite of her sacrifice, they had died. Sometimes the yearning to know was greater than she could bear and she went to the officials and inquired but they evaded her questions, as kindly as they could, for it was better that she should not know.

When Margaret Was Born

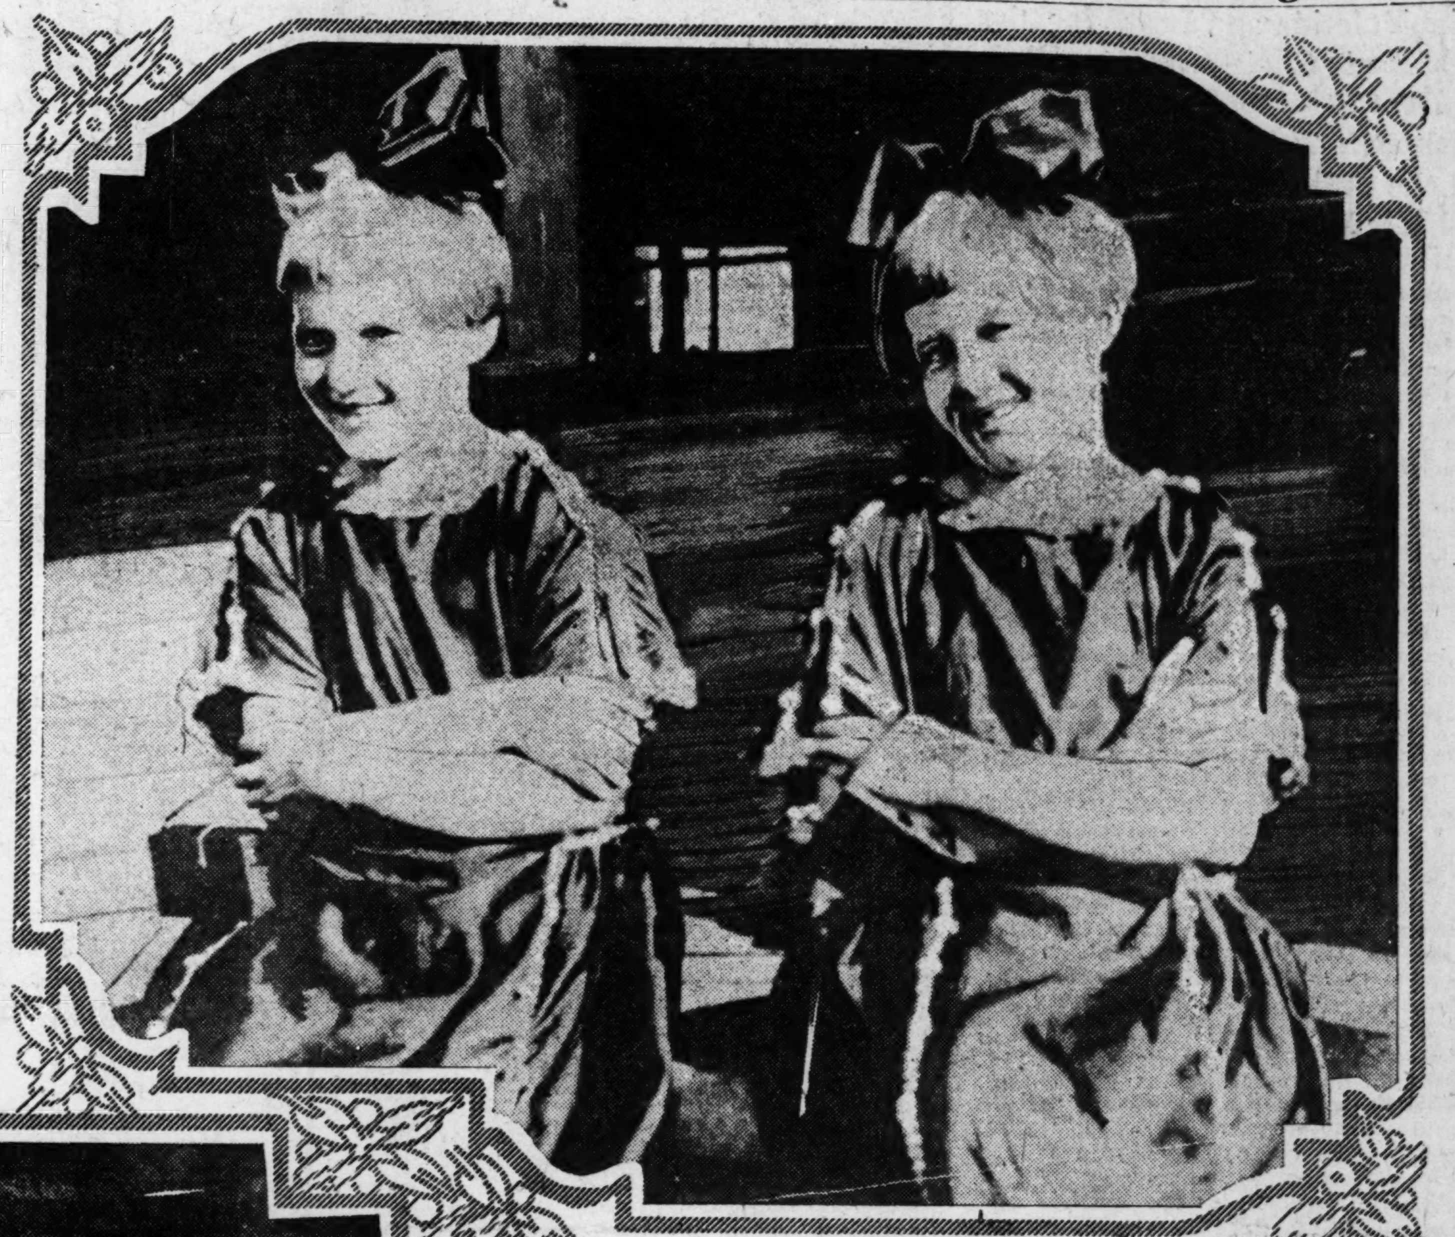
There are women to whom motherhood is denied and one of these was Mrs. Paul Dick, wife of the proprietor of a transfer business in Muskegon. So great was her desire for a child that she simulated a condition that did not exist. She deceived her husband and her neighbors.

When it seemed that her time had about come she went to the hospital. The hospital records show that she was even taken to a room set apart for that purpose. Dick says now that the doctor who attended his wife would not permit him in the room. An hour after he had been sent away the doctor called him. "It's a girl," he said. Dick rushed to his wife's room. The baby was there, but such a wee baby, barely five pounds. But the doctor said it had a chance to pull through, even though it was so small, and he was as proud and happy as if it had been a big boy.

For weeks it was a struggle to save the child's life, but gradually it gained and after a few months it was as lusty and well-favored as babies that had had a better start.

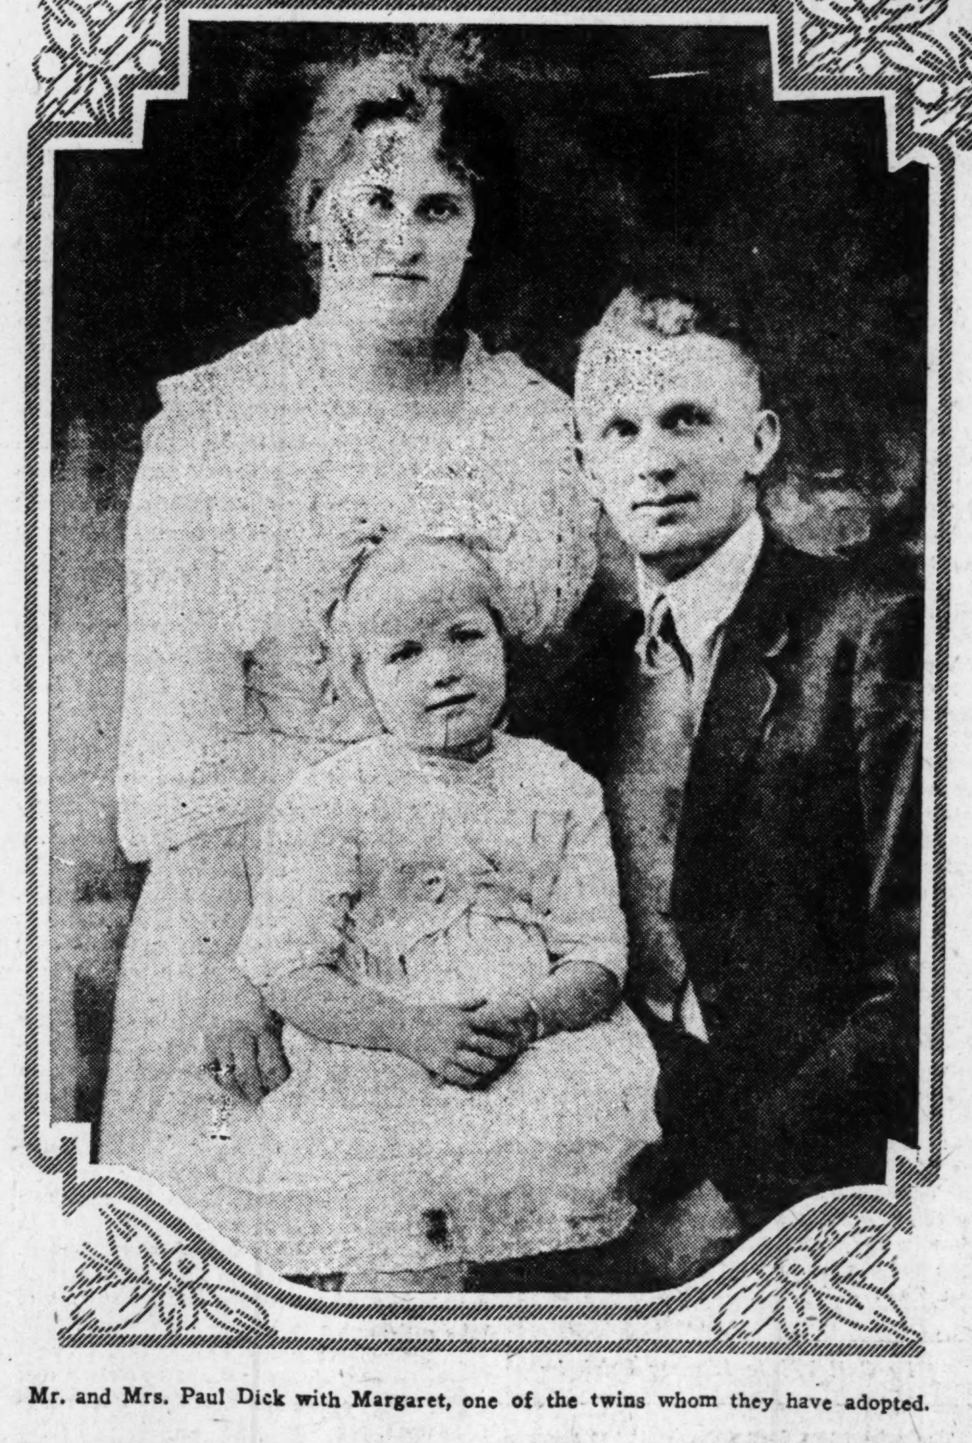
Another "Margaret" Is Found

Now it was summer again and Margaret, as they had named her, was 3 years old, and sometimes Mrs. Dick took her to play in Michigan Lake Park. But the day that Miss Tena Dick, sister of Paul Dick, went walking in the park, and saw playing in the sand a child she recognized as her niece, she was surprised, for Mrs. Dick was nowhere to be seen.



MARGARET AND MARJORIE DICK

The sisters, separated since birth, who have been reunited and will be reared by the Dicks as their daughters.



Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dick with Margaret, one of the twins whom they have adopted.

"Why, there's Margaret," she exclaimed to another sister, who accompanied her.

"So it is," said her sister, and they hurried to where the child was playing.

"Hello, Margaret," they called, but the child at play paid no heed to them.

"They came close to her and compelled her to take notice of them, but there was no recognition in the calm, inquiring eyes she turned upon them.

"Why, Margaret," cried Miss Dick, "don't you know me? I'm Aunt Tena."

The child gave her a skeptical look. This person might be somebody's Aunt Tena, but what of it! Anyway, her name was Harriette. She bored her heel in the sand and gave the intruders to understand that she would be glad if they would be on their way.

"Where's your mamma?" demanded Miss Dick, and the child nodded toward a woman who just then hurried up and caught the child in her arms and was making off with her. Miss Dick, noting by this time that the child was not dressed as Margaret would be for an outing in the park, begged the woman to stop and explained that she had been misled by a remarkable resemblance of the child to her niece.

The woman had feared that Miss Dick was the mother of Harriette. It was a fear that had always possessed her since, in the summer of 1913, she had gone to Hackley Hospital seeking a child to adopt and had received into her arms a tiny, fragile infant which she was told she might keep.

The Twins Brought Together

They were discreet at the hospital and they did not tell her anything except that the parents of the child had surrendered all their rights to it and would never cause any trouble, but always, when she took Harriette to play in the park or to walk on the streets, even when she put her to bed and listened to her lisping, "Now I lay me down to sleep," she feared that some day Harriette's real mother would come for her.

She was Mrs. Thomas Rideout, she explained, when Miss Dick had reassured her. Harriette, she admitted, had been adopted three years before at Hackley Hospital. It was odd that Margaret was born three years ago, and at Hackley Hospital. And the resemblance was remarkable. Wouldn't Mrs. Rideout like to see their Margaret, who was the same age and looked so much like Harriette?

Mrs. Rideout was apprehensive and reluctant but she said all right, and Miss Dick took her and Harriette to her brother's home. And so the twins that had been parted at birth were brought together, for there could be no mistaking the fact that they were twins, perfect duplicates, each of the other, hardly to be identified except by the differences in the clothing that they wore.

Struggle for Possession

For the two foster mothers it was a situation full of distress, but in different ways. For Mrs. Dick, whose husband and neighbors believed she had given birth to Margaret, there was the difficulty of carrying on with the deception. For Mrs. Rideout there was the danger that she would lose Harriette to the Dicks, who might be expected to assert a prior right.

As for Paul Dick, the conclusion he jumped to was that when Margaret was born to Mrs. Dick, Harriette also was born, but was stolen by somebody and given to Mrs. Rideout.

In the belief that Harriette was his child, Dick tried to get her, but all the proof he had was the remarkable resemblance between Margaret and Harriette. The Rideouts, on the other hand, claimed to have adoption papers and Mrs. Rideout was so devoted to the child that she would not give her up unless compelled to and lawyers advised Dick that it would be difficult to establish his claim in court.

So it dragged along for four years, Mrs. Rideout clinging to the child and Dick gently but firmly pressing for its possession and getting together such proof as he could that would help establish his claim if the dispute went to court. He could not get over it that for the several years he had been going up and down the streets of Muskegon, and Margaret's sister was there all the time and he never saw her and did not know that she was there. He had been born and raised in the town and thought he knew nearly everybody in it and his business took him sooner or later to most of the houses, but strangely he had never been called to the grocery or home of Thomas Rideout in Muskegon Heights.

Margaret and Marjorie Now

After he knew that Margaret's sister was there, he went often to the neighborhood, even if he had no business there, and drove past and tried to get a glimpse of the child. And sometimes he stopped and talked it over with Mrs. Rideout. Always she pleaded her love for the child and begged to be permitted to keep it. By and by it was borne in upon her mind, which was beginning to weaken, that ultimately she would have to surrender the little girl, and when Dick went to see her or she met him on the street she would pluck at his sleeve and say, "Oh, please don't take my little Harriette away today."

With her husband, however, it was not so much a matter of affection for the child as a disposition to insist upon being reimbursed for what she had cost him. Dick says Rideout offered to surrender the child for $2000 and came down to $500, but before any agreement was reached the Rideouts were divorced. Mrs. Rideout, probably partly because of worry over the threatened loss of the child, became demented and was sent to a sanitarium. Rideout married again and surrendered the child and moved to Detroit. And so, at 7 years of age, the twins who had been separated at birth, were reunited as Margaret and Marjorie, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dick.

For four years the Dicks continued to live in Muskegon. The twins, dressed alike and looking so much alike that they could not be distinguished, were familiar to many as they came and went. They were known as the Dick twins and nobody doubted that they were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dick, for the story of their separation at birth and being brought together at the age of 3 and reunited at the age of 7 had never been published because there were no proceedings to call public attention to the controversy which had lasted four years between the Dicks and the Rideouts.

It was not until Dick, recently, after suffering losses on investments, turned over his transfer business to a brother and took his wife and the twins to Omaha, that the strange story became known there and caused an investigation here which disclosed that neither of the girls belongs to the Dicks because both belong to a mother who gave them away at birth, for their good.

At least that is the story of Dr. Alfred Brocke, who attended Mrs. Dick when she was presumed to have given birth to a child, or twins, in 1913, but who, the doctor says, gave birth to neither. And there is a record of the birth of twins to the young mother who gave them away.

Mrs. Dick, he says, yearned for a child and consulted him about it and he assented to her suggestions so far as making arrangements for her to enter the hospital, but when she made known her wishes there the hospital authorities told her it would not be possible to mislead her husband. As for supplying her with a child, that could be arranged. There was one in the hospital then which the mother was willing to give away. The transfer was made and Mrs. Dick, after remaining at the hospital a few days "to fool the neighbors," went home, taking the baby with her.

She Fooled the Neighbors

Whether in fooling the neighbors she also fooled her husband is a matter of dispute between the doctor and her husband. The doctor says the husband was informed. The husband says he was not and that not until now has he known that Margaret and Marjorie are not his daughters.

Not that it makes any difference so far as the future of the twins is concerned, for Dick and his wife are so devoted to them that their only anxiety is that the disclosures might raise a question of their right to keep them. But they need have given themselves no uneasiness on that score. Their mother will not try to repossess them.

All the 11 years that Margaret and Harriette, or Marjorie, as the Dicks renamed her, were growing from babyhood to childhood, here in Muskegon, their mother was living here, too. For 11 years, while the mother wondered if they had lived and, if so, where they were, and yearned to see them, they were within a few blocks of her. Poverty continued to be her lot but early misfortunes were overcome and, with the protection of a husband who worked hard for her and gave her a home, she was as happy as a mother could be who had given away her twins in order that they might have a better chance to live.

Other children came, until there were five. These she kept and they are with her in the cottage which the husband and father has built for them in a humble neighborhood beyond the city limits.

To her there, after 11 years of wishing and waiting, the knowledge that her twins live and have a good home has brought a peace and satisfaction that she could not know before.

She was busy yesterday with her household tasks, while the younger children played with the toys that remained from Christmas. There was regret mixed with her satisfaction, for the twins that had been near for 11 years were now far away. But some day, maybe, they would come back. If they did she would never disturb them. They could go on to the end believing Mrs. Dick to be their mother, loving her as their mother and living on and on in their good home, better than their own mother could have given them.

But some time, she hopes, at the end of a day, she may come softly to the window of that other home and look through the window and see them. Not to be seen by them. Just to see them. And then go away, out of their lives, forever.

TEN MONTHS IN THE DEATH HOUSE

Mrs. Buzzi Tells How the Condemned Men of Sing Sing Comforted Her When Her Mother Died

Grief and Despair Overwhelmed Doomed Woman at Loss of Parent and Refusal of Authorities to Allow Her to Attend Funeral—Then Followed Nights of Terror When She Would Awaken Screaming in Fear at the Ever-Shadowing Thought That the Court of Appeals Would Deny Her Plea for a New Trial—She Decorated Her Cell With Christmas Trappings in the Yuletide and Lost, for the Time, the Specter of the Electric Chair—Stricken With Appendicitis While in the Death House, She Refused to Undergo an Operation Although Told She Would Die and Given the Last Rites of the Catholic Church—Court's Decision Finally Released Her From Her Long Ordeal.

MRS. ANNA BUZZI spent 10 months in the Death House of Sing Sing Prison—from July 20, 1923, to June 5, 1924—following her conviction in the murder of Frederick Schneider, New York contractor. She and Schneider had deserted their respective mates to establish a love nest. The testimony appears to have been that Schneider tired of her and she killed him, but she has declared her innocence.

During the long months in the Death House, Mrs. Buzzi daily expected her execution, originally set for Aug. 6, 1923, but prevented by successive stays until last summer, when the Court of Appeals reversed her sentence and ordered a new trial. She was removed to the Bronx County Jail, where she set about preparing the story of her experiences in the Death House.

The Post-Dispatch herewith presents the final installment of Mrs. Buzzi's own story, dictated by her and corrected by her after it was written.

By MRS. ANNA BUZZI.

IT was Christmas time at home. My mother, though she was sick and was never to be up and about again, was being made happy by Ruthie and Evelyn, her grandchildren. But for many years I had been the one who made most of the Christmas preparations for the whole family—and I was in the Death House of Sing Sing Prison. I was the one woman prisoner of a community of more than 2000 men, who were being punished for not loving their fellow men enough to avoid doing evil—or at least the appearance of evil. I was under the roof with 14 men condemned to die as I was condemned to die. It was hard for all of us to keep from sorrowful sympathy with our lot instead of filling our minds and hearts with the real Christmas spirit. Yet the real Christmas was all about us. Everything which could be done by everybody connected with the prison (who was not a prisoner—and some who are prisoners) had a part in giving us some of the glow and the beauty for which we longed.

My diary for Christmas eve was jotted down through the day. The notes are written in broken sentences, just memoranda. The entry for Dec. 21, a year ago, begins:

> Day before Christmas. Lonesome and blue. I can't help it. The Mutual Welfare League men are decorating their office, I hear. I am glad they let them do that. To hang up Christmas trimmings comes nearer to making Christmas seem real in a place like this than anything which can happen in the Death House. I wish they would take me over to the other side and let me pass the "boy's" cells, just saying a word to each one. I don't mean any "Merry Christmas" chatter; that, in spite of all the good will in the world, would have a touch of mocking hurt in it. But I think it might hearten them up. I know it would do me good to make them feel how truly I do wish I could help them, no matter how little.

A little later in the day came the surprises. If I had let myself be envious of the Mutual Welfare League men who were busy with putting up Christmas greens I was wrong. My envy gave place to regret that everybody could not have the chance which was given to me of "making believe Christmas." Mrs. Louise Many, the quickest of the matrons to feel sympathy and to show it freely, was on duty. When she asked me how I felt I told her what I had written. And here was my next entry:

> "Mrs. Many on duty—When I had tidied up my room she brought out from behind her desk eight big red paper bells; a dozen and a half packages of cut paper hangings—red and green. She had a trusty bring in a stepladder. I hung all the bells and streamers, draped them from corner to corner and then across. I started all the draping from the electric light dome in the center. Really, it is beautiful.
> Mrs. Many said: "My dear, we will not tell anybody about this; we will not ask anybody's permission. I know it is all right; and anyway, once we have done it nobody will scold us—not at Christmas time."

While we were at work I truly forgot, once in a while, where we were. At every mail a package of Christmas cards came. Some of them were from strangers; others were from men and women with whom I had become only slightly acquainted during my trial. Every one of them helped me feel less forlorn—but hardly less lonely and homesick.

Warden a Gentle and Lovable Man

Somebody told Warden Lawes, after the first time he was in the Death House following my arrival, that I didn't like him. It wasn't true. I do not know out of what material other than malice the report was made, because that first visit was while I was vibrating between hysteria and stupidity in that first day I was in Sing Sing.

I suppose somebody asked me how I liked the Warden and I shrugged my shoulders. That would have been enough.

But though I know the tale was carried to the Warden of my having said I didn't like him, there was never a trace of any feeling on his part that he resented what he had been told I said. He was always considerate, always kind; he never interpreted his official place in terms of the power he could exercise, if he chose, but always in terms of the good he could do.

Every business, every work gang, every hotel, every school and every team in outdoor sports takes its character from the man who has the highest authority in the organization. Any person who went through 10 months as a prisoner under the Sing Sing organization would have been hardened and ungrateful to say that Warden Lawes was not only a good man, but a kind, gentle and lovable man.

Not even in the army are soldiers so much the helpless creatures of the officers set over them as are the inmates of a prison. With ingenuity, bravery and a sense of injured justice a soldier may win past the most indifferent and brutal officer to higher authority and bring on an inspection and an investigation. A convict's complaint is the complaint of a convicted criminal. That about indicates the chance a convict, with a just grievance, has of being heard with an open mind.

Though I was not guilty of murder, I was a convicted murderess when I went under the charge of Warden Lawes. Moreover, as I have frankly confessed in this story, many of my complaints were trivial, childish, and were due to my fright and despondency.

I sometimes doubt if I would have gone as far as Warden Lawes went in permitting his subordinates, if he did not order them to do so, to save me from all suffering and unhappiness which could be spared. Not like Warden Lawes? The best I could ask for all my unhappy comrades of all the prisons in the United States is that they might have over the prisons in which they live men like Mr. Lawes.

The Warden's executive officer is the Principal Keeper. The P. K.'s duty is to see that the Warden's policies are carried out so far as the individuals in the prison are concerned. The Principal Keeper—if he is an able, conscientious and proper-hearted man—knows every man and woman in a prison, inside and outside. He knows what each prisoner really has in his mind and heart; he knows what each prisoner would like to be; he knows what each prisoner is merely pretending to be and—if he is a really great P. K.—he knows how to make each prisoner want to be his best self.

A Fear Realized

Always in the Death House I was under the strain of fright and horror of the doom which had been pronounced upon me by Justice O'Malley after my first trial, with its record of testimony which was illegally put before the jurors (as the Court of Appeals afterward decided). In spite of the bars and the prison walls and being cut off from all free people except the prison officials and workers, I had been able to fight a good fight against the impulse to be drawn down into despondency, melancholia and despair.

There was one sorrow which I could not fight off. My mother was critically ill at her home in the Bronx. To think of her at all was to bring a rush of grief which brought tears and made me tremble.

I knew that Father Cashin, the prison chaplain, would bring to me at once anything which could give me hope for mother. My diary, toward the beginning of March, when mother began her last decline, is an example of the intuitive telepathic sense which I have learned comes to prisoners and of which I have told before. There had been no hint from any outside source of impending disaster. But a sense of something unhappy was all about me. I could not shake it off. I am very glad now that I have the consolation of one sheet to prove to myself and all the world that I was not indifferent and cold toward mother.

Mrs. Buzzi and Frederick Schneider, the man for whose murder she was sentenced to die. The photograph was taken before an apartment house were Schneider lived with Mrs. Buzzi as his housekeeper.

> March 14, 1924—Father Cashin at 2:30 p. m. I told him there is something very hard for me close at hand. I don't know what it is. My nerves are on edge; are driving me mad.
> March 15—I cannot shake off the blues. My heart is cold in me; I feel as though it were going to freeze and break. I wish I could get some news from home. I really believe I am going mad. If I only knew what it is that is going to happen. Anything would be better than this sense of certainty about something of which I can find out nothing. It would be easier if I could only know it was coming from some other place than home.
> Later—Telephone message from home through prison office. "Your mother is very ill." Oh, I knew it was that—I knew it! At least now that I know I can pray—for her recovery or that she may go to sleep happily.
> March 16—Attended mass. All my communion prayer was for dear mother. Sister Vera came to see me at 1:30. Mother wanted her to be with me today. Mother understands. It all looks as bad as it can be; there is nothing but heartbreak in Vera's news. The doctors do not give one ray of hope. Oh, God, take me and spare mother! I cannot stand up or sit. I kept up until Vera left. I cannot even pull myself together by trying to write.
> March 17—I am pretty nearly exhausted. There was no sleep last night. At 5:30 p. m. there was a telephone message from home. Mother is very near the end. If I could only take her place; God be merciful! If she must be taken, let her die happy—knowing the truth about her Anne. I know she does. I can hear her calling me, telling me. Father Cashin and the doctor are here; they are coming in to see me.
> March 18.—Hysterical. They told me I was distressing others in the building. I am sorry. Dr. Schafmeister gave me something to make me sleep. I slept for an hour or two at a time; but I am very stupid; my thoughts do not seem to stay with me. I began thinking about today, and I am recalling things which happened years ago—or dreaming of things as they ought to be—back and forth, back and forth—without my having anything to say about it. I have hurt her so much and so many times. But she has only loved me and forgiven me the more.

I just remember that in that daze out of which I write the March 18 passage a note came to me from Mr. McInerney. She was gone! He had sent for Father Cashin, who came very soon afterward and stayed with me a long time. Father Cashin helped me very much. He made me understand something of the peace that mother must know.

I was conscious of only one desire. Perhaps I had another opiate, given to me without my knowing it. Father Cashin constantly came to see me. To him and to the others who came down to show me their sympathy I had but one plea. It was that I should be allowed to go to my mother's funeral. Even though they put me in chains, with a guard on either side, it seemed to me that they might let me be there. I do not think that there was any authority to which Father Cashin did not make an appeal for me or help my lawyer, Mr. Donnelly made a plea. But it could not be. I was in the Death House when my mother's body was taken to the grave.

There has been written much praise of Father Cashin and his work; he is now in Manhattan as successor of Father Evers, rector of St. Andrews Church and chaplain in the Tombs. His period of influence over each unfortunate there will be shorter, but he will come in touch with many more troubled souls than there were in bondage to their sins in Sing Sing.

In Cell While Mother Buried

The prison law does not permit the absence of a prisoner from the Death House on any except business for the State. Prisoners have, I believe, been taken from the Death House to testify in court under an order showing that the testimony was vital. I did not know of this rule. I could not believe that I was not to be allowed to go to my mother's funeral.

I have before me the letter I received from my lawyer, former Sheriff James F. Donnelly of Donnelly & Flynn, in which he broke this news to me. I had sent him a request through Father Cashin, the chaplain, asking him to intercede for me with Gov. Smith. Before receiving my request Mr. Donnelly had asked Warden Lawes and the Superintendent of Prisons without avail.

Gov. Smith, when the request of Mr. Donnelly reached him, called up the law office from Albany and said that an examination of the statutes showed it was absolutely impossible to permit me to leave the prison; there is a section, 122 A, in the Prison Law which definitely forbids it.

"I also have examined section 122 A of the Prison Law," Mr. Donnelly wrote, "and find that even the Governor is without power to grant such a request in your case."

Father Cashin did not rest in his effort to get me some comfort. To every one of the Catholic men under his care in the Death House he wrote this note:

"On Sunday I will offer Holy Mass for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Buzzi's mother; I assume that each one of you desires to express his sympathy for Mrs. Buzzi in some practical way.

"May I ask that all the Catholic men receive Holy Communion for Mrs. Buzzi's mother?

"Sincerely yours,
"W. E. CASHIN, Chaplain."

When Father Cashin celebrated mass in the Death House he officiated in the corridor, where he could be heard and seen from the cells of the men. When I joined in the mass, as I did at every opportunity, the matron conducted me to a place where I could see and hear the priest without being visible to the men, and where I could not see them.

The response of the "boys" to Father Cashin's suggestion took a form which touched me to the bottom of my troubled heart. It was a note written after a consultation between them along the tiers of cages. Reuben Nordkin was selected to write the note. I have it before me. It is in his round, clear hand that the words are written on the long ruled sheet furnished the prisoners in all parts of the institution for their outside letters, and reads as follows:

Consolation From the Doomed

Dear Mrs. Anna Buzzi:

News was conveyed to us of the sad departure of your dear and beloved mother. It sure filled our hearts with inexpressible sorrow.

We desire to extend to you and yours our profound sympathy at your unhappy bereavement.

Our fervent prayers are that the solace of the unfortunate will visit you and those dear to you.

Believe us to be,
Very sincerely,
THE CONDEMNED MEN.

Refuses to Undergo Operation

The death of my mother last March broke my fighting spirit. For a time it did not seem to matter what happened to me. I was indifferent about my appeal; I had not realized until mother was gone how much of my desire for freedom was due to my longing to return to her to let her see herself justified before all the world in her faith that I was innocent and would not be punished for the deed I had not done. I wanted to see the joy of that knowledge in her face.

It no longer seemed worth while to keep myself in physical and mental condition to the proper pitch for a new trial. I did not seem to care whether I had a new trial or not or what came of it. My sister, Vera, was in constant danger of a heart seizure which might end her life. My sister, Sophie—Mrs. Rickey—was in a hospital for a major operation.

Two weeks after my mother's death I woke at 1:30 o'clock in the night in frightful pain. I tried to keep from making any sound, but Mrs. Many heard me moaning and came over to my cell to me. I did not tell her how badly I felt. I wanted to be left alone. But at 6 o'clock she telephoned to Dr. Squires. He told her to continue making hot-water applications, and within an hour he was in the death house. He said he was satisfied I had appendicitis.

Dr. Schafmeister came at 8 o'clock and confirmed the opinion of Dr. Squires. They said I must be operated upon at once, but explained I would have to consent to an operation in writing. I said I would do nothing of the sort. I was a little light-headed from fever, and in my black mood I was just spiteful enough to take satisfaction in having them worry.

In their effort to convince me they brought Dr. Sweet of Ossining to me at 10 o'clock that night. They asked him to tell me what ought to be done.

Dr. Sweet said impressively that every moment of delay meant an increase of the risk of my life. He was not able to promise, he said, that I could possibly survive if I did not indicate that I would give my consent for an immediate operation. I shook my head and turned away from him on my pillow.

To a certain extent I was afraid of an operation. There was a lot of talk through the prison about the death rate following major operations in the prison hospital. I know now it was not justified, altogether, except that the factor of confidence and determination is apt to be smaller among prisoners than among patients who have more to live for. I would not have shrunk from an operation in one of our city hospitals. But I found in myself a disposition to say that I would rather take slim chances than be operated upon in prison.

But more than any other consideration my inability to interest myself in life or death. Perhaps, I said to myself, a merciful heaven is taking this way of saving me from the electric chair.

Father Cashin came to me. He had talked with the surgeons. For once I refused to follow his guidance. He would not accept my refusal. He came back to me repeatedly for three days, while I was constantly sinking. The third day he talked to me steadily, as though I had been a disobedient little child, for nearly an hour. But as they grew more persuasive I grew more obstinate.

"No," I said. "I will go on no operating table in this prison."

Is Given Last Rites

The father went away and came back and said that the Warden had already cleared the isolation ward in the prison hospital—of course, there was no women's ward there—and had arranged for two graduate nurses to be with me constantly, and would call a specialist from New York City for the operation.

"No," I said. "Those things do not make any difference. If I am to die, I shall die now and I shall not try to escape what God offers me."

"Then," said Father Cashin, gently, "you must prepare for me to give you the last rites of the church at once. I have come prepared."

My head went right up on my pillow. It was the first time I had really been awake to my situation.

"Is it really as bad as all that?" I asked him.

"Yes," he said, "it is every bit as bad as all that. I feel now that I have been remiss in not doing it before. I thank God there is yet time."

He heard my confession and gave me absolution and anointed me. But daylight next day found me still alive. I had been strengthened in my will to live. With this turn for the better they did not insist any longer on an operation, perhaps because they felt it might excite me and reawaken the subsiding fever.

Weeks of Terror and Suspense

My appeal for a new trial was argued before the Court of Appeals by Mr. Donnelly, my attorney, after two adjournments, April 2. The point on which Mr. Donnelly based his first argument was significant. It was that my brother-in-law, William Turk, testified "by hearsay that he had repeatedly tried to reach me by telephone on the day of Fred Schneider's death and was unable to get me." Turk was allowed to say that I did not answer the telephone. The only person who could have given that testimony was the telephone girl at the exchange. Willie Turk could have had only the operator's word that I did not answer, or that she was ringing the bell in my apartment and not in some other apartment.

There were 18 other points on which Mr. Donnelly asserted there had been errors in my trial, including the admission of testimony smirching my family and acquaintances with scandal which had nothing whatever to do with Fred Schneider's death, and also creating sympathy for Mrs. Minnie Schneider as against me because Fred's death left her without means for her support. But the one point about the telephone girl seemed to me so strong and clear that I relied upon that claim alone to win a new trial for me.

Mr. Donnelly sent the printed brief of his argument to me. It is a book of 316 pages. I do not think any other book which came to me in the death house ever held me so closely. In the nine long weeks which passed before the court reached a decision I went over it again and again, fortifying myself in my faith that a new trial would be granted.

I shall never forget June 3. Father Cashin had paid his usual daily call and I had gone about my routine for the morning. I had had my lunch and was sewing. I heard the familiar clank at the door of the Death House. I knew by the soft step that it was Father Cashin.

He was at my side in a moment, and extended his hand to me. He was almost overcome with emotion as he tried to speak. He struggled for a moment and then managed to utter "A new chance!"

It was a moment or two before I got the full import of his message. I fainted. When I came to he had recovered his composure and told me in detail the glad tidings of the findings of the Court of Appeals.

I spent seven days in the Death House after I got that joyful message. They seemed to fly by like seven minutes, in comparison to the nine weeks during which I waited for the decision.

My complete vindication came in the new trial, granted by the Court of Appeals, when the jury last Dec. 6 returned a verdict of "not guilty" and erased from my mind the shadow of the electric chair that never left me during the long months of lonely horror at Sing Sing.

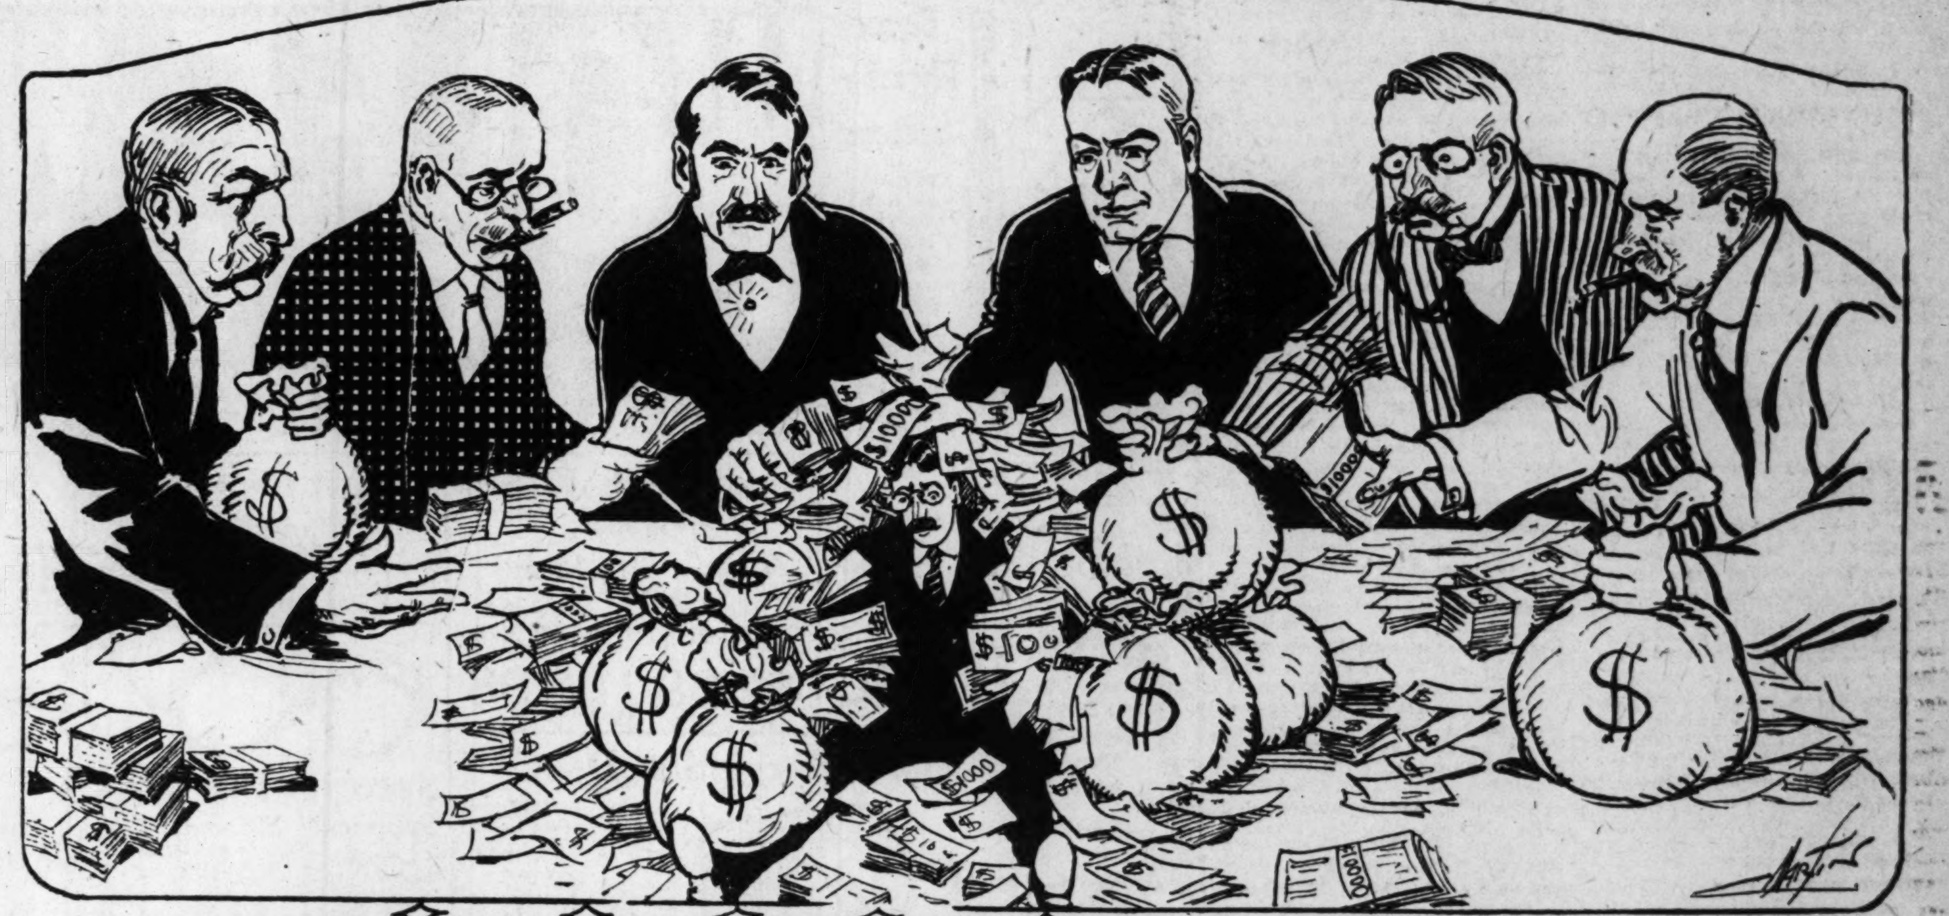
HOW BOSTON BANKERS PLANNED TO TAKE MANUFACTURER'S FORTUNE

$10,500,000 Award to George F. Willett Sustains His Charge of Conspiracy to Wrest Holdings From Him

Money Lenders Forced Manufacturer to Make a Larger Loan Than He Needed and Then Took Properties by Foreclosure—He Was Compelled to Agree to Pay Back $1,227,000 for One $500,000 Loan—Verdict May Be a Revolutionizing Precedent in Business Banking and Set the Dictum That "Bankers Who Club Together to Make Loans Are Guilty of Conspiracy if They Foreclose."



Willett only needed $300,000, but the bankers told him they wouldn't make a loan for less than a million. They figuratively hurled money at him until he was enmeshed deeper and deeper in the toils. Then they foreclosed.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 17.

A VERICT for $10,534,109.07 damages—the largest damage claim ever adjudicated in Massachusetts—was rendered by a jury here recently in favor of George F. Willett against a group of Eastern bankers.

Trial of the case disclosed the most amazing coalition on the part of these money-lenders through which they were unable to squeeze Willett out of the American Felt Co. and the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Co. by forcing him to make a larger loan than he needed and foreclosing at his default.

Willett came into court with an unprecedented plea for redress of his grievances, namely that the bankers had conspired together to gain control of the Willett holdings and that therefore he deserved damages to the full value of the properties wrested from him by the conspiracy.

Among the startling disclosures made was that under one loan agreement Willett was asked to pay back $1,227,000 for a $500,000 loan. It was shown also that there appeared to have been an agreement between the group of bankers not to lend Willett any sum which he could surely repay, but to insist that the loan be large enough to seriously endanger his companies. Further, it was shown that although Willett's business was turning over profits the bankers caught him in a pinch and refused to give him the extensions which he had a right to expect as a solvent and valued customer, the burden of proof being that the loans were made solely for the purpose of gobbling Willet's fortune.

A Significant Verdict

By its verdict the jury established what may be a revolutionizing precedent in business and banking. If the Supreme Court upholds the verdict it will be in effect pronouncing the dictum, "Bankers who club together to make loans are guilty of a conspiracy if they foreclose." However, this conclusion should not be taken and probably never will be taken as a fixed ruling. Willett's case was a most aggravated one in which it appeared all too clearly that the money lenders, who top the financial structure of New England, were guilty of sharp practice. Legitimate loans by syndicates of bankers in which all the rules of business courtesy are followed and there is no clear intent to "gobble" the debtor's fortune will not come under such a ruling.

Most business is done on credit in the United States. Hundreds of great concerns never handle any money at all except what is drawn for the payroll. Material and supplies are bought by check, and all income is received in the same way. The concern may do a business of millions of dollars annually, and at the end of each year have literally nothing to show for it but rows of figures on the statements of its several banks of deposit. More than that; if a concern wishes to pay what is still called "cash" for its purchases, and the row of figures available will not allow the subtraction of the figures which it wishes to write on its outgoing check, the concern—under conditions—may still write its check for more than it has.

How Business Runs on Credit

One favorite method of doing this is to write at the same time a note for the amount needed, and to send this over to a note broker. The note broker will send back his check for the amount of the note minus his commission, and will then sell the note to a bank. Before closing the deal, if the note is for a considerable amount, the bank is likely to write to its correspondent in the manufacturer's home city, the correspondent being also a bank. In effect the letter asks "Is this outfit good for this amount?"

The correspondent replies, giving briefly the credit standing of the concern, whereupon and on its correspondent's say-so, the purchasing bank accepts the note and sends its check to the bond broker.

What the correspondent bank has done is called "checking the paper" of the manufacturer. If it should refuse to "check the paper," the other bank would never dream of buying the note. In short, the credit of the manufacturer or merchant lies wholly in the hands of his banks. This would be serious enough if only one note were offered, but again, many large concerns have a steady stream of outgoing notes and checks that never ceases. Their business is done on credit.

All this explanation is made to hint at the far-reaching and deep-going effect on American business which the Willett verdict may have. It will, if the banks are logical about it, have the effect of curtailing credit very greatly. And while this might not be a bad thing for American business as a whole, it would be extremely tough on the individual

Bankers have rules, rules imposed on them by the laws and rules of their own making. shoe-string speculator may believe he has a good tip on the market; he wants to buy Chewing Gum common at 35, and has enough money of his own to pay five for it. He goes to his bank and asks it to loan 30 on the stock. His bankers are extremely likely to tell him "I don't know that I ought to lend you more than four times your current balance."

If a manufacturer goes for a loan, the banker will say "All right, if your quick assets are more than twice your total liabilities." Behind that rule lies the sinister hint that if the loan should not be paid, the bank might take over the man's business, and wants to be sure that the business is worth it.

The Willett Case

If the loan is very large, so that no one bank can handle it—well, that is the story of the Willett case.

It was a great case, and may easily prove to be the most important one in the history of the civil courts of this country, affecting as it does the very structure of business and the prosperity of millions of people. Bankers are declaring that no more "sick businesses" will be rescued, with any such result; if this were literally adhered to, the next year would hear failures popping all over the country. The facts in the Willett case appear as follows:

George F. Willett was a Boston boy, for all Boston boys are born in outlying towns. He attended Boston university—of which he later became a trustee—and showed a remarkable business aptitude. Men still say he can make figures do more tricks than any other known bookkeeper.

After college he went to work in a bank for a few months—and later became a director in banks. Next he jumped into the wool business, Boston being one of the great wool markets of the world. He went to work for Winslow Brothers and Smith, later marrying the daughter of Mr. Winslow.

In wool, there is a specialty, the short staple used for making felt. At the beginning of the century the American Felt Co. had four or five plants, some of them not in the best of condition. It had also in its treasury the capital stock of the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Co., which was largely a family affair, and in which some of the Green family are still occupied.

Willett had by 1908 established a side line for his wool business, called the Eastern Leather Co. He sold this out, and sold out his wool business. He has said himself that he had made $1,000,000 by the time he was 30 years old.

Willett Bores With Big Auger

He took on a partner named Edmund H. Sears, a man young but already progressing fast in the financial world. He also became a bank director later on.

Willett, aggressive—many people now say arrogant—able in organization, restless, went to work to increase the efficiency of the felt company. Some of the mills were almost rebuilt; antiquated machinery was replaced by up-to-date machinery, and the personnel was worked over.

Presently he organized a company to do all the buying for the two companies, and called it the Importers' Co. Then he started another—the Doremus Co.—to do all the selling. Next he got up an Industrial Service and Equipment Co. to do all the laboratory work, all the engineering work, and intended to do later all the bookkeeping, for the combination.

Next, he began to buy machinery companies, the Woonsocket Machine and Press Co. and the United Printing Machinery Co. were two, and the old Ames Plow Co., with its Framingham foundries. This company, as a manufacturer of agricultural implements, had made the fortune of one of the well known families of New England.

A Bad Purchase

Willett formed housing associations to help handle the living problem for his employes; he instituted stock bonuses; there seemed no end to his expansion. He bought the old Roxbury Carpet Co., with its subsidiary the Boston Belting Co. This purchase was the cause of a tremendous amount of criticism, but within the last few days it has developed that it was not such a bad purchase. The Boston Belting Co.—which is the only one of his former companies which Willett now owns—had a claim against the City of Boston on an old contract to furnish the concern with water, which Willett finally settled for $300,000 in cash.

In the spring of 1918, Willett was in Washington, working on the reorganization of the quartermaster's department for the Secretary of War. Sears was attending to their affairs, and a number of people had begun to view Willett as a serious menace to the financial community on account of what they called his reckless expansion.

The truth seems to be that Willett was not interested in a prosperous, orderly company. He liked to acquire a company which would work into his combination, reorganize it and set it running. Then he lost interest in it and went after another one.

The Bankers Interfere

According to the story told by the plaintiffs, the story which seemed to be believed by the jury, interference in Willett's affairs began as early as December, 1917, when the president and vice president of the First National bank, Daniel G. Wing and C. H. Dwinnell, came to the Willett-Sears office to talk with Mr. Sears about the condition of the companies subsidiary to the American Felt Co. and the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Co. Mr. Sears promised to have a statement of their condition drawn up by the accountants.

The annual statement of the American Felt Co. was delayed that winter; as a matter of fact it was not sent out to the banks until May 22. Long before that time, Mr. Wing had learned enough of the condition of the companies to alarm him. He sent for Mr. Sears, and Mr. Dwinnell told him that if the statement were as bad as the advance sheets of it showed, no honest bank could check their paper. He suggested that they see their note broker, who was Sewall H. Fessenden of the great firm of F. S. Moseley & Co.

About this time Mr. Willett came home. He saw Mr. Fessenden, who remarked that the First National was not uttering any loud cheers for the Willett-Sears concerns, and suggested that Mr. Willett see his banks of deposit.

By this time the nature of the banks' complaint was known; the Felt Co. and the Green Co. were not keeping up the "two-to-one ratio" between their quick assets and their liabilities. They showed themselves solvent, but too much of their capital was tied up in plants and in other things not readily turned into cash. It seemed to be a time when some more cash must be put into the treasuries.

A Need for More Cash

Willett started on a tour of his banks of deposit in Boston, calling first on Philip Stockton of the Old Colony Trust Co., and asking to have his line of credit extended by $100,000. Just what Mr. Stockton said in reply was told in different ways by Stockton and Willett.

Willett went next to the National Shawmut bank, and asked its president, Alfred L. Aiken, for a $100,000 additional credit. Mr. Aiken said he would have to know more of the facts before he granted it, and after Willett had gone made a note of what had been said in the interview. This note became important evidence during the trial.

The next port of call for Willett was the First National. It was part of the plaintiffs' claim that the First National people, to embarrass Willett, began at once to make out his position as more serious than it really was.

GEORGE F. WILLETT,
The New England manufacturer who was awarded $10,500,000 damages against the bankers who had loaned him money and attempted to squeeze him out of his holdings.

Mr. Dwinnell, vice president and credit man of the First, telephoned to Mr. Aiken, and Mr. Aiken telephoned to Mr. Stockton, and the three men held a meeting. Mr. Stockton said he had not promised Willett the extra $100,000 for which he had asked, though Willett had told Mr. Aiken that he had Mr. Stockton's promise.

How the Loan Was Made

The bankers decided that if Willett needed so much extra credit, his general situation would better be investigated. They called another meeting, asking Mr. Fessenden to come and tell about how much Willett, Sears & Co. had out in the way of commercial paper, and asking Mr. Wellington of the firm of accountants to come and tell what the financial situation really was in the Willett-Sears companies.

A third meeting was called; this time the presidents of the three banks named, and those of the Merchants' National and Webster & Atlas National were also present. By this time a plan of financing the Willett-Sears companies was developed. It was decided that the Felt Co. and the Green Co. were worth saving, and that they ought to be financed across the turn of their business year, their business being seasonal.

By this time the bankers were talking not in terms of immediate need, but in terms of totals. Mr. Sears was sent for, and was asked to find out and report what the total needs of the companies were. The plaintiffs, in their closing argument, called attention to the fact that they never asked for the loan which was proposed by the bankers.

Nevertheless, it was Mr. Sears' showing that the total needs of the two companies would be $2,992,000 that a $3,000,000 loan was determined upon by the bankers. To the protests of Willet and Sears, Mr. Fessenden answered that they would better take what was offered them rather than come a second time asking for help.

Mr. Fessenden made a memorandum of the terms agreed upon by the bankers on June 27—for all these meetings took place between June 15 and June 27. That memorandum showed that the bankers were to loan "not more than $3,000,000;" that the loan was to run for six months, and to bear interest at 6 per cent on the amounts drawn. The whole $3,000,000 was not to be put into Willett, Sears & Co.'s hands in one lump, but was to be furnished as needed by the two companies. Besides the 6 per cent interest, there was to be paid 6 per cent on the entire $3,000,000 "for the commitment" which is the polite way in which bankers refer to a bonus. The $3,000,000 loan was to be a preferred debt, and all banks holding other notes of the companies were to defer payment of their notes until the loan had been paid.

The Bankers Gobble Stock

Finally, Willett, Sears & Co. were to turn over control of all their companies, if requested, to a committee to be appointed by the bankers, by giving a power of attorney. Also they were to put $500,000 into the treasury of the American Felt Co. to replace some of the slow assets there.

Time had elapsed; Willett, Sears & Co., with their credit shut off, could not do anything but accept these terms. But then it appeared that "control" meant stock control. The bankers said that the stock of the American Felt Co., or enough of it to control, must be put into their hands.

This brought out the real pinch in the situation. Twelve thousand shares of the stock were in the hands of the Chase National Bank of New York, as collateral for two notes of $200,000 each, and 2000 more were pledged with the Girard National Bank of Philadelphia on a note for $100,000. These were notes of Willett, Sears & Co., and not of the Felt company.

Worse than that, the first of the $200,000 notes was due on July 15. Willett urged the bankers to take it up, and add $500,000 to the loan; they refused. He asked Mr. Fessenden to have his firm take up the note. Mr. Fessenden refused, for his firm was already pledged to take $440,000 of the $3,000,000 loan.

The bankers had insisted that F. S. Moseley Co. take part of the loan on the ground that having sold Felt company paper all over the country it was up to them to help save the company from failing and to protect the note-holders. On the ground that the great Boston banking house of Kinder, Peabody & Co. had floated the issue of preferred stock of the Felt Co. this house was also drawn in for a contribution to the loan.

Another meeting of the bankers was held on July 3, and they telegraphed to Eugene V. R. Thayer, president of the Chase National bank, asking him to extend the $200,000 note coming due in 12 days, and to deposit with the Boston men the stock he held Mr. Thayer did not reply, but on July 8 came to Boston and flatly refused, in a meeting of bankers, to do these things. He said, however, that he wanted to help in the situation, offered to take "as much as anybody" in the loan, and to go on the committee of bankers. In this way, the stock would really be in possession of a bankers' committee, or of one member of it.

The defendants insisted that this meeting ended in a deadlock, the Boston men refusing to make the loan unless they got the stock, and Mr. Thayer refusing to deposit the stock. The plaintiffs argued that the Boston men agreed to go on with the loan under Mr. Thayer's conditions.

At any rate, Mr. Fessenden wrote on that same day to Mr. Thayer, setting forth the agreement that had been reached as to a loan and naming the committee. Mr. Thayer replied, accepting the terms.

Robert F. Herrick was general counsel for the First National bank, and an intimate associate of its president Daniel G Wing. Both knew all about the American Felt Co. and had at one time been interested in it. What they did then had made Willett afraid of them.

Mr. Herrick is a lawyer, and a well known graduate of Harvard college. He did the unusual thing of taking his law degree first, from Boston University. Then he entered Harvard, took up rowing, became the captain of a highly victorious crew, and after graduation, rowing coach. He was the real founder and the president of the Harvard club of Boston.

Mr. Herrick was engaged by the First National bank and the Old Colony Trust Co. to represent them in arranging the $3,000,000 loan to Willett's companies, and his office began to draw the contracts for the loan.

"The Den of Thieves"

Meanwhile, time was flying for Willett and Sears. The junior partner went to New York to see Thayer, and ask for extension of the note almost due; it was testified in the trial that Mr. Thayer offered to extend the note if Mr. Sears would give him an option on the 12,000 shares of stock at $5 a share! He telephoned back to his partner in Boston "I have fallen into a den of thieves. I am coming home."

It was also testified that the very next morning, one of Mr. Fessenden's partners already knew, in Boston, of the rough treatment Mr. Sears had received the day before in New York. This was adduced by the plaintiffs to show that what happened was not a series of isolated incidents, but were part of a campaign to frighten and dispirit Willett and Sears and make them sicker than they already were.

They did not know that the loan was arranged and agreed to; they believed that they must somehow raise $500,000 and take up the Chase bank's note. And they couldn't do it.

On a final appeal to Mr. Fessenden, he advised them to go to Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co. They did so, though it was already July 18, their note had become due and gone to protest, and they were facing actual bankruptcy.

Mr. Winsor thought he might arrange the loan, taking in F. S. Mosely & Co. and the Chase bank. Mr. Willett said "if you will only do it, you can have anything you want." Mr. Winsor wanted 5000 shares of the stock as his commission, and agreed to give Willett and Sears an option to repurchase it at any time within two years, at par. That is, he wanted $500,000 bonus for a $500,000 loan, plus 6 per cent interest. The desperate partners initialed Mr. Winsor's pencilled draft of the agreement.

A Fourth Member

Six days later Mr. Winsor told them he had changed his mind. He had had to take in a fourth member in the syndicate, he said, and this man insisted that the transaction must be not a loan but a purchase. They would buy 14,500 shares of American Felt stock, and 500 shares of Daniel Green, for $500,000, the money to be used to take up the notes in the Chase and Girard banks.

The option to repurchase held good, but there was a new condition; the new man must have his share of the bonus—but the other shares were not to be reduced; his was to be $167,000 just the same as theirs.

The new terms were therefore as follows: The syndicate was to buy the stock and pay the purchase price to the Chase bank and the Girard bank. If at any time within two years Willett & Sears wanted their stock back, they could have it by paying the original $500,000, a bonus of $500,000, an addition share of $167,000, and $60,000 that would have been interest if the transaction had been a loan—$1,227,000 in all!

One of the most amazing things in the whole transaction was that Willett and Sears even agreed to these terms.

Both the loan and the purchase were consummated on July 31, 1918. Willett and Sears resigned from all the offices they held in all their companies, though the resignations were in some cases not put into effect. The men simply voted as they were told to do, as directors.

The Boston bankers appointed Messrs. Herrick, Fessenden and Winsor a committee to handle the Willett-Sears companies. They in turn engaged Joseph O. Proctor Jr. to do the actual work of management, and set about liquidating all the subsidiary companies. In the course of this work, of course, there were great losses.

Willett and Sears Squirm.

Willett and Sears spent their time trying to arrange a reorganization of their affairs, but vainly. As the fall went on, troubles accrued. A lawsuit was instituted against them by a man with whom Willett had contracted to buy the Plymouth Rubber Co.

In December, Mr. Herrick bought from three Boston banks notes of the Norwood Housing Association and the United Printing Machinery Co., not himself appearing in the transaction. He got notes with a face value of $490,000 for something like $44,000, all indorsed by Willett or by Willett, Sears & Co.

Through that winter Mr. Fessenden repeatedly told Willett that he was afraid the loan had been a bad piece of business, and that his firm would lose what it had put in. The facts were that the Daniel Green Felt Shoe Co. paid off its entire share of the loan within the six months, and even anticipated some payments. The American Felt Co. reduced its debt on the loan so much that re-financing was easy. The two companies made $1,000,000 profit in 1919, and have made money at about that rate ever since.

In January new lawsuits were brought against Willett, Sears & Co. One was by the note-holders of the Woonsocket Machine and Press Co.; another was brought by Mr. Herrick, still under cover, against Willett & Sears as indorsers of the notes he had bought.

Willett almost collapsed mentally and nervously. He put his affairs into the hands of three assignees and went away to Pinehurst. His assignees offered, rather than have him go through bankruptcy, to sell his remaining assets for $125,000. The assets were nearly 4000 shares of Daniel Green stock, and the option to repurchase his American Felt; the $125,000 was used to settle with all his creditors.

The final transaction was put through on March 24, 1919. Willett was broke, eliminated from the companies just as the financiers had said he ought to be, removed from the financial world where they said he was a menace because of his reckless policies of expansion.

Willett's partnership with Sears had been dissolved, Willett assuming the liabilities and assets of the firm. Willett couldn't see, however, why he should one year be the owner of some 16 companies, at least two of which were "good earners," or "little gold mines," and the next year the owner of nothing, and with nothing in hand to show for them.

He sought out Charles E. Hughes, formerly Secretary of State. Mr. Hughes told Willett he had a fine case, and that he himself would take it but for the fact that he was already engaged. He recommended Sherman L. Whipple of Boston as the man to handle it and Mr. Whipple was engaged.

The great law firm of Gaston, Saltonstall & Snow took charge of the defense during the preparation for the trial, which preparation was begun in 1920.

During that preparation the character of the defense was clearly outlined. It would be that there was no conspiracy, that everything that had been done was for the sake of saving losses of millions of dollars and saving the two companies, saving their jobs for thousands of workmen and saving their investments for hundreds of innocent people who had been put in jeopardy by Willett.

The Courtroom Scene.

Mr. Whipple had all Willett, Sears & Co.'s papers for a start. He had also, of course, Willett's story of what had happened and Sears' story. He went directly to Mr. Snow of the defending law firm, and asked for all the papers of all the defendants which could in any way have a bearing on the case. Without the slightest hesitation Mr. Snow furnished copies or originals of all correspondence, telegrams, memoranda, contracts and even gave access to the books of the companies. The defendants had absolutely nothing to conceal.

The trial came in Dedham in the room in the Superior Court where two years earlier Nicola Sacco and Bortolomeo Vanzetti were convicted of murder in a case that has become world-famous.

It began Nov. 6, 1923, and ended Dec. 18, 1924, 408 days later. During this period the court sat, with or without the jury, 187 days. This made the trial the longest in the history of the United States, and excepting what is known as the "second Tichborne case," the perjury trial growing out of the original Tichborne case, the longest trial on record anywhere.

The actual work of the trial did not begin until Nov. 8, 1923, for one of the leading counsel came to court under the shadow of a great grief. His son's fiancee had died. She was the first of nine women connected with the personnel of the trial to pass away during its course. The marvel was that except for a short but tremendously dangerous illness of the presiding Judge, nobody connected with the case died or even was ill enough to cause a postponement.

Within the bar enclosure sat some of the greatest lawyers of this part of the world. Mr. Whipple had associated with himelf Boyd B. Jones and Damon E. Hall of the late Henry Hurlburt's firm; Mr. Fessenden and his firm were represented by George L. Mayberry, who is acknowledged as the leader of the Boston bar; Mr. Herrick had Hugh D. McLellan, a lawyer of great ability and reputation, and Robert Winsor, and the firm of Kidder-Peabody & Co. had Thomas Hunt of the firm of Gaston, Snow and Saltonstall. Three juniors assisted the defendants' lawyers.

Each side set up an office in Dedham; Mr. Whipple in a lower room in the courthouse itself, and Mr. Herrick hiring a suite of rooms in the village.

Magnitude of the Trial.

Three stenographers, working in 15-minute relays, reading their notes to dictaphones, and handing the wax cylinders over to typists for reproduction, made the reports of evidence and argument. Before the trial ended, they had written 17,000 long pages, and put nine carbon sheets behind each page, making more than 1,700,00 pages altogether.

The jurors were selected in two sessions, few men being excused and only two peremptory challenges being allowed to each side. The foreman of the jury was a retired clergyman; his fellows in the jury box included the proprietor of a fairly large printing business, machinists, shoe clerks, railroad men and a house painter. It was a jury of sturdy New Englanders, far above the average.

Before very long it became evident that the trial would run to an extraordinary length. A charge of conspiracy is mostly proved by circumstantial evidence and proper inference from stated facts, and the court allowed the lawyers to go very far afield to adduce what they considered as significant.

Judge Christopher T. Callahan of Holyoke, assigned by the Chief Justice to try the case, decided that the $4 a day, with mileage, which is the pay of a juror in Massachusetts, would be a hardship on these men. Counsel prepared, and a son of the court crier who is a member of the Legislature presented, a bill allowing $9 a day and mileage. This was passed—and the cost of the trial to Norfolk County ran to $35,000, exclusive of the Sheriff's salary. The Judge's salary is paid by the State.

In the midst of the trial one of the jurors suffered a nervous breakdown—not, it should be said, as the result of his service in this case. His physician declared that he could never serve again, and the litigants were confronted with the choice of going on with 11 men, or of going back to the beginning. Both sides agreed to go on.

Nearly 1000 exhibits were put in, two-thirds of them by the plaintiffs.

Finally, on Dec. 15, 1924, the case was given to the jury. That was at noon; they emerged from their confinement three days later at 10 in the morning and rendered a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs, assessing the damage at $10,534,109.07. It was the largest verdict ever given in Massachusetts.

When the trial began, Daniel G. Wing, president of the First National Bank, was included among the defendants. At the close of the plaintiff's case, however, Mr. Wing's counsel moved for a directed verdict in his behalf, and it was ordered.

The shock in Boston is not because of the size of the verdict; it is because the very leaders of the financial world, the men in whose hands lies the credit of the business community, have been successfully attacked in their honorable dealing. It is the greatest blow that has ever been dealt to high reputations here.

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

By all means, drink lots of good water every day. Have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Imperial Ball, Pinnacle of the Formal Social Season, Held At the St. Louis Country Club

Festoons of Smilax Draped About Walls — Tables Laid in Rose-Garden Setting for More Than 400 Guests Who Attend Annual Event.

FOR the first time since the passing of the Old Home Circle, organized by St. Louis social leaders almost half a century ago, and the inception of the present Imperial, the annual ball, which by social precept is the pinnacle of the formal season, has been given outside the walls of the St. Louis Club. And yet Friday night's function, at the St. Louis Country Club, arranged after the fire which swept the older building a few days ago, was a far more beautiful one than any in recent years.

True, much of the formality made possible by the separate ball room in the Lindell avenue structure, accessible by the stately staircase, was necessarily obviated at the country club, where the reception and dining rooms connect and the tables had to be removed for dancing. Yet the large rather rambling low-ceilinged rooms, with their ivory-tinted walls, gay chintzes and colorful hangings, lent themselves well to the rather stiff insignia which forms a traditional part of every Imperial function. The golden crown which has hung for one night of many successive years over the mirror of the St. Louis Club, was conspicuously absent, as was the pink canopy and golden spears long used, and yet a happy combination of the formal and informal was effected that augurs well for a precedent which might have been established.

The patronesses who comprised the receiving line stood in the living room, which was unadorned except for silver containers of premier roses which banked the mantel and window edges, while the tables seating more than 400 guests for the dinner which preceded the dancing, were laid in the three ballrooms, in a rose garden setting. Dozens of roses decorated the tables and twined about the silver candelabra. In the center room the table for the patronesses, more elaborate than the others, was laid. Festoons of smilax were draped about the walls, almost covering them, with here and there huge clusters of gold grapes nestled in gilded smilax leaves. The Imperial standards, gilded containers several feet tall, each containing great clusters of the long stemmed pink blossoms, which, combined with gold are the colors of the organization, occupied places along the walls and bunches of the greenery in the nooks and doorways gave an unaccustomed coziness to the event.

Each session a few of the debutantes are invited to become members. The three so honored this season are Misses Virginia Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Welch Simmons, who are now living in New York and did not attend; Miss Harriet Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Moore, and Miss Jessie Carr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peyton T. Carr. In addition, Miss Jane Parsons, who was presented to society last season, was asked. She wore an orange gown trimmed with gold lace, while the buds wore their debut frocks of white. Miss Moore was in moire, with a close-fitting bodice finished

Announcement Made of Engagement of Mary Carmen Ryan to Marion Lambert

THE informal entertaining which always characterizes the post-holiday season was brought to an abrupt close yesterday with the elaborate luncheon given by Mrs. Louis Hager Jr. of the Netherby Hall apartments, at which announcement was made of the engagement of Miss Mary Carmen Ryan, daughter of Judge and Mrs. O'Neill Ryan of 29 Windermere place, and Marion L. J. Lambert, son of Mrs. Adolphus Busch III and the late Marion Lambert. The wedding, will be one of the notable events of the spring season.

Miss Ryan is a graduate of the Visitation Convent and made her debut two years ago at a large reception given by her mother at their home. She served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball that year. Mr. Lambert attended Smith Academy, the Choate School in Massachusetts and the Virginia Military Institute. He belongs to several clubs.

The luncheon table yesterday was banked high with roses, and the announcement, which was made during the salad course, was by means of a doll bride, hidden under the flowers, which was revealed by a ribbon releasing the floral covering. The guests were Misses Alice Scott, Mary Scott, Mary Louise Cotter, Claire Garneau, Mary Virginia Collins, Marie Clarkson, Jane Thompson, Elizabeth Grayson, Dorothy Monroe and Mrs. Warne Niedringhaus, sister of Mr. Lambert.

A quiet but none the less interesting wedding of yesterday was that of Miss Irene Savage, daughter of Richard Savage of Salt Lake City, Utah, and Brenton G. Van Cleave, which took place at 9 o'clock in the morning at Hot Springs, Ark. Although the announcement of the engagement was made recently during the holiday visit of the bride to her sister, Mrs. Robert L. Fowler of West Pine boulevard, the wedding will come as a surprise because of its advanced date.

The ceremony was performed in the Presbyterian Church of Hot Springs, and a breakfast followed at the New Arlington Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler and Mr and Mrs Lee Van Cleave, the former a brother of the bridegroom, completed the group from St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Wyland of Castle, Wyo.,

An interesting event of the late winter season will be a course of four talks on current topics to be inaugurated at the home of Mrs. Isaac W. Morton of 43 Portland place, the afternoon of Jan. 27.

The speakers will be Isaac H. Lionberger, Charles Nagel, Mr. Charles P. Williams, and Dr. William C. Bitting. These lectures are being sponsored by the Mary Institute Alumnae Association.

A headdress party to be given by the young married set next Thursday evening at the Florissant Valley Club will be one of the unusual parties of the winter. About 75 couples are expected to attend, and each will contribute to the dinner The headdresses of the various countries and any period will be worn by the women, and the men will wear the colorful insignia of the orders of merit across their chests.

Miss Rose Silverstein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Silverstein, of 6261 Clemens avenue, will depart this week for an extended trip to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roth have returned from their honeymoon trip in the East. Mrs. Roth was formerly Miss Dorothy A. Yawitz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seelig Yawitz, 4731 McMillan avenue. Their wedding took place Dec. 28.

Mrs. Charles Volz of 3138 Sunshine avenue, Cincinnati, has returned home, after spending the holidays with relatives and friends in St. Louis. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Volz was Miss Frances Ehrhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ehrhart, of 3837 Utah place.

ST. LOUISANS GOING TO WINTER RESORTS

Mrs. Russell Lord of Lake Forest, Ill., arrived yesterday to visit her mother, Mrs. Heman J. Pettengill of the Country Club grounds, for a week.

Groups of St. Louisans are planning to sail soon for short ocean cruises which have become so popular this season. Mrs. Henry Elliott of 11 Kingsbury place and her daughter, Miss Georgia Elliott, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Bascom and Mrs. Robert McKittrick Jones of Westmoreland place will take the West Indies trip; Mr. and Mrs. J. Dwight Filley will go to Bermuda, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kauffman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langenberg, Mr. and Mrs. John Lawrence Mauran and Mr. and Mrs. John T. Davis will go to Nassau, in the Bahamas.

Mrs. Fielding Oliver of Lake avenue and her daughter, Miss Judith, will sail Feb. 4 for a cruise of the Mediterranean. Misses Dorothea Nagel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nagel of Lenox place, and Alice Scott, daughter of Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of 31 Westmoreland place, will sail with Miss Nancy Newell of Cleveland, Feb. 7 for Switzerland, where they will join Miss Newell's mother. They will be away three months.

Miss Mary Howell Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Betts of Westminster place, has returned from Wheeling, W. Va., where she has been the guest of her cousin, Mrs. John McClurg Hays, formerly Miss Cordelia Euston of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph S. McIntyre of Washington boulevard will sail in a fortnight for a Mediterranean cruise.

Miss Eleanor Richards, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Richards of Washington boulevard has returned from a visit with friends in Rochester, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of Westmoreland place will depart Jan. 29 for Chandler, Ariz., to be gone a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Nugent of Hotel Chase, who are spending the winter in Miami, Fla., will sail March 28 for Europe. They will be in Rome for the spring.

Mrs. Lee Meriwether, who recently returned from a long automobile trip abroad is at the Coronado Hotel for two weeks, before sailing from San Francisco for India.

Mrs. Merritt H. Marshall Jr. of 5297 Washington boulevard returned Friday from Jefferson City, where she attended the inaugural reception and ball. Mrs. Marshall was the guest of Mrs. Edwin Stevens.

Blackheads Go Quick By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of calonite powder and the water dissolve them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition.

Magical Effect of Harmless Face Peeler

To maintain a clear, rosy and youthful complexion, there's nothing so simple to use and yet so effective as ordinary mercolized wax, which you can get at any drug store. Just apply at night as you would cold cream, and in the morning wash it off with warm water. If you've never tried it you can't imagine the magical effect of this harmless home treatment. Mercolized wax causes the old worn-out scarf skin to come off in tiny particles, a little at a time, and soon you have entirely shed the offensive cuticle. The fresh young underskin now in evidence is so healthy and girlish looking, so free from any appearance of artificiality, you wonder why you had not heard of this marvelous complexion-renewing secret long ago.

YOUR VOICE

The study of Voice is not for just the favored few as so many think, it is for the masses, for every human being who can carry a tune.

The study of Voice is a physical, mental and psychical training, and should not be thought of as merely an accomplishment, but as a part of one's education, and should be given more serious thought.

To make it possible for the lovers of this great art of small means, Mme. Carter has decided, like Marchesi, to give class instructions at a very reasonable rate. Many great futures have been derived from class-work.

It is her desire to eventually build up large choruses of the opera from these classes, with the hope that in the near future St. Louis will have a home for the opera, which will be supported by the masses and lovers of the art.

It has been said, that a great teacher is one who has great ideals and is true to those ideals, and who instills those ideals in his students, one who builds the substantial foundation of appreciation of the best in art.

Those interested, call Delmar 747 or call at Studio 2, Studio Bldg., Olive and Taylor.

Ladies—Go Back

Back to beauty—back to youth

By Edna Wallace Hopper

You who see me on the stage and elsewhere wonder at my youthful bloom. For some of you knew me as a stage star 35 years ago.

I am evidence that youth can be retained. So are countless other women who retain their girlish looks. But it calls for proper care.

My chief help is a clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many have employed. Mine is a super-clay, white, refined and dainty. It is the final result of 20 years of scientific study. I call it my White Youth Clay.

It combines two clays with other needed factors. So it does far more than old-type clays. And its use is very pleasant.

Clay is a beauty essential. No woman can look her best without it, few can keep their youth. Clay has for ages made women famous beauties. Now millions use clay, and in every circle they stand out.

White Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It removes the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It draws the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy afterglow which amazes and delights.

It combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women seem to drop ten years with one application.

You cannot afford to omit it. But use this newer, better, daintier clay they made for me. All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Clay at 50c and $1.

If you mail this coupon I will send a sample with my Beauty Book. And it will, I promise, prove a revelation. Do that in justice to yourself.

ENGAGEMENTS AND RECENT WEDDINGS

An interesting engagement announced Friday was that of Miss Harriet Bonson Manter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Manter of Webster Groves, and Robert Edwin Woods, son of Parker H. Woods of Washington boulevard. The news was told at a bridge luncheon given by Mrs. Manter and her daughter, in honor of Miss Berenice Bermingham of Kenosha, Wis., who toured Europe with them last summer.

Miss Manter is a graduate of the Mount Vernon Seminary at Washington, D. C., and made her debut last winter. Mr. Woods is a graduate of Yale and a member of the Bellerive Country Club and the Missouri Athletic Association. The wedding will take place in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Warde B. Chittenden of Kansas City, Mo., formerly of St. Louis, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Harriet Raynor Chittenden, and Henry Stryker Pierson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pierson of Carrollton, Ill. Miss Chittenden and her fiance were educated at Washington University. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, and Mrs. Pierson of Phi Delta Theta and Delta Theta Phi. The wedding date has not been set. Miss Chittenden is related to the Thatcher, Desloge and Chittenden families of St. Louis.

A midwinter wedding of interest to many St. Louisans will be that of Miss Katherine Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Howell of Springfield, Mo., to Douglas Williams, 5927 Kingsbury avenue.

The marriage will be solemnized at 2:30 p. m. next Thursday at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Howell is a member of one of Springfield's oldest families, is a graduate of the University of Missouri, and is prominent in college and social circles. Mr. Williams attended the University of Missouri. He is secretary of the Advertising Club of St. Louis, and a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

After a brief wedding trip the couple will be at home at the Kenwood Court apartments, 346 Rosedale avenue.

The marriage of Miss Dorothy Shannon, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Shannon of Webster Groves and Frank Charles Harris of Pittsburg will take place Feb. 3, at the Shannon home on Plant avenue. Miss Lucille Coover, of Peoria, Ill., a cousin of the bride, will serve as maid of honor and Miss Helen Brod of St. Louis as maid. The flower girls will be Miss Margaret Trembley and Miss Sophie Elizabeth Gross. Dr. Lyman Ritter of Kankakee, Ill., will act as best man. The wedding party will be entertained after the rehearsal, Feb. 2, by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Cushing Jr., also of Webster Groves.

The marriage of Miss Mary Loretta Mullen, daughter of Mrs. Arthur B. Sherman, of 211 Skinker road, and James Halley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Halley, of Claytonia terrace, was solemnized Monday morning, Jan. 12, at 9 o'clock, the Rev. Father F. J. O'Connor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church officiating. A breakfast followed at the home of the bride, and in the evening a dinner was given at the Missouri Athletic Association by Miss Marie Peterson and Paul Preitch. The couple have gone East on their honeymoon. The bride was educated at the Sacred Heart Convent at Maryville.

Miss Jule Hoffmann, daughter of Mrs. G. Hoffmann, of 412 North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis, and W. T. Bryant, were married Thursday by the Rev. Dr. Jenney at the First Presbyterian Church of St. Louis. The bride wore a French blue charmeuse crepe gown and carried roses and lilies of the valley. The couple were attended by Mrs. J. C. Pope, sister of the bride, and Ed F. Lubben of St. Louis. The ceremony was attended by members of the families. The couple departed immediately for their honeymoon in Los Angeles, Cal., and other Western cities, and upon their return will be at home at 412A North Thirteenth street, East St. Louis.

The engagement of Miss Irene Edler to John Schmitt was announced last Sunday. The wedding is to take place early in the spring.

WHAT MISSOURIANS ARE DOING AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Washington society is somewhat topsy-turvy with the changes that are being made in the official personnel. Cabinet officers are leaving, the President has said "good-by" to his own secretary, Bascom Slemp, Washington's most eligible bachelor, and even Justices of the Supreme Court are engaged in the merry game of merry-go-round.

The most astounding change was that which came when it was announced that Secretary of State Hughes would retire on March 4. Rumors had predicted this, but the Hughses seemed fixtures in the social machine here. New interest is taken in the Kelloggs since he is to succeed Mr. Hughes as Secretary of State.

It is remembered, that Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Kellogg were the closest of friends when the President was Vice President and Mr. Kellogg was Senator from Minnesota. Mrs. Kellogg is remembered as a charming, gracious hostess.

The promotion of Attorney-General Stone to the post of United States Supreme Court Justice insures the permanency of this popular family in Washington.

President and Mrs. Coolidge entertained at dinner on Thursday night in honor of the diplomatic corps. An interesting guest was Prof. Smiddy, Minister of the Irish Free State, who enjoyed his first White House dinner in that capacity. Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah and Representative Henry W. Temple were the only guests outside of the diplomats present.

It was a matter of pride to the Missouri colony here that at the big Jusserand dinner last Saturday night, when official Washington said farewell to the retiring French Ambassador and his wife that a St. Louis girl, Miss Edith Piper, was chosen to sing the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Marseillaise."

Mrs. Breckenridge D. Long, wife of the former third assistant Secretary of State, entertained at a luncheon for young persons last week in honor of Miss Helen Marys, debutante daughter of the former Ambassador to Russia and Mrs. George T. Marys. Mrs. Long also entertained at a luncheon for the members of the committee of a game of mah jongg, in which she is ot take part for the benefit of Bella Wood Memorial in February.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair was one of the guests of honor at the luncheon given in connection with the board meeting of the General Fedreation of Women's Clubs now taking place in Weshington.

Mrs. Charles P. Grandfield, who is a member of the board of the District of Columbia Federation of Women's Clubs, assisted Mrs. Virginia White Speel, the district president, at the tea she gave in honor of the visiting members of the general federation board last week.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins has inviations out in honor of the Columbian Women of George Washington University for a tea. Mrs. Hodgkins entertained a number of the visiting club women at luncheon last week and assisted at Mrs Speel's tea.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt was one of the speakers at the meeting of the "Woman's Cabinet," composed of women in executive positions in Washington.

Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leigh C. Palmer were among the guests at the dinner given by Major-General and Mrs. George Barnett in honor of Mrs. William B. Alexander of New York recently.

Mrs. Palmer and her daughter, Miss Bessie McKeldin have issued invitations for a dinner, Jan. 27. Miss McKeldin is to be one of the group of young women who will take the part of "Flowers" in the society mah jongg game.

Mrs. Lee Benoist wore a lovely gown of silver cloth studded with brilliants, at the diplomatic reception at the White House. Miss Nancy Benoist has returned to college, but will come to Washington for the Easter holidays, when her mother will give a dance for her.

Mrs. Edwin Puller was among those lunching at the National Woman's Democratic Club last week.

Mrs. Cleveland A. Newton was at home last Wednesday evening to the young Missouri girls living in Washington. Mrs. Newton made this reception a preliminary one to the regular meeting of the Missouri State Society, of which her husband, Congressman Newton, is president, which will be held at the Hotel Roosevelt next Monday night. Mrs. Newton was assisted by the wives of the other officers of the society.

At the meeting Senator Selden P. Spencer will make the principal address. The musical program will be given by Maj. Charles Trowbridge Tittmann who will be accompanied by Miss Lucy Brickenstein.

The hostesses for the evening will be Mrs. Sam C. Major, Mrs. Bessie Parker Bruggemann, Mrs. James Hagerman, Mrs. I. V. McPherson, Mrs. Charles Alger, Mrs. Edgar P. Allen, Mrs. W. W. Badgley and Miss Inez Justus.

Senator and Mrs. Spencer, Mrs. George I. Worthington, Mrs. Lee Benoist, Mrs. Thornton B. Boland, Mrs. Edwin S. Puller and Mrs. Jerome L. Wilbur will be in the receiving line.

MANY PARTIES ARE PLANNED FOR THE COMING WEEK

Many parties have been planned for the Scholarship Benefit performance to be given at the American Theater tomorrow night, when Glenn Hunter opens a week's engagement in "Merton of the Movies." Among the hosts will be Mmes. Eugene McCarthy, president of the club; Arthur W. Proetz, A. Friedman, W. E. Wittrig, Elma Benton, H. H. Langenberg, Evarts Graham, Robert Meyer, H. H. Hopkins, Archer O'Reilly, George Hellhorn, C. B. Fox, William M. Scudder, H. W. Baker, L. D. Tilton, Henry Clarkson Scott, Clay E. Jordan, Oreon E. Scott, Drs. J. B. Shapleigh, E. P. North, Fred Russe, C. S. Cole, W. C. Gayler, Judge Franklin Miller, Major H. B. McIntyre, R. H. B. Thompson, W. R. Gilbert, C. D. Cowdrey, George J. Tansey, T. W. Van Scholach, Frank P. Crunden, Chauncey P. Heath, John M. Dean and Misses Margaret Ewing and Beatrice Thomas.

Jean Ford, who plays the lead in the show, is a Vassar graduate, class of 1922, and a Vassar Club luncheon at the College Club tomorrow at 12:30 o'clock is one of the many parties given in honor of Miss Ford. Mrs. R. H. B. Thompson of 720 Westgate avenue, has charge of the ticket sale for the Monday evening performance.

On Saturday, Feb. 7, at the Hotel Chase the annual benefit card party will be given by the Matthew Fontaine Maury Chapter U. D. C. Men, as well as women, are invited. The proceeds of the party are used for educational purposes. The chapter maintains a scholarship in the school of the Ozarks at Hollister, Mo. Also, it has pledged $100 toward the $12,000 Wilson Memorial Fund. The following is a list of committee chairmen and members for the card party: General chairman, Mrs. O. S. Wilfley; tickets, Mrs. J. P. Higgins, chairman; Mrs. E. P. North, Mrs. E. A. Skillern. Reception, Mrs. M. L. Kline, chairman; Mrs. Wm. Bagnell, Mrs. J. M. Sloan, Mrs. Ben F. Gray, Mrs. Douglas Robert. Prizes, Mrs. W. P. Armstrong, chairman; Mrs. J. B. Smyth, Mrs. J. R. Lionberger. Cards and tallys, Mrs. E. T. Miller, chairman; Mrs. E. H. Hutchison, Mrs. G. F. Powell. Tables, Mrs. W. G. Bonnell, Chairman; Miss V. Richardson, Miss Lorraine Meyer. Arrangements, Mrs. Geo. N. Martin, chairman; Mrs. Speed Stevens, Mrs. Wm. Woodrum; Mrs. Louis Nelson. Lists, Mrs. J. F. Smartt, chairman; Mrs. W. J. McBurney and Mrs. R. S. Mitchell.

The annual card party of the Visitation Convent Alumnae will be given Saturday afternoon, Jan. 24, at 2 o'clock, at Alumnae Hall, Cabanne and Belt avenues. The proceeds of the entertainment will benefit the scholarship fund of the alumnae. The list of patronesses for the affair includes the following women: Mesdames Esther Nast, Cornelius Thompkins, Ellsworth C. Smith, Gerald O'Reilly, E. C. Link, Daniel G. Evans, J. L. D. Morrison, William Maffitt, A. E. Baker, George T. Priest, Voluntine C. Turner, Edgar Lackland Taylor, J. Shepherd Smith, J. J. O'Donnell, Margaret Sickles, A. Cards have been issued for the annual benefit ball of the Margaret A. E. McLure Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy which will be given Friday evening, Feb. 13, in the Palm Room of the Hotel Chase.

As the social calendar has been marked by few large balls this season, the prospect of a large ball before Lent is hailed with pleasure by the dancing set. Miss Laura Philippi, 5245 Washington boulevard, is chairman of the ball. Mrs. Reed B. Harkness has been selected matron of honor for the ball. Other women interested in the success of the affair are the officers of the chapter, Mrs. G. K. Warner, Mrs. J. C. Edwards, Mrs. T. M. Young, Mrs. George Andrea, Mrs. A. E. Farrer, Mrs. Otto Furbinger, Mrs. G. H. Marshall, Mrs. Thomas F. Browne, Mrs. John D. Hurck, Mrs. W. H. Dickey, Mrs. N. N. Robnett, Mrs. W. H. Hudson and Mrs. Esther Spaulding. Ball tickets may be obtained from them and from chapter members.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Elma H. Benton of Hosmer Hall to mothers of the students for the Assembly period next Wednesday morning when Miss Ellen Craig will give an illustrated address on "The Last Days of Pompeii."

Dusolina Giannini will sing for charity Thursday evening, Jan. 22, when she will appear at the Odeon under the auspices of the Musicians' Fund of America. The proceeds from this benefit concert will be used to create a fund with which to establish in St. Louis a home for aged and infirm musicians. Patronesses and boxholders for the affair include Mrs. Lee Schweiger, president of the organization; Mmes. Charles Stix, Clarence Howard, Charles Rice, Frank Alsberg, John R. Lanigan, W. W. Bradley, Hugo Weimers, J. Handley Caldwell, George J. Dietz, Lizzie Drey, William John Hall, Lucien Blackmer, J. Alex Goodwin, Rudolph Ganz, Edward Sicher, Frederick Nussbaum, Joseph T. Semi-Annual Sale of Furniture

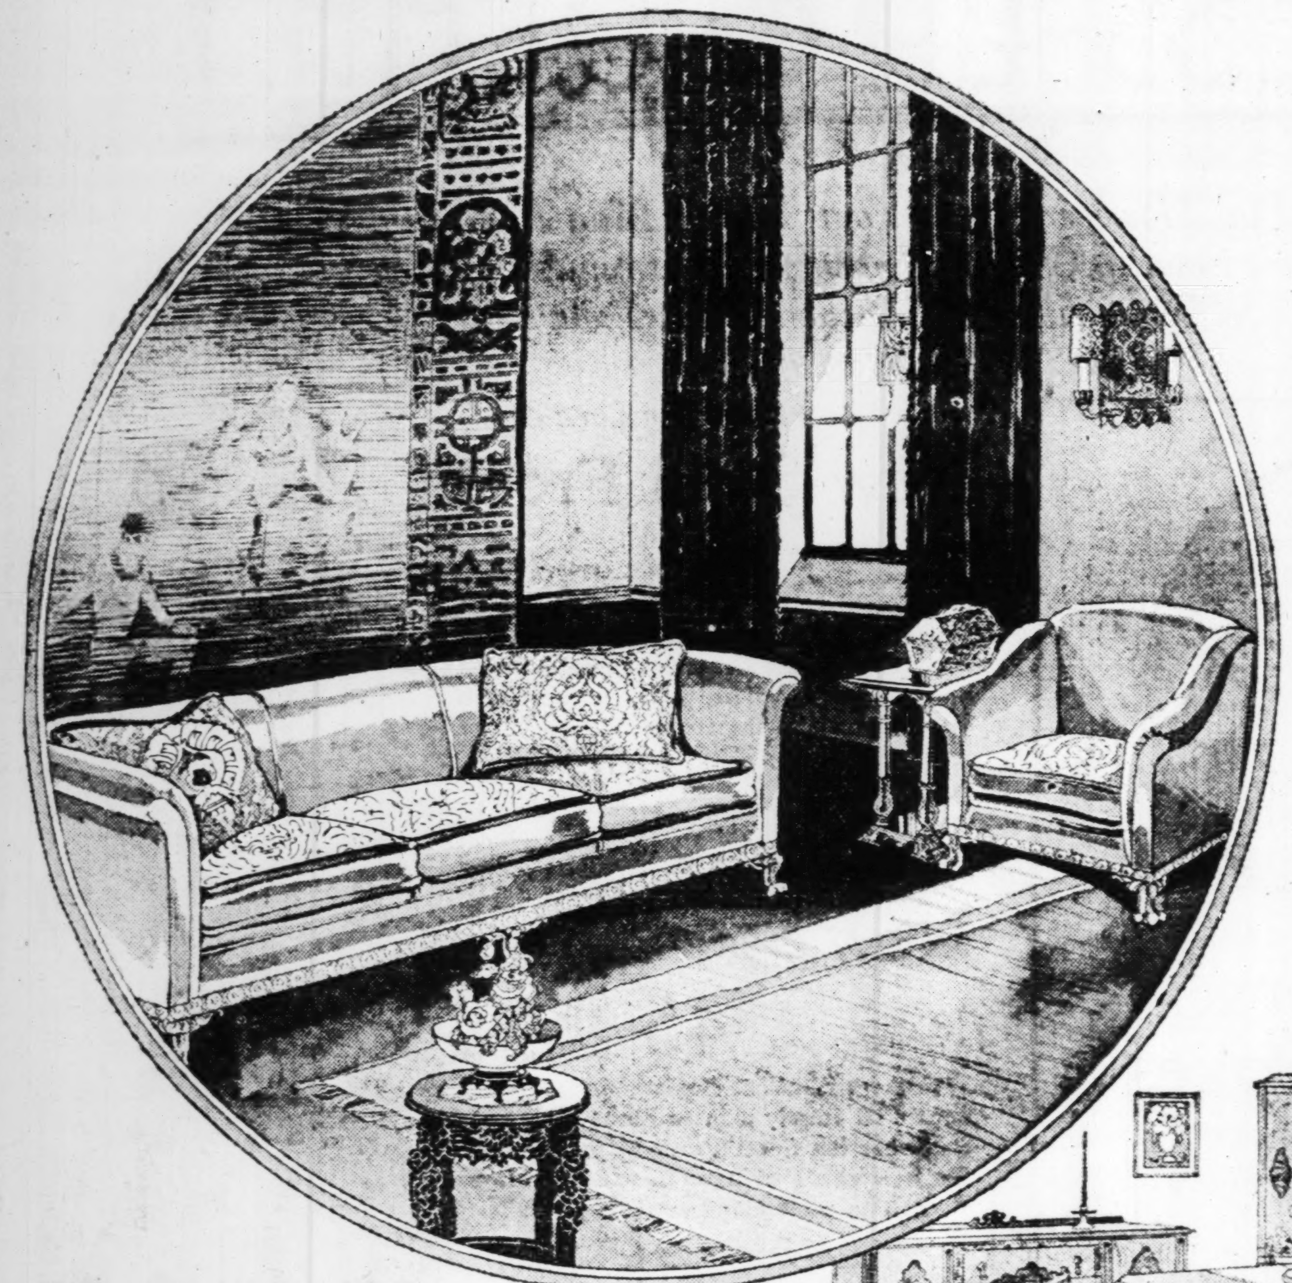
Begins Monday Morning at 9 o'Clock

PROMPTLY at nine o'clock Monday morning we launch our Semi-Annual Sale—a sale so vast in scope that these pictures and prices merely suggest the many extraordinary values. So exceptional are the offerings in these Semi-Annual events that every home-maker in St. Louis has learned to recognize the importance of the sales. This presentation makes a transcending appeal to every home-maker in St. Louis and environs.

Leading manufacturers have co-operated, enabling us to offer new Furniture of the most desirable character, in addition to our regular stocks which have all been repriced for the occasion. There are comprehensive selections of Furniture for the living room, dining room, bedroom, as well as innumerable odd pieces to make old rooms newly charming.



Our Plan of Easy Payments

—puts these important savings within the reach of everyone—making it possible for homemakers to buy the most desirable Furniture on a dignified, systematic payment basis. Do not hestitate to inquire about this helpful arrangement.

Stately Tapestry Armchairs, $39.50

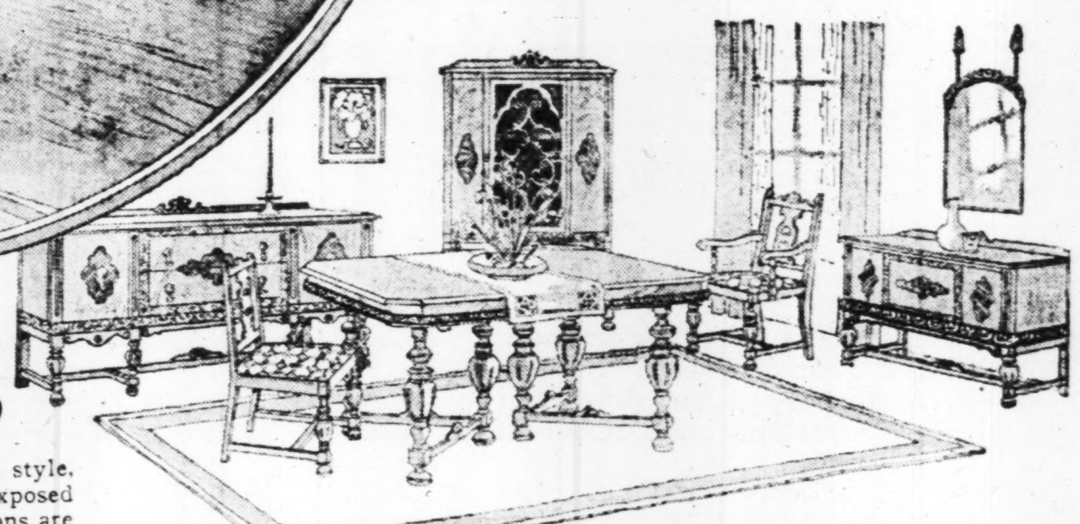
A tall Chair that will lend dignity to a living room or hall is upholstered in an attractive pattern of tapestry. It is artistically designed and the frame is finished in American walnut. These tall-back Chairs are now used with two-piece living-room suites to add individuality to a room.

Reed Chairs and Rockers, $17.50

High-back Reed Chairs and Rockers with spring seat cushion construction are upholstered in colorful cretonne. Finished in frosted mahogany or taupe—these Chairs are very special values. They can be used in either the living room, sun parlor or bedroom.

Bed-Davenport Suite, $119.50

Two-piece Bed Davenport Suite, consists of a large davenport which can be easily opened into a full-size bed, and a roomy armchair which is as comfortable as it is attractive. Suite is covered in a good grade of figured velour and is equipped with loose spring-filled cushions. A Suite of this character solves the problem of the unexpected guest and adds greatly to the attractiveness of the living room.



Two-Piece Living-Room Suite, $198.00

Two-piece mohair living-room Suite, in the popular Tuxedo style, consists of an 81-inch davenport and broad armchair. All exposed wood parts are of solid mahogany; the loose spring-filled cushions are covered in plain mohair on one side and brocatelle on the other. The davenport has two extra loose pillows at back which are also reversible; all cushions and pillows are trimmed with black moss edging. Superior construction throughout—hand-tied springs—full web bottom.

Stylish Living-Room Suite, $297.50

Here is a value in two-piece mohair living-room Suite—shown exclusively in St. Louis by Stix, Baer & Fuller. The style is new, the exposed parts are of solid mahogany, antique finish. Your choice of several patterns of high-grade mohairs. Cushions are reversible with brocatelle on the reverse side. This Suite is the thin-arm style; an artistically fashioned solid mahogany stretcher at the base of each piece greatly enhances the beauty of the Suite.

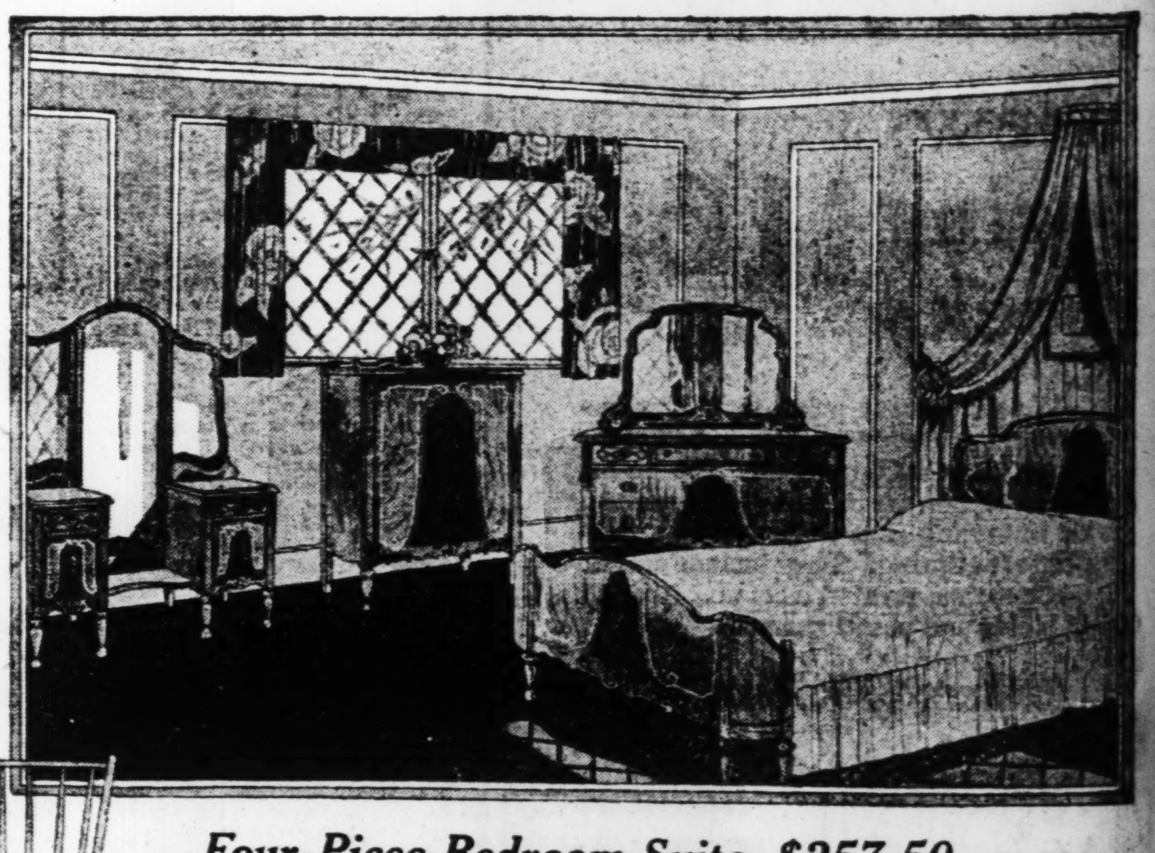
9-Pc. Dining Suite, $197.50

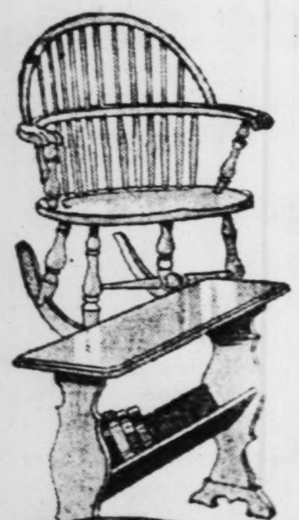
This Suite, pictured above, is of Italian adaptation and is finished in either French or American walnut. Nine pieces, include a 66-inch buffet, extension table with 45x60-inch top and eight-foot extension, large china closet with roomy linen drawer, one host chair and five side chairs upholstered in tapestry. A Suite of rare charm which has but to be seen to be recognized as a salient value.

Serving Cabinet to Match, $31.50

10-Pc. Dining Suite, $337.50

This handsome Suite is a wonderful value. The buffet is 72 inches long, the table has a 45x60-inch top and an eight-foot extension; the closed china cabinet is a massive piece of furniture and the server is very roomy. Five side chairs and one armchair, have cane backs and tapestry covered seats.





Windsor Rockers, $10.75

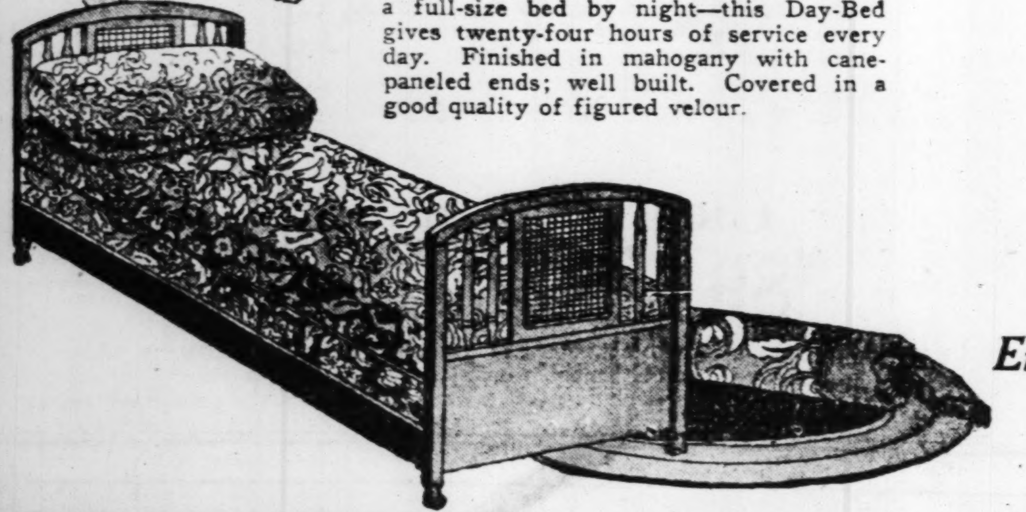
Surely at so low a price these Rockers should be popular. They are sturdily constructed and finished in dull mahogany. Outstanding sale value.

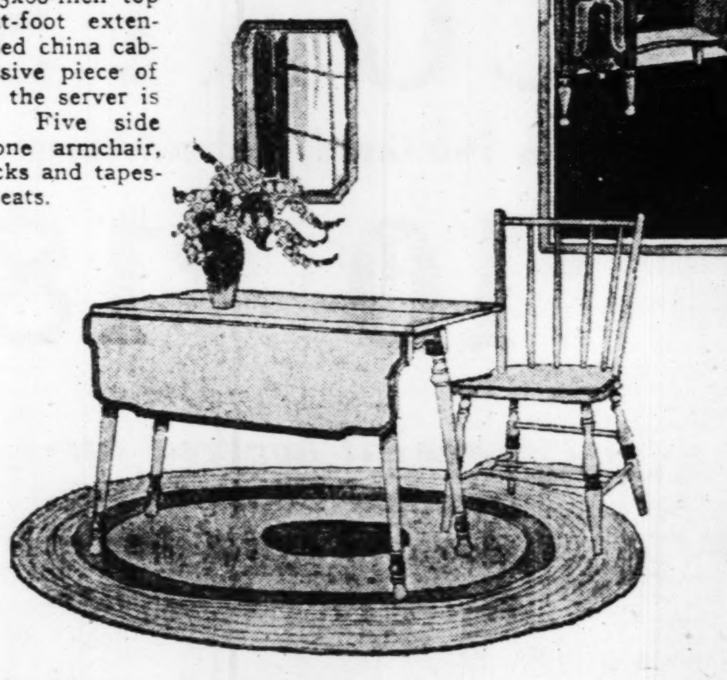
Book Trough Tables, $5.95

Just the thing for bedside, a favorite armchair or at the sofa's end is this Table; measuring 12x24 inches across the top and 24 inches high. The trough provides room for cherished volumes. May be had in either mahogany or walnut finish.

Useful Day-Beds, $49.75

An attractive piece of furniture by day—a full-size bed by night—this Day-Bed gives twenty-four hours of service every day. Finished in mahogany with cane-paneled ends; well built. Covered in a good quality of figured velour.





Enameled Breakfast Suite, $19.50

You could start the day right by breakfasting with a Suite like this. Five pieces include a drop-leaf table and four chairs. Can be had in several finishes, trimmed with a neat stripe.

Other values in breakfast-room Suites in a wide range of prices and styles.

Four-Piece Bedroom Suite, $257.50

Illustrated above is a Bedroom Suite which you will surely recognize as a splendid value. The dresser is 52 inches long, with 30x38-inch plate mirror and small built-in vanity boxes. Each piece of dustproof construction throughout and is carefully designed and constructed. The onlay of burl walnut adds to the elegance of this Suite, which can be had in either the light French walnut or the regular American walnut finish.

Four-Piece Bedroom Suite, $179.00

A four-piece Bedroom Suite that is an exceptional value is nicely finished in American walnut and has dustproof construction. The dresser is 48 inches wide, the bed has bow ends—the full vanity is large and the chifforette provides ample room for clothing.

Four-Piece Bedroom Suite, $337.50

This high-grade Suite of American walnut consists of a 50-inch dresser, bowfoot bed, full vanity and highboy. All surfaces are veneered in beautiful figured burl walnut. Dustproof construction with hardwood interiors. A Suite that is very good looking and one that you will not tire of.

MANY PARTIES ARE PLANNED FOR THE COMING WEEK

tha Donnelly, Miss Eugenia Getner, Miss M. Teresa Finn, and a number of clubs have taken boxes. Among them are the St. Louis Theater Club, Mel Harmonic, Clotho, Musical Research Club and Rubenstein Musical.

Giannini will be the guest of honor at a luncheon in the ballroom of the Hotel Chase Wednesday noon.

A series of luncheons will begin this week, the first hostesses being Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, Mrs. Joseph Lewis and Mrs. Harry Wallace, by which every woman in St. John's Methodist Church will utimately be a guest in the interest of missions. These luncheons are to follow the "chain" system. The three hostesses mentioned, each in her own home, will preside at a luncheon some day this week, to which nine other women of the church will be invited. Each one, including the hostess, pays a fee, so that in all each luncheon nets $5. Then in the next week, each of the 10 women will give a luncheon to six women, and the same fee will be received from each one. The six at each luncheon party are then, in weeks following, to give luncheons to two women. The groups of "luncheons to two" will continue until all the roll of members has been taken up. The list has been tabulated by a special committee, with the assistance of Mrs. H. R. Barton, president of the Woman's Missionary Society. No hostess selects her own guests, but the list is furnished to her. Such an experiment has never been tried in any church, so far as is known. Its purpose is not alone to augment the missionary fund, but also to promote fellowship in the church. The luncheons will take the place of St. John's "silver teas" which have been given in other years. Besides the stipulated lists, each hostess may, if she desires, invite and pay for outside guests at any luncheon.

Mrs. Philip A. Becker of 8463 Longfellow avenue, and her daughter, Miss Virginia Becker, entertained a group of friends informally at tea Tuesday afternoon for Misses Weeks and Whitney, directors of Wanalda, a girls' camp at Torch Lake, Mich. The guests included Misses Elizabeth Hubbell, Claudine Fay, Alice Strauch, Emily Caspari, Frances Breck, Elsie Pyle and Mmes. William Dee Becker, Charles Biehle and Sam Martin.

Mrs. E. E. Bishop, 5887 Washington boulevard, gave a luncheon at the Coronado Hotel Tuesday for her sister, Mrs. Otto Lea Garden of Oakland, Cal. There were 35 guests.

Mrs. Louis Yeckel of 6433 San Bonita avenue, gave a bridge luncheon Saturday, Jan. 10, complimenting Miss Eleanor Roth and her mother, who will sail for Europe Feb. 4.

Mrs. Frank E. Murphy entertained 30 guests at a bridge luncheon Saturday at the M. A. A., in honor of her sister, Mrs. W. Warde Fowler of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Meidroth of 4237 Hartford street gave a party at their home Saturday evening, Jan. 10. Those present were: Messrs. and Mmes. W. E. Belter, P. A. Carter, W. Heper, L. Lunt, G. A. Johnson and C. D. Toler; George Weston Jr., Mrs. Weston, Misses Ruth Belter, Lorraine Johnson and Lucille Meidroth and Wallace Heper and Herbert Johnson.

Mrs. Louis Kirsch of 6306 Enright avenue, University City, gave a birthday party Jan. 15 in honor of her daughter, Beatrice.

Mrs. C. P. Bobe of 6301 Ella avenue, gave a bridge luncheon Saturday, Jan. 10 in honor of Mrs. L. S. Cuddihee of Oklahoma City, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles Morehouse of 5885 Romaine place. The guests included Mmes. E. Brock, M. K. Clark, M. Eggeman, R. E Weinzettel, O. Bobe, W. Newman, J. King, C. Pfath, J. Schweizer, T. Tangan, R. Daly, A. Biederman, and the Misses Augusta Stiens, Adelaide Guesse and Ella Beauvais. The Rubicam Delmar Alumni will give an informal dance at the Gatesworth Hotel Saturday evening, Jan. 31, for members of the association and their friends. Cards may be obtained at the school, 4933 Delmar boulevard.

A party of Saturday night was a surprise given by Mr. and Mrs. C. Koester of 4020 South Broadway in honor of their son, Robert Koester, who celebrated his birthday. Miss May Gilmore was the assisting hostess. The guests were Misses Mabel Kestamacker, Elsie Schultz, Lenna Yager, Rose Felt, Margaret Jones, Gladys Kuntz, Lee Hess, Helen Reinhold, Gertrude Wagoner, Anna Alcorn, Barbara Neuroth, Messrs. Fred Devens, Jimmy Carmon, Bill Schultz, Dinty Moore, John Philipps, Duke Farris, Oliver Kuntz, George Wagoner, Ray Buren, Harold Grigone, Walter Koester, Henry Wagoner, Arthur Wentz, Richard Koester, and Mrs. C. E. Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Wagoner, and Mr. and Mrs. Erxleben. The evening was spent in dancing, followed by a midnight supper.

A surprise party was given for Miss Clara Fechtig at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Canda, 3214 Halliday avenue, Saturday evening, Jan. 10. The decorations were pink and white. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. Schumacher, Mr. and Mrs. George Haeger, Mr. and Mrs. J. Schubert, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Rubin, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kelly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Canda, Mr. and Mrs. G. Bolz, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson, Miss Esther Hellmich, Miss Emmis Langenecker, Miss Katherine Schweikert, Miss E. Huegerich, Miss Bernice Rubin, Miss Anna Haeger, Mrs. Elsie Broadwell, Norman Broadwell.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Mendelson celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage at their home last Saturday night. There were 100 guests. Miss Ethel Kindler of New York came to St. Louis for the event and will visit the Feinstein-Mendelson family for about two weeks.

Miss Emma Lou Milan of 5941 Maple avenue celebrated her tenth birthday with 11 little girl friends the past week. Decorations of pink and white were used in the dining room and on the "Birthday Cake," which adorned the center of the table. It was a coincidence that the same colors and a birthday cake holding 75 lighted candles were being used in Texas at her grandmother's birthday celebration which happens to be on the same day.

The engagement of Miss Helen Nicholson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nicholson of Jacksonville, Fla., and Frank E. Sutemeier of St. Louis, was announced at a dinner given by Mrs. L. J. Wilson of the Olive street road last week. The wedding will take place early in June.

The wedding of Miss Adelene May Woodson of 105 Linden avenue, Clayton, and Waldo C. Snyder of 4009 Russell avenue, was solemnized Jan. 3 at 8 o'clock in the evening at the Russell avenue address. Miss Bessie Snyder was maid of honor, and Dr. Waldo C. Faber, best man. Little Miss Sievers of Bonne Terre, Mo., a niece of the bride, was ringleader. The bride was gowned in white satin trimmed with silver lace, and wore a tulle bridal veil. She carried bride's roses. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder are at Hotel Statler until their home on the St. Charles road is completed.

RECENT ACTIVITIES OF WOMEN'S CLUBS IN CITY

A study class devoted to the study of finance and investment for women has been organized by the Wednesday Club. The formation of this class is the result of a speech made before the Social Economy Section, on financing railroads, by Byron W. Moser, president of the Security National Bank. At that time Moser urged the importance of woman's understanding the principles of investment, and promised to aid in providing a series of lectures on the subject. The Executive Board of the club has appointed Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw, director of the new class. Its first meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan 20 a p. m. in the Wednesday Club house, Taylor avenue and Westminster place. Mr. J. Lionberger Davis chairman of the Board of Directors of the Security National Bank, will speak on the subject of "General Principles of Investment." The usual guest restrictions will be waived for the day.

The Science Section will meet on Wednesday, Jan. 21, at 1:30 p. m. Mrs. Louis F. Lumaghi has provided the following program: "Electricity in Science and Service," an illustrated talk by W. A. Layman, president of the Wagner Electric Corporation; "Electricity in a Modern Home," by Mrs. Herbert I. Finch; current science review, by Mrs. Henry Hafner, Mrs. Mary Butler Ducorron and Mrs. Willard Bartlett. Mrs. Paul W. Brown is chairman of the section and Mrs. Joseph Erlanger the secretary.

The History and Literature Section will meet on Jan. 21, at 3 p. m. The study of social problems in literature will be continued. The program is as follows: "Wells, a Social Prophet," by Mrs. W. T. Nardin; "Galsworthy, a Social Dramatist," by Mrs. James M. Bull; "Shaw, a Social Critic," by Miss Grace Adams. Miss Ellen Brooks Johnson is chairman of the section

GRAY HAIR IS EASILY DARKENED

Tells How She Did It With a Home-Made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well-known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair, and look twenty years younger with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, one small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp, is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."

and Mrs. Frank C. Belser the secretary.

The South Side Women's Study Council, M. F. W. C., held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday evening, Jan. 13, at 7:30 p. m., at Barr Branch Library, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues. Three applications were voted upon favorably, and the new members were welcomed into the club. The first part of the meeting was devoted to the study of parliamentary law, with Mrs. Fred Armstrong, instructress. Several letters from the various charitable institutions were read, thanking the club for donations made in December. The club indorsed the Hughes-Harding bill, which will come before the House this session, and also unanimously agreed that each member and the club as a whole write the incoming Governor, indorsing the reappointment of Miss Wilkenson as teacher at the Chillicothe Home. The club indorsed the Library Commission. The Boonville intermediate reformatory was touched upon, and volunteers were called for to write letters of indorsement to their legislators.

The Monday Club of Webster Groves held an open meeting, Jan. 12, at the club house, Maple and Cedar avenues. After reports of committee chairmen, Mrs. Parker turned the meeting over to the chairman of fine arts, Mrs. William Greenhalgh. Mrs. Emily Summa, St. Louis artist, exhibited a group of her own paintings and gave a brief sketch of her life as a painter. Mrs. G. W. Coffman gave a musical program of her own compositions, assisted by Mmes Paul Guerard and Frank Howard, vocalists, and Mrs. John Eggert, violinist. Mrs. George C. Gephart, president of the Uandi Literary Club of Clayton, Mo., gave a reading from "Mary Carey," by Kate Langley Bosher. A short talk by Emily Grant Hutchins concluded the program.

The executive board of the Monday Club met Thursday, Jan. 15, at 9:30. Mrs. William C. Goodlett presided.

On Monday, Jan. 19, at 10 o'clock the history and literature section

FINE RASH ON FACE AND ARMS
Itched and Burned. Lost Rest Cuticura Heals.

"The first appearance of the eczema was in a fine rash which broke out on my face and arms. It itched and burned causing me to scratch and irritate the affected parts. The scratching caused sore eruptions which disfigured my face and I lost my rest at night on account of the irritation.

"The trouble lasted about five months. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a short time could see an improvement. I continued the treatment and in about three months I was healed." (Signed) Miss Ada Mitchell, 125 S. Pewabic St., Laurium, Mich., Apr. 5, 1924.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases, and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids, and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid, and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form —never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people, who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

will complete the study of Julius Caesar. In the afternoon the fine arts section under the leadership of Mrs. Jasper Blackburn will hear Caroline Risque and Nancy Coonsman Hahn lecture on "Sculpture and Sculptors."

The Harmony Literary Club held its regular meeting Friday, with Mrs. Harry Bennett hostess for the 1 o'clock luncheon. Mrs. W. C. Markham, presiding, opened the meeting with roll call, responded to by current topics. The out-of-town guest for the afternoon was Mrs. J. R. Lucas, Osceola, Mo. Letters were read and indorsed for the world peace movement at the Court of International Justice, and to feature the Better Homes film at the nearest theater. Mrs. George Springmeyer, chairman of the Social Committee, reported plans for a reception. As the club will have reached its twenty-fifth birthday, a silver anniversary will be held the afternoon of Feb. 6 in the gold room of the Chase Hotel.

At the conclusion of the business, Mrs. G. Davis read an article on "Music in the Home." The subject study, "Italy," was taken up in a tour through Venice, past and present, by Mrs. George Malone, and the Bridge of Sighs and Grand Canal by Mrs. Harry Bennett. Mrs. J. T. Emmett will be the next hostess, entertaining Jan. 23 at her home, 1363 Granville place.

The Woman's Patriotic Council of St. Louis will give a luncheon at Hotel Statler on Saturday, Jan. 31, at 1:30 p. m. Election of officers will take place in February. Reservations for the luncheon can be made by calling Delmar 5252J.

Members of the board of the St. Louis Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, were entertained at luncheon on Thursday, Jan 8, at the home of Mrs. W. M. Weatherford, 6181 McPherson avenue. At this time plans were formulated for the next regular meeting, which will be held at Jefferson Memorial on Friday afternoon, Jan. 23. Delegates to the National Congress at Washington, D. C., will be elected at this meeting, and Mrs. Ben F. Gray, recently returned from a six months' trip abroad, will give some of her interesting experiences in foreign lands.

The St. Louis chapter is making plans for the celebration of George Washington's birthday. This will be in the nature of a luncheon at Hotel Chase, to be given at 1 o'clock Saturday, Feb. 21, to which all Daughters of the American Revolution in the city will be invited. The committee in charge of this luncheon is composed of the following: Mrs. Shelby H. Curlee, regent of the chapter; Mrs. Howard Bailey, chairman of program; Mrs. Joseph T. McAdoo, chairman of hospitality; Mrs. W. M. Weatherford, chairman of music; Mrs. Charles Parker Williams, chairman of press, nad members of the Executive Board.

The Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, met on Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. John Trigg Moss, 6017 Enright avenue, Miss Essie Matlack assisting as hostess. The following delegates were elected to the National Congress, which will meet in Washington, D. C., in April: Mrs. John Zahorsky, the regent; Mrs. John Trigg Moss, Mrs. O. Furbinger Mrs. F. W. Green, Mrs. T. N. Harrington, Mrs. Phil Werber, Mrs. Ray A. Burns, Mrs. F. A. Lamb, Mrs. C. B. Baker, Mrs. C. H. Hoke, Mrs. Frank Ruf and Mrs. Thoms. A tea will be given on Feb. 23, in honor of the retiring regent, Mrs. Eugene A. Fusz.

Mrs. Albert Kuntz was hostess to the Cultus Club at the regular January meeting, at her home. Mrs. E. P. Crawford, president of the club presided at the brief business meeting. A continuation of the club's study program for the year, Dante's Inferno, was conducted by Mrs. Kuntz. Mrs. Kuntz brought out pertinent points by having excerpts of the book read as illustrations, by the ladies. The program was concluded by two piano selections given by Miss Marguerite Reid.

The Good Will Club met Monday, Jan. 12 at the Claridge Hotel, Mrs. Chas. Ellis, presiding. Reports of committees were given by the chairmen. The summary of the previous program was given by Mrs. H. E. Waldt. Mrs. G. Staehle gave the Thought for the Day. The subject for the afternoon was India. Mrs. Andrew Westland was leader and read a paper on Gandi, one of the World Leaders.

Casts and Casts Groups was the subject given by Mrs. H. E. Miller. Mrs. Miller also read extracts from letters received from her brother, Mr. Jack Demuth who is now in India. Views taken by Demuth were passed.

Mrs. Dilg closed the program with a paper on Cities-Calcutta, Bombay and Agra.

Plans were completed for the mid-winter luncheon to be given Jan. 26.

Several hundred guests are expected Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, at a New Year's rally of the members and friends of the Board of Religious Organizations, at the new Town Club. There will be an open program, Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee presiding, at which many different works in social service and civic aid will be presented. Tea will be served.

Members of the St. Louis chapter Daughters of 1812, celebrated the Battle of New Orleans, Thursday, Jan. 7 with a luncheon at the Coronado Hotel. Seventy-five members attended and Mrs. John Trigg Moss, vice regent, presided. address was made by Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, honorary State president, and Mrs. Arthur Wilson, State historian. Mrs. J. W. Harkins and Mrs. Ray Burns gave a musical program. Mrs. T. M. Rumsey and Miss Rumsey of Webster Groves were new members of the organization who were in attendance.

The Athena Delphian Chapter held its regular semimonthly meeting at the Cabanne Branch Library Monday evening at 8 p. m. on Jan. 12. "The Drama of the Elizabethan Age" furnished a very interesting subject for discussion, with Mrs. A. P. McPhee presiding. Miss Lulu Bridges gave a talk on the "Forerunners of Shakspeare," Mrs. W. C. McNutt on "Marlowe's Service to the Stage," and a reading from "Friar Bacon and Friar Bungay" by Miss Rosalie Nutt, concluded the program. The next meeting will be held Monday evening, Jan. 26, at 8 p. m.

The Delta Rho Beta held its first meeting of the new year at the home of Miss C. Bocka, 3315A Chippewa street, Jan. 10. The fourth anniversary of the club was celebrated, after which followed the election of officers. The February meeting will be held at the home of Miss A. Diesselhorst, Webster Groves.

The Margaret McLure Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, met Monday, Jan. 12. Mrs. Griswold and Miss Laura Philippi were hostesses at their home at 5245 Washington boulevard. A large number were present. At this

WANTED! 15,000 SUFFERERS FROM DEAFNESS
HEAD NOISES
Or Nasal Catarrh

DR. W. O. COFFEE, Noted Catarrh and Deafness Specialist

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from cartarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments. Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.

15,000 TREATMENTS TO BE GIVEN THIS MONTH FREE!

I am so proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I want to prove that my original home treatment will give relief from catarrhal deafness, head noises or nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing. You feel the difference the first day. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply write and say that you are suffering with deafness or head noises or catarrh I will gladly send the free treatment. It is the best treatment I have ever found in over 40 years daily practice as eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. I want every sufferer with deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or catarrh to try it free.

Don't Neglect Deafness

Catarrhal deafness, head noises and catarrh when neglected gradually grow worse. Authorities claim that 90% of all deafness is caused primarily by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that catarrh causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach and many other diseased conditions.

Try It Free

I don't ask you to send one penny for this treatment. I send it free to you prepaid without cost. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of catarrhal deafness, head noises or catarrh. I believe I treat more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. I know this treatment is the best I have ever used. Send your name and address today. State whether you have deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so write me at once.

Real Estate and Riches

It is an interesting fact that most of St. Louis' wealthy citizens are large owners of wealth-producing real estate.

Many of them bought it years ago and held it until the growth of the city and other fortunate circumstances have doubled its value.

Some people call the acquisition of wealth through increasing real estate values "luck." If so, it is luck that any man may enjoy by exercising common sense.

The men who have made fortunes in real estate are those who realized its value as an investment. They knew that population increases, city boundaries expand, but the amount of available real estate remains fixed. It was inevitable, therefore, that the men who owned the land should reap the benefits to which foresight entitled them.

But the ownership of profit-producing real estate is not a matter of the past. Present day opportunities in real estate will mean future wealth to buyers, which some one in years to come will undoubtedly call "luck."

Real estate in St. Louis is a wise investment. Sound values in city and suburban properties are listed today—every day—in the "Real Estate" columns of the Post-Dispatch.

Action now will mean comfort and independence for the future.

meeting, plans were completed for the annual ball to be given by the chapter Feb. 13 at the Chase Hotel. This and other U. D. C. chapters will co-operate with the Sons of Veterans in the exercises celebrating the birthday of Robert E. Lee to be held in the chapel of Westminster Presbyterian Church Monday evening, Jan. 19. A program has been arranged and a large attendance anticipated.

The St. Louis Shakspeare Drama Study Club met Thursday at 2 o'clock in the music room of Stix, Baer and Fuller Dry Goods Co. Owing to the illness of Mrs. Milton Sontheimer, president, Mrs. O. L. Ledman, the vice president, presided. The third act of Hamlet was read. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Sontheimer, 5639 Bartmer avenue, Jan. 22.

The Alpha Delphians met Tuesday, Jan. 13, at the Cabanne Branch Library, Mrs. W. H. Dickey, president, presiding. Mrs. E. H. Sager led the discussion of the lesson, Flemish Art. Those having texts were Miss Brady, and Mmes. Pleitsch, Brooks and Bridges.

Donald MacDonald will begin the fourth of a series of 10 conferences on current literature at Lindell Hall, 4146 Lindell boulevard, Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The subject for the first lecture will be Volumes 1 and 2 of Ladislas Reymont's "The Peasants." Included in the course will be "In a Shantung Garden," "Poetry of Walter de la Mare," "Culture Values," "The New Spoon River," and "Recent Biology." The lectures are open to the public.

The Kirkwood Study Hour Club met Jan. 13 with Mrs. W. C. Lindwall as hostess. Committee reports were as follows: Press and publicity, Mrs. J. E. Brock; applied education, Mrs. W. J. Van Nice; legislation, Mrs. A. W. Sanders. The program included a paper on "Mandates, Spheres of Influence on International Law," by Mrs. T. H. Heath. The club will meet Jan. 27 with Mrs. J. E. Brock.

Assisting Mrs. J. E. Allen, hostess at the legislative tea given last week by the Tuesday Club were Mmes. W. R. Chivvis, Charles F. Hanel, E. Grimmer, N. C. Presser, William S. Walter, N. C. Whaley and John Zahorsky. Mrs. W. H. Littlefield, president of the eighth district, greeted the speakers and guests. Because of illness, Charles A. Lee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was unable to attend, and his place was taken by John W. Boyd. Mrs. Roscoe Anderson represented the Missouri Women's Legislative Committee.

HEALTH—SUCCESS—PROSPERITY

Go Hand in Hand in Every Walk of Life

We are entering upon the most prosperous year in the history of the country. There is more building contemplated—more and better prices for all agricultural products—more manufacturing—better wages (excepting war time)—and more general business than in many years. Every able-bodied person, whether he be merchant, mechanic, farmer, banker, laborer, professional man, or the man retired with an abundance, should be in good health, that he may enjoy his share of the success and prosperity that goes or should go with every person in good health.

I treat and cure Piles, Fistula, Fissure or any rectal trouble under my guarantee to cure every case I accept, or not receive one cent for my services. To those who request it, I give terms just as I did Mr. Kaiser, whose letter appears below. Read this letter. He is truthful, and tells you better than I can, what there is in store for you, if you place your case in my hands. Hundreds of suffers have taken advantage of my easy terms.

One out of every eight adults is afflicted with rectal trouble in some form. The treatment of this trouble is my specialty. I do nothing else. Read Mr. Kaiser's letter and my card just below the letter, then come and consult me.

Dear Sir; I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for curing me of the piles. I had been troubled with same for the past six years, and they got so bad in July 1924 that I could not bear same any longer. I was recommended to you and from first treatment the last week in July I felt so much better, and though working every day, kept on improving until now I am interely cured. I most heartely reccomend your treatment to anyone desiring a sure cure, and especially to anyone who cannot leave his work while being treated, also your kindness and easy terms are wonderful for people who have the piles Again thanking you. Respectfully

ST. LOUIS FOLK AT PALM BEACH

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 17.—The opening of the social season at Palm Beach has found a good many St. Louis folk among those who go South to escape the winter. The season got in full swing Wednesday with the opening of the Royal Princess Hotel.

One of the outstanding events at the beginning of the season was the meeting of the Society of Arts, the roster of which includes many nationally known names, such as Edward T. Stotesbury, its president, of Uhiladelphia; Poris Singer, Henry Seligman, New York; John S. Pillsbury, Minneapolis. This society brings to Palm Beach an interesting number of programs on which notoble artists appear.

The first meeting was held at "White Hall" the former palace of Henry M. Flagler. This house was recently opened to "paying guests."

The Everglades Club, besides its golf links and tennis courts, sumptuous dining halls, orange gardens and picturesque patio, has a series of maisonettes in which families of members may live. There is also a group of cottages, one of which is at present occupied by Maxine Elliott and her niece, Jean Forbes-Robertson, daughter of Gertrude Elliott and the English actor, Forbes-Robertson.

Mr. and Mrs. Eberhard Anheuser of St. Louis are expected to arrive in Palm Beach soon, and will be at the Royal Poinciana.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brown of St. Louis arrived Monday at the Breakers and while they have not made definite plans as yet they will probably remain in Palm Beach for a few weeks, going to Miami and Cuba, returning later to Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Valler of 3650 Castleman avenue, St. Louis, with their four sons, Louis, Frank, Robert and Edward Valier, have been at their villa "Valinna" on Sea Spray avenue since the middle of December. Robert and Edward Valler are attending school at Ashville, N. C., while Louis and Frank Valler have entered school in Palm Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnston spent a few days at the Breakers Hotel.

Stopping at the Breakers for a few days on their way to Miami were Miss Evelyn Parson, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Whitehead, William Warren and Miss Bernice Beamer.

Miss Arthesma Downey of St. Louis is the guest of her uncle, Bernard Downey.

B. G. Brinkman and Gus Arendes are at the Breakers Hotel. Mr. Brinkman's family will join him later in the season.

Mrs. Earl Manzelmann and her son, Earl Manzelmann, of 416 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle G. Hall of Ridgeway, Pa., who have a cottage on Sea Spray avenue. Mrs. Manzelmann plans to remain in Palm Beach until April.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred N. Baker Jr. and his daughter, Esther Claire Baker of Webster Groves, with Mr. and Mrs. Everett Davis and his children, Everett Jr., Warren and June Davis, of 7147 Westmoreland Drive, have been at the Billows Hotel for several weeks.

On a fishing trip in the yacht Naomi, piloted by Capt. Foley, Mr. Baker landed a six-foot sail fish.

Mrs. Scott Marshall stopped off at the Billows for a few days before going to Miami.

and Mrs. G. B. Mangold, the same committee of the eighth district. Dr. Arthur Bostwick spoke on behalf of the library commission. The next meeting of the Tuesday Club will be held Jan. 20, when Dr. Otto Heller of Washington University will address the club.

The Press Committee of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, Jan. 13, at 10 o'clock in Vandervoort's auditorium. Mrs. W. R. Chivvis, former State president of women's clubs, spoke on "Press and Publicity Abroad, Particularly in Europe." Miss Jane Frances Winn spoke on press and publicity from the standpoint of the newspaper editor. Mrs. Fred Armstrong press chaiman for the eighth district, presided.

Select Your Automobile today!

There are two kinds of people in and around St. Louis—those who own automobiles and those who don't. Those in the one class are constantly increasing in number and those in the other are rapidly decreasing in number, due to the growing demand for individual transportation that combines comfort, convenience and a saving of time.

Those who have determined to enjoy the advantages of car ownership at some future time and those who are delaying purchase because of price will both find interesting values in the classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch today.

It is no secret that many dealers are overstocked with used cars at the present time. It is also generally understood that used car prices will increase with the annual demand that comes every Spring. It is logical, therefore, that money can be saved by the purchase of a good used car now, while dealers are anxious to clear their floors for new cars for Spring selling.

Thousands of enthusiastic owners of automobiles made their entry into the "big league" through a used car. Many of them bought a used car because it enabled them to buy at a price that meant immediate ownership rather than to wait and get a new car later. Others exercised wisdom in selection and got more for their money—perhaps a high-priced car, slightly used, at approximately the cost of a new car in the lower-priced class was the attraction.

A used car with a big reserve of unused mileage can be located best through the classified "Automobiles" columns of the Post-Dispatch today. Select yours now.

Let the "Used Car Week" Values Guide You to Economical Automobile Ownership

CAR PASSENGERS DECREASED IN 1924

United Railways Will Ask Increase in Fare If Decline Continues.

The number of passengers on St. Louis street cars in 1924 was 267,305,843, a decrease of 13,191,488 from the figure for 1923.

The number for the last three months of 1924, which included the holiday shopping season, was 66,344,240, a decrease of 4,550,861 from the same period in 1923.

United Railways officials have attributed the decrease mainly to motorbus competition, and have declared a higher street car fare will be necessary if the decrease continues. The average number of street cars operated on week-days for the last quarterly period of 1924 was 1367, and for Saturdays and Sundays 1183 and 611, respectively.

Examination for Nurses.

The Missouri State Board of Nurse Examiners will hold an examination for license as registered nurse Feb. 18 and 19, in Kansas City, and at 238 Municipal Courts Building, St. Louis. Applications may be obtained from Jannett Flanagan, secretary, 529 East High street, Jefferson City.

HISTORY OF JEWS IN CITY CONTAINED IN NEW ALMANAC

Biographical Sketches of Several Hundred Citizens in New Volume Just Out.

"The Jewish Almanac and Community Register," a volume of 256 pages devoted primarily to the Jews of St. Louis and their interests was issued this week by the Jewish Almanac Publishing Co. It is announced that a new edition is planned at the end of each two-year period.

The volume contains biographical sketches of several hundred leading St. Louis Jews and is profusely illustrated with photographs of prominent St. Louisans of various races, pictures and sketches of architectural and natural beauty spots of the city and departments devoted to Jewish and non-Jewish civic, religious and charitable activities.

A history of the Jews in St. Louis and America is also appended with biographies and sketches of nationally known Jews. There are articles on "The Jew, Yesterday and Today," "What about the Jews in America?" "Conditions of the Jews in Foreign Lands," "The Jews as Soldiers," "Nobel Prizes Received by Jews," and kindred subjects.

ADS COVER INNER WALLS OF FRENCH POSTOFFICES

Official Notices of Government Service Are Obscured—Advertisements on Telegraph Envelopes.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The Ministry of Posts and Telegraphs has developed a mania for advertising. The insides of postoffices are so covered over with advertisements that it is difficult to find the official notices regarding the postal services. The telegraph blanks were so covered with the persuasive efforts to make the public buy a certain automobile that complaints followed and the advertising is now confined to the outside of the envelopes. The little books of stamps contain small samples of linen in the hope of inducing the public to make shirts and other wearing apparel from a fine linen manufactured for war airplanes.

This energy brought the ministry into conflict with the Finance Department. During the issue of the recent loan checkbooks of the postal check service carried an eloquent plea from a pig breeder for the people to buy young pigs and rear them. "Pigs are a better investment than stocks or bonds of any kind," said the advertisement. Finance Minister Clementel protested, but was informed that the advertiser had a contract. "Break it," said M. Clementel, and eventually the advertiser was induced to change the wording to his plea.

The Semi-Annual Furniture Sale

Extensive Selections—Unprecedented Values

WE have never taken such pains to make a Semi-Annual Furniture Sale a success—we never were so well equipped to carry out an enterprise as this—and we never experienced a greater response to our announcement last week of three days' inspection.

WE have moved the date ahead to accommodate those planning to refurnish their homes and newly married couples—who await this sale with eager expectation—knowing of the great savings it affords. Come early Monday morning and make selections—space won't permit us to illustrate and tell you about everything.

WE want to impress upon you the fact that this Sale includes the newest Furniture arrivals and it is not our idea to put on special sale only those suites and odd pieces that have been in stock for some time. By selecting furniture during this sale you can save from

STUDY YOURSELF!

A load of worry, anxiety, uncertainty, etc., could be lifted from our minds were we less inclined to fault-finding!

Perfection in humans is not possible, neither is there a standard of everyday life.

Each of us has a different mode in the pursuit of happiness; no rule or set of rules will suffice.

We are creatures of circumstances; we are human and will err, but if we keep paramount in our minds that a clear conscience will never betray us, we can rest satisfied that our mistakes are of the head and not of the heart.

As we sow, so shall we reap!

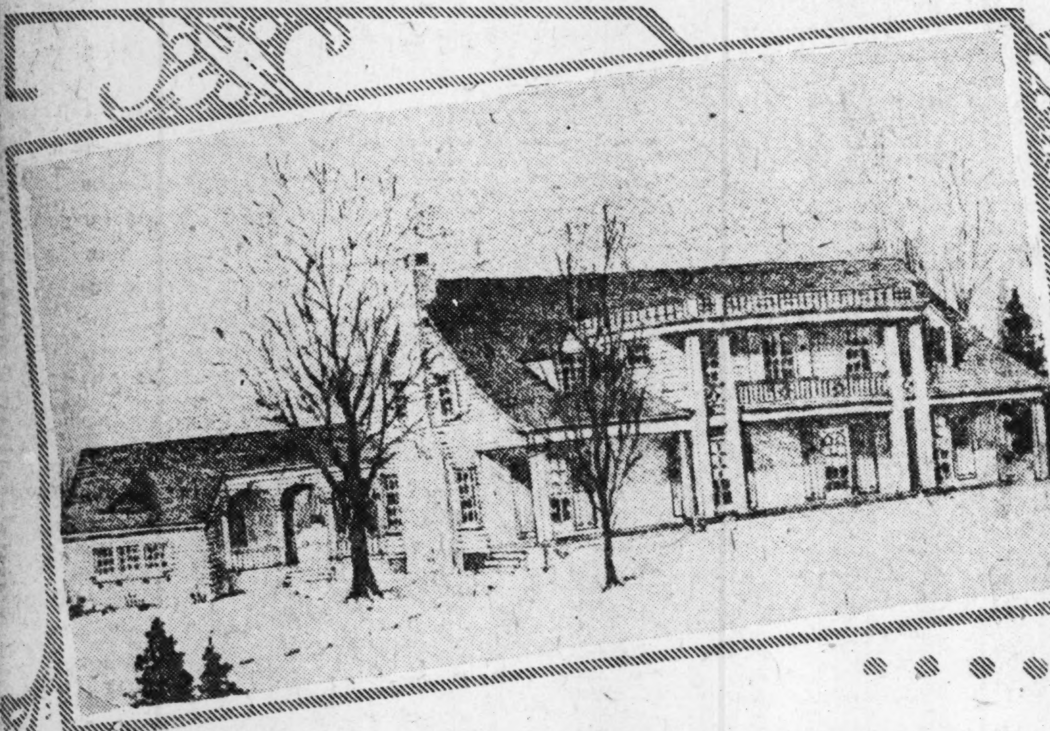
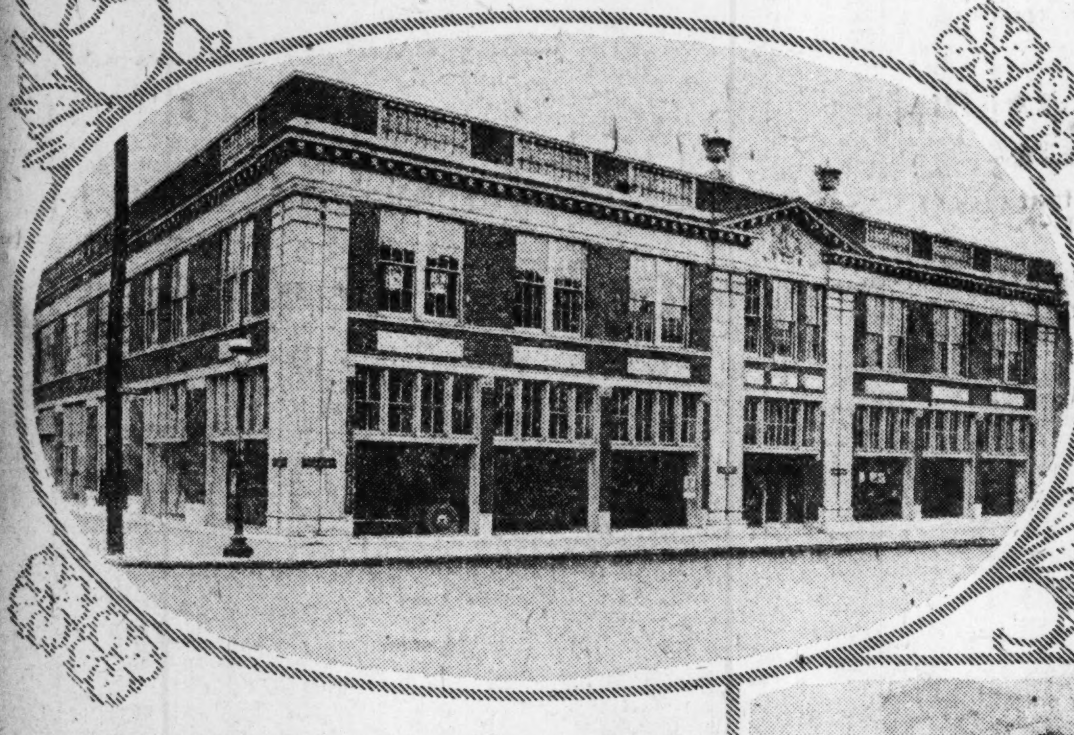
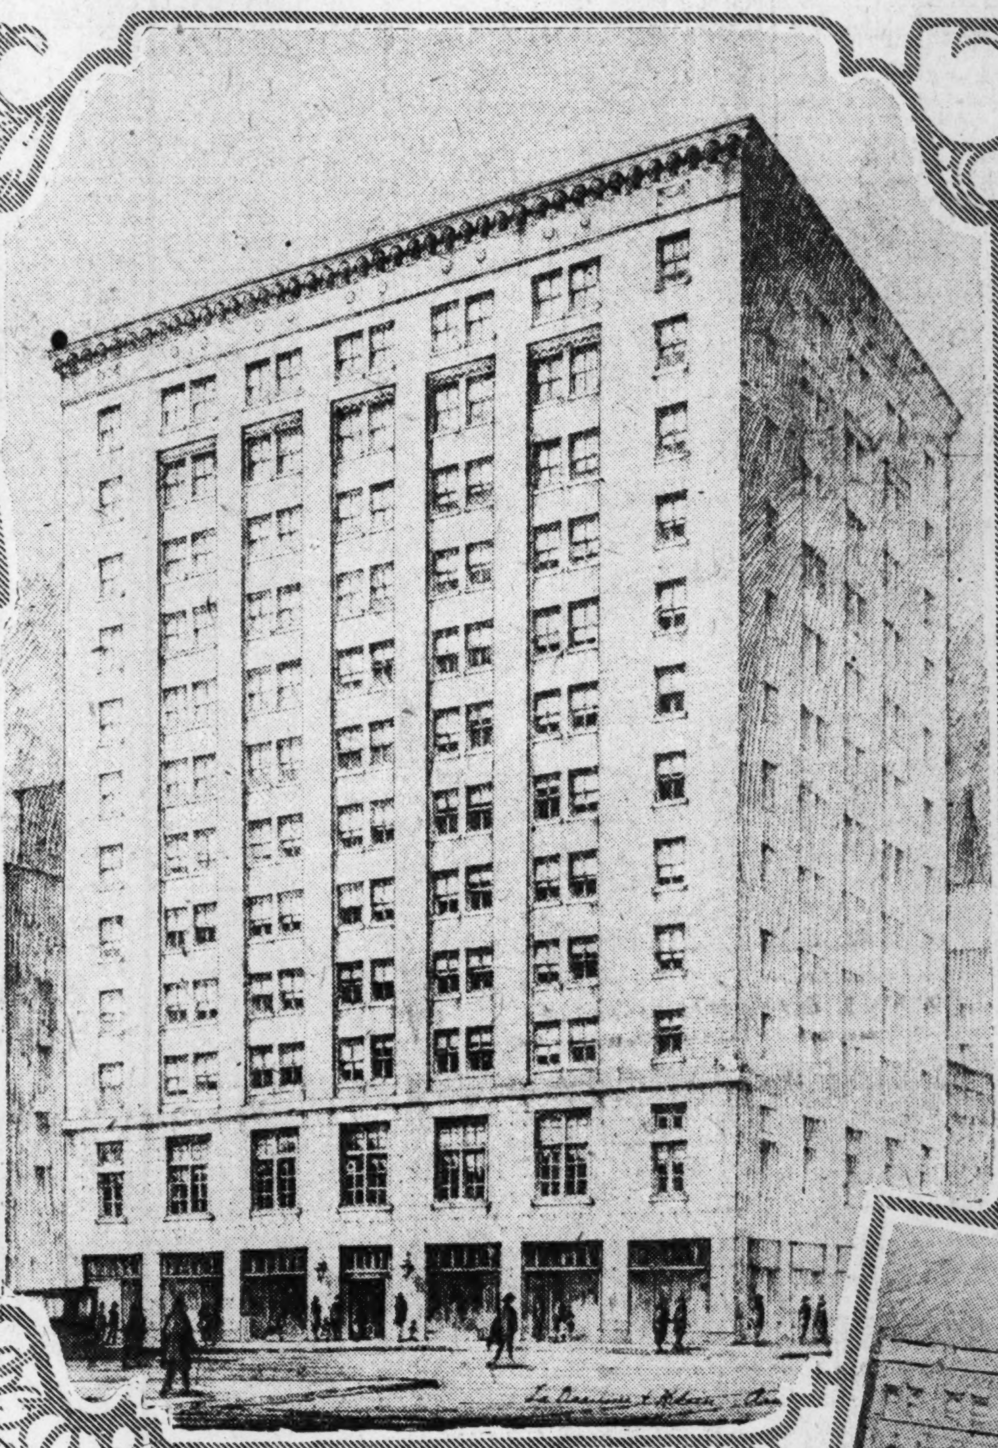
Proposed 12 Story Office Structure and Other Buildings in the Week's Real Estate News



Residence of Norman R. Comfort at the southwest corner of the Warson and Ladue roads, sold to Frederick W. Gardner.

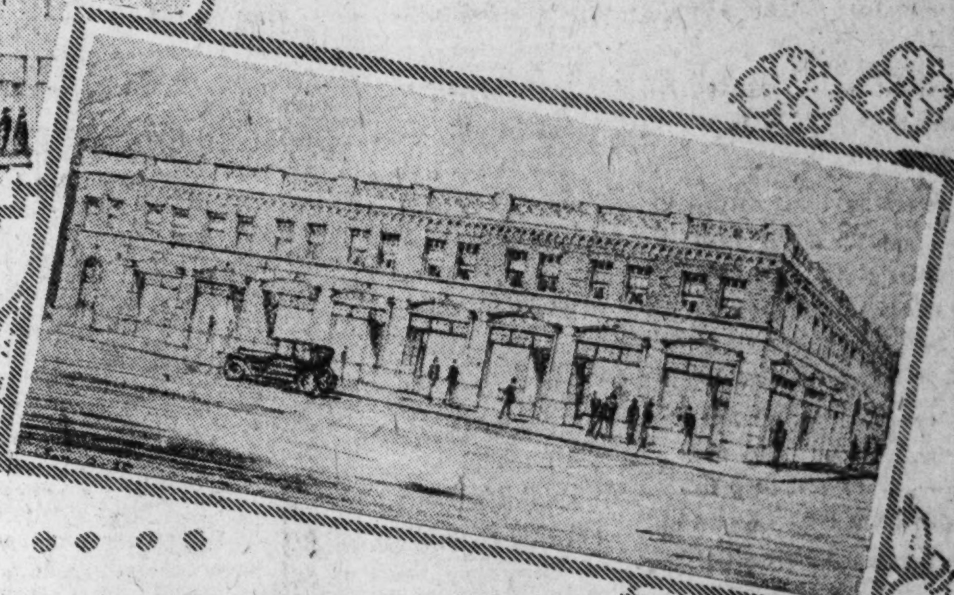


Building at the southwest corner of Locust street and Garrison avenue purchased by John N. Rarick, president of the Hoyle & Rarick Clothing Co.

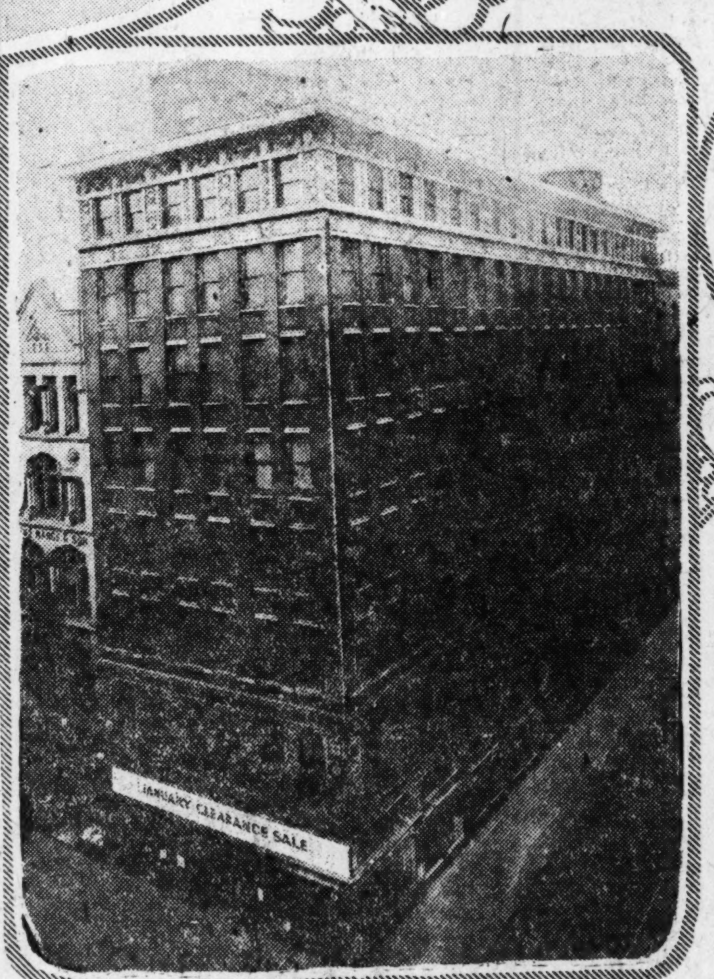


Perspective of 12-story office building to be erected at the southwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets by the Locel Realty Co. LaBeaume & Klein, architects.

Title Guaranty Building at the southwest corner Seventh and Chestnut streets, purchased by International Life Insurance Co. for a reported consideration of $1,750,000.



Design for building at Grand boulevard and Cozens avenue for the Carpenters' District Council. Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.



Two adjoining buildings at the northwest corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue, purchased by C. F Levy for the Hub Furniture Co. of which he is president.

Furniture Concern to Occupy Two 12-Story Fire-Proof Buildings

Structure at 705 Washington Av. to Be Replaced by 12-Story Building—Four Stories to Be Added to Hub Company's Present Site

By Berry Moore.

With plans perfected for two 12-story buildings, C. F. Levy yesterday purchased the eight-story fire-proof building at the northwest corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue, and the adjoining five-story building to the west, at 705 Washington avenue. The two buildings have a total frontage on Washington avenue of 70 feet by a depth of 150 feet on Seventh street.

Both buildings were owned by the Schoenberg Real Estate and Investment Co. The transaction was effected by Martin & Breitt. The amount involved was not disclosed.

Two Buildings to Join.

The eight-story building is occupied by the Hub Furniture Co., of which C. F. Levy is president, and to provide for the expansion of which the purchase was made. Building plans in this connection will be deferred, however, until the expiration of the lease under which the five-story building is occupied.

The five-story building is to be replaced with a new 12-story fire-proof structure, while four stories are to be added to the eight-story building. Plans provide for the consolidation of the two structures, which thus will embrace a total floor area of 136,000 square feet, and which will be twice the size of the present store. Cost is estimated at $500,000. Various new departments in the house furnishing line are to be included in the larger quarters, a furniture department store on a most comprehensive scale being contemplated, Levy declared.

Hub Co. Established 35 Years.

As the pioneer concern in the retail line on this thoroughfare, the Hub Furniture Co. was established 35 years ago at 610-12 Washington avenue, the original location of the Bolland Stationery Co., this section of the thoroughfare at that time being devoted to wholesale purposes.

Twelve years later the Hub Furniture Co. removed to larger quarters at the northeast corner of Broadway and Washington avenue, and 10 years later to the northwest corner of Ninth street and Washington avenue. Eight years ago, it removed to still larger quarters, embracing the entire eight-story building at Eighth and Washington avenue, now wholly inadequate.

This section of Washington avenue has been astir with new life with the completion of the Loew State Theater at the northeast corner of Eighth street and Washington avenue, promoted and financed by the Mercantile Trust Co.

Levy has been an aggressive force in real estate and building operations in St. Louis, as exemplified in the Claridge Hotel building enterprise at the northwest corner of Eighteenth and Locust streets, and numerous high-class apartment buildings in the West End.

NEW DEALS AFFECT BUSINESS DISTRICT

The week was productive of rather, an impressive number of deals involving large holdings in the business district.

A building at 1314-16 Washington avenue, occupied by the Corticelli Silk Co., was sold through the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. for the Fielding Realty Co., to the David Ranken Jr. School of Mechanical Trades, represented by the Mercantile Trust Co., for a price said to approximate $155,000.

The site has 50 feet on Washington and extends back 150 feet to St. Charles street, overlooking Lucas Garden. The Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. promoted the building several years ago for the occupation of the silk company.

Negotiations are being conducted through the Fletcher R. Harris Realty Co. for the Marquette Hotel Building at Eighteenth street and Washington avenue. Samuel Leavitt, a retired attorney at 745 Leland avenue, is said to be concerned in the purchase.

This is one of a number of large structures erected on upper Washington avenue 15 years or more ago, as a result of the activity of the Fletcher R. Harris Co. (then the McNair-Harris Realty Co.)

The Ben Altheimer & Bro. Realty Co. closed eight large sales and three leases, but details are withheld pending final papers. Members of the company are jubilant over the outlook.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co. announced sale of the residence of Norman R. Comfort to Frederick W. Gardner. Consideration was not disclosed.

$100,000 REPORTED AS PROFIT IN DEAL

Marshall Rhodes Said to Have Made Sum on Sale of Title Guaranty Building.

Through the sale of the Title Guaranty Building to the International Life Insurance Co., Marshall Rhodes of the Rhodes Realty Co. is represented to have reaped a profit of $100,000 or more, although his name did not figure in the conveyance made by the Seventh and Chestnut Realty Co., in which Paul Brown held practically all the stock.

Rhodes paid Brown $5000 for an option to purchase the building at a stipulated price two months ago, with a view to reselling it to the insurance company, which was in the market for a building of this character. The price reported to have been paid by the insurance company was $1,750,000, which included as part payment a six-story office building at Decatur, Ill., owned by the Standard Life Insurance Co., recently consolidated with the International Life Insurance Co.

The International company acquired the Title Guaranty Building subject to a deed of trust of $800,000 held by the Mercantile Trust Co. as trustee for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and which was made in connection with the transaction.

Prior to entering the real estate business several years ago, Rhodes worked for a transfer company. He has promoted a number of large apartment building projects with notable success.

The Title Guaranty Building occupies a lot with 153 feet 10 inches on Chestnut street and 109 feet on Seventh street. It was erected about 20 eyars ago, but was recently remodeled and equipped with new elevators. Isaac T. Cook & Co., has had the management of the building for several years and represented Brown in the transaction with Rhodes.

$1,000,000 BUILDING PROGRAM ANNOUNCED BY SECURITY CO.

The Security Guarantor Realty Co., Inc., ownerand developer of Russell Park addition, announces a building and improvement campaign for early spring which will exceed $1,000,000.

The company has buildings under construction and ready for occupancy with a value of more than $500,000.

Russell Park has every advantage in point of location, transportation, schools and churches.

LARGE BUILDING SOLD BY WEISELS-GERHART

Clothing Company Buys Structure at Locust and Garrison Avenue.

Sale was announced yesterday by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., of the building and site at the southwest corner of Locust boulevard and Garrison avenue, to John N. Rarick, of the Hoyle & Rarick Clothing Co., a client of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust for a reported consideration of $150,000.

The site has a frontage of 100 feet on Locust, by a depth of 134 feet 8 inches on Garrison avenue, the improvements consisting of a substantial two-story and basement fireproof building covering the lot, approximately 40,000 square feet.

The building, which was erected from plans by Preston J. Bradshaw, is under lease to the Southwest-Nash Motor Co., which occupies the entire frontage on Locust street. The building is equipped with a large automobile elevator.

1924 SET RECORD IN NEW BUILDING

Dun's Report Shows Increase Over 1923 of 3.5 Per Cent in U. S.

A new high record in value of building permits issued in the United States was attained last year, with an aggregate of $2,543,223,000 for 97 cities reporting to Dun's Review. This is 3.5 per cent more than the amount for 1923, when the previous maximum was established, and geographical analysis of the returns shows that only in the Central Western and Pacific Coast sections were there any reductions from the figures for the earlier year.

The decreases, moreover, were small, being 1.7 per cent in the Central West and 3.0 per cent on the Pacific Coast. For the centers outside of New York City which are included in the statement, the value of last year's permits—$1,760,901,000—discloses an increase of 2.5 per cent, with gains of 12.1 per cent in New England, 12.6 per cent in the Middle Atlantic States, 4.2 per cent in the Southern group and 1.9 per cent in the Western States.

In Greater New York, permits were granted involving an estimated expenditure of $782,322,000, which is 5.8 per cent more than the value reported for 1923. Aside from Brooklyn, where a falling off of 17.7 per cent occurred, larger amounts were recorded at all boroughs, although the increase in Queens was very small. The most pronounced gain was one of 44.7 per cent in Manhattan, while in Richmond the value of permits rose 33.3 per cent.

A further examination of the statistics shows increases at a number of the larger cities, some of which are as follows: Boston, $11,400,000; Philadelphia, $15,400,000; Baltimore, $3,500,000; Detroit, $33,600,000; Milwaukee, $4,200,000; Portland, Ore., $4,000,000; Seattle, $4,200,00. On the other hand, there were decreases of $3,000,000 at Kansas City, Mo.; $1,600,000 at St. Louis; $32,700,000 at Chicago; $1,850,000 at Cincinnati; $8,000,000 at Minneapolis; $15,100,000 at St. Paul; $8,800,000 at Los Angeles, and $11,200,000 at San Francisco.

The detailed record of the value of building permits issued in the United States for the last two years is compared herewith:

	1924.	1923.
N. England	$110,750,000	$99,228,000
Mid Atlantic	302,800,000	269,227,000
Southern	273,800,000	260,920,000
Cent. West	757,660,000	770,474,000
Western	53,444,000	51,582,000
Pacific	160,629,000	166,236,000
Total	$1,760,901,000	$1,717,678,000
New York	782,322,000	739,201,000

PROPERTY AT SEVENTH AND MORGAN STS. CHANGES HANDS

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. announces the sale of the northwest corner of Seventh and Morgan streets to William Kohn. The property has a front of 57 feet on Morgan street by a depth of 81 feet on Seventh and is improved with a three-story building containing five stores and tenements, yielding an annual rental of $7200. The corner is located just north of the Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., two blocks from Washington avenue. The fact that Morgan street is to be widened, the erection of the new Union Market, and the contemplated erection of the 12-story annex to the Stix, Baer & Fuller Co., were factors in the purchase of this property by Mr. Kohn.

The Hasgall Realty & Investment Co. was the seller in the transaction.

TAILORING FIRM TAKES 10-YEAR LEASE ON LARGER QUARTERS

Kohler & Romer, tailors, for 23 years in the Carleton Building, will move to the southwest corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, in part of the building owned by Thomas Dunn.

Contractors are making alterations and equipping the second floor, which has an area of 5000 square feet, with modern tailoring facilities. The firm expects to open the new quarters about Feb. 1. A 10-year lease has been taken on the property.

The firm is controlled by William J. and William S. Romer. The Mercantile Trust Co. represented all parties in the transaction.

SEVENTH STREET STORE LEASED FOR CLOTHING SHOP

Martin and Breitt report having negotiated a lease on the store and second floor at 226 North Seventh street to the Malcolm Clothing Co. The place will be opened in the spring as a men's wear store, with other lines of merchandise. It is the intention of the company to install fixtures of the very latest type.

The property is leased for the account of the Weil Clothing Co. Martin and Breitt represented both parties.

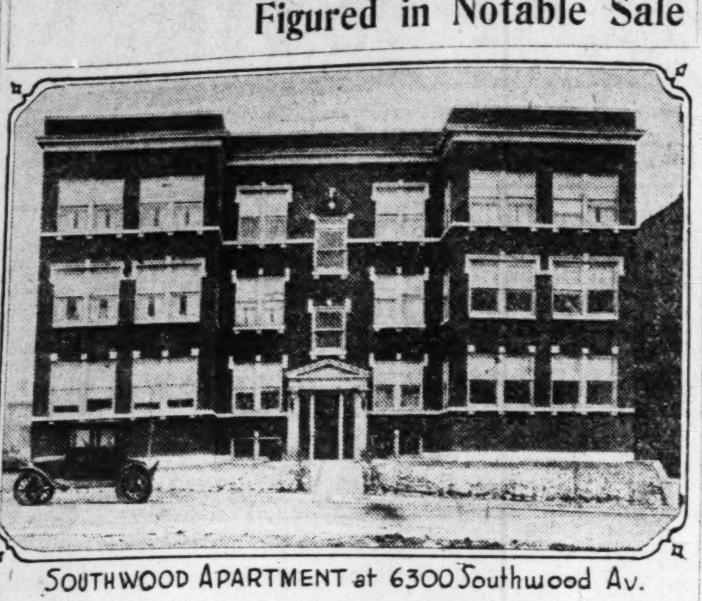
KESSLER NEGOTIATES LEASE ON FRANKLIN AV. PROPERTY

A long term lease has been negotiated by Sam Kessler for M. Finkelstein of the Finkelstein Dress Co. on four stores and 33 flats on the northwest corner of Eighteenth street and Franklin avenue. Finkelstein plans to spend at least $25,000 improving the property.

DWELLINGS AND TENANT PROPERTY SOLD BY FRANCISCUS

The Franciscus Realty Co. reports the following sales for last week: Two 35-foot lots on Kossuth avenue in the Lee-Mar subdivision; six houses at 200-02-04-06-08-10 South Leffingwell avenue; tenant property on High and Biddle streets.

Southwood Apartments, Which Figured in Notable Sale



SOUTHWOOD APARTMENT at 6300 Southwood Av.

A NOTABLE sale of the week was that of the Southwood apartments at 6300 Southwood avenue, to Jack Rosenblatt through the Sol Goldman Real Estate Co. The grantors in the transaction were Rae and Isaac Agatstein.

The building comprises six suites, each with eight rooms and two baths and is one of the most attractive of its type in this part of the city. The consideration was not disclosed.

J. I. EPSTEIN & SON SELL RESIDENCE FOR $21,650

J. I. Epstein and Son report the sale of 6946 Pershing avenue, one of the two beautiful nine-room residences offered by them for sale on the south side of Pershing avenue and within a few doors of Pennsylvania avenue, being in the heart of the exclusive Ames place district, a thoroughly well-built three-story house. The size of the lot is the other thing adding to the appearance of this residence, a width of 50 feet being augmented by a depth of 130 feet and running all the way from Pershing to University drive, there being a 30-foot brick alley in the rear where a double brick garage will be built with tile roof to match the house. Frank K. Ashby of Charleston, Mo., was the purchaser and will move here as soon convenient to occupy his new home. The consideration was $21,650.

Also sold 537 acres in Wayne County, Ill., for the Aetna Life Insurance Co. to a client of the office. This tract is located on the Southern Railroad, 30 miles east of Mount Vernon, is all in cultivation and is improved with a 10-room residence, two barns and a cattle scale, being ideal cattle land and also for the cultivation of hay, corn and oats. Also sold the six-family apartment building at 730 Heman avenue in Delmar Garden for account of A. G. Faster to a client of Jones Bros. Real Estate Co. In addition, the firm made loans during the past week aggregating $125,000.

47-ACRE TRACT PURCHASED BY A. R. SCHOLLMEYER CO.

The A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. has purchased from the trustees of the Robert E. Carr estate, represented by C. Jeter Robinson, 47 acres on Watson road, bounded by Penrod avenue, Marquette avenue and by the proposed Hampton boulevard outlined by the City Plan Commission, and which will extend from Forest Park to Gravois road.

It is the intention of the Schollmeyer company to install full improvements in this tract, including hard surfaced streets, and to restrict the property. Reservations are now being made, subject to acceptance of the plat by the city. Pitzman's company will have charge of the work of installing the improvements. Arrangements are under way for financing building operations.

GROVER C. JENNINGS TO OPEN NEW OFFICE

Grover C. Jennings, formerly a member of the Voss-Jennings-Winter Realty Co. at 2322 North Union boulevard, will open an office at 2403 North Union boulevard, where he is now erecting a building for his own use.

He was originally connected as a salesman with Ed L. Kuhs Realty Co. and is well known in realty circles.

NEW OFFICE BUILDING FOR 11TH AND LOCUST

Plans for Twelve-Story Building Practically Completed.

Plans for a new office building on the southwest corner of Eleventh and Locust street have been practically completed by the architects, La Beaume & Klein, and construction work will start after the wrecking of the present three-story structure on Feb. 15th.

The property is owned by the Louderman Realty Co., consisting of Messrs. W. M. & H. B. Louderman. The site measures 84 feet on Locust street and 106 feet on Eleventh street, extending to the alley. The plans prepared by La Beaume & Klein, architects, call for a building of simple and dignified design, 12 stories high. The first story will be arranged for commercial purposes, and the upper floors will be divided into the most convenient arrangements for office suites. Several floors have already been leased. First and second floors will be faced with limestone on the exterior, and the shaft of the building will be brick with limestone or terra cotta trimmings.

The general contract for the work has been let to the James Black Masonry & Contracting Co. The owners of the building are the Locel Realty Co. Financing of the project was arranged by the First National Co.

MIDWEST SUPPLY TO BUY PLOT THROUGH GRETHER CO.

Through John Grether & Co., the Midwest Piping & Supply Co. has recently purchased 330 feet on the south line of Barry street at the southeast corner of Second street.

This is the last of several parcels purchased by this company through John Grether & Co. for its plant at Second Kosciusko, Miller and Barry streets, which now gives a total frontage of 420 feet on the east side of Second street, running back to Kosciusko street.

On the property last purchased, a modern fire-proof building of daylight construction which conforms in design with the other building unit, has just been completed; the area of this new unit is 120 by 300 feet. It represents an investment exclusive of equipment of $200,000. Klipstein & Rathmann were the architects and the Fruin-Colnon Co. the contractors.

WENZLICK COMPANY SELLS APARTMENT AND FLATS

The Wenzlick Real Estate Co. reports the following sales: 4059-61 Hartford street, double flat, renting for $180 a month, for Frank Pfeffer to H. C. CARPENTERS COUNCIL TO ERECT NEW BUILDING IN WEST END

The new building of the Carpenters' District Council will be located on property purchased some time ago by the council on the southwest corner of Grand and Cozens avenues. The building fronts 125 feet on Grand avenue and 120 feet on Cozens avenue, and will be thoroughly fire-proof and of modern construction in all respects.

The plans and specifications have been prepared by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, and bids have been taken.

Contracts are being awarded at the present time. The building will be erected by the separate contract method, under direction and superintendency of the office of the architect.

The property when completed will represent an investment of approximately $250,000.

The building will be two stories in height; the two street facades will be richly ornamented with terra cotta above a stone base course up to the second floor window sill line. Above this extends a band of matt brick topped off with a terra cotta cornice and parapet.

There will be on the ground floor eight shops on Grand avenue and two shops on Cozens avenue. In the rear portion of the first floor provision is made for a large bowling alley and billiard room.

On the second floor of the building on Grand avenue side there will be a large number of offices available for rental to the general public. The balance of the second floor will be arranged as club rooms, headquarters and offices for the Carpenters' District Council.

O. M. GOLLER AND W. B. GEDNEY FORM REALTY PARTNERSHIP

Oscar M. Goller and Walter B. Gedney have formed a partnership to deal in general real estate and building work and have opened an office at 3407 Gravois avenue. They will specialize in listing property, insurance and a general line of building.

Goller has been connected in the real estate business for some time and Gedney has been associated in building work for 20 years.

The new firm has several contracts under construction and expects to have several more under way in the next week.

RAYMOND M. HENLEY CO. MOVES REALTY OFFICES

The Raymond M. Henley Co. announces the removal of its offices from 338 East Adams avenue, Kirkwood, to the Kirkwood Bank building, Kirkwood road and Adams avenue.

The Henley company is specializing in the sale and development of property in and near Kirkwood and the unprecedented demand for properties in this locality forces their removal to larger quarters. They are now equipped to handle the real estate business in all phases and are giving particular attention to the erection of new homes.

Construction Increases in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Chicago building permits in January will beat the record figures of January, 1924, by $2,500,000, according to an estimate of Fred W. Armstrong, manager of the Citizens' Committee to Enforce the Landis Award. Permits issued for the first 15 days of the month total $8,230,000, including a $3,000,000 department store project.

MACKLER ESTATE SELLS APARTMENT FOR $65,000

The Froebel Realty Co. has just completed the sale of the Congress apartments at 5605-07 Etzel avenue and 5604-06 Julian avenue, for the Jacob Mackler estate to a client of the Joseph Darst Realty Co. The building comprises three apartments of six rooms, six apartments of five rooms, and three apartments of four rooms. The building faces on two streets and a parkway. The consideration is reported to be $65,000.

The Froebel company has just completed the construction of four new, up-to-date bungalows of five rooms each at 4302-4316 Michigan avenue. Two of these have already been sold, one to F. J. Teszars and one to George Bohrer.

Other recent sales are at 3157 School street, a single flat, for the account of L. Sherman to Thelma Knox; 4216 Page boulevard, a 13-room residence, for the heirs of the Laura Marmor estate to Louis Menkel and Dora Menkel; 4717 Lewis place, a seven-room bungalow, sold to Max Bronstrein for F. Lynn Remley and Sam Hoffman to Aaron Goodman and wife; Twentieth and Washington streets, Granite City, Ill., for the account of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., to a client.

GRAND-FRANKLIN CORNER LEASED FOR LARGE STRUCTURE

The northeast corner of Grand boulevard and Franklin avenue, it is understood, has been acquired under a 99-year lease by interests having plans for a large structure.

The lease, it was stated, was effected by the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., which is to finance the building enterprise.

Excavation work is now under way preparatory to construction.

The site was formerly occupied by the building of the Central Y. M. C. A., owners of the fee. It has 169 feet on Franklin and 103 feet on Grand.

Witness to Will Sought.

County Clerk Hoerr of Belleville received a letter yesterday from a Chicago law firm offering a large reward for the identification of a missing witness to the $6,000,000 bequest of Edwin B. Jennings, an eccentric millionaire, who died in Chicago Oct. 31, 1923. According to the letter, the name of the second witness in the will of the late millionaire on the document is illegible. He is said to have been a distinguished looking, elderly man, who addressed the testator familiarly by his first name, "Ed."

Gentlemen:—
I have just made up our yearly statement concerning my wife's property, which is in your care. On the whole it is very good, and we both appreciate your services, which have been excellent.
We want to thank you again for your interest and the splendid management that you have accorded us, and with the best wishes for the season, I remain,
Yours sincerely,
REV. ADOLPHUS KISTLER.

The above is a copy of letter received from one of our clients who owns the northwest corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, a four-story store and office building. We publish this letter with pride.

If you desire efficient and experienced men to serve you in the management of your real estate, place your property with us. We render superior service.

Canada

MAKE more money on a small farm in San Joaquin Valley, Cal., where you can work outdoors all the year. Splendid opportunities here for the man of moderate means. Twenty and 40-acre farms produce alfalfa abundantly. Dairying, hogs and poultry make good returns; and staple varieties of fruits yield dependable profits; a combination of these means a well-balanced farm with good income throughout the year. Winterless California offers much to the man looking for a country where he can get the most out of life. Climate is delightful, with long growing seasons; wonderful roads, excellent schools. Nearby markets and co-operative marketing associations afford profitable outlets for all produce. A small one-family farm, cutting out high labor costs, insures success. There are no winter handicaps. Son Joaquin Valley illustrated folder mailed free on request. C. L. Seagraves, General Colonization Agent, Santa Fe Ry., 946 Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill. (cx99)

MARINES TO STAY ON GUARD IN NICARAGUA UNTIL SEPT. 1

Central American Government Requested Continuance, Pending Organization of New Force.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The legation guard of 100 American Marines, which has been maintained in Nicaragua since 1918, will remain there until Sept. 1, according to an announcement today by the State Department, which let it be known that the Marines are being retained at Managua at the request of the Nicaraguan Government, pending the organization of a new national guard.

Officials of the Nicaraguan Government, according to a formal communication made public in connection with the announcement, fear tht the immediate withdrawal of the American Marines would furnish a temptation to certain factions in that country to make trouble. Orders had been issued by the Navy Department for the U. S. S. Rainbow to pick up the Marines enroute from San Francisco to Philadelphia. These orders contemplated the withdrawal of the Marines sometime next month. Under the new arrangement, the Nicaraguan Government will take immediate steps to organize a new national guard, the American Marines serving as instructors and putting them through intensive training during the next seven months.

NEW MAIL PLANE 7 TIMES SIZE OF THE PRESENT CRAFT

Congressional Committee Hears of Machine Which Has Been Tested in Night Flying.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A mail airplane, with a capacity seven times that of vehicles now in use, has completed successful night flight tests by the Postoffice Department, Clarence D. Chamberlin, president of an aerial express service at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., testified today before the congressional subcommittee investigating the nation's military and commercial air resources.

The new craft, Chamberlin said, uses a standard Liberty motor, and, with an improved body and wing structure, promises to cut the cost of air mail transportation from $2.63 a ton mile to 35 cents a ton mile, as compared with an estimated cost of about 25 cents for similar service by land truck.

Today's session of the subcommittee concluded its hearings here. It will be resumed at Washington next Monday and, unless the appearance of new witnesses requires its return to New York for addition testimony, a report will be ready to Congress by Feb. 13.

SENATE DEBATES GIVING ISLE OF PINES TO CUBA

McCormick of Illinois Presents Administration's Case in Plea for Ratification of Treaty.

SEES HONOR OF U. S. AT STAKE

Finds Rough Going for Pact Against Senator Borah, Who Leads Opposition to Approval.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17. — The case of the administration for the ratification of the Isle of Pines treaty with Cuba was laid before the Senate today by Senator McCormick of Illinois, who declared that the treaty would have been approved years ago but for the active lobbying of Americans financially interested in the island. McCormick was repeatedly interrupted by Senators Borah of Idaho; Willis of Ohio, Ralston of Indiana, and others opposed to ratification.

In one of several colloquial bouts which enlivened the debate, McCormick, who likes to air his erudition, bowed to a superior display of knowledge by Senator King of Utah.

"As Metternich remarked," said McCormick, " 'the purpose of language is to conceal thought.' "

"No," piped up King. "It was Talleyrand."

McCormick, however, scored at the expense of the lawyers of the Senate. Their quibbling over the terms of the treaty, he said, made it plain how a technical flaw in an indictment often enabled a criminal to escape merited punishment. Telling of the difficulties in the way of ratification, McCormick eulogized Senator Borah, the leading opponent of the treaty, as the "most redoubtable opponent that any man may meet on the floor of the Senate, one of the most learned, one of the most fearless, one of the most popularly beloved, and certainly the most eloquent Senator of our time."

Rough Going Against Borah.

Against the redoubtable Borah, whose antagonism to the treaty was not mitigated by the encomium, McCormick had rough going, but he managed to bring out clearly the arguments in favor of the treaty.

"The record shows," he said, "that this treaty long since would have been ratified if, 20 years ago, a handful of land speculators had not bought, for a pittance, vast tracts of land in the Isle of Pines and sold them in small parcels and at fat profits to good people in almost every quarter of the United States.

"This treaty long ago would have been ratified if those land sharks had not advertised to their dupes that the Isle of Pines had become American soil, not by any act of Congress, not by the explicit terms of any treaty ratified by the Senate, not in the expressed judgment of the Secretary of War, the Secretary of State, the Attorney-General or the Supreme Court, but on the sole opinion of one Meiklejohn, a forgotten Assistant in the Department of War."

Apart from all other considerations, McCormick said, the United States was under obligation to give to Cuba a clear title to the Isle of Pines in return for the naval base established by this Government at Guantanamo. He declared that the island had been an integral part of the territory of Cuba from remote times, and that it was recognized as such under the administration of Cuba by Gen. Wood.

"Policy, justice, honor, all call for the ratification of the treaty," said McCormick. "The historical, legal and moral title of Cuba to the island is so clear, that rejection of the treaty by the Senate will not be construed as a mere difference between the Senate and the executive, but rather as a callous indifference on our part to the rights of a sister republic, unable to assert those rights against the mighty colossus of the North.

Injury in Latin America.

"The defeat of this treaty will not only impair the beneficent influence of the United States in Cuba, it will injure us in all Latin America. At the very moment when American Marines have been ordered to withdraw from Nicaragua, and almost at the hour when, by treaty, we are to confirm their wise withdrawal from the Dominican republic, it will give color to the charges made against us, that we have little regard for the rights of the weaker states in the Caribbean; it will add greatly to the number of those in Latin America who voice their distrust of us.

"The failure of the treaty must inevitably harm our credit and commerce in this hemisphere, but far worse impair our influence and challenge our honor in all the other republics of the Americas."

High Feeling, But No Disorder, on Isle of Pines.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—Feeling between Americans and Cubans in the Isle of Pines, over discussion in the United States Senate of the Hay-Quesada treaty, has caused no manifestation other than talk by certain Cubans against an American-owned newspaper there which has taken the stand that the Isle of Pines is American, it was said today by Dr. De la Torre, Undersecretary of Interior.

Reports published in Havana that certain Cubans had "tried to destroy the newspaper" were declared by the Under-secretary to be without foundation. At the United States embassy nothing had come from the American Consul in the Isle of Pines to indicate any disorder.

Dr. Cosme de la Torriente, Cuban Ambassador to the United States, who has been on a visit here for the holidays, left today to resume his post. He desires to be in Washington during the final debate in the Senate on the Isle of Pines treaty.

Significant Bits of St. Louis Beauty Offered in Black and White Show at Artists' Guild

35 Workers Submit Upward of 100 Etchings, Drawings and Paintings in First Post-Dispatch Competitive Exhibit.

Significant bits of St. Louis beauty—intimate lyricism, industrial energy, picturesque decay, and classic remainders of ante-bellum tradition—are revealed in the First Annual Post-Dispatch Black and White Competitive Exhibition, which was opened to the public in the Artists' Guild galleries yesterday.

Secondary only to that significance is the interest of St. Louis artists, workers in black and white, 35 of whom have submitted upward of 100 works in diverse media in this first Black and White show.

The Post-Dispatch offered a first prize of $250, a second of $100 and a third of $50 for the three best works in black and white, from a St. Louis subject and that offer has placed the names of many new exhibitors as well as several more familiar ones upon the catalogue.

Some, Perhaps Much, Fumbling.

There is some—perhaps much—fumbling. Than black and white there is no more difficult medium. There are upon the walls paintings and water colors in black and white etchings, charcoal pen and pencil drawings, and wood cuts which have a genuine esthetic interest and emotion. Such colorists as E. H. Wuerpel and Oscar E. Berninghaus have turned to black and white with unusual and interesting effect. Among those less frequently in exhibition catalogues are J. J. Eppensteiner, George W. Jaeger and Sheila Burlingame who have done unusual and stunning, yet sound, things.

Berninghaus is essentially the painter of nature with the human accents but incidental to the greater rhythms. And that fact which has made him well known as a painter of the spirit of the west is emprasized in his two water colors in black and white, "The Ferry Boat" and "In the Country." The former glimpses the discharging boat at the levee, the big teams, the bales and boxes it unloads. A deck hand is piling goods boxes. A roustabout drones and dreams upon the pile. There is the space of the mile-wide Mississippi and of a leaden sky. But it doesn't quite take. The boat is an accident. Next to it Wallace Bassford's levee scene, although scarcely achieving its Eads Bridge, gives far more the spirit of the levee. But with "In the Country" where the painter has sweep for his feeling of nature even in its harsh moods, where the huddle of farm buildings, the dreary, decrepit, old farmhouse, and the naked trees are but incident to wintry sky and desolation, Berninghaus has painted with a sweep that accents the rhythms of Time itself, and achieves one of the finest things in the show.

Wuerpel's "The Lagoon."

Wuerpel is represented by "The Lagoon," a glimpse of placid evening in Forest Park, looking across the water to Art Hill. It is a nocturne of Whistlerian grays in tone, the graceful green trees mirrored in dreaming waters, with the sweep of the hill, the beauty of the museum in silhouette, and bands of narrow cloud across the sunset sky pricked out with edging of silvery white.

Eppelsheimer is a striver, a seeker, who has in a quaint platlike idiom achieved a denial of Williard Hamilton Wright's dictum that: "Mere lines are unable to produce a sensation of recession or advancement." From the towers of St. Francis' Church on Meramec avenue he has painted a glimpse of South St. Louis looking toward the gas-tank and the river. Heavy black lines not only demark his houses, his trees, his streets; they give a third dimension, a solidity, a being. It is picturesque, it is quaint and charming, but it is an authentic bit of painting with a real emition to convey.

George W. Yeager, formerly in the Post-Dispatch art room, cuts wood blocks after duties with the Juvenile Court as an investigator. His one exhibit is a levee scene. It is expressionist in mood. Toiling black roustabouts carry heavy bags or trundle trucks from gangway to the wharf. One loafs and watches. But under the loose garments one sees the play of shining, sweating muscle. His people are realized. Out of the flat block he has carved atmosphere and life.

Mrs. Burlingame's Exhibit.

So, too, has Mrs. Burlingame, whose exhibits also are in that difficult medium. There are several glimpses of St. Louis color in her showing, bits of quaint or classically serene architecture and two figure pieces, "The Pain-Killer," a negro peddler of nostrums on Market street, and "Biddle Street," a glimpse of two be-shawled Italian women at a fruit stand. A fine sense of decoration is in her cut of "Twelfth Street Yards."

Another who has found in St. Louis delightful glimpses of the picturesque is R. A. James whose pencil conveys them in sure-skilled line, and whose "Biddle Street" is almost Old World in its charm.

Charles K. Gleeson has painted, drawn, and etched for the show. His "Municipal Dock," in oil, teems with industry along the river, and emphasizes the loading barges, the great cranes and an incidental tug. In silhouette is a drawing of a "Loading Steamboat," with the sleepy river and its toilers seen in mist. In the more familiar medium of etching, he has many exhibits among them "The Kingshighway Churches," "Olive Street," "The Courthouse," the "Christ Church Reredos," and that "Return of the Warriors," which in its narrow confines has all the sweep of mad emotion which welcomed home the World War veterans.

Other Sketches.

Tom Barnett is not so happy in his "Temple Israel," a bit of snowscape, in which his architectural training asserts an architectural draughtsmanship. It lacks the freedom of his color work, and seems cramped. Augusta Finkelberg's studies of cranes and pelicans in Forest Park are marked by charming humor, and a nice sense of decoration, but lack simplification in design. Wallace Bassford has several architectural sketches, happiest of which is that of "The College Church" for lyricism and delicacy rather than architectural strength mark his work. C. M. Peter, with his "Twelfth Street Yards" presents a snowscape against which switches, box-like buildings, box cars and oil tankers develop a remarkable sense of sleeping power in transportation.

Eloise Wells is delightful in the mood of her "Kindergarten Maypole," a pencil sketch in which the gayety and innocence of toddlers is deftly conveyed, and her glimpse of the St. Louis School of Fine Arts has a nice decorative sense. Val Vogel's "Principia" might be out of Poe. Harry Marbain catches the spirit of industry and the beauty of feathery steam against heavy smoke in his "South From the Free Bridge," a theme that Lillian Thoele has developed in a pleasing variant, as has Gustav F. Goetsch.

Cornelia Mowry's pen drawing of an old Carondelet home is vigorous, sure and remarkable in feeling. Her etching of a doorway in the "blighted district" is genuinely pleasing. Fred Graf's pencil study of "Early Mass at the Cathedral" is charged with delicate lyricism. Carl Stoffregen in pencil has some interesting studies of "Winter Workers" in the railroad yards, and W. Drews' etchings of "Eads Bridge" and "Eads Bridge With a Dredger" have an indefinable but genuine quality.

Awards to Be Announced.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Canon William H. Bliss of Seattle, Wash., who has been critically ill in St. Luke's Hospital here, died early tonight of heart disease. Canon Bliss had been in the hospital since Dec. 21 when he returned from Europe on the Leviathan. He attended the opium conference at Geneva, Switzerland, as an unofficial observer.

GOV. DAVIS APPOINTEE OUSTED

Head of Industrial School Had Served 17 Days.

By the Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Inez Clark, superintendent of the Girls' Industrial School at Beloit, and an appointee of Gov. Davis, today was removed by the State Board of Administration. She had served only 17 days.

The removal of Mrs. Clark was based on the court decision in the case of Chancellor E. H. Lindley of the University of Kansas, that heads of State institutions "serve at the pleasure of the board."

FRANCE AND GERMANY AGREE TO TEMPORARY TRADE TRUCE

Unable to Reach Commercial Pact, Situation Will Not Be Considered as Tariff War.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The German and French delegations, which have been engaged in negotiations tending to a commercial agreement, now convinced there is little possibility of coming to any accord, have mutually agreed that the situation shall not be considered on either side as a tariff war and that neither side will take any measures in the nature of reprisals. Each country will impose its maximum tariffs and let it go at that, for the present.

Such a situation, however, it is said in official circles, cannot last long because France would be a heavy loser since her maximum tariffs, even in the bill increasing duties which is now before the Chamber of Deputies, are far lower than the German rates.

The French Government, it is understood, will make no move for the present, but if the Germans remain obdurate when the tariff bill finally comes up for a vote in Parliament, measures will be proposed to adequately protect French trade and industry.

Government officials interested in the question, and members of Parliament, who have specialized in trade matters, say they are puzzled to account for Germany's attitude, since, in several respects, she is bound to suffer as well as France. In some quarters it is held that the Germans refuse to make any concession in favor of Alsatian products, because they think they can intensify the resentment of the Alsatians to the French Government. This resentment has already been provokd by the probable application of the French law for the separation of church and state to the recovered provinces.

The balance of trade in 1923 between France and Germany was in favor of France by a little more than 100,000,000 francs ($5,000,000).

BOLSHEVIK INVASION OF U. S. PORTRAYED ON MOSCOW STAGE

Play Depicting Americans' Plan for Destruction of Europe Shows Ruse by Red Army.

Copyright, 1925, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Co. (the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 17.—All Moscow is going to see a stirring new play, a description of which is given in Le Soir by one of its correspondents just returned from Russia. The title is two initials which stand for "Destruction of Europe."

The piece opens with a scene in which American business magnates, surrounded by awe-struck stenographers, announce that Europe at present constitutes a danger to civilization and decide to destroy it that they may exploit the new Europe set up on lines approved by them.

In the play, France has become Fascist, but has had enough of peace and is now imperialistic. A Fascist leader, at a sitting of the Chamber of Deputies, calls for the destruction of Berlin and the invasion of the soviet countries. In London, the few remaining peers are shown eating their last meal. One of them takes a monocle from his plate, revealing that the meal consists of fellow peers, who have gone on before them.

Meanwhile, the Moscow Government has not been idle. A tunnel has been constructed under the Atlantic from Leningrad to New York, and the red army crawls through the tunnel and lands triumphantly on Broadway. The American workers welcome their liberators enthusiastically and capitalism succumbs at the end of the performance, while the band plays the internationale hymn and the audience cheers wildly.

BELLEVILLE INTERURBAN CAR HELD IN $100,000 DAMAGE SUIT

A Belleville car of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. was attached yesterday by a St. Louis Deputy Sheriff at Washington avenue and Eads bridge and held for nearly a half hour. The attachment was issued to get service on officers of the company in a damage suit filed here earlier in the day by W. I. Hoyt, 1315 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, for $100,000.

After the filing of the suit a writ was placed in the hands of Deputy Sheriff George Stemp, who went to the Eads Bridge and seized the first car of the company to come across the bridge. The car was run on to a siding after its passengers were unloaded and remained there until a traffic manager and a claim agent hurried over to this side from the headquarters of the company in East St. Louis and accepted service in the suit. The car then was released.

Hoyt was foreman of a crew repairing tracks of the East St. Louis & Suburban and was injured Oct. 15, when a work car on which he was riding collided with an express car. According to his attorney, Charles P. Noell, the attachment was obtained because the company has no local offices in St. Louis.

MAY REVIVE COURT ISSUE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Notice was given to the Senate yesterday by Senator Shipstead, Farmer-Labor Minnesota, that he would seek consideration of the World Court proposal at this session of Congress. He said that unless some one else put the Senate on record soon he would move to take up the proposal and thus "bring before the Senate the entire question of the World Court in all its variations." At the same time he reserved "the right to oppose any or all of the various proposals."

GASOLINE IN BULK BOUGHT IN ANOTHER STATE TAXABLE

Opinion on Missouri Law Does Not Cover Practice of Drivers Crossing State Line to Fill Tanks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 17.—Individuals or corporations purchasing gasoline in bulk in another State and shipping it into Missouri for use in their own motor vehicles are not exempt from payment of the State tax of 2 cents a gallon on gasoline used for motor vehicle fuel, Assistant Attorney-General James A. Potter held in an opinion rendered today to State Oil Inspector Asa Butler.

While the opinion holds that gasoline purchased in this manner is subject to the tax, when the gasoline is used, the opinion does not cover the practice of persons residing in cities adjacent to another State who drive acrosss the State line to fill up their automobile gasoline tanks, Potter said. The question of collecting the tax on such gasoline has not been raised.

The question presented to the Attorney-General's Department by Butler was whether an individual owning a fleet of automobiles or motor trucks or a taxicab fleet could purchase gasoline direct from another State in carload lots and evade payment of the Missouri tax. Potter held the tax must be paid on gasoline so purchased. He pointed out that if the purchaser stored the gasoline in his own tanks the tax could not be imposed upon the shipment in bulk because it was an interstate shipment, but could be collected from the owner as fast as the gasoline was transferred from the bulk tanks to the motor vehicles.

WASHINGTON LIQUOR RING FINANCED FROM CHICAGO

Witness in Trial of Gaston B. Means Says Former Agent Dealt Primarily in Pardons.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A general business in pardons, with liquor permits as a side lin was engaged in by Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent, and by the man known as his "secretary," Elmer W. Jarnecke, the Federal pury hearing evidence against Means and Thomas B. Felder, his former attorney, on charges of conspiring to bribe Government officials, wos told yesterday.

The witness, Samuel Schmidt, a Chicago jeweler, said Chicago money financed the operations of the "ring," which operated in Washington. Some of his money—how much he would not say—went into the enterprise through Jarnecke, he said. Jarnecke, indicted with Felder and Means, pleaded guilty at the start of the trial and is expected to be a witness for the Government.

Schmidt said he had advanced "many thousands" to Jarnecke in the summer of 1922, on Jarnecke's assertion that great profits were to be made in obtaining permits for the release of liquor from bonded warehouses, and for obtaining pardons or "other influence" for persons charged with Federal offenses. Schmidt, under cross-examination, said he "understood" the business was to be entirely legal, and that he was to get 50 per cent of all profits in return for his supply of expense cash.

MRS. GREEN ON TRIAL FOR KILLING HUSBAND'S PARENTS

Arkansas Woman's Confession Admitted by Court—Says Debt Led to Slaying.

By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Winona Green, on trial here for the killing of her father-in-law, J. R. Green, shot him as a result of a quarrel over an alleged debt, according to a confession said to have been made by the woman to the police, and, admitted as evidence today.

The confession told of how Mrs. Green is said to have waited in a lonely railroad "cut" at midnight for Green to appear on his way home from work, of the quarrel, and the killing. After the shooting Mrs. Green told the police, of throwing the pistol in a sewer, where it was found later.

Leaving the scene of the shooting, Mrs. Green went to a station where she boarded a train for Oklahoma, and on her arrived at the Green home, feigned surprise when told of her father-in-law's death.

Mrs. Green also is charged with having shot her mother-in-law to death. According to police, she confessed to this also. It was indicated that the defense will attempt to show that Mrs. Green was mentally irresponsible at the time of the shooting.

FINNISH CREDIT RENEWED

Loan From New York Bank Extended for Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A revolving credit which was placed at the disposal of the Government of Finland for the purpose of exchange stabilization several years ago, has been renewed for one year, Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank, announced today.

In declining to name the amount, Mitchell said that Finland had never found it necessary to draw upon the credit, but that sufficient funds to protect the exchange were available, if desired. The loan is similar to the $40,000,000 credit recently extended to Denmark.

MAN, KIDNAPED AS BOY, [illegible] FIGHT TO FIX HIS IDEN

Alleged Son of Late Prof. Lieb [illegible] Jopyin, Mo., Sues Executor of Estate.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Jan. 17.—"Robert Clark," 58 years old, began his battle in Circuit Court here today in an effort to establish his identity as Freddie Lieb, son of the late Prof. W. H. Lieb, music instructor who died here more than a year ago. Soon after Prof. Lieb's death Clark came to Joplin from Philadelphia and set up a claim that he was Lieb's son, who was kidnaped at Quincy, Ill., in 1871, and for whom the father conducted a nation-wide search.

Clark is trying to establish his identity through a suit filed against the Conqueror Trust Co. of Joplin, administrator of the estate of Prof. Lieb. He seeks to be declared one of the heirs. It is said the estate is of little value and that Clark will receive less than $100 in case the suit is decided in his favor. "Clark" contends that his sole purpose in bringing the action is to establish his identity as Lieb's son.

"Clark," on the witness stand this afternoon, charged that Christy Lieb, brother of Prof. Lieb, who resides in Colorado, was a party to the kidnaping. He testified that he has been able to identify Christy Lieb's photograph as being that of the man who took him in a buggy and helped carry him away, after he had been seized by a woman. He also testified that the woman who aided in the kidnaping later became the second wife of Prof. Lieb.

$800,000 ADDITION TO HOTEL ADOLPHUS PLANNED

Dallas, Tex., Hostlery Controlled by Busch Interests, Will Be Enlarged Soon.

Contracts for the erection of a 22-story addition to the Hotel Adolphus at Dallas, Tex., owned largely by August A. Busch and Adolphus Busch III, were let yesterday, according to announcement at Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

The addition, which will join two other 22-story structures constituting the Hotel Adolphus, will cost approximately $800,000 when completed, including the site. The general contract for the work was let to the construction firm of Henger & Chambers of Dallas. It is expected, however, that some of the subcontracts will be handled by St. Louis concerns. Alfred C. Bossom of New York City, is the architect.

The completion of the addition will increase the capacity of the Adolphus to 800 rooms, making it one of the largest hotels in Texas. Work on the project will begin at once, with completion expected next October.

August A. Busch announced yesterday that two paintings, "The Forest Fire" and "The Departure of the Emigrants," will be placed in the new lobby of the Adolphus. The paintings are valued at $40,000, and have been exhibited throughout the country through courtesy of the Busch family.

RAPHAEL MISSED HIS CHANCE

Painters Get $12 a Day in U. S., Johnny Dundee Says.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Johnny Dundee, the American boxer, while visiting the Louvre museum, halted by his enthusiastic guide before one of the masterpieces, displayed such lack of interest in the work of art that the functionary mildly reproached him. "Don't you know," said the guide, "that this was done by Raphael, one of the greatest painters of all time? Like you, he was an Italian."

The reply of the little Italo-American fighter staggered the art-loving guide more than many of Johnny's numerous opponents ever were staggered by blows with his fists. This is what he declared Dundee said to him:

"Why did he move to France? Painters don't make any money in this country. He should come to America. They get as high as $12 a day there."

MRS. IMBRIE MAY SUE PERSIA

Coolidge Tells Her He Will Review Circumstances of Husband's Death.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Robert W. Imbrie, widow of the murdered American vice consul at Teheran, Persia, called at the White House today and said afterward that President Coolidge had assured her he would review the circumstances of her husband's death.

Mrs. Imbrie indicated she might sue the Persian Government as the result of a street attack on her at Teheran, in which, she said, she suffered personal injuries. She declared she was not satisfied with the settlement made with her by Persian authorities as a part of their agreement with the United States Government.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

MARY.—We do not locate the quotation in question.

H. S.—A married woman or wife is addressed mistress, the abbreviation "Mrs."

N. W. E.—Your question is not clear. Write again, being more specific.

C. O.—Write to the Patent Office, Interior Dept., Washington, D. C., for full information regarding the article in question.

ANXIOUS.—Advertise and watch the advertisements in the daily papers for a position suitable for your qualifications.

H. B. S.—The small cent of the mint 1858, flying eagle, nickel cent, is worth from 1c to 5c; the penny of the same date with Indian head is worth from 25c to 50c.

C. A. L.—The first ice factory of importance in this country was erected at New Orleans in 1866. In 1870 three other factories were included in the census returns.

CUSTOMER—Write to the State Highway Commission, State House, Jefferson City, Mo., for the information regarding the bridge in question.

READER.—Coddled apples are made by wiping apples and then laying them in a kettle; to each half peck of apples add ¾ pint of brown sugar and ½ pint of water. Cover and simmer until tender and sugared through.

L. F. P.—Ulysses Simpson Grant was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont County, O., April 27, 1822. He was a celebrated American general and the eighteenth President of the United States. In the summer of 1884 Gen. Grant entered upon a long period of suffering from a cancerous affection of the throat, and he died at Mount MacGregor, near Saratoga, N. Y., July 23, 1885. Until a few days before his death he was diligently engaged in writing his memoirs. His body found its final resting place in a magnificent tomb in Riverside Park, New York City, overlooking the Hudson River.

F. B. — Crystallization does not harm the honey and the crystals can easily be dissolved by heating the honey, which should be done in a double boiler or other kind of water bath. If the temperature does not go beyond 160 degrees F. there is little danger that either color or flavor will be affected. Honey should be kept in a dry place or it will absorb moisture and spoil. Ordinarily the safest places for honey are the warmest places. To clarify honey, melt down the pure honey in a double boiler of porcelain or earthenware and strain while hot through a flannel cloth dipped inhot water. This dissolves the crystals and converts the honey into a uniform thick syrup.

E. ST. LOUIS.—St. Louis was founded during the reign of Louis XVI of France and named for him. It was founded by Pierre Laclede, a Frenchman, in 1764. He came up the Mississippi River from New Orleans and obtained from the Governor of Louisiana an exclusive control of the fur trade from the Missouri and other Indian tribes. Almost immediately, the place became an important trading post. It passed under Spanish domination in 1765, when all the French territory on the west side of the Mississippi River and the island of New Orleans were ceded by France to Spain by the secret treaty of 1763. Later, Napoleon, who was the all-powerful ruler of France, determined to secure Louisiana, and to people it with French colonists. He wished to revive a new France in America. He forced Spain to cede Louisiana back to France. Then as a result of the fact that Napoleon needed money in 1803, he sold the immense Louisiana territory to the United States for $15,000,000.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St Louis Bar Association.)

M. M. P. — You can sue your friend if he refuses to pay you back. You have a claim against him for whatever you have had to pay.

S. S. S.—He can sue you out in the Justice of the Peace Court, and also can garnish your wages to collect the rent.

NEW YEAR.—If there was any agreement, expressed or implied, that you would be paid for the nursing, then you can recover pay for it, but not otherwise.

VICTOR H.—What would be a reasonable fee for the services would depend upon all the circumstances. We cannot make an estimate.

X. X. X.—As the man and not the girl, bought the furniture, they could not make her pay for it. However, if he does not pay for it, they can take the furniture away.

MRS. ETHEL J.—If you filed suit for divorce now, you could probably get a divorce some time in April. You would have to get service on your husband by publication. If the case was not contested it would probably cost from $50 to $100.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Medical and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

WORRIED.—See answer to "B. K."

B. K.—Repeat your question, enclosing addressed envelope for reply.

A DAILY READER.—This is a medical not a pharmaceutical column. Consult your druggist.

ROBERT.—A careful, complete examination should be made of the condition. The trouble is likely lack of proper digestion.

WIFE—It is quite possible under the conditions as stated, but if the parent is still infected with the disease the child may also be infected.

MRS. WORRIED.—An examination should by now be of assistance in arriving at a conclusion; if not it should be possible within a short time. It is not likely that tuberculosis exists, but the sputum should be microscopically examined. It would not be at all unusual for a persistent cough to cause some little blood in the sputum.

WORRIED.—Observation of the condition would be necessary to form an intelligent opinion. You say you are under the care of physicians; if so, take their advice. If you feel they are not competent change physicians.

POST-DISPATCH READER.—Permanganate of potassium will not as a rule cure ulceration. (2) Iodide of potassium and permanganate of potassium are two different drugs. Your condition calls for local applications. (3) Any lump in the breast which persists should be removed, immediately examined and if cancerous a radical removal of the glands should be done.

Will never fade away.
Sadly missed by wife, daughter, mother, sisters and brothers.

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Michael J. Barth, who departed this life Jan. 20, 1924:
Rest in peace, thy cares are ended,
Rest in peace, thy work is done;
You are gone where those who loved you
Soon are coming one by one.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND SON.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Katherine Krausert (nee Schweikert), who departed this life three years ago, Jan. 22, 1922:
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy loving and earnest care.
Our home is not what it used to be,
Since our dear mother is not there.
Sadly missed by
SONS, DAUGHTER AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In memory of our father, father-in-law and grandfather, Henry Becker:
'Tis sweet to be remembered
And a pleasant thing to find,
That although you may be absent,
You still are kept in mind.
Love will always keep you near us
Though you left six years ago, Jan. 19, 1919. Missed by OTTO BECKER AND FAMILY, AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM. (c)

In memory of my beloved wife, our dear mother, daughter and sister, Minnie B. Quante, who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 15, 1924:
Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you left one year ago,
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts shall always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by FAMILY. (c)

In sad but loving memory of our little son, Clarence Bentzen Jr., who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 18, 1924:
A rose that is sweetest and fairest
In the end is killed by the frost;
And the flower that is dearest and rarest
Is the loved one that we have lost.
At home in the beautiful hills of God
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some day, sometime, when our task is done,
With joy we shall meet "Buster" there.
Sadly missed by mother, daddy, grandparents and those who loved him.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear husband and father, Joseph Merkel, who departed this life Jan. 16, 1924:

Father, we miss you everywhere,
Miss your advice, love and care;
A faithful husband, kind and true
For all of us he did his best;
We always pray and think of you,
Not forgotten in our mind,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed;
Only those who have lost can tell the pain.
Death has left a vacant chair this world can never fill.
Rest in peace, thy cares are ended and thy work is done.

Sadly missed by Mary Merkel, wife; children and grandchildren.

In loving memory of our dear husband, father, grandfather, James L. Cole, who departed this life one year ago, Jan. 16, 1924:

Father, we miss you everywhere,
Miss your advice, love and care;
A faithful father, so kind and true,
We always pray and think of you,
You're not forgotten, in our minds,
To us you were so good and kind.
How our hearts are filled with pain.
We hope some day we'll meet again.
Rest in peace thy cares are ended.
Rest in peace thy work is done.
You are gone where those who love you
Soon are coming one by one.

Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN and those who loved you.

Truth in Advertising

The value of advertising is in direct ratio to the amount of READER-CONFIDENCE it possesses. That is entirely founded on the quality of TRUTH. The National Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers and the Better Business Bureau and the Advertising Club of St. Louis, in all of which the Post-Dispatch holds membership, aim to eliminate fraudulent and misleading advertising. This newspaper will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement which does not conform to the highest standard of honesty. (c8)

Listen, Folks—

Just think of this during "Used Car Week": Yahlem leads the Used Car Market 52 weeks in the year, every year!! And that's not conversation.

We challenge the world on our record—1595 Used Cars sold in 1924.

That's because the Workingman's Friend helps you save your hard earned dollars and always shows you 300 used cars to choose from. The public supports a square shooter.

When Used Cars can be sold on better terms for cheaper prices—YAHLEM WILL SELL THEM.

Girls chatter, and so do the caveman's teeth, atop the motor-bus

DRAWN BY W. A. BYRNES

SAYS WEBER TO FIELDS:

"THINGS are different nowa-times, Mr. Weber, from what they used to be, don't it?"

"It did."

"All iss changed mit the modern trend. Men, womens, boys und girls iss all different.

"Nowadays there iss no longer men, und womens, boys und girls. All we have now iss sheiks, und vamps, und flappers, und cake-eaters."

"Chust what iss a sheik, could you explanation?"

"Chass. A sheik is a lover who advances backwards to the caveman days und does his lovemaking by violençe. He calls on his lady love und greets her mit a right-arm jolt to the jaw. Then he upperclips her to the solar complexion, und then he K. O.'s her for the count of 10 und her love iss won forever."

"Chass? Und then chust what iss a vamp?"

"A vamp iss a human peacock feather who rolls her eyes. She tells lies in several different languages und borrows money in six languages more. She iss a human gold-dredging machine und has no more womanhood or motherhood than a pig has kittens."

"Chass? Then what iss a flapper?"

"A flapper iss of the younger generation of vamps. They go about in roving, hungry herds, und eat as many meals as they can find males to buy them. They prey on old and young birds alike and live in hopes of growing up and becoming vamps."

"Now told me, what iss a cake-eater?"

"A cake-eater is a young sprout who hopes to grow into a sheik. He practices love mit the older ladies, who keep him fed up on his natural diet, which is angel cake mit frosting. He runs at large und inhabits dine and dance places. There he meets the female of the specie, who recognizes him by a peculiar call known as the coo koo."

"Und when these strange peoples go a-courting, how do they proposings?"

"Vell, it iss customary for the sheik to be properly dressed for occasions. He wears boxing gloves on both hands und carries a blackjack und an automatic pistol to impress his lady love."

"So they meet?"

"On any common ground, und the results are even. The male leaves the female a physical wreck und the female leaves the male a financial wreck."

"What accomplishments iss necessary in the modern form of courtship?"

"Dot iss simplicity itself. All that iss necessary for a sheik or a cake-eater iss to be a great musician."

"A great musician?"

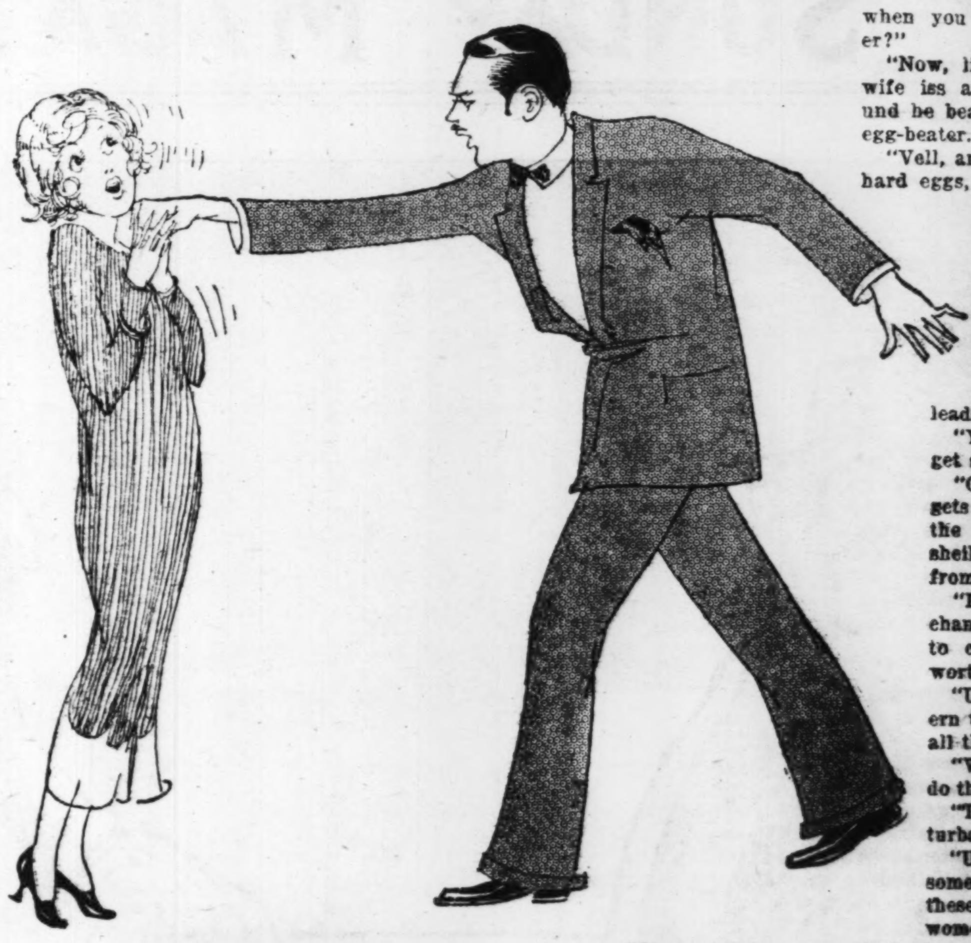
"Chass."

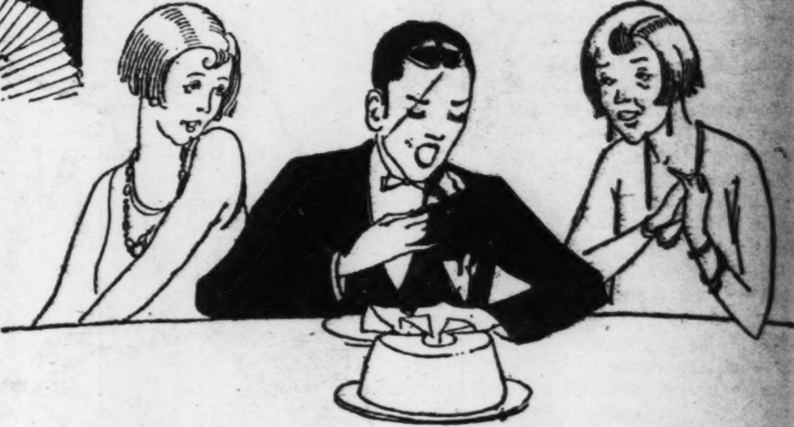
"Should he sing?"

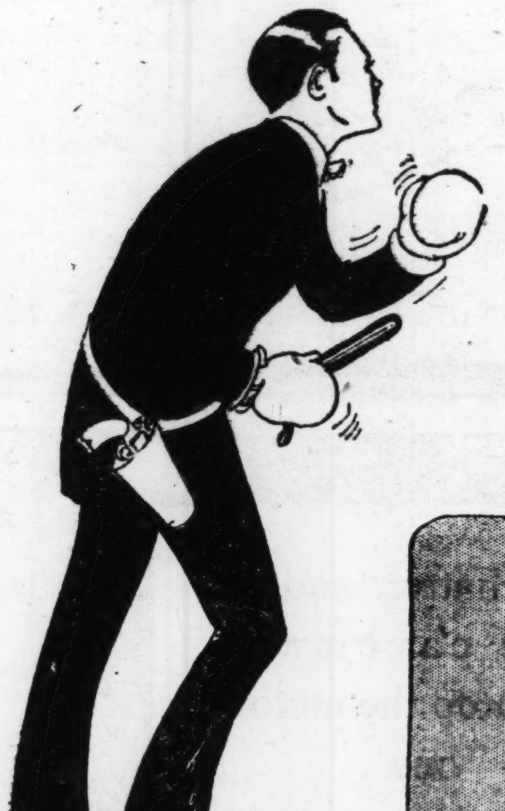
"Not lately, should he sing. He has to be able to play."

"What instrument?"

"Any disk-record machine. The best performer on the phonograph iss the greatest lover next to the heavyweight champion assault und batter."







"Do they have to play anything elses besides a phonograph?"

"Chass, they have to play poker, a roller piano und mah jungg."

"Und the sheiks get married und become wife-beaters?"

"No, egg-beaters."

"If they beat their wives as you say, they must be wife-beaters."

"No, they iss egg-beaters."

"They do beat their wives, don't it?"

"Chass."

"Vell, then, that makes them wife-beaters."

"No, it makes them egg-beaters."

"Vy do you insist that if they beat their wives they are egg-beaters?"

"Because they iss egg-beaters."

"In the name of heavens, before I go grazy, tell me, why do you insist on saying egg-beater when you mean wife-beater?"

"Now, listen, if a man's wife iss a hard-boiled egg und he beats her, he iss an egg-beater."

"Vell, are all vamp wives hard eggs, boiled?"

"Boiled or stewed or half-baked, chust which you prefers."

"Und where does it all lead?"

"If the sheik iss not smart it leads to alimony."

"You mean they get separated?"

"Chass, the vamp gets separated from the sheik und the sheik gets separated from his money."

"People should change about und try to create something worthy."

"Under the modern trend they create all the time."

"What, I ask you, do they create?"

"They create a disturbance."

"Und isn't there some way to tame these wild und stalky womens?"

"Chass, the same as all the lower, wild animals."

"How iss that?"

"Vell, you should look them square in the eyes, und never quail."

"Never quail, no matter what happens, never quail?"

"No, never let a chicken make you quail. Duck if you must, but never quail."

"Not even on a toast?"

"Not even quail on toast."

"Und how do you tell when it iss time to duck?"

"Vell, when a wren begins talking about moleskin coats und platinum wrist watches und chicken dinners, then it iss time for a bird to duck."

"Are you sure that the bird should duck the chicken?"

"He'd be a goose if he didn't duck. No matter how sweet the canary sings, it iss sometimes best to duck, because maybe they are robin him."

"That last is hard to swallow. We will sing, 'O, Duckie, Dear; Oh, Duckie, Dear, I'll Flapper My Wings und Fly From Here.'"

ANOTHER stirring tale of heroism in civil life has come from the coal miners, those toilers below ground, who really seem to be made of sterner stuff than many men who work at less hazardous occupations. It is not a narrative of battle, murder and sudden death, unless a struggle against forces of nature may be termed a battle.

And most decidedly it has little to do with sudden death. For, although death claims a few victims among the actors in this drama, the end does not come to them quickly and mercifully but after agonizing delays, amid darkness and loneliness and the rush of chill waters.

And every mother's son of them, from the rescuers, who performed almost impossible feats to the last men rescued, after an entombment of 80 hours, bore himself manfully and as one has come to expect of coal miners. And one feels sure that those who died went bravely.

Perhaps the very nature of the coal miners' task sifts out the weaklings and the faint-hearted. Or perhaps the custom under which a miner's son usually becomes a miner, too, has evolved a hardy breed. In addition, the daily routine must serve to build up endurance and courage.

This latest story of coal miners undismayed in the face of peril comes from Wales, that mountainous land where coal mining has been one of the most important industries for centuries. There are iron mines, too, and deposits of copper, zinc, tin, lead and gold. The scene is the Killan Colliery, near Swansea, in Southern Wales.

It was the last Thursday night in November when trouble started on one of the lower levels in the Killan Colliery. The water broke through. At first far from a torrent in size and force, the stream of inrushing water quickly enlarged the opening which it had forced through the wall of a gallery, then poured through the workings as the water fled from the pressure behind it.

"The water!" cried the men in warning as they hastened along their galleries toward safety. Such news travels rapidly in a deep mine, where men are liable to be trapped like rats and drowned. But sometimes the invading flood travels more rapidly to outlying parts of the workings and lower levels.

In the disaster at the Killan Colliery the water poured into some of the galleries with such a rush that roof falls occurred, when tons of slate and rock crashed down and effectively blocked certain passageways. With both the water and these barriers across the path to the surface of the ground, a few men virtually were doomed from the start.

But this is the story of the fine rescue work which was done in those anxious days at Dunvant. Let it be stated that eight men were brought out after the rescue crews had abandoned hope of rescuing them alive. And this large measure of success was due to the indomitable efforts of four men.

Perhaps the outstanding figure in the affair is William John, manager of the mine. Between the morning of Thursday, the day that the water broke through, and Sunday night, when the final spectacular rescue was effected, John permitted himself but one brief interval of rest. To summarize his services, it can be said that he was directly instrumental in saving 15 lives.

After all the men who could get out of the mine unassisted had done so, on Thursday, John and other searchers went through the workings of the mine as far as they were able to find men not yet accounted for. John was the most successful of all, finding a total of eight men and leading them out to safety.

But on Saturday night, with 11 men still missing, John's efforts became of heroic proportions. Accompanied by only one man, and both of them worn with fatigue and lack of sleep, he succeeded in finding five more of the entombed miners and letting them out through a hole which he dug into a blocked gallery. The men had been there for two days and nights, but had not attempted to dig their way out, fearing an inrush of water which would finish them.

The story of that adventure was told graphically by Griffith Guy, who accompanied John. He said:

"Mr. John and myself made our way to the airway and came to the top of No. 6 level. A hole was made big enough for a man to crawl through. We shouted, and heard nothing. We shouted again, and there was an answer from the darkness: 'Hi there!'

"It was the sound of several men. I shall never forget it. I trembled from head to foot with emotion. What they said I cannot remember, but there was such a thrill of joy, some calling 'Hooray!' some on their knees, thanking God. They ran out to meet us, babbling wild words we could not understand.

"We all flung our arms round each other's necks and kissed each other again and again. By the light of our lamps we got them to a place of safety, and, some more workmen coming up, we stood around and sang two old-fashioned hymns in Welsh."

This may look like keen work, and undeniably it was. But what Manager John had done in the first days of the disaster was quite eclipsed by his feat on Sunday night, more than three days and nights after the water broke through.

Since Thursday morning he had snatched but one brief period of rest. His clothing was dirty and torn, his eyes bloodshot, his face unshaven and haggard. But the bulldog pluck for which the British are famous would not let him rest until every resource, including Manager John, had been completely exhausted.

And here is what he did: Although encumbered with a gas apparatus fastened to his shoulders, John swam across two long stretches of water in the search for missing men. Most of the way the water was within a foot of the roof and he had to swim under the surface, breathing only at irregular intervals. But he located two miners, although perforce the actual rescue had to be carried out by men in better physical trim than he was.

The humanitarian task thus discovered by Manager John was undertaken by Capt. Rees, his majesty's Inspector of Mines, and George Jones of the Garngoch Rescue Brigade. When they reached the flooding water which barred farther progress on foot, the two men stripped to the skin, plunged into the chill depths and swam as they had been directed. Their rescue of James Evans and of the youth Matthews was described by George Jones as follows:

"Capt. E. S. Rees, Inspector of Mines, and I were continuing our search up a byway. At last our shouts were heard, the boy Matthews calling out in return. When Capt. Rees heard the lad's voice he turned to me and said:

"'My God! Jones, will you volunteer to swim with me?'

"I said, 'Yes,' and we both undressed on the spot. I tied straps around my body. We both then plunged into the water in total darkness and swam—the conditions were as bad as could possibly be—for about 75 yards before we got to where we thought the voices came from.

"When we got there, Capt. Rees said to the two imprisoned colliers:

"'Can you touch our hands?'

"And at the same time we raised our hands to the shaft above the level. (The narrator refers, of course, to a shaft for ventilation or hoisting purposes, above the flooded gallery.) They gripped our hands, and Capt. Rees lifted me up to the shaft. The water was up to the top of the level here, and the men were crouched in one corner of the shaft. I then pulled Capt. Rees up.

"The first thing Evans asked when he saw us was:

"'What day is it?'

"We said, 'Sunday,' and he cried. Next, Capt. Rees secured the boy Matthews on my back, strapping him firmly, so that he would not fall off. I was lowered into the water and swam back to safety.

"I had to be very careful in swimming back in order that the lad would be able to breathe, because the water was within four inches of the roof, and there were huge pieces of timber floating about everywhere. I rolled my head, and the boy and I breathed when we got a chance. First he would breathe, then I would.

"Reaching safety, I unstrapped the boy, left a light with him and assured him he was out of danger.

"I then went back to help Capt. Rees, because James Evans was a heavy man. But eventually we succeeded in getting him to safety, too."

So ends the story of gallant rescues, as far as the details have reached America.

That a few poor chaps lost their lives, in spite of the supreme effort made to reach them, is the only circumstance that mars the affair.

And they perished because it was not humanly possible to save them.

It is tantalizing that we have no interviews with the rescued men. Their physical misery during the time that they helplessly awaited whatever fate was coming—that can be imagined easily. But what thoughts surged into their minds as they shivered there in the darkness? Reminiscences of a man who had been entombed for three days would be worth hearing

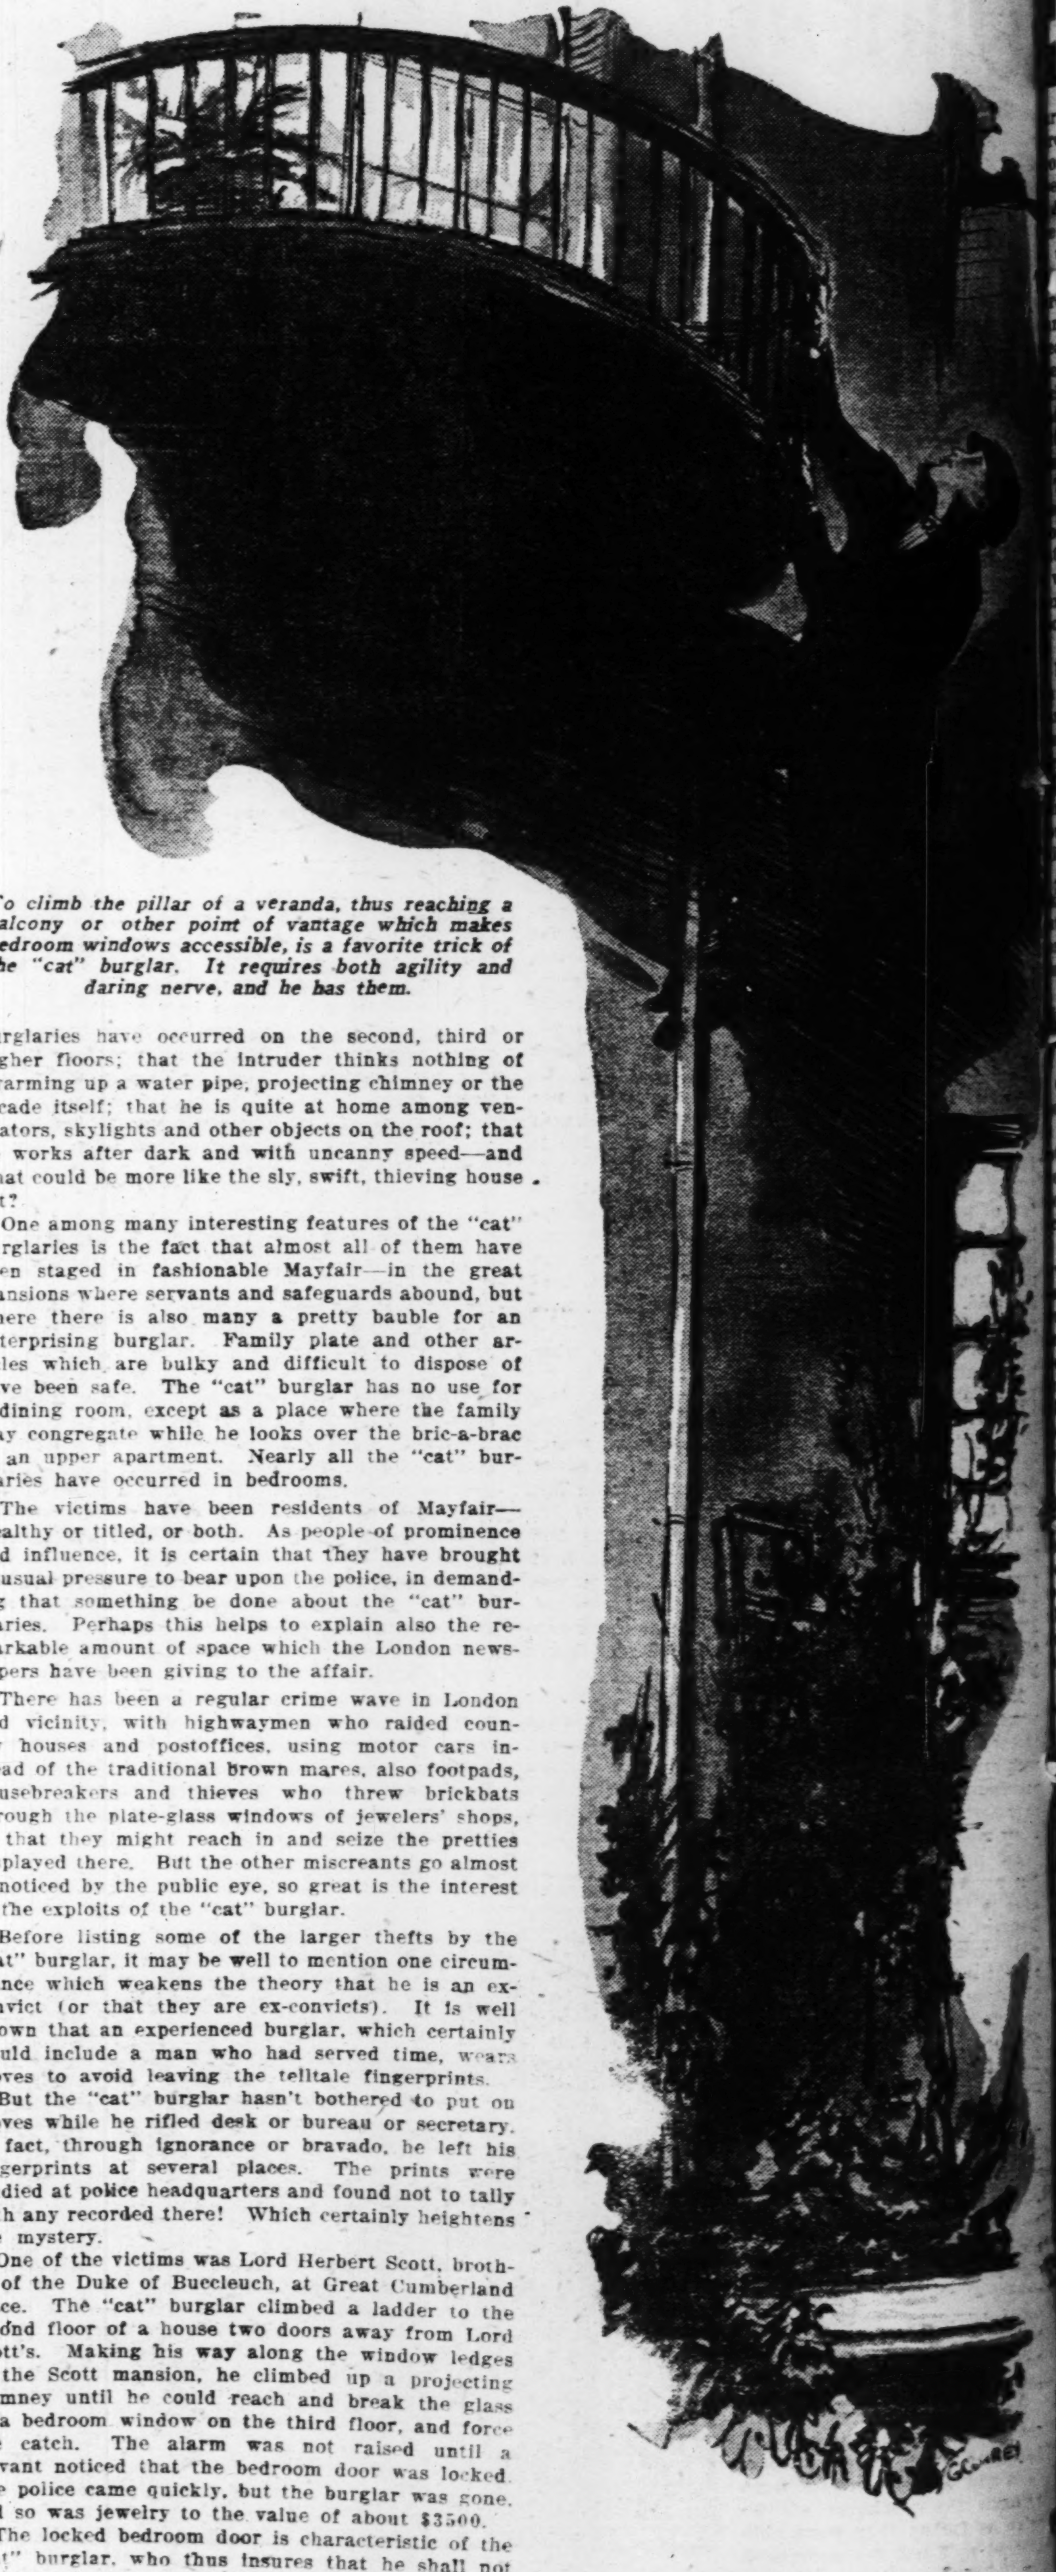
The "Cat" Burglar Who Mystifies

Up drain pipe, veranda pillar or chimney he goes, 40 feet or more, then through the window of bedroom, the door of which he locks—Daring and clever thief works almost entirely in the great mansions, and takes nothing but jewels, money and furs—He has been heard, but always escaped unseen—In series of robberies over a 12-day period, his haul averaged $5000 a day—Methods of a genius of crime :: :: :: ::



To climb the pillar of a veranda, thus reaching a balcony or other point of vantage which makes bedroom windows accessible, is a favorite trick of the "cat" burglar. It requires both agility and daring nerve, and he has them.

FROM the underworld of London a new kind of criminal has emerged—mysterious, sinister and amazingly adroit. For weeks, while residents of the world's greatest capital were groping day and night through one of the thickest, darkest fogs in the history of London, this master malefactor committed a series of crimes which set the police by the ears.

In the first 12 days of December a dozen robberies in large private houses and fashionable shops netted the intruder at least 12,000 pounds sterling, or an average of 1000 a day—at normal exchange rates about $5000.

During that time, even after the London newspapers had begun calling attention to the outrages and exhorting the police to greater efforts, nobody ever saw the man, ever caught so much as a glimpse of his fleeing back. Once or twice he was heard at his work, and futile efforts made to pursue him.

But the thief's own talent for such exploits, and a fog almost as thick as soup, made a combination which apparently defied capture or clew. Did he walk the murky streets in silk hat and spats, which surely would be clever disguise for a burglar, or did he slouch along in the rough garb of the slums?

Of one fact only could the public be sure: that he was a man capable of extraordinary stunts in the way of climbing. Indeed, one London editor suggested that the culprit might be Douglas Fairbanks, working up some publicity for a new film displaying the well-known Fairbanks agility.

It is the "cat" burglar who has been the most spectacular figure in London's latest crime wave. After two months of effort by the cleverest detectives in London, including the pick of New Scotland Yard, the investigation was just where it started. And as these words are written, the latest newspapers from England contain accounts of still more depredations by the "cat" burglar, and only theory and rumor as to his identity.

It is not even known whether the operations of the "cat" burglar are carried on by a lone criminal or by a gang. The identity of method in all the cases, the fiendish cleverness and uniform success would indicate that a single super criminal is the culprit. And for many weeks it was believed that the "cat" burglar worked alone.

But lately some persons, including police officials, have changed their minds on that point. So many mansions have been plundered, so staggering is the total of the jewelry and money taken away, that it seems incredible for only one man to have reaped such a harvest. Burglary on such a scale points to a gang, highly organized and brilliantly directed.

Indeed, the idea of the "master mind" and his dauntless minions, so beloved by writers of second-rate novels, is now being discussed in London newspapers as a possible explanation of the "cat" burglaries. Estimates as to the number of men in the gang range from seven men to nine. The "master mind" is variously identified. One rumor has it that he is an Englishman who resided for several years in America, and well known in the underworld of London.

Another tip, said to be from Scotland Yard, puts him down as an American, employed at one time to perform hair-raising "stunts" for the movies, and with acrobatic burglaries in his record. It was in consequence of a communication from the police of New York City that English officials picked up this man's trail, it is said.

But just why the "cat" burglar, whether he is one person or twins or a whole gang? There have been burglars, probably, since the first cave man, off for a holiday with his family, blocked up the entrance to his cavern. Sneak thieves also are no novelty, and plenty of men with taking ways have been willing to do a bit of fancy climbing.

But never, in the annals of the London police, at least, has there been such a blend of burglar, sneak thief and "human fly" as in the mysterious person or persons called the "cat" burglar. Never before the apparent possession of such complete knowledge as to the most favorable times and places for gathering in the most desirable booty. Never before such expert climbing, such stealthiness of movement inside a house, such skill at evading pursuit, over so long a period of time.

Add to this description the fact that all the "cat" burglaries have occurred on the second, third or higher floors; that the intruder thinks nothing of swarming up a water pipe, projecting chimney or the facade itself; that he is quite at home among ventilators, skylights and other objects on the roof; that he works after dark and with uncanny speed—and what could be more like the sly, swift, thieving house cat?

One among many interesting features of the "cat" burglaries is the fact that almost all of them have been staged in fashionable Mayfair—in the great mansions where servants and safeguards abound, but where there is also many a pretty bauble for an enterprising burglar. Family plate and other articles which are bulky and difficult to dispose of have been safe. The "cat" burglar has no use for a dining room, except as a place where the family may congregate while he looks over the bric-a-brac in an upper apartment. Nearly all the "cat" burglaries have occurred in bedrooms.

The victims have been residents of Mayfair—wealthy or titled, or both. As people of prominence and influence, it is certain that they have brought unusual pressure to bear upon the police, in demanding that something be done about the "cat" burglaries. Perhaps this helps to explain also the remarkable amount of space which the London newspapers have been giving to the affair.

There has been a regular crime wave in London and vicinity, with highwaymen who raided country houses and postoffices, using motor cars instead of the traditional brown mares, also footpads, housebreakers and thieves who threw brickbats through the plate-glass windows of jewelers' shops, so that they might reach in and seize the pretties displayed there. But the other miscreants go almost unnoticed by the public eye, so great is the interest in the exploits of the "cat" burglar.

Before listing some of the larger thefts by the "cat" burglar, it may be well to mention one circumstance which weakens the theory that he is an ex-convict (or that they are ex-convicts). It is well known that an experienced burglar, which certainly would include a man who had served time, wears gloves to avoid leaving the telltale fingerprints.

But the "cat" burglar hasn't bothered to put on gloves while he rifled desk or bureau or secretary. In fact, through ignorance or bravado, he left his fingerprints at several places. The prints were studied at police headquarters and found not to tally with any recorded there! Which certainly heightens the mystery.

One of the victims was Lord Herbert Scott, brother of the Duke of Buccleuch, at Great Cumberland place. The "cat" burglar climbed a ladder to the second floor of a house two doors away from Lord Scott's. Making his way along the window ledges to the Scott mansion, he climbed up a projecting chimney until he could reach and break the glass in a bedroom window on the third floor, and force the catch. The alarm was not raised until a servant noticed that the bedroom door was locked. The police came quickly, but the burglar was gone, and so was jewelry to the value of about $3500.

The locked bedroom door is characteristic of the "cat" burglar, who thus insures that he shall not be collared while at work and who counts upon de-rting in the same neck-risking way that he en- red. Of course, the locked door attracts notice oner or later, but even if the door should be forced en, the "cat" burglar would have ample warning.

At the home of Miss Alice Booth, 51 South street, two-legged "cat" had swarmed up a chimney, the British say when they mean a man climbed, stepped onto a convenient balcony and then rough a bedroom window. For once, the "cat" rglar seems to have forgotten about his feline althiness. At any rate, a maid heard noises in room and went to investigate. The door was ked. When forcible entry was made the intruder gotten away, taking a pearl necklace worth 00 and other jewelry bringing the total value of haul up to $3000.

The "cat" burglar had what might be called "a call" when he visited the mansion of Sir Ernest rlick, at 27 Norfolk street. It was another acro- tic event, the thief having climbed the pillar of veranda, of the Horlick house itself or the house xt-door, to get at the window of Sir Ernest's bed- on the third floor. Then he smashed the glass unfasten the catch.

In what could have been only a few minutes' time, the testimony of servants, the thief gathered up ious trinkets, such as scarf pins, cuff links and ds, which were valued at a total of about $1000. Ernest had not yet come home, and the serv- were in rooms downstairs. Whether the "cat" rglar descended via the outside or the inside of the se is not known, but probably it was an outside t.

At any rate, one of the servants heard a noise the slamming of a gate, and the butler went to the Park lane entrance of the house to in- stigate. He heard the footsteps of a man run- g, gave the alarm and had the house searched. should be noted that the butler did not catch a pse of the thief. But even to hear the flying steps of such an elusive individual is something a distinction in itself.

One of the most daring raids in the career of "cat" burglar was at the house of Lord Trevithin, South street, Park lane. And it was there that he one of his biggest hauls. The London papers ntion the amusing fact that Lord Trevithin, for- rly Sir Alfred T. Lawrence, was Lord Chief Jus- e in 1921-22.

It was just after dark, and Lady Trevithin and eral servants were in the house. But, as in the jority of the "cat" burglaries, nobody heard a nd and the affair became known only when a vant found that the door of Lady Trevithin's bed- m was locked. The "cat" had entered the gar- at the rear of the house, and then had under- en the perilous feat of climbing nearly 40 feet a slender drain pipe to the balcony outside a win- w in the bedroom.

The household staff were at tea at 5 o'clock, but rtly after that time the maids were passing con- ously up and down the stairs, so that the thief st have worked with lightning speed and in per- t silence. When the door finally was broken en, it was found that the drawers of the dressing le had been ransacked. A pearl necklace and sev- l fine diamond rings, valued at a total of $10,000, d been taken.

The "cat" burglar, if an Englishman, doesn't let riotic prejudice run away with him when it comes business. Mostly his attentions are bestowed upon bers of the English aristocratic class. But he take enough time off to raid the room of an erican who was stopping at the Savoy Hotel, ere the intruder got jewelry valued at $1500.

The American's room was on the third floor of Savoy, and to reach it the agile thief had to make thrilling climb up a water pipe, and then a side ing to a balcony three feet away. As in most of "cat" burglar's visitations, guarded by the dusk d his own stealth, nobody saw or heard anything picious until the job was finished and the "cat" d slipped away.

Then in quick succession came a series of other beries, each marked by impish cleverness and terity in gaining an entrance to the house, by nt efficiency in gathering up the valuables and successful exits.

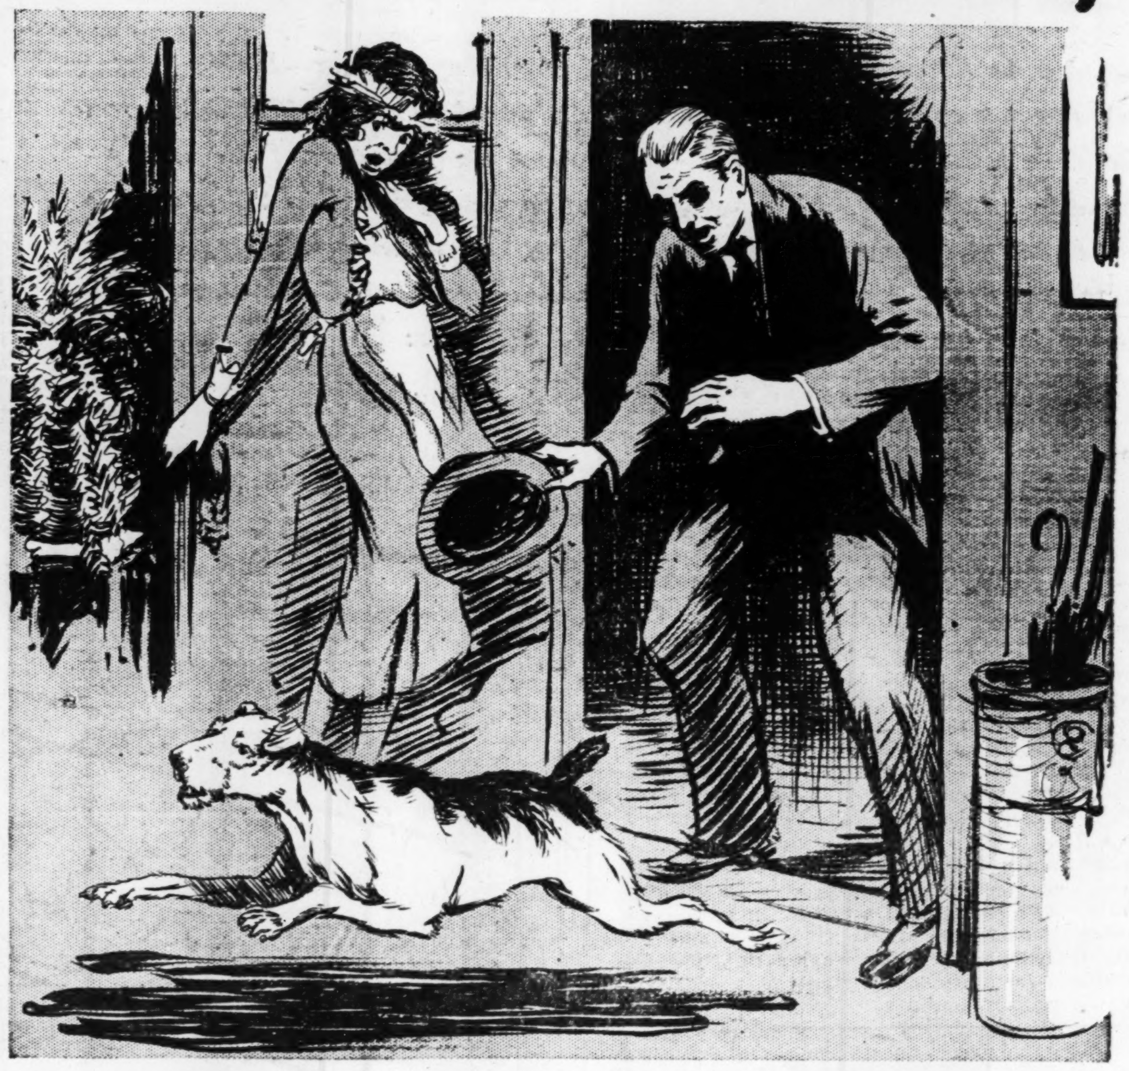
Lord Stevenson's mansion in Old Queen street was ered from the roof and jewels and furs valued at 00 were stolen.

From the residence of A. T. Craven, in Kensington ace Gardens, jewelry worth $15,000 was taken. e house of Mr. Rennie, Ashley Court, near Ep- , was visited by the mysterious "cat" burglar, o departed more silently than the Arabs ever did, ing along furs, jewels and cash estimated at ,000.

Then the residence of Lord Alistair Innes-Ker, ucester Square, Paddington, was entered by the me acrobatic marauder, and he did not go away pty-handed. "Valuable jewelry stolen," says the lished report, without estimating the total worth.

Then the "cat" burglar, or an imitator, varied the ine by choosing an early morning hour instead e evening, when he climbed up the pillar at the of a house in Park lane, attained the balcony and ough a window reached the bedroom of Miss de igne. He ransacked a wardrobe and dressing , obtained jewelry and furs valued at $5000, apparently left in the same way that he had ered.

The largest single exploit of the "cat" burglar reported was at the mansion of Lord Inchcape, in Park lane, which was robbed of valuables estimated at $50,000. Again the theft could have been committed only by a man of extraordinary nerve and agility and quick in his movements as a tiger, which is one of the cat family. "It is probable," comments the Sunday Express of London, "that less than 20 minutes were spent from pavement back to pavement again."



When a house door is opened to the knock of the "dog" burglar, the caller's Airedale rushes through the hall. The man, apologizing, pursues his dog into rooms all over the house.

In all these cases, the "cat" burglar has flouted the traditions of ordinary burglardom. Apparently he does not even carry with him the usual tools of burglary, such as "jimmies" and skeleton keys and files. His objective is the upper windows, which he reaches by feats of agility and nerve which sometimes are extraordinary. Then he raises the window, which may not be fastened because so far above ground level and above reach of ordinary housebreakers. But if the catch is on, he either breaks an opening through the glass, to reach in and turn the catch, or slips it open, probably with the blade of an ordinary pocketknife.

Let it be emphasized that the outstanding feature of his method is the noiselessness with which he comes and goes, and with which he pads about the room. "Cat" burglaries have been committed while the family were at dinner in a room below the scene of action, or even in an adjoining room. Some of the thefts have been committed at the bedsides of sleepers.

Small wonder that press and public raged, as great house after great house was entered and plundered. If the rascal could rob well-guarded mansions so easily, what would happen if he turned his attention to the homes of the middle class, where valuables are fewer but even more prized than they are by the wealthy?

Most exasperating detail of all, it seemed that just one arrest could bring the whole sorry business to an end. And as these words are written the police, despite increased vigilance, also patrols, disguises and other stratagems, have not been able to apprehend the "cat" burglar nor anybody who can give information about him.

It was inevitable that all the stir about the "cat" burglar, and his well-advertised success in terms of thousands of dollars, should have inspired imitators. The first of these men with ambitions to shine as a "cat" burglar turned out to be more of a "donkey" burglar than otherwise. His career was brief and inglorious and ended in picturesque failure.

The alarm in the case of this imitative "cat" burglar was given by a woman in Soho Square who noticed what she thought to be the form of a man silhouetted on the roof of a large four-story building in Dean street, nearby. The building is occupied by two social organizations—the Venetian Club and the International Club. She watched for some time, and then got the clear outline of a man standing against a chimney.

"He appeared to me," she said, "to be fastening something to the chimney stack, and then lowered a rope from the top floor to a flat roof which juts out at the back of the premises."

The woman now thought it was time to give the alarm, and she notified the police, who dashed up in motor cars from Great Marlborough Street Police Station and surrounded the building. Members of the Venetian Club who were in the building had received a telephone warning and four of them made their way through a skylight to the roof.

"We had just got on to the roof," said Louis Soskin of the club, "when we heard someone running over the leads. Then there was a scraping sound and then a crash. I peered over the edge and I saw the form of a man huddled up on the roof which juts out into Soho Square. He was groaning, and in what sounded like a broad Scots accent shouted: 'Help! I have hurt myself!' One of his legs was broken and doubled under him, and he was in great pain." He had fallen 30 feet.

When the police arrived they lowered him to the ground with the aid of his own rope, a new, thick one, and took him to a hospital. He said that he was David Kennedy Stevens, 28 years old, but would give no further account of himself. General exultation over the capture of the supposed "cat" burglar was dampened when officials of New Scotland Yard stated that no importance was attached to his arrest.

An amusing variation upon the "cat" burglar has been the "dog" burglar. This clever scheme originated at Sheffield, and while the "dog" burglar does not operate on any such ambitious scale as his famous rival, he has been very successful.

The "dog" burglar, who is accompanied by a big Airedale, knocks, late at night, at the door of a large house. As soon as the door is opened, the dog rushes through the hall. The owner apologizes profusely and follows the dog, which he pretends he cannot catch, into rooms all over the house. Eventually the dog is caught in an upstairs room, and, after the man has repeated his humble apologies for having "knocked at the wrong door," he and his dog leave the premises.

When the occupants of the house go to their bedrooms, they find that small articles of jewelry and other small valuables have disappeared.

At last accounts the police were making every effort to catch the "dog" burglar, but he appears and disappears so quickly that by the time they arrive on the scene he and the dog have vanished.

The activities of the "cat" burglar caused such widespread alarm that the London newspapers have been printing precautions for their readers, just as they would in the case of a "flu" epidemic or other general danger. Says the Sunday Express, after advising improved window fasteners:

"The servants should be advised not to be too regular in their habits with regard to tidying rooms and putting away their mistress' clothes.

"The householder himself should not always dine at exactly the same moment every night.

"The electric lights should be left burning in the front bedrooms throughout dinner; or, alternatively, if the extra cost of the electric light should be thought too great, a dog, preferably Pomeranian, which yaps in staccato fashion, like an electric bell, should be left in the main bedroom."

But it would appear to most people that the only way of curbing the "cat" burglar is to catch him, and lock him up carefully in a very tight jail.

JACKIE COOGAN arrived in Berlin the day we did, and I have never yet learned whether the crowd about the Adlon Hotel entrance on Unter den Linden was there to welcome Jackie or us, but as many of the little boys in the gathering were dressed in Jackie Coogan suits and sported hats across which "Jackie" was printed in gold, I am secretly inclined to believe that the honors were intended for America's greatest movie actor.

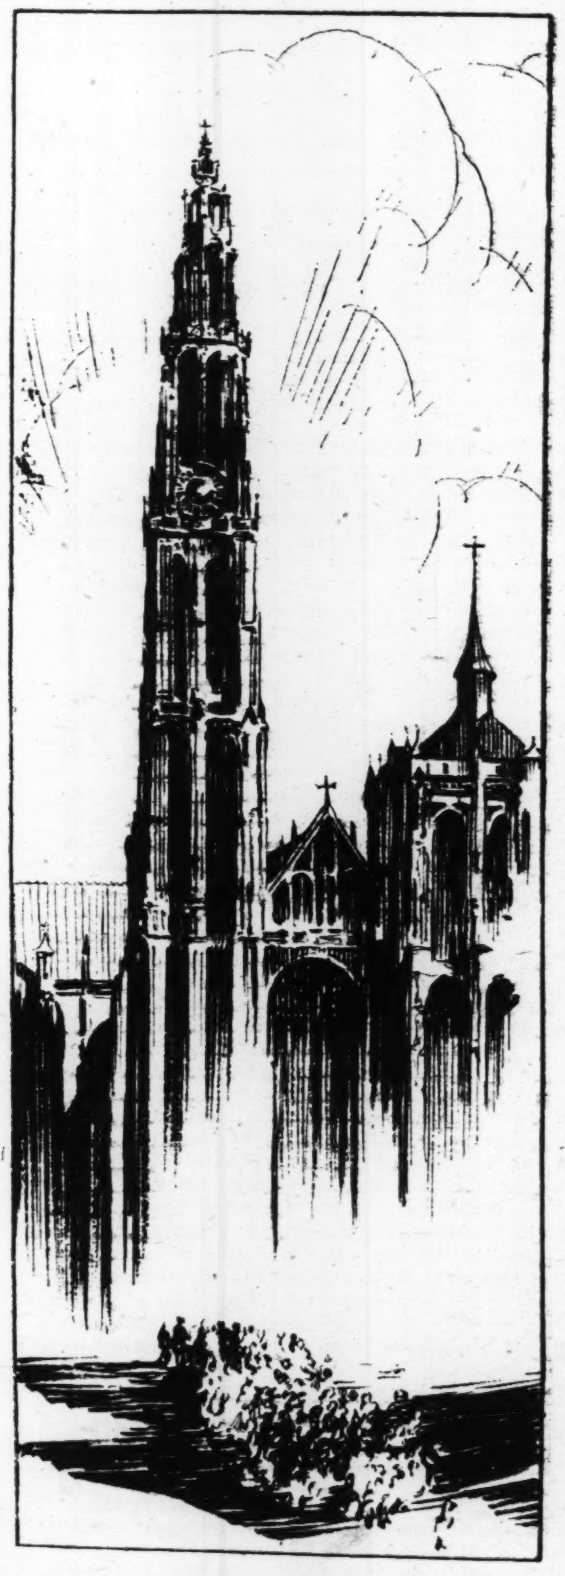
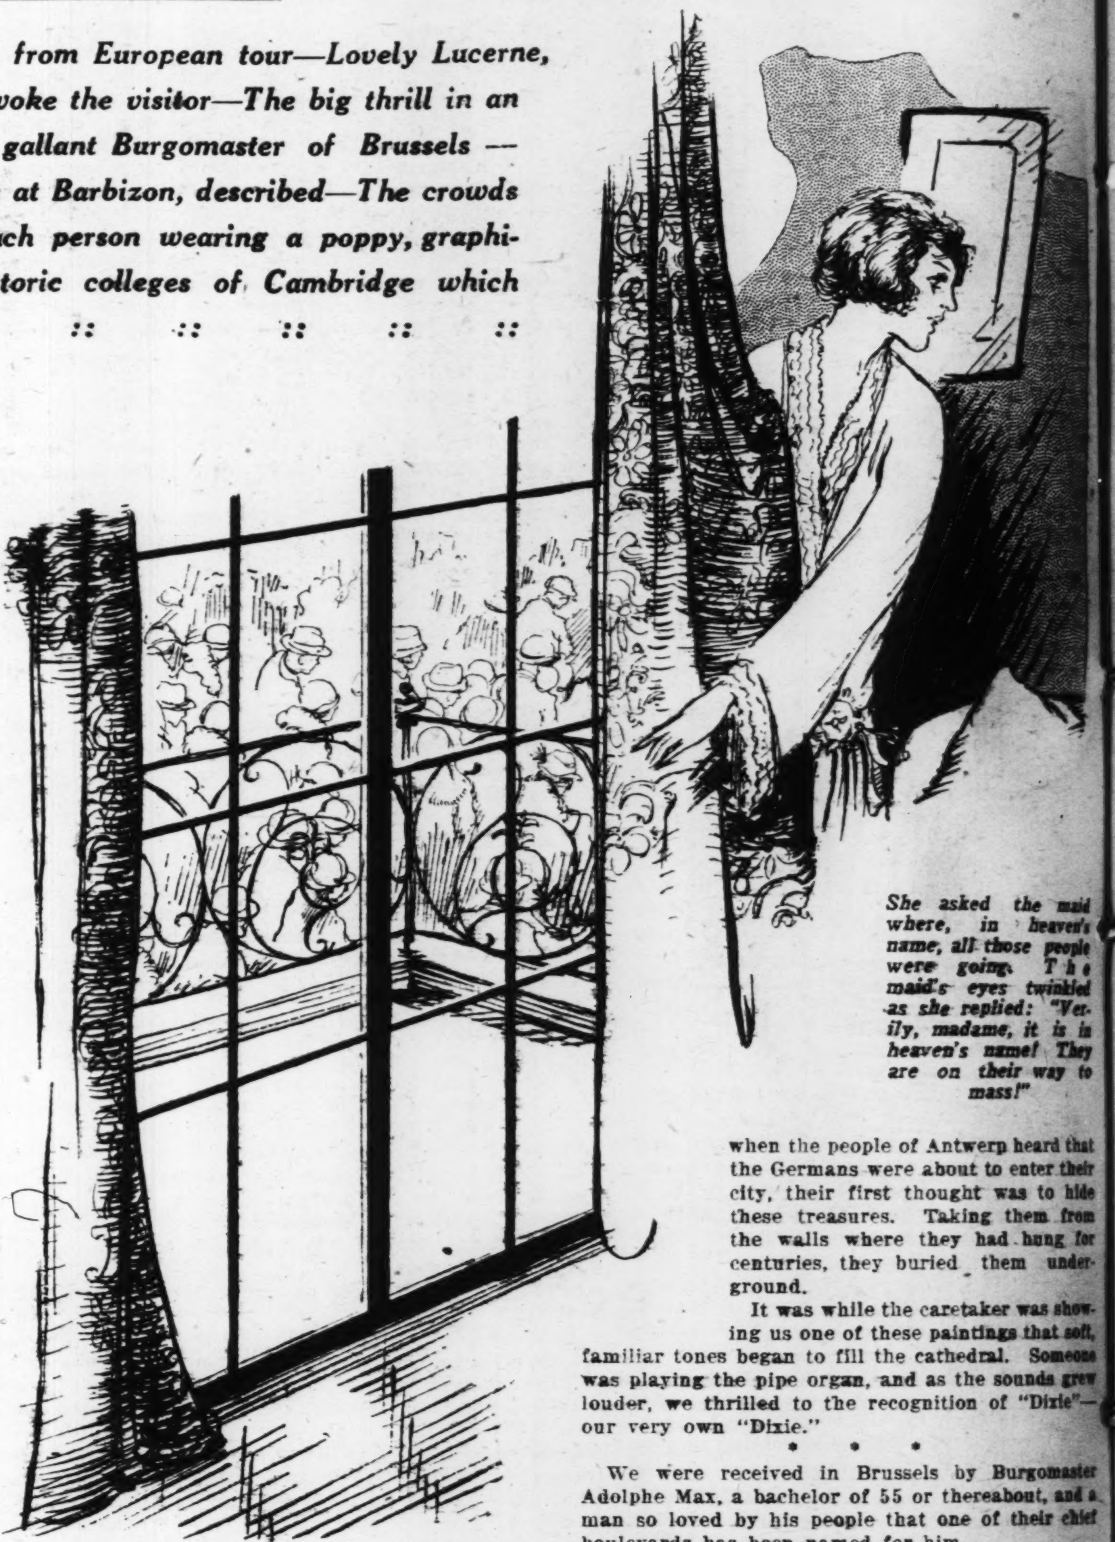
We left Berlin from the Anhalt railway station, arriving at Lucerne the following morning, and being conveyed in horse-drawn busses to our respective hotels. I stopped at the National, overlooking Lake Lucerne, and was so weary from the all-night trip, and so much sightseeing in Berlin that, upon being taken to my room, forthwith concluded to go to bed for a while.

Continental beds are so conducive to this "early-to-bed" idea, anyhow—so wide, so deep, so soft are they. Two mattresses grace every set of springs, and one's weary body fairly sinks into luscious depths, and becomes divinely lost in a sort of magic embrace.



The biggest thrill of the trip was on the day they visited the Cathedral at Antwerp.



She asked the maid where, in heaven's name, all those people were going. The maid's eyes twinkled as she replied: "Verily, madame, it is in heaven's name! They are on their way to mass!"

I slept that morning for perhaps an hour, and then subconsciously began to be disturbed by the patter, patter, patter of feet on the tree-lined promenade two floors beneath my window.

Lying there, half-awake, half-asleep, I thought: "A delegation of something or other must be going somewhere," and figuring that the annoying sound of their footfalls would soon cease, waited patiently for the crowd to pass.

But no! Patter, patter, patter continued those innumerable pairs of shoes! Click, click, click, sounded those wooden heels! Minute after minute passed by until at last I was thoroughly awakened, and curious to learn just whence such hordes of people were rushing on this crisp October Sunday morning, left my bed and pulled the cord which parted the heavy curtains of my window.

At this moment a maid entered my room, and in dreadful French I asked her where, in heaven's name, were all those people going.

A deep dimple appeared in her rosy cheek, and her blue eyes twinkled as she replied: "Verily, madame, it is in heaven's name! They are on their way to mass!"

"And I had thought it was at least a regiment!" I ruminated, opening the French doors which led onto my balcony—a brave little balcony whereon one has one's morning chocolate in June. "What religious devotion!"

And then, seeing the snow-capped Alps rising to heaven itself, and the sun smiling on the blue waters of Lake Lucerne, I roused myself from my lethargy and decided to be up and about—"to look, to see, to go, to be!"

I was in Lucerne, I told myself, lovely Lucerne, and there would be days and days all the rest of my life—elsewhere—when I could nap.

I had never before been so thrilled as I was the day we visited the cathedral at Antwerp. It is hundreds of years old, of course, and contains some wonderful paintings by Rubens. They are mammoth and marvelous affairs, depicting the various episodes in the life of Christ, and are so valued that when the people of Antwerp heard that the Germans were about to enter their city, their first thought was to hide these treasures. Taking them from the walls where they had hung for centuries, they buried them underground.

It was while the caretaker was showing us one of these paintings that soft, familiar tones began to fill the cathedral. Someone was playing the pipe organ, and as the sounds grew louder, we thrilled to the recognition of "Dixie"—our very own "Dixie."

We were received in Brussels by Burgomaster Adolphe Max, a bachelor of 55 or thereabout, and a man so loved by his people that one of their chief boulevards has been named for him.

He refused to obey certain German orders during the war and was imprisoned quite a length of time for his valiant disobedience.

He welcomed us most cordially and was gallant enough to remark that he admired American women so very much, indeed, that had he the time—were he not always so dreadfully busy—he would go to America to choose a wife for himself! Diplomacy, perchance, but pleasing to the ear!

* * *

And speaking of being received, that charming new President of France, Gaston Doumergue, welcomed our party in his own home in Paris, going about among us, shaking hands and exchanging pleasantries with each of us, instead of our filing past him in the more formal, and less flattering, way.

He is, I believe, the first Protestant President France has ever had.

Barbizon is a quaint village, once the home of Millet, the painter, and for a short time, also, of Robert Louis Stevenson. It is en route from Paris to the Palace of Fontainebleau, once the dwelling place of Kings.

We stopped at an inn, alongside the main street, and lunched and wined delightfully for the sum of 20 francs, which amounts to a trifle more than an American dollar. Such delicious hors d'oeuvres, such perfectly browned fowl and Julienne potatoes, such crisp green salad, dressed with just the right amount of garlic; such palatable pastry, such delectable cheese "du pays," such fragrant black coffee, and—last to be mentioned, but not least to be considered—such olden, golden Sauterne!

All for a dollar, my friends!

I was fortunate enough to be in London on Armistice day, and with thousands of others went to the Cenotaph to pay my tribute to England's dead heroes.

The body of the Unknown Soldier lies in Westminster Abbey, and I stopped before the tomb when I attended service there Nov. 9. Such numbers of people stood in silent reverence over the oblong stone in the floor that it was impossible to edge

I woke at 8 that morning and, glancing out of my window, was surprised to see people scurrying down Albemarle street into Piccadilly, even at that hour, the services being set for 11 o'clock.

A young man in a shabby tweed suit stepped suddenly from the embrasure of a building and, jerking a rather disgraceful hat from his fair hair, said: "Would you like a guide?"

Ex-soldier boys wheeled themselves along in invalid chairs, some of the poor creatures with dreadfully mutilated faces, others with no legs, and men and women ran to catch crowded busses going down Piccadilly in the direction of Whitehall.

There was such a pleasant air of excitement that I decided to dress at once and get on the streets, and into the throngs. Pretty girls sold poppies on each street corner, and every human being I saw—from street cleaner to sable-wrapped member of the nobility—wore one on his coat lapel.

The cost was whatever you could afford to drop into the extended tin box, the size and fineness of the poppy increasing commensurately with the donation. I saw a nice old cockney laborer approach a girl with a tray of poppies and say: "A penny poppy, lidy, if you please," and she gave him a modest little cotton flower which he placed in his button hole.

Street venders sold tiny British flags and post cards of the Prince of Wales. I hesitated before the outstretched tray of one of them, intrigued with the idea of buying a picture of that most popular of Princes, dressed in naval uniform, and in the act of lighting a cigarette. The Londoner with whom I was making for the Cenotaph, however, dragged me on, informing me disgustedly that only the lowest classes indulged in such purchases, and we were in such a hurry that I had not the time to argue the matter with him.

Shabby women flitted past us as we rushed to our goal—women with bunches of bedraggled flowers in their arms and a celestial look in their eyes—women whose sons, perhaps, had been lost in the great war, and who, on this day of memories, hurried to place their tributes on the shrine of England's unknown hero.

The two minutes of absolute silence were the most impressive 120 seconds I have ever experienced. Exactly as the first stroke of 11 was heard, every man removed his hat, and with bowed heads we stood there in the street, so tightly packed together that one would have thought that every citizen in London had left his home or office and come to this particular spot.

As the seconds wore on, tears filled the eyes of some of those who had lost a beloved son or husband or brother, and now and then the deadly silence was broken by a woman's sob.

I had always wanted to visit Cambridge University, so, taking my English pass in hand one day—a pass such as had been presented to every member of our party, and which read, "Free pass on all railroads and steamers."—I started forth alone.

My mind's eye had pictured Cambridge as a village with nothing in it save the various colleges, a few homes and several shops. To my surprise, I discovered upon arriving at the station, after an hour and a half's journey from London, that it was a place of no mean proportions, and upon inquiry was told that it has 60,000 inhabitants.

Nothing resembling a college was in sight, so, in desperation, I boarded the first bus I saw. It bore a sign which read: "To the postoffice," and feeling very lonely and helpless, I concluded I might as well go there as anywhere! At least I'd be on the road to something!

Truly enough, I beheld, upon reaching the end of the route, several large old structures that looked suspiciously like college buildings, and, walking slowly along the main road, I glanced here and there, wondering shyly if I dared enter this door or trespass in that court.

Then, as if sent from heaven, a young man in a shabby tweed suit stepped suddenly from the embrasure of a building in which he was standing, and, jerking a rather disgraceful hat from his fair hair, said:

"Would you like a guide?"

"Yes, I would," I replied, feeling very much relieved. "How much do you charge?"

"Three shillings an hour," he returned, regarding me with the bluest eyes I've ever seen.

"Very well, then," I said, "you may take me about for an hour."

"Just an hour?" he inquired, and there was, I felt certain, something wistful in his tones.

"Ah," I thought, pityingly, "I am probably the only—ah—er—client he has had today," and I said, with great regret:

"Yes, just an hour. I must catch the 3:52 back to London."

He took me first to Jesus College and then to Magdalene. We crossed the bridge of sighs, and he showed me, too, the little River Cam and told me how lovely it was on a May day when the boys traveled its course in punts.

We loitered in the court at Caius while he explained just what "fellow" lived here, and what now famous person had lived in certain other rooms.

He piloted me into various dining halls and libraries, pointing out a painting here by Van Dyck, a portrait there by Rembrandt, a Sheraton chair, a Chippendale highboy. I was quite awe-stricken by the quantity and quality of his information, and the time went by so quickly that I forced myself to keep a strict eye on my watch.

Exactly at the end of an hour I said: "Well, our time's up," and opened my purse in search of his three shillings, and an extra sixpence.

To my surprise, he made no attempt to take the money—merely stood there with both hands in his pockets and a twinkle that was undeniably merry in his eyes.

"I can't take it, you know," he finally said, stammering like an Eton boy. "I—I—really can't, you know. You see, I'm not a guide, but you looked so dreadfully bewildered, wandering down the road, that I—er"——

"Do you mean to say," I interrupted, indignantly, "do you mean to say that you are not really a guide, and that you imposed yourself on me merely for the sport of the thing?"

A deep red suffused his face, but his eyes continued to smile at me merrily, and I knew him to be quite unabashed.

"But really, now," he countered, "I guided you awfully well, didn't I? You see, I was up here for four years and I knew what I was talking about! Ah, come, now, say you'll forgive me. Please!"

Again I tried to be austere, indignant, even angry, but it was most difficult, and I felt myself melting against my will. He was so good-looking, so English, and so altogether charming.

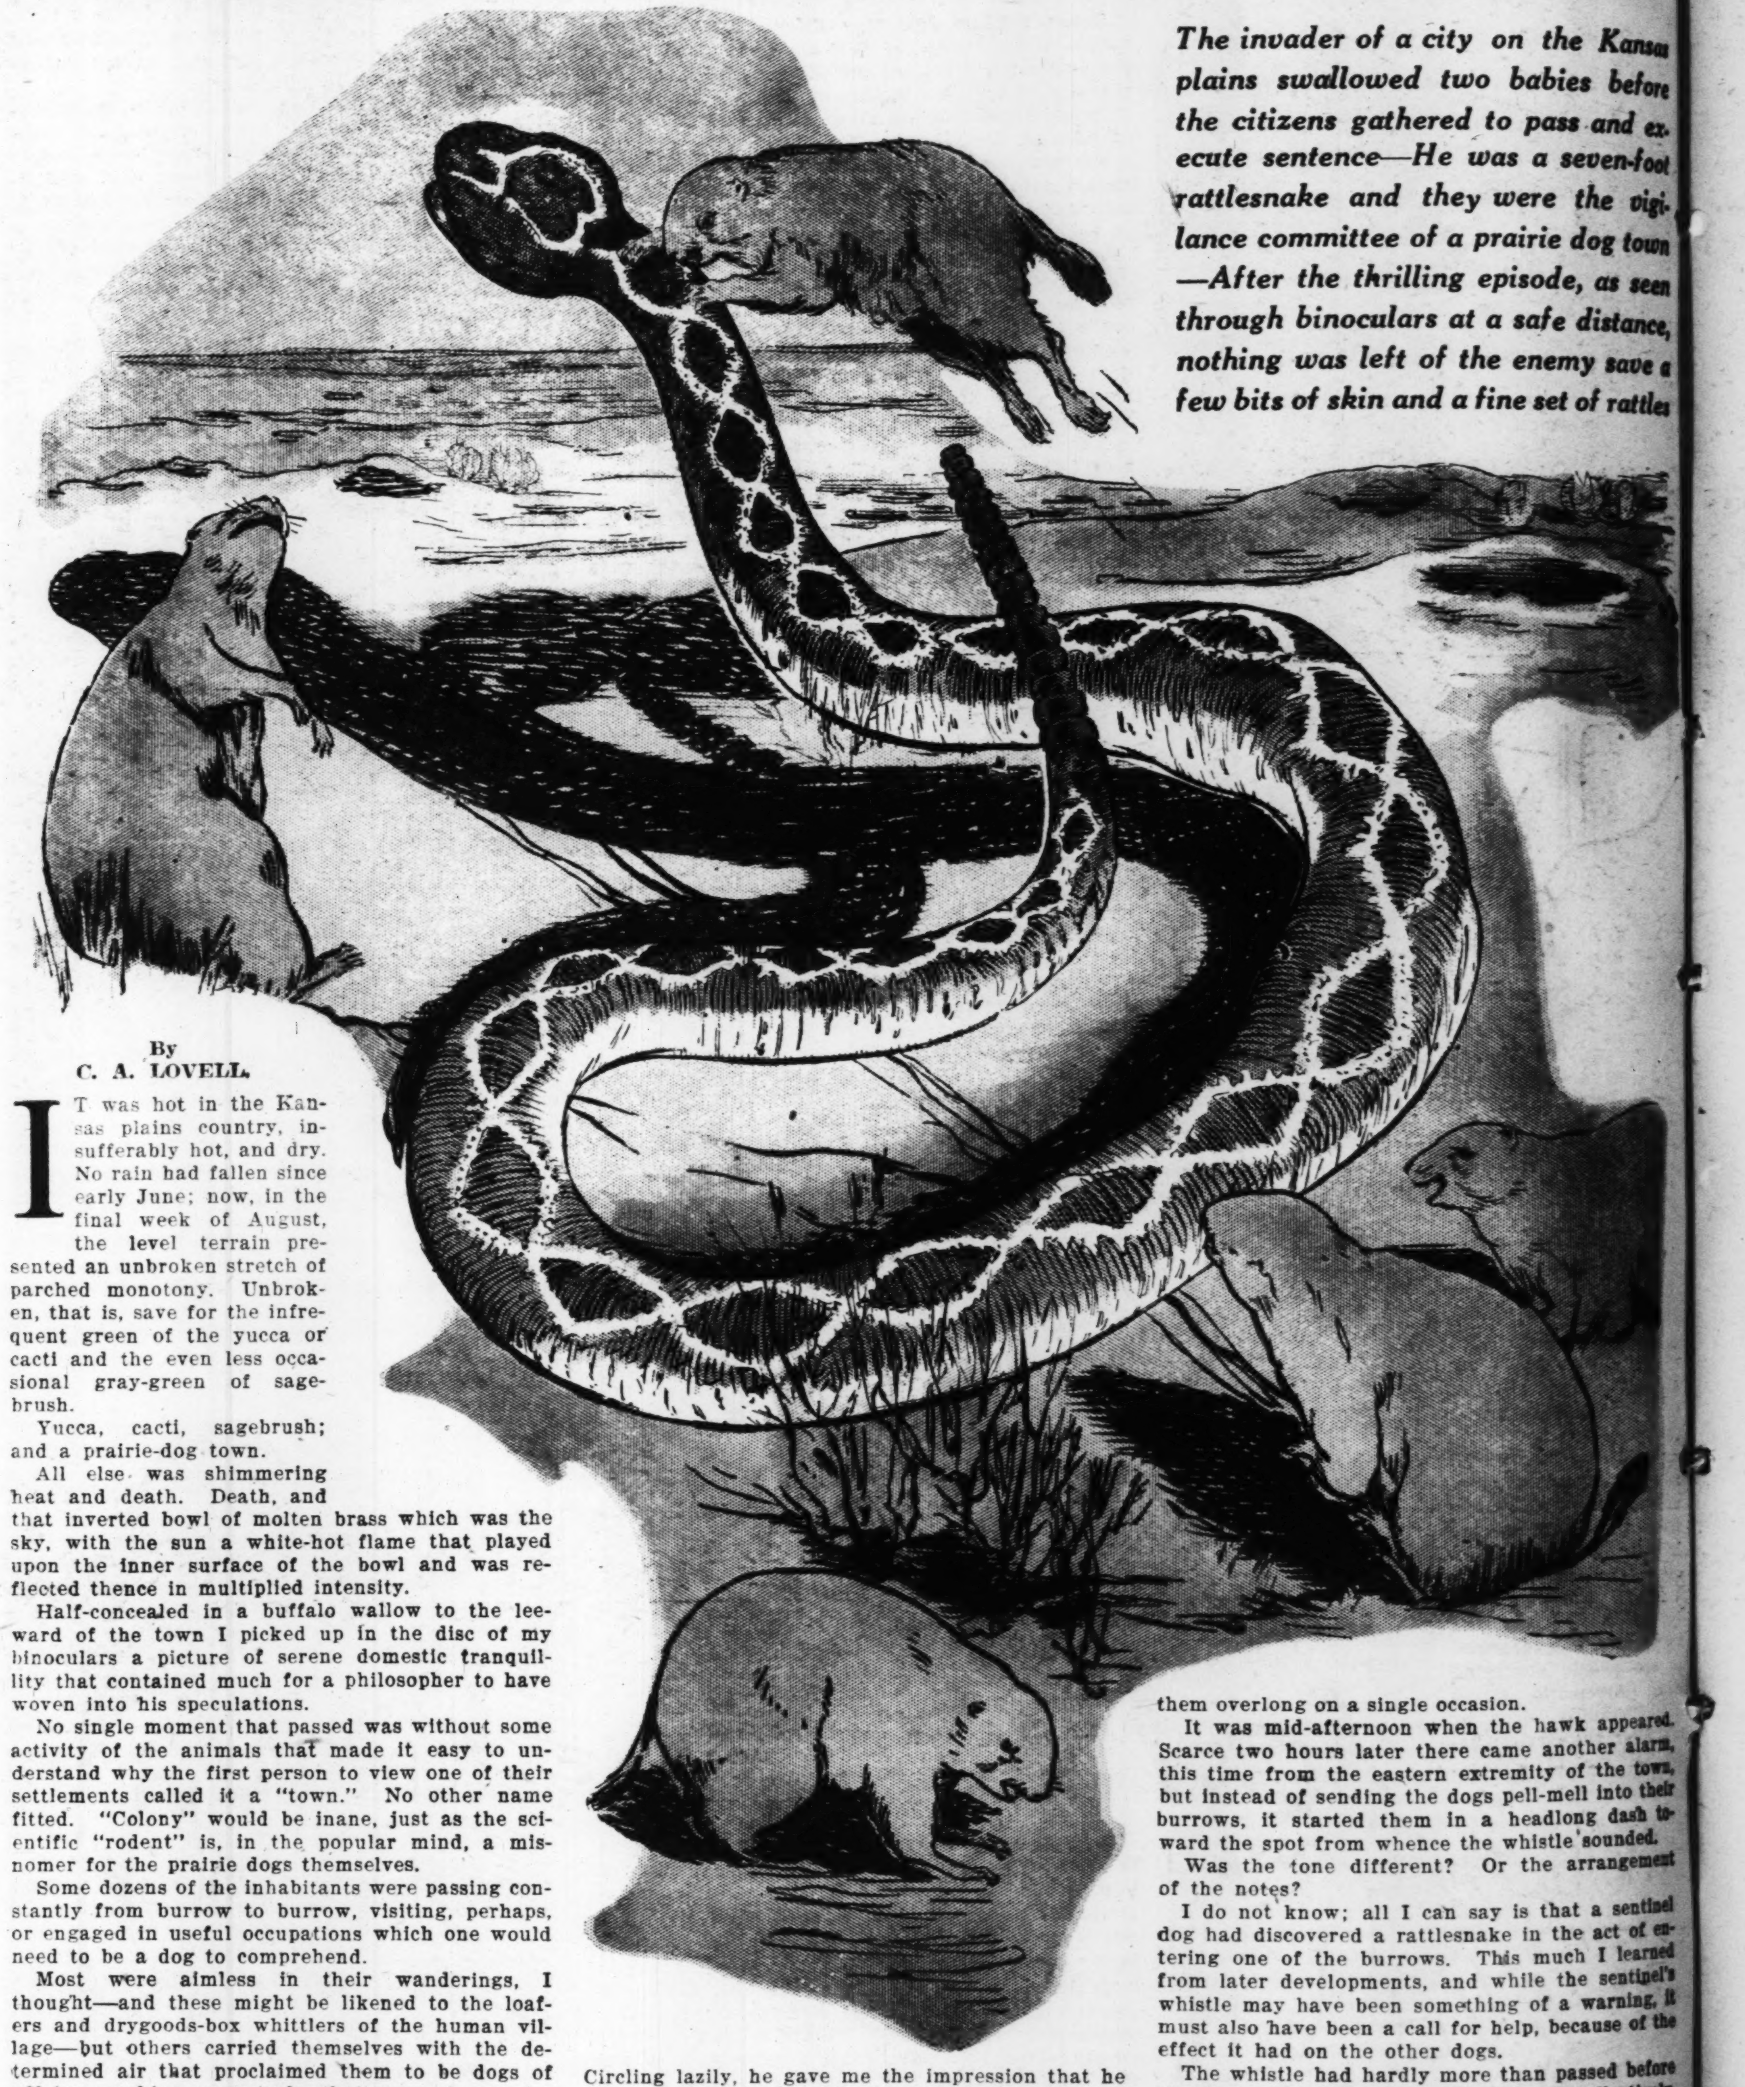
"I say," he pleaded, "allow me to introduce myself," and dragging forth his wallet he handed me his card. To my amazement, it read, "Sir ———," which made me wish to appear all the more incensed. It was quite out of the question, however, with those blue eyes making such sport of my severity, and so—and so—I laughed.

And then, this shocking young man asked me to have tea with him—just to prove that I had quite forgiven him—and I admit, flushingly, of course, that I accepted!

In fact, Sir —— returned to London on the same train with me, and during the 10 days that followed before I sailed for home, and in spite of an occasional fog, made me understand the meaning of that phrase which one so often hears—"Brighter London!"

PRIMORDIAL VENGEANCE

The invader of a city on the Kansas plains swallowed two babies before the citizens gathered to pass and execute sentence—He was a seven-foot rattlesnake and they were the vigilance committee of a prairie dog town—After the thrilling episode, as seen through binoculars at a safe distance, nothing was left of the enemy save a few bits of skin and a fine set of rattles



By
C. A. LOVELL.

IT was hot in the Kansas plains country, insufferably hot, and dry. No rain had fallen since early June; now, in the final week of August, the level terrain presented an unbroken stretch of parched monotony. Unbroken, that is, save for the infrequent green of the yucca or cacti and the even less occasional gray-green of sagebrush.

Yucca, cacti, sagebrush; and a prairie-dog town.

All else was shimmering heat and death. Death, and that inverted bowl of molten brass which was the sky, with the sun a white-hot flame that played upon the inner surface of the bowl and was reflected thence in multiplied intensity.

Half-concealed in a buffalo wallow to the leeward of the town I picked up in the disc of my binoculars a picture of serene domestic tranquillity that contained much for a philosopher to have woven into his speculations.

No single moment that passed was without some activity of the animals that made it easy to understand why the first person to view one of their settlements called it a "town." No other name fitted. "Colony" would be inane, just as the scientific "rodent" is, in the popular mind, a misnomer for the prairie dogs themselves.

Some dozens of the inhabitants were passing constantly from burrow to burrow, visiting, perhaps, or engaged in useful occupations which one would need to be a dog to comprehend.

Most were aimless in their wanderings, I thought—and these might be likened to the loafers and drygoods-box whittlers of the human village—but others carried themselves with the determined air that proclaimed them to be dogs of affairs, working upon tasks that were at once interesting and definite in their trend.

One big fellow among the populace seemed especially methodical, his scurryings about taking him from one group to another in precisely the way one would expect a newspaper reporter to go in his search for items for a forthcoming edition. Or a real estate agent intent upon finding a likely prospect for the purchase of an excellent burrowing site he had just listed.

I watched this fellow as he stopped a brief time at each burrow, and at every occasion there ensued a something that I conceived to be an animated discussion in the short and jerky whistle which constitutes dog language. When the parley was completed, or broken off in its midst, he rushed to the next street corner or whatever it is that corresponds to a curb-side gathering place for dogs, and again and again the process was repeated.

More than a thousand times, in towns with names and places on the map, have I seen men creatures doing just that very thing.

While the interest in community affairs was at its height a hawk coasted out of the southern sky. Circling lazily, he gave me the impression that he had sighted the town and was debating whether to try for a catch.

The dogs decided the question for him when he inadvertently permitted his shadow to drift across the burrow area. One warning whistle halted all activity, even as the shutter of a high-speed camera stops a bird in flight or a racing automobile in its mad rush.

Every dog literally popped into the burrow which happened to be nearest, and where one moment there was life the next moment life was not.

More moments passed.

Inquiring eyes and noses lifted cautiously above the mouths of a dozen burrows, then 50, next a hundred.

The hawk was seen far off to the west, coasting still, because he knew that his presence was discovered and that he would not feast on dog meat from that particular town for at least another day.

Instantly the scampering was resumed at the point where it had been terminated so abruptly. I needed no more of an explanation to tell me that the dogs were required to repeat this sort of thing too many times each day to permit it to worry them overlong on a single occasion.

It was mid-afternoon when the hawk appeared. Scarce two hours later there came another alarm, this time from the eastern extremity of the town, but instead of sending the dogs pell-mell into their burrows, it started them in a headlong dash toward the spot from whence the whistle sounded.

Was the tone different? Or the arrangement of the notes?

I do not know; all I can say is that a sentinel dog had discovered a rattlesnake in the act of entering one of the burrows. This much I learned from later developments, and while the sentinel's whistle may have been something of a warning, it must also have been a call for help, because of the effect it had on the other dogs.

The whistle had hardly more than passed before the little creatures, individually and collectively, descended upon the spot indicated by the sentinel.

Indicated?

Well, those more advanced were guided to the burrow into which the snake had gone by the actions of the dog making the discovery. Others, as they came up, had but to swell the mob already present. Actions, you know, speak better than words. And again, actions are the best indicators of all.

Arrived at the burrow, an instinct that was the cumulative experience of the ages taught the dogs just what to do, and they set about doing it at once. As many pairs of feet as could get upon the mound about the burrow opening began applying themselves industriously at the task of clawing earth into the hole.

I did not need to be told that if they could work rapidly enough they might entomb the snake and thus make it impossible for him ever again to effect a similar invasion.

The mound, however, rendered almost pavement-like by the suns and rains of years, would have

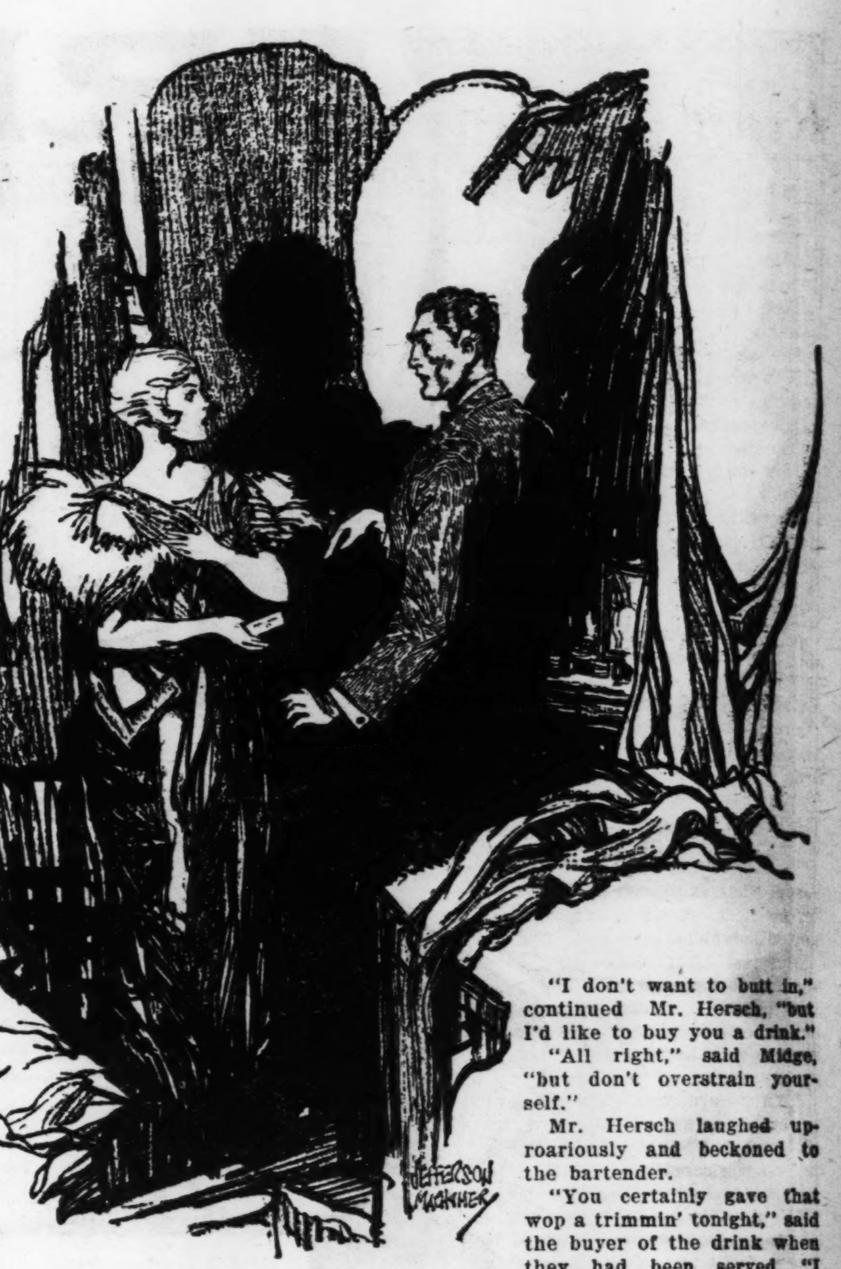
The Champion

by Ring Lardner



"Well," said Midge, "I ain't kiddin' you. You go there and ask for Mrs. Michael Kelly, and if you don't find her I'll marry you tomorrow before breakfast."

MIDGE KELLY scored his first knockout when he was 17. The knockee was his brother Connie, three years his junior and a cripple. The purse was a half-dollar given the younger Kelly by a lady whose electric had just missed bumping his soul from his frail little body.

Connie did not know Midge was in the house, else he never would have risked laying the prize on the arm of the least comfortable chair in the room, the better to observe its shining beauty. As Midge entered from the kitchen the cripple covered the coin with his hand, but the movement lacked the speed requisite to escape the brother's quick eye.

"Whatcha got there?" demanded Midge.

"Nothin'," said Connie.

"You're a one-legged liar!" said Midge.

He strode over to his brother's chair and grasped the hand that concealed the coin.

"Let loose!" he ordered.

"Connie began to cry.

"Let loose and shut up your noise," said the elder, and jerked his brother's hand from the chair arm.

The coin fell onto the bare floor. Midge pounced on it. His weak mouth widened in a triumphant smile.

"Nothin', huh?" he said. "All right, if it's nothin', you don't want it."

"Give that back," sobbed the younger.

"I'll give you a red nose, you little sneak. Where'd you steal it?"

"I didn't steal it. It's mine. A lady give it to me after she pretty near hit me with a car."

"It's a crime she missed you," said Midge.

Midge started for the front door. The cripple picked up his crutch, rose from his chair with difficulty, and, still sobbing, came toward Midge. The latter heard him and stopped.

"You'd better stay where you're at," he said.

"I want my money," cried the boy.

Doubling up the fist that held the half-dollar, he landed with all his strength on his brother's mouth. Connie fell to the floor with a thud, the crutch tumbling on top of him. Midge stood beside the prostrate form.

"Is that enough?" he said. "Or do you want this, too?"

And he kicked him in the crippled leg.

"I guess that'll hold you," he said.

There was no response from the boy on the floor. Midge looked at him a moment, then at the coin in his hand, and then went out into the street, whistling.

An hour later, when Mrs. Kelly came home from her day's work at Faulkner's Steam Laundry, she found Connie on the floor, moaning. Dropping on her knees beside him, she called him by name a score of times. Then she got up and, pale as a ghost, dashed from the house. Dr. Ryan left the Kelly abode about dusk and walked toward Halstead street. Mrs. Dorgan spied him as he passed her gate.

"Who's sick, doctor?" she called.

"Poor little Connie," he replied. "He had a bad fall."

"How did it happen?"

"I can't say for sure, Margaret, but I'd almost bet he was knocked down."

"Knocked down!" exclaimed Mrs. Dorgan.

"Who, who"——

"Have you seen the other one lately?"

"Michael? No, not since mornin'. You can't be thinkin' "——

"I wouldn't put it past him, Margaret," said the doctor, gravely. "The lad's mouth is swollen and cut, and his poor, skinny little leg is bruised. He surely didn't do it himself, and I think Helen suspects the other one."

"Lord save us!" said Mrs. Dorgan. "I'll run over and see if I can help."

"That's a good woman," said Dr. Ryan, and went on down the street.

Near midnight, when Midge came home, his mother was sitting at Connie's bedside. She did not look up.

"Well," said Midge, "what's the matter?"

She remained silent. Midge repeated his question.

"Michael, you know what's the matter," she said, at length.

"I don't know nothin'," said Midge.

"Don't lie to me, Michael. What did you do to your brother?"

"Nothin'."

"You hit him."

"Well, then, I hit him. What of it? It ain't the first time."

Her lips pressed tightly together, her face like chalk, Ellen Kelly rose from her chair and made straight for him. Midge backed against the door.

"Lay off'n me, ma. I don't want to fight no woman."

She still came on, breathing heavily.

"Stop where you're at, ma," he warned.

There was a brief struggle and Midge's mother lay on the floor before him.

"You ain't hurt, ma. You're lucky I didn't land good. And I told you to lay off'n me."

"God forgive you, Michael!"

Midge found Hap Collins in the show-down game at the Royal.

"Come on out a minute," he said.

Hap followed him out on the walk.

"I'm leavin' town for a w'ile," said Midge.

"What for?"

"Well, we had a little run-in up to the house. The kid stole a half-buck off'n me, and when I went after it he cracked me with his crutch. So I nailed him. And the old lady came at me with a chair and I took it off'n her and she fell down."

"How is Connie hurt?"

"Not bad."

"What are you runnin' away for?"

"Who the hell said I was runnin' away? I'm sick and tired o' gettin' picked on; that's all. So I'm leavin' for a w'ile and I want a piece o' money."

"I ain't only got six bits," said Happy.

"You're in bad shape, ain't you? Well, come through with it."

Happy came through.

"You oughtn't to hit the kid," he said.

"I ain't astin' you who I can hit," snarled Midge. "You try to put somethin' over on me and you'll get the same dose. I'm goin' now."

"Go as far as you like," said Happy, but not until he was sure that Kelly was out of hearing.

Early the following morning Midge boarded a train for Milwaukee. He had no ticket, but no one knew the difference. The conductor remained in the caboose.

On a night six months later Midge hurried out of the "stage door" of the Star Boxing Club and made for Duane's saloon, two blocks away. In his pocket were $12, his reward for having battered up one Demon Dempsey through the six rounds of the first preliminary.

It was Midge's first professional engagement in the manly art. Also, it was the first time in weeks that he had earned $12.

On the way to Duane's he had to pass Niemann's. He pulled his cap over his eyes and increased his pace until he had gone by. Inside Niemann's stood a trusting bartender, who for 10 days had staked Midge to drinks and allowed him to ravage the lunch, on a promise to come in and settle the moment he was paid for the "prelim."

Midge strode into Duane's and aroused the napping bartender by slapping a silver dollar on the festive board.

"Gimme a shot," said Midge.

The shooting continued until the wind-up at the Star was over and part of the fight crowd joined Midge in front of Duane's bar. A youth in the early twenties standing next to young Kelly, finally summoned enough courage to address him.

"Wasn't you in the first bout?" he ventured.

"Yeh," Midge replied.

"My name's Hersch," said the other.

Midge received the startling information in silence.

"I don't want to butt in," continued Mr. Hersch, "but I'd like to buy you a drink."

"All right," said Midge, "but don't overstrain yourself."

Mr. Hersch laughed uproariously and beckoned to the bartender.

"You certainly gave that wop a trimmin' tonight," said the buyer of the drink when they had been served. "I thought you'd kill him."

"I would if I hadn't let up," Midge replied. "I'll kill 'em all."

"You got the wallop, all right," the other said, admiringly.

"Have I got the wallop?" said Midge. "Say, I can kick like a mule. Did you notice them muscles in my shoulders?"

"Notice 'em? I couldn't help from noticin' 'em," said Hersch. "I says to the fella sittin' alongside o' me, I says: 'Look at them shoulders! No wonder he can hit!' I says to him."

"Just let me land and it's good-bye, baby," said Midge. "I'll kill 'em all."

The oral manslaughter continued until Duane's closed for the night. At parting, Midge and his new friend shook hands and arranged for a meeting the following evening.

For nearly a week the two were together almost constantly. It was Hersch's pleasant role to listen to Midge's modest revelations concerning himself. and to buy every time Midge's glass was empty. But there came an evening when Hersch regretfully announced that he must go home to supper.

"I got a date for 8 bells," he confided. "I could stick till then, only I must clean up and put on the Sunday clo's, 'cause she's the prettiest little thing in Milwaukee."

"Can't you fix it for two?" asked Midge.

"I don't know who to get," Hersch replied. "Wait, though. I got a sister, and if she ain't busy it'll be O K. She's no bum for looks herself."

So it came about that Midge and Emma Hersch and Emma's brother and the prettiest little thing in Milwaukee foregathered at Wall's and danced half the night away. And Midge and Emma danced every dance together, for though every little onestep seemed to induce a new thirst of its own, Lou Hersch stayed too sober to dance with his own sister.

The next day, penniless at last, in spite of his phenomenal ability to make someone else settle, Midge Kelly sought out Doc Hammond, matchmaker for the Star, and asked to be booked for the next show.

"I could put you on with Tracy for the next bout," said the Doc.

"What's they in it?" asked Midge.

"Twenty if you cop," Doc told him.

"Have a heart," protested Midge. "Didn't I look good the other night?"

"You looked all right. But you aren't Freddie Welsh yet by a consid'able margin."

"I ain't scared of Freddie Welsh or none of 'em," said Midge.

"Well, we don't pay our boxers by the size of their chests," Doc said. "I'm offerin' you this Tracy bout. Take it or leave it."

"All right; I'm on," said Midge, and he passed a pleasant afternoon at Duane's on the strength of his booking.

Young Tracy's manager came to Midge the night before the show.

"How do you feel about this go?" he asked.

"Me?" said Midge. "I feel all right. What do you mean, how do I feel?"

"I mean," said Tracy's manager, "that we're mighty anxious to win, 'cause the boy's got a chanct in Philly if he cops this one."

Ring Lardner Invents the World's Meanest Man

"What's your proposition?" asked Midge.

"Fifty bucks," said Tracy's manager.

"What do you think I am, a crook? Me lay down for 50 bucks. Not me!"

"Seventy-five, then," said Tracey's manager.

The market closed on 80 and the details were agreed on in short order. And the next night Midge was stopped in the second round by a terrific slap on the forearm.

This time Midge passed up both Niemann's and the Duane's, having a sizable account at each place, and sought his refreshment at Stein's farther down the street.

When the profits of his deal with Tracy were gone he learned, by first-hand information from Doc Hammond and the matchmakers at the other "clubs," that he was no longer desired for even the cheapest of preliminaries. There was no danger of his starving or dying of thirst while Emma and Lou Hersch lived. But he made up his mind, four months after his defeat by Young Tracy, that Milwaukee was not the ideal place for him to live.

"I can lick the best of 'em," he reasoned, "but there ain't no more chanct for me here. I can maybe go East and get on somewheres. And besides"——

But just after Midge had purchased a ticket to Chicago with the money he had "borrowed" from Emma Hersch "to buy shoes," a heavy hand was laid on his shoulders and he turned to face two strangers.

"Where are you goin', Kelly?" inquired the owner of the heavy hand.

"Nowheres," said Midge. "What the hell do you care?"

The other stranger spoke:

"Kelly, I'm employed by Emma Hersch to see that you do right by her. And we want you to stay here till you've done it."

"You won't get nothin' but the worst of it, monkeying with me," said Midge.

Nevertheless, he did not depart for Chicago that night. Two days later Emma Hersch became Mrs. Kelly and the gift of the groom, when once they were alone, was a crushing blow on the bride's pale cheek.

Next morning Midge left Milwaukee as he had entered it—by fast freight.

* * * * *

"They's no use kiddin' ourself any more," said Tommy Haley. "He might get down to 37 in a pinch, but if he done below that a mouse could stop him. He's a welter; that's what he is, and he knows it as well as I do. He's growed like a weed in the last six mont's. I told him, I says: 'If you don't quit growin' they won't be nobody for you to box, only Willard and them.'

"He says: 'Well, I wouldn't run away from Willard if I weighed 20 pounds more.'"

"He must hate himself," said Tommy's brother.

"I never seen a good one that didn't," said Tommy. "And Midge is a good one; don't make no mistake about that. I wisht we could of got Welsh before the kid growed so big. But it's too late now. I won't make no holler, though, if we can match him up with the Dutchman."

"What do you mean?"

"Young Goetz, the welter champ. We mightn't not get so much dough for the bout itself, but it'd roll in afterward. What a drawin' card we'd be, 'cause the people pays their money to see the fella with the wallop, and that's Midge. And we'd keep the title just as long as Midge could make the weight."

"Can't you land no match with Goetz?"

"Sure, 'cause he needs the money. But I've went careful with the kid so far, and look at the results I got! So what's the use of takin' a chanct? The kid's comin' every minute and Goetz is goin' back faster'n big Johnson did. I think we could lick him now; I'd bet my life on it. But six months from now they won't be no risk. He'll of licked hisself before that time. Then all as we'll have to do is sign up with him and wait for the referee to stop it. But Midge is so crazy to get at him now that I can hardly hold him back."

The brothers Haley were lunching in a Boston hotel. Dan had come down from Holyoke to visit with Tommy and watch the latter's protege go 12 rounds, or less, with Bud Cross. The bout promised little in the way of a contest, for Midge had twice stopped the Baltimore youth and Bud's reputation for gameness was all that had earned him the date. The fans were willing to pay the price to see Midge's hay-making left, but they wanted to see it used on an opponent who would not jump out of the ring the first time he felt its crushing force. But Cross was such an opponent, and his willingness to stop boxing gloves with his eyes, ears, nose and throat had long enabled him to escape the horrors of honest labor. A game boy was Bud and he showed it in his battered, swollen, discolored face.

"I should think," said Dan Haley, "the kid'd do whatever you tell him, after all you done for him."

"Well," said Tommy, "he's took my dope pretty straight so far, but he's so sure of hisself that he can't see no reason for waitin'. He'll do what I say, though; he'd be a sucker not to."

"You got a contrac' with him?"

"No, I don't need no contract. He knows it was me that drug him out o' the gutter and he ain't goin' to turn me down now, when he's got the dough and bound to get more. Where'd he of been at if I hadn't listened to him when he first come to me? That's pretty near two years ago now, but it seems like last week. I was settin' in the s'loon acrost from the Pleasant Club in Philly, waitin' for McCann to count the dough and come over, when this little bum blowed in and tried to stand the house off for a drink. They told him nothin' doin' and to beat it out o' there, and then he seen me and come over to where I was settin' and ast me wasn't I a boxin' man, and I told him who I was. Then he ast me for money to buy a shot and I told him to set down and I'd buy it for him.

"Then we got talkin' things over, and he told me his name and told me about fightin' a couple o' prelims out to Milwaukee. So I says, 'Well, boy, I don't know how good or how rotten you are, but you won't never get nowheres trainin' on that stuff.' So he says he'd cut it out if he could get on in a bout and I says I would give him a chanct if he played square with me and didn't touch no more drink. So we shook hands and I took him up to the hotel with me and give him a bath and the next day I bought him some clo'es. And I staked him to eats and sleeps for over six weeks. He had a hard time breakin' away from the polish, but finally I thought he was fit and I give him his chanct. He went on with Smiley Slayer and stopped him so quick that Smiley thought sure he was poisoned.

"Well, you know what he's did since. The only beatin' in his record was by Tracy in Milwaukee before I got hold of him, and he's licked Tracy three times in the last year.

"I've gave him the best of it in a money way and he's got 7000 bucks in cold storage. How's that for a kid that was in the gutter two years ago? And he'd have still more yet if he wasn't so nuts over clo'es and got to stop at the good hotels and so forth."

"Where's his home at?"

"Well, he ain't really got no home. He came from Chicago and his mother canned him out o' the house for bein' no good. She give him a raw deal, I guess, and he says he won't have nothin' to do with her unlest she comes to him first. She's got a pile o' money, he says, so he ain't worrying about her."

The gentleman under discussion entered the cafe and swaggered to Tommy's table, while the whole room turned to look.

Midge was the picture of health, despite a slightly colored eye and an ear that seemed to have no opening. But perhaps it was not his healthiness that drew all eyes. His diamond horseshoe tiepin, his purple, cross-striped shirt, his orange shoes and his light-blue suit fairly screamed for attention.

"Where you been?" he asked Tommy. "I been lookin' all over for you."

"Set down," said his manager.

"No time," said Midge. "I'm goin' down to the w'arf and see 'em unload the fish."

"Shake hands with my brother Dan," said Tommy.

Midge shook hands with the Holyoke Haley.

"If you're Tommy's brother, you're O. K with me," said Midge, and the brothers beamed with pleasure.

Dan moistened his lips and murmured an embarrassed reply, but it was lost on the young gladiator.

"Leave me take 20," Midge was saying. "I prob'ly won't need it, but I don't like to be caught short."

Tommy parted with a $20 bill and recorded the transaction in a small black book the insurance company had given him for Christmas.

"But," he said, "it won't cost you no 20 to look at them fish. Want me to go along?"

"No," said Midge, hastily. "You and your brother here prob'ly got a lot to say to each other."

"Well,' said Tommy, "don't take no bad money and don't get lost. And you better be back at 4 o'clock and lay down a w'ile."

"I don't need no rest to beat this guy," said Midge. "He'll do enough layin' down for the both of us."

And laughing even more than the jest called for, he strode out through the fire of admiring and startled glances.

The corner of Boylston and Tremont was the nearest Midge got to the wharf, but the lady awaiting him was doubtless a more dazzling sight than the catch of the luckiest Massachusetts fisherman. She could talk, too—probably better than the fish.

"Oh, you kid!" she said, flashing a few silver teeth among the gold. "Oh, you fighting man!"

Midge smiled up at her.

"We'll go somewheres and get a drink," he said. "One won't hurt.

* * * * *

In New Orleans, five months after he had rearranged the map of Bud Cross for the third time, Midge finished training for his championship bout with the Dutchman.

Back in his hotel after the final workout, Midge stopped to chat with some of the boys from up North, who had made the long trip to see a champion dethroned, for the result of this bout was so nearly a foregone conclusion that even the experts had guessed it.

Tommy Haley secured the key and the mail and ascended to the Kelly suite. He was bathing when Midge came in, half an hour later.

"Any mail?" asked Midge.

"There on the bed," replied Tommy from the tub.

Midge picked up a stack of letters and postcards and glanced them over. From the pile he sorted out three letters and laid them on the table. The rest he tossed into the wastebasket. Then he picked up the three and sat for a few minutes holding them, while his eyes gazed off into space. At length he looked again at the three unopened letters in his hand; then he put one in his pocket and tossed the other two at the basket. They missed their target and fell on the floor.

"Hell!" said Midge, and, stooping over, picked them up.

He opened one postmarked Milwaukee and read:

"Dear Husband: I have wrote to you so many times and got no answer and I don't know if you ever got them, so I am writing again in the hopes you will get this letter and anser. I don't like to bother you with my trubles and I would not only for the baby and I am not asking you should write to me but only send a little money and I am not asking for myself but the baby has not been well a day sence last Aug. and the dr. told me she can't live much longer unless I give her better food and thats impossible the way things are. Lou has not been working for a year and what I make don't hardly pay for the rent. I am not asking for you to give me any money, but only you should send what I loaned when convenient and I think it amts. to about $36.00. Please try and send that amt. and it will help me, but if you cant send the whole amt.

How I Won The Man I Loved

How a demure little wren of a girl was changed almost over-night into an attractive Bird-of-Paradise woman—how she who had been neglected by her young men acquaintances suddenly became a center of attraction, and within a few weeks the radiant bride of the man she had loved in vain for years—this is the theme of a letter received today. Hundreds of other letters just as wonderful have come to us voluntarily from readers of our new, revolutionary book dealing not with sex, but with psychology. "Fascinating Womanhood" shows how any woman who understands certain peculiarities about man's psychology can attract and win the love of practically any man she chooses.

SECRETS of FASCINATING WOMANHOOD

Just cut out this ad, write your name and address on the margin, and mail to us with 10c in stamps. The little book outlining these revelations will then be sent to you, postpaid in plain wrapper. Knowledge is power. Send your dime today.

The Champion

try and send me something. Your wife,
"EMMA."

Midge tore the letter into a hundred pieces and scattered them over the floor.

"Money, money, money!" he said. "They must think I'm made o' money. I s'pose the old woman's after it, too."

He opened his mother's letter:

"dear Michael Connie wonted me to rite and say you must beet the duetchman and he is sur you will and wonted me to say we wont you to rite and tell us about it, but I guess you havent no time to rite or we herd from you long beffore this but I wish you would rite jest a line or 2 becaus it wud be better for Connie then a barl of medisin. It wuld help me to keep things going if you send me money now and then when you can spair it but if you cant send no money try and fine time to rite a letter only a few lines and it will please Connie. Jest think boy he hasent got out of bed in over 3 yrs. Connie says good luck. Your mother,
"ELLEN F. KELLY."

"I thought so," said Midge. "They're all alike."

The third letter was from New York. It read:

"Hon: This is the last letter you will get from me before your champ, but I will send you a telegram Saturday, but I can't say as much in a telegram as in a letter and I am writeing this to let you know I am thinking of you and praying for good luck.

"Lick him good hon and don't wait no longer than you have to and don't forget to wire me as soon as its over. Give him that little old left of yours on the nose hon and don't be afraid of spoiling his good looks because he couldn't be no homelier than he is. But don't let him spoil my baby's pretty face. You wont will you hon. Well hon I would give anything to be there and see it, but I guess you love Haley better than me or you wouldn't let him keep me away. But when your champ hon we can do as we please and tell Haley to go to the devil.

Well hon I will send you a telegram Saturday and I almost forgot to tell you I will need some more money, a couple hundred say and you will have to wire it to me as soon as you get this. You will won't you hon.

"I will send you a telegram Saturday and remember hon I am pulling for you.

"Well goodby sweetheart and good luck. GRACE."

"They're all alike," said Midge. "Money, money, money."

Tommy Haley, shining from his ablutions, came in from the adjoining room.

"Thought you'd be layin' down," he said.

"I'm goin' to," said Midge, unbuttoning his orange shoes.

"I'll call you at 6 and you can eat up here, with no bugs to pester you. I got to go down and give them birds their tickets."

"Did you hear from Goldberg?" asked Midge.

"Didn't I tell you? Sure; 15 weeks at 500, if we win. And we can get a guarantee o' 12,000, with privileges, either in New York or Milwaukee."

"Who with?"

"Anybody that'll stand up in front of you. You don't care who it is, do you?"

"Not me. I'll make 'em all look like a monkey."

"Well, you better lay down aw'ile."

"Oh, say, wire 200 to Grace for me, will you? Right away; the New York address."

"Two hundred! You just sent her 300 last Sunday."

"Well, what the hell do you care?"

"All right, all right. Don't get sore about it. Anything else?"

"That's all," said Midge, and dropped onto the bed.

• • • • •

"And I want the deed done before I come back," said Grace, as she rose from the table. "You won't fall down on me, will you, hon?"

"Leave it to me," said Midge. "And don't spend no more than you have to."

Grace smiled a farewell and left the cafe. Midge continued to sip his coffee and read his paper.

They were in Chicago and they were in the middle of Midge's first week in vaudeville. He had come straight north to reap the rewards of his glorious victory over the broken-down Dutchman. A fortnight had been spent in learning his act, which consisted of a gymnastic exhibition and a 10 minutes' monologue on the various excellencies of Midge Kelly. And now he was twice daily turning 'em away from the Madison Theater.

His breakfast over and his paper read, Midge sauntered into the lobby and asked for his key. He then beckoned to a bellboy, who had been hoping for that very honor.

"Find Haley, Tommy Haley," said Midge. "Tell him to come up to my room."

"Yes, sir, Mr. Kelly," said the boy, and proceeded to break all his former records for diligence.

Midge was lookin' out of his seventh-story window when Tommy answered the summons.

"What'll it be?" inquired the manager.

There was a pause before Midge replied.

"Haley," he said, "25 per cent is a whole lot o' money."

"I guess I got it comin', ain't I?" said Tommy.

"I don't see how you figger it. I don't see where you're worth it to me."

"Well," said Tommy, "I didn't expect nothin' like this. I thought you was satisfied with the bargain. I don't want to beat nobody out o' nothin', but I don't see where you could have got anybody else that would of did all I done for you."

"Sure, that's all right," said the champion. "You done a lot for me in Philly. And you got good money for it, didn't you?"

"Look here, Midge," Tommy said, "I thought I was fair with you, but if you don't think so, I'm willin' to hear what you think is fair. I don't want nobody callin' me Sherlock. Let's get down to business and sign up a contrac'. What's your figger?"

"Well, Haley, I might as well give it to you straight. They ain't nothin' that ain't too much."

"You mean you don't want me at no figger?"

"That's the idear."

And Tommy Haley, having a very vivid memory of the Dutchman's face as he fell, got out.

Grace came in later, dropped her numerous bundles on the lounge, and perched herself on the arm of Midge's chair.

"Well?' she said.

"Well," said Midge, "I got rid of him."

"Good boy," said Grace. "And now I think you might give me that 25 per cent."

"Besides the 70 you're already gettin'?" said Midge.

"Don't be no grouch, hon. You don't look pretty when you're grouchy."

"It ain't my business to look pretty," Midge replied.

"Wait till you see how I look with the stuff I bought this mornin'!"

Midge glanced at the bundles on the lounge.

"There's Haley's 25 per cent," he said, "and then some."

The champion did not remain long without a manager. Haley's successor was none other than Jerome Harris, who saw in Midge a better meal ticket than his popular-priced musical show had been.

The contract, giving Mr. Harris 25 per cent of Midge's earnings, was signed in Detroit the week after Tommy Haley had heard his dismissal read. It had

Oh, You Misfit!

SAILING under the name of man. You know the truth if no one else does—you know what you lack—what you need. You may hide it from others in a way, but you can't hide it from yourself. Have you a spark of ambition left to be the man you ought to be? Are you an easy victim of every little ailment that comes along, going around without snap or ginger, losing ground when you ought to gain it? Then wake up and be a man, not a misfit. Deserve the name of man; be vigorous; be strong; be vital. It makes no difference if you are a physical wreck, if you join hands with me, I'll make you the kind of man that's wanted, the kind of man needed, the kind of man looked for, sought for, bid for all the time, and it will be done without drugs, or tonics, or stimulants.

You business man—overworked, did you say? You are not doing half as much as you ought with your experience. Never mind, there is a way to get back your aggressiveness, to be right in the fight and enjoy it. Along your line of work, you need concentration and connected thought—you must apply yourself—the more healthy and strong your physical form, the more active will be your brain—the more clear your reasoning. You can double your percentage of real worth as a man, and enjoy life as you ought to be able to do.

If you are losing vim, vigor, have no snap, no inclination to hustle—and if you do hustle for a minute, you flop like a fish the next—you feel languid, indolent, always out of sorts. Get the pep and ginger and tingle of life into you. You are not living for yourself alone; you need dash, spirit, the enterprise you used to have. Regain and maintain your health; I'll show you how.

You young man—think of your future—how about it—are you qualified—do you feel it in your soul—are others sliding by you, doing more, getting more than you are? You know that a weak body is the greatest handicap in life. To succeed you must be strong, full of life and energy. This is easy to accomplish if you will let me help you. I have helped thousands physically, mentally, morally. I will make you the kind of man that is a credit to any community. I will make you so that your progress in any undertaking will be easier. I will guide, direct and point the way; the natural way for you to achieve what I have said—nature's way. You can gain muscular tissue, be strong, virile, erect in carriage, courageous and likable to all you meet.

Let me be your guide, your teacher. I have pupils all over the world learning a system of Health, Strength, moral courage building, known as

STRONGFORTISM

The New Science of Health Promotion

The one big underlying Fact on which STRONGFORTISM is based is the unassailable Fact—which modern physicians of every school now acknowledge—that the well-being of the human body depends absolutely on a thorough, scientific, all-round development of the Muscular System.

Nobody knows what causes the contraction and expansion of muscular tissue—it is one of the Sphinx-like riddles of the Universe; but every scientific man now knows that the most important organs of the body operate through this action, that Life itself depends on it. Most of the miserable chronic ailments to which man is heir have their origin in the under-development or over-development of some one or more of the involuntary internal muscles.

Strongfortism does not treat the symptoms of a trouble, as do most patent medicines and druggists' dope. It tackles the cause of it; puts the organ affected in shape to do its work; builds up the Whole system, internal and external; causes All parts of it to work in harmony, as the Creator intended they should—and health, strength, vigor and new virility follow as surely as day follows night.

LIONEL STRONGFORT

Dr. Sargent, of Harvard, declared that "Strongfort is unquestionably the finest specimen of physical development ever seen."

Send for My FREE Book
"Promotion and Conservation of Health, Strength and Mental Energy"

It will give you more valuable information than you ever before found between the two covers of a book. Don't confuse Strongfortism with the many advertised gymnastic and physical culture courses. Physical Culture is only a part of its principles. It really is the Science of Living Life. It will show you how to eliminate from your system, in a very short time, the distressing disorders which have made you feel yourself a misfit in the scheme of humanity; how to build up your body, strengthen ALL your vital organs, turn your anaemic blood into a radiant red and feel the thrill of New Life coursing through your veins. It will teach you how to become FIT physically and mentally; fit for business; for society; for the home; for fatherhood, a power among men, a pleasing personality to women. My pupils and graduates in all parts of the world will back up every word I say—you'll find photos and letters from some of them in the book. What I have done for them I can do for YOU. taken Midge just six days to learn that a popular actor cannot get on without the ministrations of a man who thinks, talks and means business. At first Grace objected to the new member of the firm, but when Mr. Harris had demanded and secured from the vaudeville people a $100 increase in Midge's weekly stipend, she was convinced that the champion had acted for the best.

"You and my missus will have some great old times," Harris had told Grace. "I'd of wired her to join us here, only I seen the kid's bookin' takes us to Milwaukee next week, and that's where she is."

But when they were introduced in the Milwaukee hotel, Grace admitted to herself that her feeling for Mrs. Harris could hardly be called love at first sight. Midge, on the contrary, gave his new manager's wife the many times over and seemed loath to end the feast of his eyes.

"Some doll," he said to Grace, when they were alone.

"Doll is right," the lady replied. "And sawdust where her brains ought to be."

"I'm li'ble to steal that baby," said Midge, and he smiled as he noted the effect of his words on his audience's face.

On Tuesday of the Milwaukee week the champion successfully defended his title in a bout that the newspapers never reported. Midge was alone in his room that morning when a visitor entered without knocking. The visitor was Lou Hersch.

Midge turned white at sight of him.

"What do you want?" he demanded.

"I guess you know," said Lou Hersch. "Your wife's starvin' to death and your baby's starvin' to death, and I'm starvin' to death, and you're dirty with money."

"Listen," said Midge, "if it wasn't for you I wouldn't never saw your sister. And if you ain't man enough to hold a job, what's that to me? The best thing you can do is to keep away from me."

"You give me a piece o' money and I'll go."

Midge's reply to the ultimatum was a straight right to his brother-in-law's narrow chest.

"Take that home to your sister."

Lou Hersch picked himself up and slunk away.

There was a party after each evening performance during the Milwaukee engagement. The wine flowed freely. In the dancing between drinks, Midge had his new manager's wife for a partner as often as Grace.

Several times that week Midge thought Grace was on the point of starting the quarrel he hoped to have. But it was not until Friday night that she accommodated. He and Mrs. Harris had disappeared after the matinee and when Grace saw him again at the close of the night show, she came to the point at once.

"What are you tryin' to pull off?" she demanded.

"It's none o' your business, is it?" said Midge.

"You bet it's my business; mine and Harris'. You cut it short or you'll find out."

"Listen," said Midge. "Have you got a mortgage on me, or somethin'? You talk like we was married."

"We're goin' to be, too. And tomorrow's as good a time as any."

"Just about," Midge said. "You got as much chanct o' marryin' me tomorrow as the next day or next year, and that ain't no chanct at all."

"We'll find out," said Grace.

"You're the one that's got somethin' to find out."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I'm married already."

"You lie!"

"You think so, do you? Well, s'pose you go to this here address and get acquainted with my missus."

Midge scrawled a number on a piece of paper and handed it to her. She stared at it unseeingly.

"Well," said Midge, "I ain't kiddin' you. You go there and ask for Mrs. Michael Kelly, and if you don't find her, I'll marry you tomorrow before breakfast."

Still Grace stared at the scrap of paper. To Midge it seemed an age before she spoke again.

"You lied to me all this w'ile."

"You never ast me was I married. What's more, what the hell diff'rence did it make to you? You got a split, didn't you? Better'n 50—50."

He started away.

"Where you goin'?"

"I'm goin' to meet Harris and his wife."

"I'm goin' with you. You're not goin' to shake me now."

"Yes, I am, too," said Midge, quietly. "When I leave town tomorrow night you're goin' to stay here. And if I see you're goin' to make a fuss, I'll put you in a hospital where they'll keep you quiet. You can get your stuff tomorrow mornin' and I'll slip you a hundred bucks. And then I don't want to see no more o' you. And don't try and tag along now or I'll have to add another K. O. to the old record."

When Grace returned to the hotel that night she discovered that Midge and the Harrises had moved to another. And when Midge left town the following night he was again without a manager, and Mr. Harris was without a wife.

* * * * *

Three days prior to Midge Kelly's 10-round bout with Young Milton in New York, the sporting editor of the News assigned Joe Morgan to write two or three thousand words about the champion to run with a picture lay-out for Sunday.

Joe Morgan dropped in at Midge's training quarters Friday afternoon. Midge, he learned, was doing road work, but Midge's manager, Wallie Adams, stood ready and willing to supply the reams of dope about the greatest fighter of the age.

"Let's hear what you've got," said Joe, "and then I'll try to fix up something."

So Wallie stepped on the accelerator of his imagination and shot away.

"Just a kid; that's all he is; a regular boy. Get what I mean? Don't know the meanin' o' bad habits. Never tasted liquor in his life and would prob'bly get sick if he smelled it. Clean livin' put him where he's at. Get what I mean? And modest and assumin' as a schoolgirl. He's so quiet you wouldn't never know he was round. And he'd go to jail before he'd talk about himself.

"No job at all to get him in shape, 'cause he's always that way. The only trouble we have with him is gettin' him to light into these poor bums they match him up with. He's scared he'll hurt somebody. Get what I mean? He's tickled to death over his match with Milton, 'cause everybody says that Milton can stand the gaff. Midge may be able to cut loose a little this time. But the last two bouts he had the guys had no business in the ring with him, and he was holdin' back all the w'ile for the fear he'd kill somebody. Get what I mean?"

"Is he married?" inquired Joe.

"Say, you'd think he was married to hear him rave about them kiddies he's got. His family's up in Canada to their summer home and Midge is wild to get up there with 'em. He thinks more o' that wife and them kiddies than all the money in the world. Get what I mean?"

"How many children has he?"

"I don't know, four or five, I guess. All boys and every one of 'em a dead ringer for their dad."

"Is his father living?"

"No, the old man died when he was a kid. But he's got a grand old mother and a kid brother out in Chi. They're the first ones he thinks about after a match, them and his wife and kiddies. And he don't forget to send the old woman a thousand bucks after every bout. He's going to buy her a new home as soon as they pay him off for this match."

"How about his brother ? Is he going to tackle the game?"

"Sure, and Midge says he'll be a champion before he is 20 years old. They're a fightin' fam'ly and all of 'em honest and straight as a die. Get what I mean? A fella that I can't tell you his name come to Midge in Milwaukee onct and wanted him to throw a fight and Midge give him such a trimmin' in the street that he couldn't go on that night. That's the kind he is. Get what I mean?"

Remarkable Treatment Rebuilds Stomach Nerves, Stops Gas, Belching, Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Sour Stomach
In June, 1899, an aged doctor—a noted stomach specialist—gave me his favorite prescription for stomach trouble. As a long established druggist, I had filled many stomach prescriptions, but none like this. It gave such quick relief in the most distressing cases—it soon built up weak, shattered irritated stomach nerves—restored their normal strength and activity. I started dispensing this treatment at my 12 stores here in Springfield, and soon I was getting orders from all over the United States. I was amazed to discover that
95 out of 100 Get Immediate Relief
With such outstanding results I decided to advertise this treatment nationally, for even with 12 drug stores in Springfield, comparatively few stomach sufferers could be benefitted.
Weak, abused stomach nerves must be repaired and put in a healthy condition. Then gas pains around the heart, palpitation, smothering spells, rumbling noises, bloating, burning sour taste or drowsiness after eating, all disappear. No matter how long you've suffered or how many remedies you've taken, give my treatment a trial. You take no risk.
It's sent on approval—costs only $1.00 if it makes good my claim — nothing if it fails. Contains no harmful drugs. Write me today—a postal will do. Full treatment comes by return post.

Joe Morgan hung around the camp until Midge and trainers returned.

"One o' the boys from the News," said Wallie, by way of introduction. "I been givin' him your fam'ly hist'ry."

"Did he give you good dope?" he inquired.

"He's some historian," said Joe.

"Don't call me no names," said Wallie, smiling.

"Call us up if they's anything more you want. And keep your eyes on us Monday night. Get what I mean?"

The story in Sunday's News was read by thousands of lovers of the manly art. It was well written and full of human interest. Its slight inaccuracies went unchallenged, though three readers, besides Wallie Adams and Midge Kelly, saw and recognized them. The three were Grace, Tommy Haley and Jerome Harris, and the comments they made were not for publication.

Neither the Mrs. Kelly in Chicago nor the Mrs. Kelly in Milwaukee knew that there was such a paper as the New York News. And even if they had known it and that it contained two columns of reading matter about Midge, neither mother nor wife could have bought it. For the News on Sunday is a nickel a copy.

Joe Morgan could have written more accurately, no doubt, if instead of Wallie Adams he had interviewed Ellen Kelly and Connie Kelly and Emma Kelly and Lou Hersch and Grace and Jerome Harris and Tommy Haley and Hap Collins and two or three Milwaukee bartenders.

But a story built on their evidence would never have passed the sporting editor.

"Suppose you can prove it," that gentleman would have said. "It wouldn't get us anything but abuse to print it. The people don't want to see him knocked. He's champion."

Primordial Vengeance

tried the edge of a steel digging tool. All that the dogs could accomplish in their frantic haste was to tear loose small particles of the hardened earth and send them tumbling downward, where they must have surprised the snake in the act of swallowing a dog baby. At any rate, the reptile came forth into the light, and even as he moved I could make out the lumps in his body that indicated where two such babies had gone. The snake himself shot from the burrow mouth with a rush that carried him well past the nearest dogs as they scurried out of his path, but even as I knew they had lost the first round of the fight I was convinced they had no intention of giving up.

The dogs' enemy was now in the open and uncoiled, racing toward safety, and in this condition they had no fear of him. He could not strike without coiling, and to do that he must stop. So long as he was in motion they were free to attack him almost at will, and this they proceeded to do, running after him as rapidly as their short legs would carry them and seeking to injure him with teeth and claw.

As the snake reached the edge of the town more than half the dogs surrounded him. One intrepid fellow leaped full at the twisting body, missed his aim, but managed to inflict a slight prick with his needle-sharp teeth, whereupon the reptile appeared to decide against further flight. Quick as a flash he whipped his six feet of length into a neat coil, with his head in the center and resting on the folds of his own body.

Occasionally, thereafter, that head was lifted in open-mouthed defiance. The forked tongue shot back and forth between those two murderous poison fangs, one prick of which would bring instant death to any dog they struck. The eyes glared hate, the twitching tail rasped out the warning that brings terror to the heart of all but a few animals, man being included with the majority.

The dogs arranged themselves in a rough circle about their enemy, keeping well beyond the reach of his fangs, but exhibiting little fear of his incessant rattling. They understood full well it was not his tail they had to evade, but the fangs that sprang erect at each opening of his mouth.

A state of siege now ensued.

The hope of the snake lay in the fact that the day was nearly done, for if he could stand off his adversaries until darkness they would leave him then to seek their burrows for the night. In that event he would be free to make his own departure in safety.

The exact degree of contempt which the dogs held for the snake was evidenced by their constant scolding. It completely drowned out the sound of his own rattling, but still he kept it up—as much no doubt through the prompting of instinct as because of any special gain he would get from it.

Presently one dog more venturesome than his fellows rushed at the snake, baring his teeth in a queer sort of snapping way and chattering vehemently as he swung just back of the reptile's limit of striking distance.

As if this had been a signal for the attack to begin, one dog after another repeated the performance, making it well-nigh impossible for me to follow their movements with my glass—and I know it must have been fully as difficult for the snake himself to keep safe tab on the whereabouts of them all.

He dare not risk uncoiling to any considerable extent in attempting to strike one dog as it came near, lest another approach from a new angle at his then defenseless moment. Thus forced to resort to short jabs with his head and the extreme forward part of his body, his strokes failed of their objectives, since the dogs calculated his reaches to a nicety and remained slightly beyond the danger line.

One dog after another they came at him, now singly and now in pairs, trios and quartets, giving him no respite for even the briefest rests.

A siege of this kind must necessarily be short.

The snake was heavy with the weight of the dogs he had swallowed. Moreover, it was contrary to his physical makeup to exert himself overmuch while the process of digestion was going on, nature decreeing that his energy be conserved for a time after each meal so that the important business of working up the food might take place without hindrance. For the violation of this ordinance she exacted severe penalties; and though the snake's predicament was precarious in the extreme and his life in the greatest danger, he could not conduct his defense with full effectiveness under the handicap thus imposed upon him.

Gradually his movements became a little more sluggish as the elements of fatigue and drowsiness asserted themselves. He struck less frequently and with evident weariness; his aim became more and more uncertain as his strength waned.

A dog came so close that it seemed impossible for the snake to miss. He struck, uncoiling somewhat more of his length than he had previously done, and before he could recover his poise another dog that seemed to have awaited some such opportunity leaped straight at his body and landed immediately behind the head.

Long teeth sank through scales and skin, burying deep in the quivering flesh. As the snake thrashed about to free himself he uncoiled his full length, and still the dog held grimly on.

Other dogs, seeing the success of their companion, emulated his example. A veritable horde set upon the snake, grasping him in an uncounted number of places by teeth that went to his vitals. Quickly he was stretched upon the ground, held helpless by the superior weight of the dogs, and mortally wounded in every inch of his body.

The frenzied dogs shook and rent his slim body. Then, when the last movement of life had ceased, they left off their butchery with the same apparent unanimity of purpose that characterized the taking up of the fight in defense of their homes. In a mob, again, they returned to the burrows for which they had battled so bravely.

• • • • •

As the sun sank to rest in that blaze of glory which only the great plains are permitted to witness, an owl arose from his perch atop the mound of a deserted burrow and made straightway for the scene of the fight.

Other owls joined him. Collectively they sought out and devoured every particle of the flesh won for them by the dogs that long had furnished them with nesting places.

The rising sun of another day found nothing to tell the story but a few scraps of skin and bone—and a set of rattles.

The curtain of life's tragedy was rung down upon one more tragedy of the open spaces.

How long do you expect to live?

Make your own answer. It's up to you. I know you might be hit on the head with a brick or have someone push you off the end of a dock. But barring accidents, what then? If you take care of any piece of machinery it will last for years—abuse it and you might as well cash it in after the first year. This is just as true of your own body.

If You Do—You Die Go ahead with your careless living if you want. Eat and drink what you like. Abuse your body—it's yours to do with as you please. You may think you're having a good time. But are you? You get up in the morning feeling half dead. You drag yourself through the day and before it's half over you are drowsy and lagging. Get wise to yourself. Don't you know your body is clogging up with poison? Don't you know your lungs are starving for oxygen? Don't you realize your inner cells are breaking down and you are not doing a thing to replenish them? You're dying, man—and you don't know it.

I Add Years to Your Life

You need exercise. You must have it. Tie your arm to your side and it will wither away—but use your muscles and you have more muscle to use. The same is true throughout your entire body. Every vital organ is completely surrounded with muscles which make these organs function. Exercise and you strengthen the organ itself. You wear down the dead tissue or cells. The white corpuscles of your blood carry it off and the red corpuscles supply new healthy tissue. You drive death and disease out and bring new life to a worn down and famished body.

You Need a Teacher

Just any kind of exercise won't do. I have had men come to me who were literally broken down from work in factory or mill. With scientific instruction I brought their body back to strength and power.

My system has been tried and proven. It never fails. Some claim, eh? Well, it's true. I don't care what your present condition is. I want you to say: "I'm ready," and I'll knock those microbes in you higher than a cocked hat. I'll shoot you so full of life you'll think you swallowed a stick of dynamite. And muscle? That's my middle name. In three months' time I'll build up every muscle in your body. I'll broaden those shoulders and deepen your chest so that every breath will bring deep loads of oxygen to your lungs, purifying your blood and shooting a thrill throughout your entire system. I'll brighten your eyes and clear your skin. I'll make you so full of life you will feel like shouting out to the world: "I'm a man and I can prove it."

And remember, fellows, I don't just promise these things—I guarantee them. Do you doubt me? Make me prove it. That's what I like because I know I can do it.

Come on then. Snap into it. Are you ready? Let's go!

MISSOURI GIRL A BEAUTY EXPERT'S BRIDE

When Miss Beatrice Clough of Kansas City attended the beauty show in Atlantic City last summer, as guest of Howard Chandler Christy, artist, she won a "prize" not scheduled. The prize is Dr. Robert A. Bachman of New York, who became the husband of Miss Clough at her Missouri home Jan. 7. Dr. Bachman, who was a judge in the beauty contest and is a writer on beauty, has declared her "the most perfect example of feminine beauty I ever have seen." Mrs. Bachman is 22, her husband 46—but what's the difference?

"It's mighty raw on the waterfront"

Pratt and Light Streets, if you know the Baltimore waterfront, means a bitter-cold, wind-swept corner in winter.

No one knows it better than the Mounted Policeman whose "beat" keeps him around there. Most of us can duck indoors when things get raw outside but a Policeman must stick to his post!

Officer Louis F. Zulauf rides that section back and forth every day. His many decorations for exceptional bravery show he's not one to flinch at such a trifling matter as the weather.

But everybody gets coughs. One almost had him laid up recently. Then REM---but let him tell it:

"We policemen often get coughs because weather doesn't mean anything to us. We must be out in all kinds. My post is down near the Ericsson Line. It's usually pretty raw down there.

"REM saved me from laying off a couple of days recently. I had caught a heck of a cough during the recent sloppy spell and it looked as if 'Dick' and I were due to be off our 'beat' for a while.

"I couldn't stop this cough with anything - it didn't let up day or night.

"Then I saw REM in a drug store window and I thought I'd give it a try-out. It relieved me like magic. Now I wouldn't think of using anything else for a cough."

REM's quick action in so many cases is largely due to a special ingredient — effective, harmless — not found in ordinary cough syrups. Clinging to your throat as it is swallowed, REM quickly begins its work of quieting your cough.

No Opiates in REM. And it's pleasant to take.

Ask your Druggist for REM—the blue package with the round orange label. You can have your money back if you want it—but you won't!

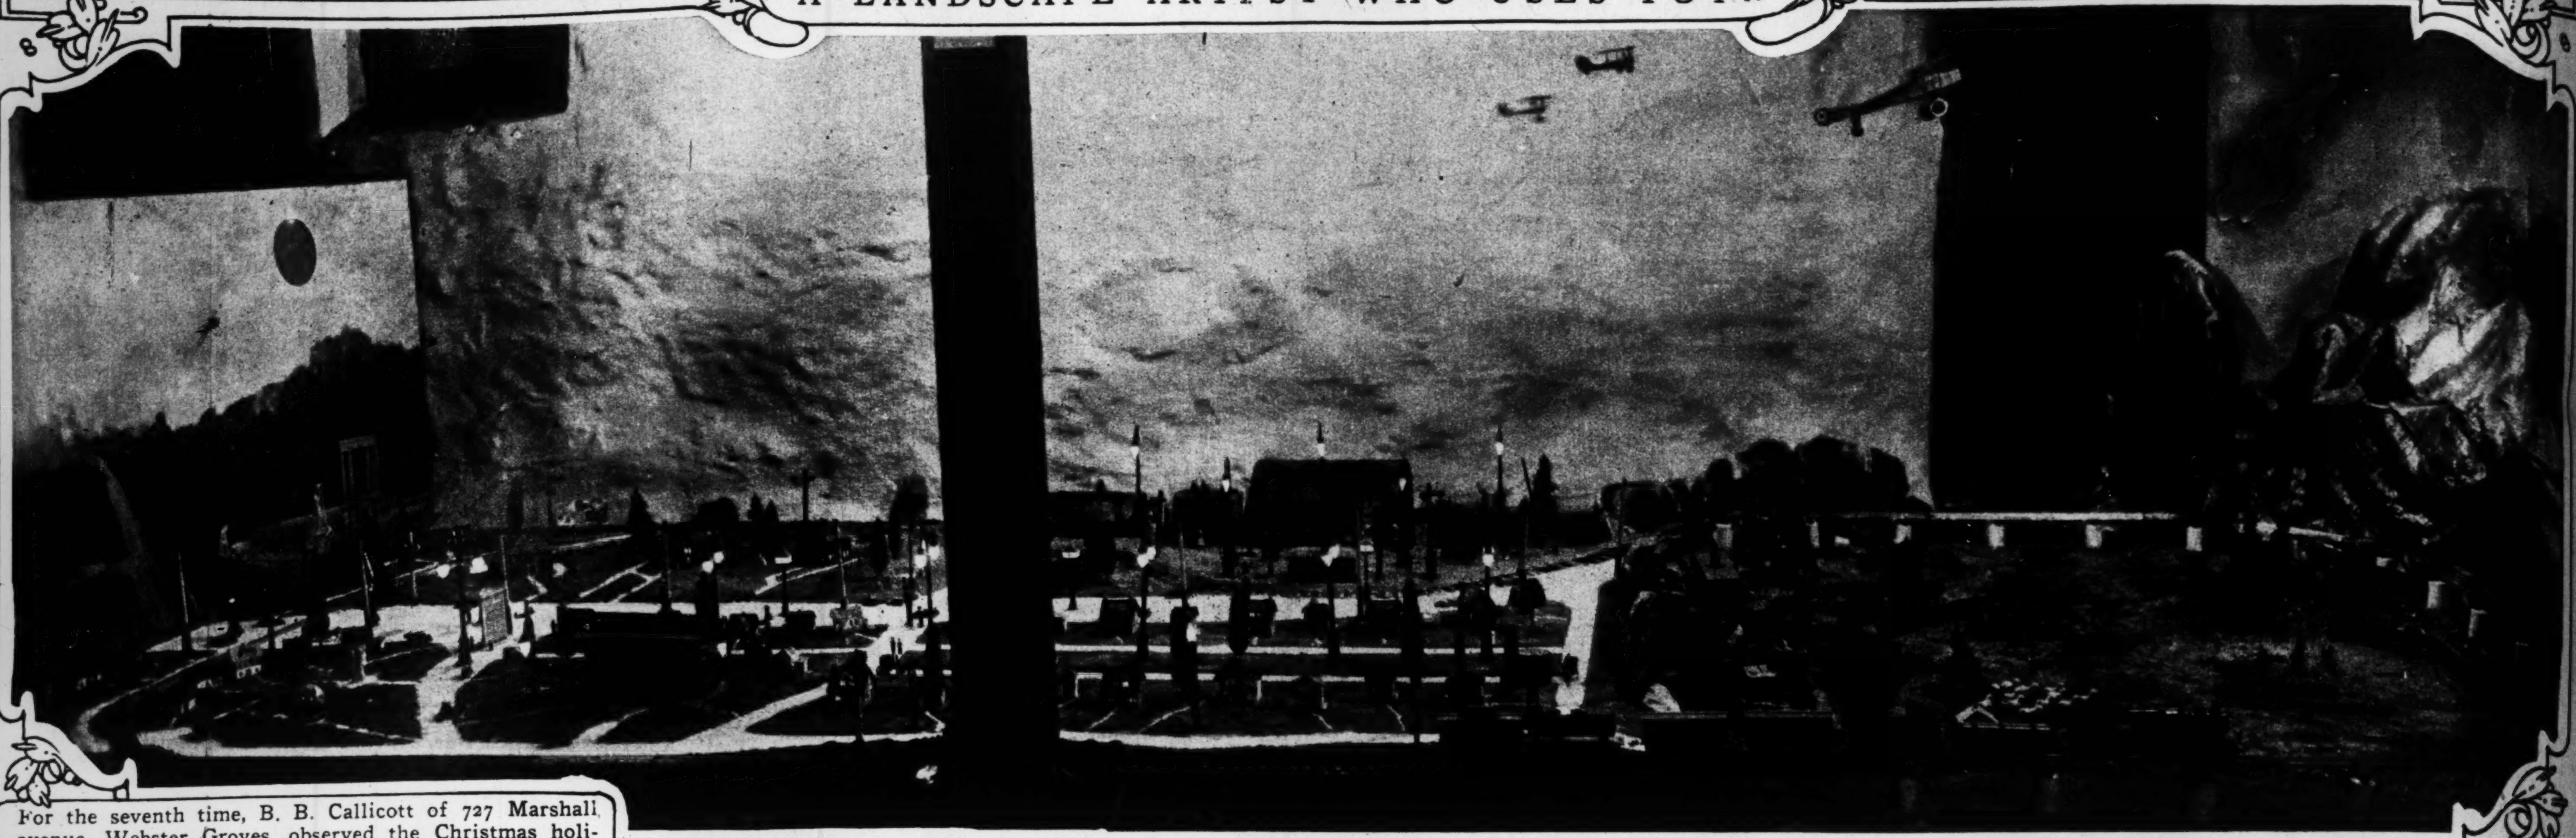
A LANDSCAPE ARTIST WHO USES TOYS



For the seventh time, B. B. Callicott of 727 Marshall avenue, Webster Groves, observed the Christmas holidays by arranging a toy village in the basement of his home. In the scene shown here he used 50 feet of railroad track, 500 feet of electric wire, 60 lights and dozens of people, houses, animals and autos. From Christmas to Jan. 6, the display was seen by more than 700 visitors at the Callicott home.

"A physical wreck—I was irritable, nervous, debilitated. I tried the rest cure, the milk diet, and nearly every curative treatment known to science, but to no avail. I was simply depleted of nervous energy. When I heard of Fleischmann's Yeast I was skeptical of the wonderful results attributed to it. In a week's time, after using the yeast, my digestion became better, my complexion brighter, and I slowly regained lost vitality."

(Mr. Clair C. Cook, of Los Angeles, California)

"We restaurant eaters must force greasy, quickly fried food into our stomachs in a hurry. No wonder they get sluggish and refuse to perform their duties. And our next move is 'take one of these pills each night!' Even the best stomach cannot stand such treatment. On the advice of a friend I ate my first yeast cake. Now I feel like the man who puts coal on a fire. He gets heat units, while today I'm enjoying health and vigor units, and am glad to be out of the 'glass of water and pill' class."

(Mr. Thomas Leyden, of Elizabeth, N. J.)

"I knew my headaches and unwholesome complexion were caused by constipation. To take frequent cathartics was my regular program and even by doing this I was tired and dopey. 'I like what yeast does for me' said one of my customers and asked if I had ever tried it. I began to drink yeast in milk regularly. Soon people began to comment on how well I was looking—my husband said I grew younger—the mirror told me my complexion and eyes were clear and bright. Cathartics are now a thing of the past."

(Mrs. Mabelle Conomikes, of Marathon, N. Y.)

"'And my Fleischmann's Yeast cakes as usual.' For almost three years I have given this order to my grocer several times each week and will continue indefinitely. Three years ago as a young mother in a run-down condition, with boils rendering me almost helpless, I felt that the end of my endurance had been reached. In desperation I sent for Fleischmann's Yeast cakes. The boils began to dry up. I slept better—had a keener appetite, felt better and by Spring had regained my strength and vivacity."

(Mrs. Helen M. Raup, of Linthicum Heights, Maryland)

FOUR KINDRED ILLS - - -

Lowered Vitality - Stomach Troubles
Constipation - - Skin Disorders

One simple food to banish them - -

EAT FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST FOR HEALTH

Yeast is especially delicious on toasted crackers or as a sandwich "filler" with jam or peanut butter

THESE remarkable reports are typical of thousands of similar tributes to Fleischmann's Yeast.

There is nothing mysterious about its action. It is not a "cure-all," not a medicine in any sense. But when the body is choked with the poisons of constipation—or when its vitality is low so that skin, stomach and general health are affected—this simple, natural food achieves literally amazing results.

Concentrated in every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast are millions of tiny yeast-plants, alive and active. At once they go to work—invigorating the whole system, clearing the skin, aiding digestion, strengthening the intestinal muscles and making them healthy and active.

Fleischmann's Yeast for Health comes only in the tinfoil package—it cannot be purchased in tablet form. All grocers have it. Start eating it today! You can order several cakes at a time, for Yeast will keep fresh in a cool, dry place for two or three days.

Dissolve one cake in a glass of water
(just hot enough to drink)

before breakfast and at bedtime. Fleischmann's Yeast when taken this way, is especially effective in overcoming or preventing constipation. Or eat 2 or 3 cakes a day—spread on bread or crackers—dissolved in fruit juices or milk—or eat it plain.

Write us for further information, or let us send you a free copy of our latest booklet on Yeast for Health. Address: Health Research Dept. 771, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington Street, New York.

WHAT A DARLING HOME YOU HAVE DEAR. AWF'LY CUTE-
THIS IS ALL YOU'RE GOING TO GET I'LL TELL YOU THAT! I'M SICK AND—PSH-H-H-H
WHAT?
FOR GOODNESS SAKE KEEP QUIET! VERA KINLEY IS IN THERE! WHAT AILS YOU ANYWAY-?
BUILD US A NICE WARM FIRE DEAR
YES DEAR
LISTEN DEAR WON'T YOU GO DOWN AND PILE SOME MORE COAL ON THE FURNACE?
YES DEAR-
JAN-18-25-
LATER-
YOU HAVE TO GO AND TAKE ADVANTAGE OF COMPANY BEING HERE TO GET ME TO DO A LOT OF WORK DON'T YOU? DO YOU CALL THAT SMART?
WELL YOU MADE A FINE DISPLAY OF YOURSELF I MUST SAY- SHE HEARD EVERYTHING YOU SAID
©1925 N.Y. TRIBUNE INC.
WHAT DO I CARE ABOUT VERA KINLEY!? SHE'S NOTHING TO ME AND IF SHE DOESN'T LIKE THE WAY I TALK IN MY OWN HOME SHE CAN KEEP AWAY! THERE'S NO LAW THAT COMPELS HER TO COME HERE IS THERE?
SHE'LL GO AND PEDDLE IT AROUND THAT WE LIVE A CAT AND DOG LIFE- JUST BECAUSE YOU HAVE THAT NASTY TEMPER WHEN EVERYTHING DOESN'T GO JUST EXACTLY TO SUIT YOU-
AND SO ON- FAR FAR INTO THE NIGHT-

"RIDE WITH YOU?" IN THAT! AN' ME CARRYIN' EGGS! I SHOULD SAY NOT!
FOR THE LUVAPETE IS BUSINESS SO ROTTEN THAT YOU GOTTA FOLLOW FOLKS AROUND TRY'IN T' GIT 'EM T' RIDE?
"IF YOU COME ON BACK I'LL FIX UP A CONTRAPTION WITH THIS OLD BED SPRING SO YOU CAN CARRY THEM EGGS ON THET CAR AS SAFE AS A CHURCH!
"I ALLUS FIGGERED YOU COULD CARRY EGGS ON A BUCKIN' BRONCHO SAFER 'N YOU COULD ON THET CAR
"NOW! YOU TIE IT ONTO THE HANDLE OF THE BASKET.
"NOW THE IDEE IS FOR YOU T' STAND ON THE BACK PLATFORM AND HOLD THESE EGGS LIKE THIS! WOT SAY!
"THE KID'S CLEVER!
"DAWGUNNIT! SHE'S OFF THE RAILS!!
"WHY SKIPPER! HOW'D YOU GET THAT KNOB ON YOUR HEAD IT LOOKS LIKE AN EGG!
"IT WUZ A EGG! A WHOLE BASKET OF 'EM.

A "TANGLED COMIC'' will appear every week for twelve weeks as a Comic Section feature of the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

Captions, characters and scenes will be disarranged as if the artist had torn the completed picture into scraps and reassembled the scraps without regard for the original drawings. The artist does not always spell correctly, and you must correct his misspelled words.

Cash prizes will be awarded to Post-Dispatch readers who rearrange the Tangled Comic and submit their solutions to the Tangled Comic Editor.

331 prizes totaling $1100 will be awarded each week.

Four Grand Prizes totaling $1800 will be awarded after the solutions of the 12th Tangled Comic problem have been received here.

Weekly prizes will be awarded in the order of merit, solutions submitted being judged according to—

1st—Accuracy of arrangement of the Tangled Comic in its original state, having regard for position of characters, sequence of scenes, the "conversation'' of the characters and the correction of misspelled words, etc.

2d—Neatness of the finished solution submitted.

3d—Skill, originality or unique method of rearrangement, as disclosed by the solution submitted.

After twelve weeks, grand prizes will be awarded by the same tests. Any solution, of any of the twelve different Tangled Comics, submitted within the required time limits, is eligible for a grand prize.

Solutions must be submitted every week by mail, addressed to Tangled Comic Editor, the Post-Dispatch, 12th and Olive Streets, St. Louis, Mo., and must be received here not later than noon of Saturday, the sixth day after date of publication.

All solutions must be accompanied by an identifying note, giving name and complete address (including P. O. Box, R. F. D. route and box or street and number, town, state, etc.) of the sender. No solutions will be acknowledged and none returned.

Awards will be announced in all editions of the Sunday Post-Dispatch of date two weeks after date of publication, of each Tangled Comic, together with a black and white reproduction of the correct solution.

Everybody may compete for a share of the prizes offered, excepting only employes of the Post-Dispatch and members of their families.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Your solution contains writing when you correct a word in your Tangled Comic. This makes it subject to first class or letter postage.

If you do not put the required amount of postage upon your solution, when mailing, it is very likely to be sent to the Dead Letter Office in Washington, when name of sender is not visible, or withheld by the Post Office Department until you can be notified of postage due. This delay might cause your contribution to arrive too late for consideration. Therefore, make sure you have the required amount of postage upon your entry, as the Post-Dispatch will only accept prepaid mail.

In the event of a tie for any of the prizes offered, the amount of the prize will be paid to each participant in the tie.

Only one solution may be submitted by any person for one of the weekly prizes.

The right is reserved by the Post-Dispatch to accept the decision of the Tangled Comic Editor and his art staff associates as final in the award and payment of the cash prizes offered, and the submission of solutions will be construed as acceptance of this condition by those who compete for prizes.

WEEKLY CASH PRIZE DISTRIBUTION—
$100.00 in cash for the most meritorious solution submitted.
50.00 in cash for the solution next in order of merit.
100.00 in four prizes of $25 each for solutions next in order of merit.
250.00 in twenty-five prizes of $10 each for solutions next in order of merit.
300.00 in sixty prizes of $5.00 each for solutions next in order of merit.
100.00 in forty prizes of $2.50 each for solutions next in order of merit.
200.00 in two hundred prizes of $1.00 each for solutions next in order of merit.
$1100.00 Weekly Total for Twelve Weeks.

GRAND PRIZE DISTRIBUTION—At end of competition.
$1000.00 in each for the most meritorious solution during the 12 weeks period.
500.00 in cash for the solution second in oder of merit.
200.00 in cash for the solution third in order of merit.
100.00 in cash for the solution fourth in order of merit.
$1800.00 GRAND PRIZE TOTAL.

83,628 U. S. INCOME TAX RETURNS BY ST. LOUISANS

Report for 1922 Shows More Than Half of Personal in State Came From City and County.

AVERAGE TAX PAID IN MISSOURI $4.65

Of Total Return of $609,600,987, Amount From Wages and Salaries Was $370,922,833.

A review of the income tax returns for the entire country will be found on Page 1 of the editorial section of this issue of the Post-Dispatch.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Treasury statistics made public today show that more than one-half of the personal income tax returns by Missourians for the calendar year 1922 came from St. Louis and St. Louis County. The total number of Missouri returns was 173,728, of which St. Louis was credited with 83,628 and St. Louis County with 7597.

The total tax for the State, including both the personal and the corporation tax, was $39,099,953.

Only one person in Ozark County filed a return and only two persons in Hickory County.

Of the total number of Missouri personal returns, 158,463 were on incomes of less than $5000; 9935 on incomes from $5000 to $10,000 and 5330 on incomes of $10,000 and over.

Missouri's Percentage.

The Missouri returns constituted 2.56 per cent of the total (6,787,481) for the United States. They reported a net income of $526,387,658, which was 2.47 per cent of the amount ($21,336,212,530) for the whole country. The Missouri personal tax was $15,972,706, or 1.86 per cent of the total ($861,057,308).

The percentage of the population of Missouri filing returns was 5.06, as compared with a nation-wide percentage of 6.20. The average net income reported from Missouri was $3029.82; the average amount of tax per return was $91.04; the per capita net income reported was $153.35 and the per capita income tax was $4.65.

Classification of Cities.

By cities, the Missouri returns were classified as follows:

Brookfield	513
Cape Girardeau	705
Carthage	375
Chillicothe	290
Clinton	210
Columbia	625
De Soto	200
Fulton	192
Hannibal	1,350
Independence	1,090
Jefferson City	750
Joplin	1,500
Kansas City	37,050
Kirksville	365
Maplewood	985
Marshall	400
Mexico	368
Moberly	1,156
Nevada	410
Poplar Bluff	405
St. Charles	524
St. Joseph	5,000
St. Louis	83,628
Sedalia	1,300
Springfield	2,200
Trenton	480
University	798
Webb City	230
Webster Groves	1,882

As compared with 1921, Missouri showed an increase of seven-tenths of one per cent in the number of returns, 5.30 per cent in the net income reported and 8.95 per cent in the tax paid.

Fluctuation of Tax.

The following table shows how the tax has fluctuated in Missouri since 1917, the year in which returns on incomes of $1000 and over began to be required:

	No. of Returns.	Total Income.	Total Tax.
1917	91,608	$362,026,687	$10,880,241
1918	110,890	409,013,021	20,716,692
1919	125,248	470,443,311	22,146,510
1920	162,109	548,130,178	21,877,701
1921	172,519	499,911,004	14,660,351
1922	173,728	526,387,658	15,972,706

Missouri's personal tax of $15,972,706 was derived as follows: Normal tax, $7,987,667; surtax, $7,689,996; tax on capital net gain 12½ per cent, $295,043.

Of the total of 173,728 Missouri returns, 92,075 were joint returns of husbands and wives, including husbands whose wives, though living with them, filed separate returns; 11,822 were filed by men as head of families; 4354 by women as heads of families; 47,812 by all other men; 15,700 by all other women. The number of wives making separate returns from their husbands was 1905.

Income From Missouri.

The income reported from Missouri was distributed as follows: Wages and salaries, $370,922,833; from business, $57,883,779; partnerships, $24,967,338; profits from sales of real estate, stocks, bonds,
